FEAR-CRAZED HORSES LED FROM FLAMING STABLE

Unions Restrained From Using Funds To Aid Miners

Judge Grants Injunction Asked For by Government

Sydney, Australia, July 2 (Reuters)—Justice W. R. Kelly today granted an injunction restraining four unions from spending funds which it was alleged they drew from banks to aid coal miners in their country-wide strike.

The injunction was granted in Arbitration Court on four government applications, in the first action under the Emergency Coal Strike Act passed the same day the unions were said to have withdrawn the funds.

The four unions named were the Miners Federation, Federated Dock Workers Federation and the Amalgamated Engineering Union.

A. E. Taylor, industrial administrator of the Arbitration Court, applied for the injunction.

Taylor alleged that "certain unions" had withdrawn about 100,000 pounds Australian ($320,000) from banks June 29, the day the act was passed.

"This appears to be Communist inspired and a conspiracy against the commonwealth," Taylor said in an affidavit. He added that the Communist-controlled unions had decided to appoint a committee to organize support for the miners.

The injunction, in seeking to restrain the two unions from paying strikers, alternatively sought repayment of money withdrawn to the banks or to the Arbitration Court.

The affidavit alleged that the Federated Ironworkers Association cashed a cheque for 25,000 pounds and that the Dock Workers Federation cashed one for 4,000 pounds.

Meanwhile, the emergency committee of the Australian Council of Trade Unions conferred here, seeking a way to reopen negotiations to end the stoppages.

A. E. Monk, secretary-general of the council, said before the meeting that the position "looks grim" but the committee would continue to strive for a settlement formula.

Three Hydro Projects Will be Done on Time

Toronto, July 2—(CP)—Robert H. Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, Thursday reported "excellent progress" in construction of Hdyro's new power developments on the Ottawa River.

"It is expected all three projects will be completed according to schedule," he said, "Des Joachims in 1950, Chenaux in 1951 and LaCave in 1952."

He said the total amount of power to be added to the southern system from these developments is estimated at 820,000 horse-power.

"At Des Joachims," he said, work on the first four units is well ahead of schedule, with the first two of the plant's giant penstocks now being placed in position."

He said also that work is well advanced on the powerhouse substructure, and excavation is being carried on at the site of the second group of four generating units.

"By June 1," Mr. Sunders disclosed,, "more than 460,000 of an estimated total of 900,000 cubic yards of concrete had been poured."

Mr. Saunders said Hydro has surmounted the supplies obstacle by ordering well in advance and added that the labor situation has "improved tremendously."

At present, he said, approximately 4,600 men are employed on the three Ottawa projects.

Telegraph Rates Raised 15 P.C. On Monday

Montreal, July 2 (CP) — The Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railway Companies announced Thursday effective July 4 telegraph rates to and from points in Canada with the exception of the province of Newfoundland will be increased approximately 15 per cent.

The announcement said the increase will restore domestic telegraph rates to the general level prevailing prior to last March 22.

(A 15 per cent tax was eliminated when the federal budget was announced at that time.)

The joint announcement added that rates were last increased in 1920 and the new increase is designed to "compensate in part for substantial increases in the cost of labor and materials over the last several years."

Press tolls will also be increased, a spokesman said. These rates vary but the general increase is expected to work out at about 15 per cent.

PREMIER DIMITROV OF BULGARIA DEAD SAYS SOVIET

Ill With Diabetes, Liver Trouble For Some Time

London, July 2 — (AP) — Georgi Mikhailovich Dimitrov, premier of Bulgaria, and one of the foremost leaders in world communism, died today, Moscow radio announced. He was 67.

He had been a lifelong revolutionary, an exile, trusted agent of Prime Minister Joseph Stalin of Russia; a principal defendant in the German Reichstag fire trial in 1933, and probably the most important communist outside Russia.

The announcement distributed by the Soviet monitor here said death was due to diabetes. Dimitrov had been under treatment in Bordikha Sanitarium near Moscow for nearly three months.

He was granted leave from the premiership in April to obtain the treatment. Vassil Kolarov, vice-premier and foreign minister, became acting premier at that time.

The highest councils in Russia, the Central Committee of the Soviet Community Party and the ministers of the U. S. S. R., made the announcement of death.

They said it caused them profound grief.

Exile for 22 Years

Dimitrov was an exile from Bulgaria for 22 years because of his early revolutionary life but he remained an obscure figure until he was accused of engineering the Reichstag fire conspiracy.

Hitler, just risen to power when the Reichstag building in Berlin burned the night of Feb. 27, 1933, put the blame on communists.

Dimitrov confounded his judges and eventually was acquitted. The fire mystery never was cleared up. Hitler's gang was accused by anti-Nazi sources of setting the fire and trumping up charges against the communists to serve their own purposes. Dimitrov went to Moscow.

From then on Dimitrov was known to the world. He became general secretary of the old comintern, the communist international network, in 1935, and stayed on the job until the comintern was disbanded in 1943.

Returned After War

After the war, Dimitrov returned to his native country and became premier with the blessing of Russia in 1946. His police regime was called the "iron broom" by his enemies.

Using the old comintern tactics, Dimitrov became a spearhead of the new cominform attacks that isolated and lambasted a neighbor communist ruler, Premier Tito of Yugoslavia. He fought the Marshall plan with all his waning strength.

Just before the Moscow announcement of his death, the Bulgarian communist party's central committee in Sofia issued a communique saying:

"The condition of Comrade Georgi Dimitrov has grown worse during the last two days. The condition of Comrade Dimitrov is serious."

Diplomats on Foreign Posts Mark Dominion Day Along With Residents

(By The Canadian Press)

The Dominion Day weekend celebration continues to roll along, with a heat wave in central Canada driving thousands of persons to the cool pleasures of beach and cottage.

Despite heavy traffic on highways and the general rush to lakes and rivers, the fatality toll for the start of the weekend has been light. A Canadian Press compilation showed, that from midnight Thursday until early today, in all Canada 16 drownings were reported, eight traffic deaths and three fatalities from other causes.

With the July 4 celebration in the United States falling on Monday, thousands of U.S. residents are thronging into Canada to spend the weekend. At the same time, many Canadians are celebrating by travelling to the States. Border-crossing traffic — in both directions—is reported unusually heavy.

For Dominion Day proper, the weather was good almost everywhere. The temperature soared to 92 degrees in Ottawa, 88 in Toronto, but it was cooler in the Maritimes and in the west.

Some 1,200 Scots from Canada and the United States attended Highland games in Hamilton. In Ottawa, 4,000 persons, including cabinet ministers and diplomats, went to a garden party given by the governor-general, Viscount Alexander. Canadian diplomats abroad held special receptions to mark Dominion Day.

The King and Queen attended a Dominion Day service in London's Westminster Abbey. President Truman sent a message of greeting to Prime Minister St. Laurent and foreign embassies in Ottawa extended congratulations on the Confederation anniversary.

A soccer game was played in Sudbury, between teams from Sudbury and Windsor. A touring Swedish soccer team met a Winnipeg all-star team in a night game in the Manitoba capital.

In contrast, sports enthusiasts at Rossland, B.C., planned skiing trips on mountain slopes.

New Ban Disclosed by Prague, Allow No Unannounced Trips Into Slovakia by Diplomats

By RICHARD KAISCHKE

Prague, July 2 — (AP)—Foreign diplomats have been warned by the government not to make any unannounced trips into Slovakia, scene of bloody rioting between Roman Catholics and communist officials.

The Foreign Ministry said it would be a "demonstrative" act against the Czech government "and gross interference with internal affairs of Czechoslovakia."

This new ban — against western diplomats at least — was disclosed in the foreign ministry's rejection of a diplomatic protest against police detention of Msgr. Gennaro Verolino, Charge D'Affaires of the Papal Nunciature in Prague.

Informed church and diplomatic sources said Friday night that at least two communist policemen were beaten to death and an undetermined number of persons injured during recent clashes in Slovakia between Roman Catholics and government adherents.

Meanwhile, the communist government moved to take over the big national religious holidays which start today and extend through Tuesday.

They will be marked by Catholic pilgrimages and celebrations honoring the missionaries, Sts. Cyril and Methodius. and the monk, St. Prokop.

July 4 the country also marks the burning at the stake of the religious reformer, John Huss, in 1415.

Thousands of communist adherents will be making the pilgrimage to Stramice, Moravia, today and Sunday. There they will hear an address by Rev. Josef Plojhar, a priest who is health minister in the communist government.

Sunday at St. Prokop, the government will offer another program at which the communist education minister, Professor Zdenek Nejedly, will be the main speaker.

Nejedly's ministry has been closing down Roman Catholic monasteries, suppressing the religious press, and otherwise enforcing restrictions upon the church.

Prague informants said communist headquarters had passed out money to pay the fares of their adherents to the pilgrimage spots.

The idea, apparently was to make a good showing for the communist - sponsored Catholic Action Movement which advocates church - state peace on government terms and disavows the hierarchy led by Archbishop Joseph Beran.

Bloodhounds Fail To Pick up Track Of Missing Boy

Val d'Or, Que., July 2 — (CP) —One of two bloodhounds being used in the search for 16-year-old Gillis Grey was lost in the dense bush north of here Friday and the other fell ill from the effects of intense heat.

The dogs, owned by A. V. Seymour of Toronto, were brought here by air from Toronto Thursday but had to be withdrawn from the search after a short time in the bush when thousands of black flies and mosquitoes swooped down threatening to worry them to death.

At the same time, all but 60 of the most experienced bushmen were withdrawn from among the 200 volunteers taking part in the search, which is being directed by R.C.M.P. officers.

Young Grey disappeared about noon Sunday after he set out on a fishing trip to nearby Lake Blouin.

Searchers, under the guidance of experienced bushmen, began combing the insect-ridden woods Monday. Twice they found footprints which they believe were made by the missing boy.

Mrs. Ernest Grey, mother of the missing boy, is confined to bed suffering from shock. Gillis' father and three brothers have all taken part in the search.

Dies of Injuries Received in Motorcycle Crash

Scott F. Chalk, son of Mrs. Myrtle Chak of Cobourg and an employee of the Angew Surpass shoe store on Front Street, Belleville, died Friday afternoon, of injuries received in a motorcycle crash at Cobourg. A companion on the motorcycle, Leonard Stringer of this city, escaped with a severe shaking up.

The accident occurred about four o'clock, Friday afternoon when the motorcycle went out of control on a curve near Cobourg and crashed into the ditch.

Chalk, who would have been 21 in August, had been employed at the local shoe store for two years and had also worked in Peterborough with the same firm.

DIVER LOSES WALLET

Fort Erie, July 2 (CP) —When he dived, fully clothed, into the Niagara River Thursday to rescue 11-year-old Marion Neuder, Charles Whinney, 22, local fireman, lost his wallet, containing $15 and personal papers, but at least he'll get the $15 back.

Friday the girl's mother said she planned to contact Whinney to thank him personally and reimburse him for the loss of his wallet.

27 Fatalities Occur in Canada Over Holiday

(By The Canadian Press)

Thousands of Canadians today continue their Dominion Day celebrations, marred so far by comparatively few fatalities on roads and waterways.

A Canadian Press survey shows the 27 persons died from midnight Thursday until early today—16 were drowned, eight died in traffic accidents and three others were killed in other mishaps.

Quebec and Ontario reported the highest number of fatalities—10 each—while Alberta had three. Two drownings occurred in Manitoba, and Nova Scotia and New Brunswick reported one fatal mishap.

Struck on the head by a pitched ball while practising at St. Marys, Donald Bradley died Friday while being taken to hospital. In Toronto, Irving Feder, 45, collapsed and died while watching a ball game.

Robert Hendry, 21-year-old technician at radio station CHML in Hamilton, was found dead at the station's transmitter and preliminary investigation indicated he had been electrocuted.

Non-Swimmer Drowned

At New Liskeard, 17-year-old Marcel Brillon was drowned while launching a canoe, and Rock Rethier, 22, of Sudbury, was drowned after he plunged off a high diving tower into Lake Ramsay. Clarence Jenkinson, 17, a non-swimmer, was drowned when he fell from a raft on Lake Timagami.

The Ottawa River claimed the lives of Lorenzo Malette, 22, formerly of Lac Pelletier, Sask., and Leslie McNeilly, 18, of Hull, Quebec.

Three-year-old Gordon Murray was killed by an auto when he crossed a downtown Stratford street and Charles H. Farquharson, 40, of Toronto was charged with manslaughter. Scott Chalk of Cobourg died from injuries suffered when the motorcycle he was driving went out of control.

CHARGE MENTAL PATIENT BEATEN, PROBE ORDERED

Minister of Health Inspects Institution

Toronto, July 2 — (CP) — A new investigation is to be made into treatment of mental patients at the Ontario Hospital in Whitby.

It arises from a charge that a mental patient was beaten into unconsciousness by attendants last Sunday morning for breaking a no-smoking rule.

Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, acting health minister, announced Friday night that he was granting a request from the Mental Patients' Welfare Association of Toronto for an inquiry into conditions at the institution at Whitby, 25 miles east of Toronto. The Association made a similar request last May and, as a result, Mr. Goodfellow and Dr. J. T. Phair, Ontario deputy health minister, were conducted on a tour of the hospital by the superintendent, Dr. D. S. Fletcher.

Mr. Goodfellow, announcing the new investigation, said:

"The government will investigate any specific allegation. Previous complaints made by the Association were of a general nature and, when I visited Whitby to see conditions for myself, I found no support for the charges . . . I do not think for a moment that harsh treatment of patients in a general practice."

Given in Letter

Details of the alleged beating were given in a letter sent to Mr. and Mrs. Edmund R. O'Hearn by a man described as an alcoholic who has been confined at Whitby for five years. Mr. and Mrs. O'Hearn told a meeting of the Association that the patient concerned is their son, a war veteran confined to the institution as a schizophrenic.

Associaton officers said that since the record of the letter-writer shows no mental illness they place full credence in his report.

The letter said that two attendants apparently caught the patient smoking just before the lights came on last Sunday morning. It gave this account of how they handled the patient:

"They threw him on his back on the floor, twisting his arms and legs and abusing him in the most ridiculous and disgraceful manner that any human being could possibly stand.

"By hammering his head on the hard floor, slapping his face and driving their fists and knees on his chest and in his stomach, they made him unconscious."

Viscount Alexander Will Make Tour By Plane Within Arctic Circle

Ottawa, July 2 (CP)—Viscount Alexander takes off from Ottawa's Rockcliffe Air Station today on a flying trip to the north that will take him well inside the Arctic Circle.

He'll be accompanied on the trip by Field Marshal Viscount Alanbrooke, wartime chief of the Imperial General Staff who now is a director of the Hudson's Bay Company, and Brigadier Geoffrey Walsh of Brantford and St. Catharines, former commander of the Northwest Highways System.

The trip takes in islands in Hudson Bay, the Yellowknife mining district, the Yukon and the Mackenzie River basin. The governor-general is due back in Ottawa next Saturday. Viscount Alanbrooke will leave the party on Friday and go on to Fairbanks, Alaska.

The governor-general is scheduled to arrive at Winnipeg tonight. Viscount Alanbrooke will join the party Sunday when it flies to Churchill, Man.

After inspecting army and Hudson's Bay Company posts at Churchill, they'll go on to Coral Harbor on Southampton Island in the northwest corner of Hudson Bay.

On Monday the tour calls for a flight to the Yellowknife district and Whitehorse and Dawson in the Yukon.

He'll be the first governor-general to go inside the Arctic Circle since the late Lord Tweedsmuir who sailed down the Mackenzie River while serving in Canada from 1935 to 1940.

Viscount Alexander tried to reach Dawson a year ago. But his plane was turned back by poor visibility resulting from forest fires in the area.

He will inspect defence installations at Oklavik Tuesday and go on to Normal Wells, site of a large oil refinery during the war and will spend the night in Whitehorse.

He'll try the fishing in Pon Lake—one of the Yukon's prize fishing spots—Wednesday, returning to Whitehorse Thursday and to Winnipeg Friday.

One Dies of Burns, Others Race About With Coats Ablaze

Firemen, Volunteers Chase Animals to Put on Blankets

By ROD CURRIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, July 2 (CP) — Thirty-six fear-crazed horses, some with their coats ablaze, were led from a flaming stable here early today.

One of the horses died from burns. Another suffered serious burns but will probably recover.

Many of the horses bolted after they escaped the building—stable of the Halifax Riding and Driving Club — and galloped through city streets and across Citadel Hill. It was hours before they were all rounded up.

One Haligonian living four blocks from the stable said he was awakened at 3 a.m. (2 a.m. E.D.T.) by the pounding of hooves. He looked out of his window to see a snorting horse with red spots of flame on its back charging down the street. "It was the most awesome thing I ever saw in my life," he said.

Among the burned horses were mounts of the Halifax Junior Bengal Lancers, now polishing their famed musical ride for presentation at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto. The 36 Lancers were to receive their colors today from Lord Cornwallis visiting Halifax for the Bicentenary celebrations.

Robbie Lewis, 23, a fireman, was kicked in the knee by one of the animals after he led it from the burning stable. He was taken to hospital for observation.

M. B. (Dick) Zwicker, manager of the riding club, burned his hands when he dashed into the burning stable to lead out four horses.

Coats of Horses Blazing

The stable is located on Bell Road at the foot of the west slope of Citadel Hill in the heart of the city. The seven horses of the police department also were stabled in the building.

Coats of many of the horses were blazing as they charged out of the stable. Firemen and volunteers chased them with blankets trying to extinguish the flames but it was difficult to catch the fear-crazed animals.

Some were rounded up immediately and led into a small corral across the street from the stable where club members exercise their mounts.

But others bolted through a line of men trying to calm them and galloped up onto the citadel or down a number of city streets.

Origin Unknown

How the fire started was not known. Much equipment of the driving club was destroyed, and the loss was estimated in the tens of thousands of dollars.

Many of the children — the youngest is about eight — wept when they heard about the fire. Each of the Junior Lancers rides his pony almost every day. The Lancers are trained by Mr. Zwicker.

The fire had raced like lightning through the stalls. Flames licked 100 feet into the air and billows of smoke rolled across the old fortress and the harbor.

Firemen rushed into the stable as the flames devoured the second-storey hayloft. They untied as many horses as they could and let them find their way out. These bolted into the yard and then into the street. Others refused to budge and had to be led out. Minutes after the last horse was led out — its coat burning — the roof fell in.

Pensioner Says He's "Only 135" Is Again Missing

Vancouver, July 2 (CP) — Alcarez Haabsburg—the 114-year-old pensioner—is missing again.

Mr. Haabsburg, who tells his friends he's "only 135," will be a legal 115 years old next Friday. That's what his old-age pension record says.

Mrs. A. B. Bailey, the supervisor of Sunnyside Home where Mr. Haabsburg lives, said today he went downtown Thursday and hadn't returned.

Mrs. Bailey said she isn't too worried. She said he had enough money for a hotel room but added jokingly: "Knowing him as I do, however, he probably won't spend a cent. He's saving for his old age."

Mr. Haabsburg disappeared for two days on May 12 with a $500 cheque in his pocket. He dropped in on friends and returned home with the cheque uncashed.

Getting around doesn't seem to bother him much. He navigates well on his own and doesn't look nearly as old as his record proclaims him.

Rev. Beazer came to Roslin from Oxford Mills near Kemptville and has had charge of Thomasburg, Moneymore and Roslin churches. Mr. and Mrs. Beazer have made many friends not only in their own church, but throughout the community during their lengthy residence in this vicinity. No successor has been named for the Roslin charge as yet. Rev. Beazer was Anglican rector at Kapuskasing for some time before going to Oxford Mills.

Study Cause Of Death of Fish In Section of Bay

The Fish and Wildlife service of the Department of Lands and Forests is investigating the death of thousands of game fish in Bay of Quinte waters with the view of determining whether the fish were killed by a quantity of molasses accidentally dumped into the bay a week ago.

Game Inspector Fred MacDonald of Point Anne stated there are literally thousands of dead fish lying on the north shore of the Bay of Quinte, the heaviest concentration being east of the government dock to the Bakelite plant one mile east of the city.

Molasses got into the bay one week ago when a leak occurred in a 10-inch cast iron pipe leading to the molasses storage tank owned by the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company at Corbyville. It was rumored that some 250,000 gallons of molasses, valued at between $30,000 and $40,000 went into the bay.

Examines Dead Fish

Mr. A. H. Berst, fish biologist with the Game and Fisheries Department, examined the dead fish and said "There were thousands of perch, bullheads, rock bass, bass, and dead pike along the shore." He said he counted 11 black bass in 100 yards of the shoreline."

Mr. Berst said he observed a considerable number of fish coming to the surface apparently suffering from lack of oxygen and it was believed this was what had killed the fish.

He said there was no evidence of dead fish along the shore of the Bay at Deseronto.

The molasses boat docked in the city between June 22nd and June 24th, while the first appearance of the dead fish was on Friday, June 22nd.

It was not until unloading operations had been completed that it was discovered the huge molasses tank with a capacity of 360,000 gallons had received only a small amount of the gallonage supposedly pumped in.

Frankford Softball

Frankford, July 2.—Frankford Sidney League Softball Club edged the league-leading Johnstown team 8-7 in the best game seen in Frankford this season on Wednesday evening. Bates was the big hero of the game, driving in the winning run in the sixth on a line triple, besides doing a nice bit of relief pitching in the last two innings. Jerry Foster played a great game at short stop, robbing Johnstown of several sure hits. Frankford is again playing .500 ball by virtue of this win, with four wins and as many losses. Centenary plays in Frankford on Monday night in their final game of the schedule with Frankford.

Frankford Sidney League Softball Club dropped a 13-8 decision to Centenary on the latter's home diamond on Monday evening. The Frankford defence was pitiful to watch, with a collection of errors that would rival even the lowly Newark Bears of the International League. The Centenary ball field was in its usual appalling condition, which didn't help matters at all. This win enabled Centenary to climb into a second place tie with Frankford.

Frankford Merchants hit their stride again in Stirling Tuesday night, as they handed Colborne a 10-6 defeat, in the Trent Valley Softball League. Frankford's latest addition to their pitching staff, Roy Beith made his debut with flying colors, as he struck out 12 opposing batters. "Willie" Rankin clouted a homer for the Merchants to help the cause.

Thousands of Residents Celebrate Dominion Day In Ideal Holiday Weather

Perfect holiday weather greeted the Dominion Day holiday here and thousands of city residents took advantage of it to celebrate Canada's birthday.

The city was practically deserted yesterday afternoon, and the heat wave neared a seasonal peak driving perspiring residents to camp, cottage, lake, river and bathing beaches. Highways were black with traffic as holiday seekers sought the faraway places that promised respite from the humid heat.

Adding to Canadian queues of motorists was a great influx of American cars who were in Canada to celebrate the "long holiday" which includes the "Glorious Fourth" of July.

Traffic through city sections of the main highways was the heaviest in years ,according to official reports.

Roadside picnic tables were "occupied" practically all day. At some of them, holiday-seekers had pitched tents and adopted "squatters' rights" for theweekend.

District bathing beaches and summer resorts were the meccas for thousands of people.

The Outlet beach in Prince Edward County was black with people. Swimmers milled about in the water which was calmer than an ice cube.

Wellington's popular park and bathing beach was crammed to near-capacity. Oak Lake was the mecca for hundreds of city and district folk.

Swimmers plunged into Bay of Quinte waters at various points. Picnics were held under the shade of large trees along the roadside and in more secluded places.

Fishermen thronged the northern lakes rendezvousing at camp and cottage.

It was Dominion Day at its best. And if you like the heat, the weekend should satiate your appetite. For the weathrman predicts temperatures hovering between 85 and 90.

Reporter on Busman's Holiday Runs Into Fire, Two Accidents

(By G. H. C.).

Wellington, Ont.,—Sports of sorts, parades, celebrations and other functions may be all right for other Canadian communities in their observance of Dominion Day, but this lakeside village noted Canada's birthday in a style all its own yesterday.

With hundreds of holiday-makers basking on its white sand beaches, lazing in its beautiful park or fishing on the broad expanse of West Lake, this village which tempers its heat from Nature's own air conditioner, Lake Ontario put on a show that proved to be a busman's holiday for a visiting reporter and Chief of Police Earl Marvin.

Bathers, campers, and residents plus a long queue of passing motorists had different holiday diversions when a large cottage was gutted by fire; a car turned turtle in the heart of the village seriously injuring two persons, and another car collided with a truck.

And it all happened within the space of 90 minutes.

On Busman's Holiday

This reporter, plus wife, son and heir, lunchbasket and bathing suits was greeted with a sudden gush of thick black smoke as the family jalopy neared the eastern outskirts of the village.

As the car drew abreast a tongue of flame flicked out across the highway. Then the blaze broke through the western side of the cottage owned by James Burke.

In less time than it takes to figure who won the last Federal election, a crowd of people surrounded the cottage. Mosquitoes, in droves, ousted by the thick smoke clustered around the spectators.

The village fire equipment, pitifully inadequate, rushed to the scene but had little effect on the blaze, A bucket brigade was formed, of campers, villagers, young men and women in bathing suits and passing motorists who stopped to lend a hand. At least 100 volunteers worked feverishly passing buckets of water from the lakeshore, 75 yards away.

Cottage Gutted

And their efforts were eventually crowned with some kind of success. By the time the Bloomfield Fire Department arrived, the fire was under control. The result, the cottage entirely gutted, nearby buildings saved. Had the fire spread, it is possible that the eastern end of the village might have fallen prey to the flames.

No one was in the cottage at the time. Burke was working at his canning factory job, and his wife and two children were at a neighbor's house. Cause of the fire is undetermined.

Previously a car driven by Mrs. Irene Hudson with her father, Thomas Smith, both of the village, had come into smashing collision with another driven by Clayton Pickle on a Maple Street intersection. The Smith car turned completely over, pinning Smith beneath it. He was rushed to Picton hospital with severe injuries while Mrs. Hudson suffered facial and head cuts. The Smith car was badly wrecked. All persons involved are villagers.

"Things are picking up" smiled Chief of Police Marvin, wiping perspiration from his brow. "That's that. Fine thing on a holiday, and me due in Picton for the races."

A shout came up the street. "Hey, chief, the Burke cottage is on fire".

Law Races to Blaze

The official car disdained speed limits as the law raced to the blaze. He took over the traffic problem and had scarcely cooled off when a bicycle slid to a stop. It was his wife. "Someone just phoned" she panted, "an accident down the road".

The chief hitched up his pants, took a quick look at pencil and notebook and the official car again roared down the road.

A quarter mile away a brand new car driven by Hugh Leavens, Bloomfield, had collided with a truck owned by Dayton Murphy, well known wildlife sanctuary owner. Leavens, it appears was a member of the Bloomfield Fire Department and wasn't sparing the horses to get to the blaze. The truck and car met when the latter was proceeding out of the Murphy driveway.

The 70-year-old Murphy who was standing on the truck's running board was dragged fifteen feet after managing to cling to the side of the truck. He was uninjured. The car suffered considerable damage.

And with that in the notebook, we took off for the bathing beach, hid the jalopy in the bushes, donned false whiskers and dark glasses and enjoyed a swim.

Census Success Depends on Of All Anglers

"The purpose of a creel census is to determine the relative numbers of game fish in a body of water and to give the Department of Lands and Forests some idea of the total number of game fish in a given locale," said A. H. Berst, biologist with the Fish and Wildlife Service, who is at present engaged in taking such a census in the Bay of Quinte.

"The success of the census depends on the support of the anglers," he continued. "I have distributed creel cards to guides, tourist camp operators, and anglers in this district. I intend to contact anglers on the water in a further effort to make this census as complete as possible."

Mr. Berst, who has been mistaken for a game warden and an officer of the Wildlife Service, disclaims any connection with enforcement agencies and is interested in information which will shed any light on the fishery situation in this district.

"There is no formula which we employ to find the total number of fish," Mr. Berst continued, "but one method which we use is a rod-hour measurement, which is based on the number of fish caught in one hour by one rod. Feeding conditions for fish in the bay might be excellent and fish would refuse to bite but we try to take that into consideration in arriving at our final figures."

Mr. Berst, who states that the cooperation which he has received to date has been excellent, adds that any further information or asistance will be appreciated.

TOO WEAK IS TOO DANGEROUS

Your pocketbook would be cheated if the suit you bought for 100 per cent wool turned out to be 50 per cent cotton fabric, or the ring you bought for gold was made of brass : : : but it might be a case of life or death if a drug your doctor prescribed was not up to standard.

Most people think of dangerous drugs in terms of over-dosage. Under-dosage however, can be even more dangerous, for its effect may not be recognized as promptly.

The physician knows the amount of drug which is needed to produce a desired effect, and when he writes a prescription he wants assurance that each pill, capsule or teaspoonful contains a known, definite amount of medication.

This assurance is provided by the pharmacist who fills the prescription. To him exactness and scrupulous care are fundamental. He knows the drugs which are liable to be adversely affected by improper storage, the drugs which deteriorate through age, the mixtures which must be freshly prepared before use. He has been trained in the art of compounding medicines, and the drugs he dispenses must meet definite standards of purity, strength and potency.

Such is the pharmacist's responsibility : : : and he takes his obligation seriously.—Reprinted from a copyrighted advertisement published by Parke, Davis & Company.

PICTON

Cows Killed, Cars Damaged In a Series of Accidents

Picton, June 30—A car driven by Eric Robinson of Waupoos turned over in shallow water along the shore of Lake Ontario at Cressy but Mr. Robinson, his wife and son Eric escaped uninjured. Mr. Robinson was driving along the road which borders on the lake, when he turned out to miss a bicycle. In doing so, he went over the culvert. The car went out into the lake several feet before it hit a rock and turned on its side. Fortunately, the water was very shallow at that point.

Another accident occurred on the Picton-Green Point highway when a car driven by Lewis Peterson of Bloomfield ran into a herd of cows. One of the cows was killed and two injured. Though Mr. Peterson's car was badly damaged, he escaped uninjured.

A bread truck driven by Harold Outingdyke of Belleville went down a fifty-foot embankment at Milford. He suffered a bad gash on the right arm and bruises. The truck was rounding a turn to cross a new bridge, when it got out of control, went through a guard rail. It went down the embankment and then overturned.

A car and a truck collided in Bloomfield village and both were badly damaged. The truck was driven by Edward Bulmer of Wellington and the car by Harold Cahoon of Bloomfield. The drivers escaped injury.

Canning Crops Hit

Canning crops in Prince Edward County have been hard hit by the prolonged dry spell. Ninety per cent of the peas will have been handled this week, after a ten-day canning season. Usually the season lasts from 22 to 25 days. The early varieties were handled in six days and the later varieties are now being handled. Unless there is rain, the later peas may not be fit to handle. The pea pack will not be large as the acreage is down 35 per cent this year.

Rain is also badly needed for tomatoes. There is but 57 per cent of last years acreage this year. The acreage of corn is higher with 118 per cent of that last year.

Canners point out that though farmers may secure less from canning crops this year it may result in better prices in 1950. They point out that there has been a surplus of all kinds of canned vegetables and only lately, as a result of poor prospects, has there been a demand for them. Thousands of cases of peas and tomatoes have been sold at a loss until recently.

Picton Boy Elected

Of interest to many in this district was the election as Liberal member for Vancouver Centre, in Monday's election of Ralph O. Campney. He is a native of Picton and son of Frank E. Campney of this town. The member-elect was defeated previously in a by-election by a CCF candidate. There are rumors that he will be taken into the St. Laurent cabinet. Mr. Campney was formerly private secretary to Mackenzie King and has occupied many important government posts.

Costumes Peculiar

Several hundred fans attended an exhibition hardball game at the fair grounds yesterday afternoon. The locals played against a travelling star aggregation known as the African Zulu Jungle Giants. The costumes of the visitors were in keeping with their names and they played a smart brand of ball. The team, composed of leading professionals and college stars, are managed by Frank Washington, Harlem globetrotter and Kansas City star. The visitors, while winning easily, made it an interesting game for the fans.

Scout and Guide Activities

At the regular monthly meeting of the Belleville Local Association plans were completed for the Scout camp to be held at Jarvis Lake near Madoc July 5-14th. The Association purchased a wall tent and first aid equipment for camp use. There will be about 40 Scouts attending the camp under the leadership of Scoutmaster Eric Smith of the 2nd Belleville (Christ Church) Troop. The boys attending camp had their medical checks this week through the kind co-operation of Dr. J. Russell Scott and Dr. E. M. MacDonald. Several Scouts from Napanee will also attend the camp. The advance party will be leaving today or tomorrow. The remainder of the Scouts are to assemble at Christ Church Parish Hall with all their camping equipment on Tuesday July 5th at 9.00 a.m. Visitors' Day at the Jarvis Lake Scout Camp will be Sunday afternoon and evening, July 10th.

All Cubs are requested to fill in and return all camp registration forms at once so that final camp arrangements may be made.

1st Belleville (St. Thomas') Pack

The Pack held their final regular meeting for the summer in the form of a ball game and wiener roast. The Cubs assembled at the Parish House and those Cubs with bicycles laid a trail to the home of Assistant Cubmaster Lillian Summers on North James St. The remainder of the Pack followed and prizes were awarded to the Cubs finding the greatest number of trail signs. The Pack was divided into two teams for a short game of ball. This was followed by a real feast of wieners and soft drinks. The meeting ended with the singing of the closing hymn.

The Question Box

Anyone wishing a question concerning Scouting answered is asked to send it, along with their name and address, to R. K. Smith. 31 Hillside St.

Q. What is the purpose of Scout camp?

A. Camp is the main fulfillment of the year's training in the Scout troop. It gives the boys and leaders an opportunity to work together for an extended period. The close fellowship developed, where the outdoor Scout training is put to a practical use, is found to be the major point in the training of the good Scouts of today and the first class citizens of tomorrow.

Q. What is the Ladies' Auxiliary and what is its function?

A. It is made up of mothers of the Cubs and Scouts, wives of the Scouters and Group Committeemen, and other interested ladies. The Auxiliary should first be considered and approved by the Group Committee. The Auxiliary or Mother's Club main purpose is to help the Scouters, but only on their express request. It must be remembered that it is purely an auxiliary organization and is not to exercise the functions assigned to the Group Committees or the Group Leaders. Some of the activities are: to prepare refreshments for the various group activities, raise funds, coach entertainments, instruct cooking tests, visit parents of new members, and interest themselves in the welfare of Scouting in the community as well as in their own group. They should co-operate in every way with the Group Committee and the Local Association and in this manner they are able to make a valuable contribution to the success of every group.

Q. What methods are used in Troop and Pack meetings to carry out religious observances?

A. All Troop and Pack meetings have a definite opening and closing ceremony. The opening usually consists of a flag break or parading of the Union Jack and Troop or Pack colors. In the Troop this is followed by Scout Silence — a few moments of rededication to the principles of the Scout Law and Promise, ending with the Lord's Prayer. The closing ceremony generally consists of flag lowering, or parading of the colors, singing of Taps or closing hymn, and a benediction. Every Scout and Cub is expected to belong to some religious denomination and to faithfully carry out his religious duties. Periodically Scouts Own services are held. These are non-denominational and are under the direction of the Scout and Cub leaders. In most centres a combined church parade of Brownies, Guides, Cubs and Scouts, under the direction of the District Commissioner, is held annually.

SUMMERTIME

The line of demarcation between early summer and the full sweep of the season has passed as the full holidays are now here, schools are empty and many people are away or plan departing for northern lakes and waters. No more is there the need to listen to the school bell from the campus or to watch the clock at home and dart off to school. For deep summer is here.

For the pupils out of school it means a renewed freedom, opportunity for the outdoor life with all the fresh air and sunlight they may desire.

For the mother in the home or at the lake it means added duties in helping to look after the young for there are no restraints such as school hours to absorb youngsters' activities.

Into the great outer world of Canada young and middle-aged have stepped and to great numbers the life of renewing strength is begun.

Vacation of course brings to the young that cherished spirit of freedom which in its own way finds countless opportunities for the development of mind and body and life.

During this rest from poring over books or studying against examinations, erstwhile scholars are going to fill their spirits with experience in waters and in woodlands which will help their development, physically and mentally. They can develop resourcefulness for holidays open the doors to so many activities, the young mind is keener and as for the body, it is one of the most refreshing facts that one has but to look at the boy and girl to realize after the holidays that they have not been standing idle in the two months of vacation but have been developing and vitalizing their keenness of interest in so many attractive phases of life.

Summer rest from school labors builds up the whole system and adds new appeals which count so much in the all-round development of the boy and girl.

As for their elders they too can profit greatly by the vitalizing powers of nature.

MODERN PIONEERING IN NORTH

More people are living in the far north and expanded services for the care and training of Indians and Eskimos have brought new schools, nursing stations and the provision of new community services to make life in the Territories healthier and more agreeable.

This is opening up an attractive opportunity for social workers, nurses and teachers to share in the growth and development of Canada's Arctic and sub-Arctic areas, according to Health and Welfare magazine.

There are more teachers and government employees and the conditions of service are such that married couples are particularly sought for. As most of the northern settlements are isolated for varying periods of the year, married couples it is felt will be better suited for employment in the Far North than single persons.

Hardships and difficulties still exist in the northland and therefore home life takes on a greater importance than in the more populous areas.

The new services are opening up greater opportunities for health and education in these northern parts.

MODERATION

Next few days will see transformation aplenty in the ways and actions of the great proportion of the people for they take on different ways, assume new attire, wear sunglasses, carry road maps and look through them for facts of the layout of the country and the location of many a camping spot. Some will carry sun lotions, insect repellents and dark glasses. Actually some of them are already at the resorts.

Health Magazine offers a little advice, not with a lot of "don't" but just this little bit — "Take it easy." For really some come back from their vacation more in need of one than when they started and lack the vim they should have after a sojourn at a watering-place or other resort. One cannot expect to follow a light job for most of the year and go high-speed into everything and do the lightest task with a great waste of vigor. The magazine offers this tip:

"If you're going to change your usual mode of living during those one, two or three weeks, do it gradually."

Philosophy is as far separated from impiety as religion is from fanaticism.—Diderot.

JUST FOLKS

THOUGHT FOR A SMALL BOY

You'll learn to add, subtract, divide,
The names of cities and the states,
And I shall look on you with pride
The day you march with graduates.
'Tis not what teachers teach I fear,
Much graver now is my concern.
The risk you'll run from year to year
Is what from strangers you may learn.

I watch you romping now in play
And wonder what the years may hold.
No dread have I, from day to day,
Of what the schoolroom may

'Tis this I fear: Some stranger may,
In you, a willing listener find,
And lead you from what's best astray
And soil your still untainted mind.

Of evil doctrines I'm afraid,
By shrewd and cunning phrases spread,
With which are mobs to anger swayed
And youth to vicious thinking led.
When those who would your land betray
With speeches fashioned to deceive,
Oh, little boy, 'tis this I pray:
That no such teaching you'll

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

To be a good botanist, you have to walk the woods with eyes down. To be halfdecent bird watcher, you must walk the wods with eyes up and aloft.

Those of us who are drawn to nature not for its sake but for our own are stumpted by this question: which is better—to be a good botanist and therefore ignore all else; to be a good bird watcher and so pass by all the incomparable little mysteries at our feet? Or to avoid being good at any one branch of nature study in order to be halfgood at all of them?

I think the proper answer is the last one, in defiance of all philosophers, scientists and authorities. The modern trend in life itself is to specialize. In olden days, men were jacks of all trades. But within the past couple of hundred years, culminating with a rush in the past fifty years, specialist in one small trick, one sort of tool, one petty crankhandel in the complicated mechanism of modern society. And the escape offered them from this horrible paralysis of the human spirit is through the movies, the radio or driving at fast speeds in motor cars over paved highways. We have the illusion of freedom But we are chained or strapped to one grim little bench all the same.

There is a sharp satisfaction in being a first class amateur bird man who can name every wild bird seen or heard. It is gratifying to be an expert botanist who can call the shot unerringly as he walks the woods with his friends Few men have the time or the energy to become good at them all—the plants, birds, mammals, trees, rocks, fungi, fish, molluscs, frogs, snakes, insects...What a leaping, crawling, eternal drama it is!

Prime Minister Holds Brief Cabinet Meeting

Ottawa, July 2 — (CP) —The government is back at work again — and up to its ears in the world's trade problems.

Prime Minister St. Laurent and about a dozen of his triumphant cabinet met Wednesday for the first time since Monday's election. They found on their desks a request from the British government for a conference of Commonwealth finance ministers in London next month to discuss the sterling area's critical dollar shortage.

There were no announcements made after the three-hour meeting. But it is believed the cabinet discussed whether Finance Minister Abbott will go to the conference. Mr. Abbott went to Montreal after the meeting, but he is expected back in Ottawa today.

Mr. St. Laurent later called on the Governor - General, Viscount Alexander, a post-election formality.

Six of the cabinet were on hand when Mr. St. Laurent returned to Ottawa from Quebec where he heard the results of Monday's election when his party captured an unprecedented majority in the Commons.

It was learned the cabinet decided on further discussions with United Kingdom officials before making a final decision on the London conference. A formal announcement is expected within a few days.

The discussions, it is believed, involve the possibility of reduced British imports from Canada because of the dollar shortage. That possibility, in turn, raises the possibility of a new Canadian loan for Britain.

This exchange of views with the U. K. is aimed at finding out what the conference may mean to Canada's dollar holdings and her earnings.

Mr. St. Laurent is the only party leader in the capital but Solon Low, Social Credit chief, is expected to return today. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, who stayed in Ottawa during the election, left for a Northern Ontario holiday Wednesday while M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, is expected Saturday from Rosetown, Sask.

House of Lords Votes Against Nationalization

London, July 2 (AP)—A rebellious House of Lords voted Wednesday night to delay government efforts to nationalize the iron and steel industry, but the move had little power to stop the government from going ahead with its program.

The Peers voted 89 to 22 over strong Labor Government objections to postpone the date for taking over industry from May 1, 1950, to Oct. 1, 1951. A general election must be held before 1950. It would give the Conservatives a chance at taking power. They are publicly pledged to kill the bill.

In effect, however, there is nothing the House of Lords can do to stop government plans to bring steel in state hands. The government plans to take over the industry by May 1, 1950.

The Lords' powers to delay passage of bills for two years will be cut to one year by December when a heavy Labor majority passes for the third time a bill to trim powers and makes it law. The Commons already has passed it on two readings.

The bill is retroactive to the time the steel bill was introduced. After passage of the Lords bill, all the Commons will have to do is reject the Peers' amendments and pass the original steel bill once more to make it a law.

State ownership of steel will still be an election issue because voting must take place so soon after the vesting date, that the government will not have time to actively take over the industry.

The vesting date is when the shares of the 100 major steel companies due for nationalization are taken into public ownership.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MENDERS

I am afraid we do not give credit enough to those to whom we refer as menders. Menders of roads, of clothes, of machinery, of books-in fact, of almost everything that gives use. Even we humans have to be mended from time to time, both in body and mind.

I once visited the bird sanctuary that dear old Jack Miner established at Kingsville, Ontario. It was an aspiring place from every standpoint, but what intrigued me most, I believe, was his "hospital" where broken legs and wings were mended. So familar had this noted place become among ducks and geese that they even learned to go there when injured, and Jack would mend the break and again they would go out into their world almost as good as new!

The things the surgeons did in the last war, and which they are doing to this day, in mending the human body, are almost miraculous. Things are done in surgery today that would have made our forefathers gasp in wonder All praise to these skillful artists in body mending.

People who have learned the art of mending broken minds and lives, however, I would place among the great of this earth. It goes on every day, and usually by those of whom the public never hear. Menders of broken hearts and broken homes.

One of the most inspiring little books I have ever read is that one by Robert Herrick called "The Master of the Inn." It was written many years ago and has sold into the thousands, thanks be, though it may be out of print, but I hope not. It is the story of a doctor whose heart and life had been broken, but who did not despair. He chose rather to retire from active practice and establish a quiet and inspiring place in the country where he could welcome those whose lives had been thus broken—and there he became a mender of those lives to remarkable degree.

Another little book that I never tire of mentioning in this column is "The Roadmaster," by Michael Fairless—one of the gems of inspiring literature. Here was an old man devoting the rest of his life to the mending of roads—but who mended lives as well, as the stream of human beings passed by. The story of Christ, as told in the New Testament, is one of mending human beings.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

PRAY FOR THE DESTINY OF OUR COUNTRY

Have you ever thought of what great service you could be to your country if every day you would earnestly pray that its destiny may be achieved?

For America has a destiny Every nation has a destiny. We are God's Chosen peole, not in sense that Israel was a chosen people, or in any sense which applies that we are better than any other nation. But God has appointed every nation to play in the great drama of earthly existence. America has been set aside for a racial contribution of quite unusual distinction. Will she achieve or not achieve? Will she win or lose? Will she live gloriously or die miserably?

This all depends on the character of her people, and Christians everywhere can do nothing more glorious in her service than to pray every day that God will help this country achieve the end which He has designated for her. America's destiny is not in the hand of parties or conventions or government. Americas destiny is in the hands of God.

in little part, is better than to be full of knowledge of only one tiny separated piece of it—and to heck with the modern moralists.

ACID STOMACH AND GAS

If I were czar,guard or keeper of family medicine cupboard I'd paint on the door or etch on the mirror in front of the cabinet.

It may do no good but can do no harm.

I'd insist that everything in the medicine cupboard comply with the latter requirement particularly. I have seen too many victims of mistakes due to disregard of such caution.

Likely enough remedies or drugs which would exclude from the medicine cupboard may seem "harmless" and desirable items to many. For instance the popular pain-killer which is loaded with acetanilid—each dose contains from eight to ten grains of acetanilid and the official "safe" dose of aceetanilid is only four grains. This and a dozen other pain-killers containing acetanlid or phenacetin (which is virtually the same in effect) have their own mortality rate—that is, they kill people every day, but even when coroner's verdicts have named the nostrum responsible for a fatality the facts are generally suppressed. Thus thousands of medicine cupboards contain these dangerous acetanilid-laden nostrums which, if your Uucle Sam were on the level, should have a POISON skull and cross bones label—that is, if there are any such labels left over after all the little vials of mild iodine tincture are dully mislabelled.

As a general rule the family medicine cupboard should contain no bicarbonate of soda or other alkalies, no "digestives," no laxative or cathartics, but should contain a good emetic for emergency use, which I will describe later.

Instead of bicarbonate or other alkalies I recommend the use of calcium carbonate and magnesium silicate (a combination of about two-thirds of the former with one third of the latter) as an ant-acid to relieve stomach acidity (sour stomach), heartburn, pyrosis (eructation of burning fluid into throat)—sometimes called water brash—sour stomach, hyperacidity, hyperchlorhydia, gas on stomach, bloating, flatulence, belching and associated discomforts.

Calicum carbonate, otherwise called prepared chalk, does not generate gas by reacting with acids in the stomach, as does soda. Nor does it form laxative salts as the product of that reaction. Calcium carbonate does not disturb the normal acid-base balance in blood and tissues as does bicarbonate of soda.

Magnesium trisilicate is not only ant-acid but antiseptic, adsorptive, and antitoxic. Its mild prolonged effect makes it especially valuable in the control of stomach ulcer symtoms. It is taseless

Several doses of this combination of two parts of calcium carbonate with one part of magnesium trisilicate may be taken with greater impunity than sodium bicarbonate and usually with much better effect. Or one with stomach discomforts or may let a disc slowly soften or dissolve in the mouth, or any may prefer to chew it and swallow it at once, whenever necessary to relieve acidity.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Menopause is No Crisis

I worried a great deal about what might happen when I arrived at the change of life, but thanks to your fine teachings I found, when it came, that is was in no sense "critical"...only wish all women who dread the menopause might have such instruction. (Mrs. G. L.

Answer—Any reader who provides stamped self-addressed envelope may have the pamphlet The Menopause upon written request.

VITAMIN E

Can you tell me whether vitamin E is of proved value in the treatment of heart disease, particularly coronary thrombosis., as some Canadian doctors have reported recently? (T. E. M.)

Answer—Some good doctors believe it is useful and other who have tried it report no apparent result. Harmless to try, I suppose, but this is all I know about it.

GOOD COFFEE

We have found so many practical suggestions in our set of Little Lessons that I don't know where to begin—but my husband says the way to make good coffee which you tell in the red book, is well worth the price of the entire set. (Mrs. T. H. A.)

Answer—Thank you. Chapter on how to make good coffee in the red book. What to Eat and Why. For red book send twenty-five cents and self addressed envelope.

ELECTION BET

Brampton, Ont., June 29 (CP) — Johnny Donaldson, of Brampton, went for a walk in his pyjamas and rubber boots Tuesday night and had a band and several hundred spectators for company.

He was pushing fellow townsman Bill Giddard down the main street in a wheelbarrow as payment on an election bet. The band and spectators were added attractions.

FIND ANCIENT PIT

Brichington, Kent, England — (CP) — Working between tides, archaeologists excavated a 1,800-year-old "ritual pit" in the cliff face near here. It was 32 feet deep and contained the outsize skull of a horse, ox bones, Roman - British pottery fragments, and hundreds of unopened oyster shells.

FURTHER GANDHI'S IDEALS

New Delhi — (CP)—The Mahatma Gandhi National Memorial Fund has set up a committee to consider the possibility of a Gandhi peace foundation to work for peace and goodwill in India and the world.

WEDDINGS

ROLLINS—NICHOLSON

Frankford.—A pretty June wedding took place on Saturday afternoon at 2.30, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Nicolson when their daughter, June Georgina, became the bride of Mr. Kenneth Charles Rollins, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rollins, of Peterborough. Rev. H. H. Lackey of the Frankford United Church was the officiating clergyman.

Wedding music was played by Miss Marion Free and Mrs. H. Lackey sang "I Love You Truly".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a gown of light blue taffeta, with a matching headdress and a nosegay of white gladioli and pink roses with long streamers of blue ribbon.

Mrs. Cecil May of Belleville, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a gown of daffodil silk jersey, and carried a nosegay of cream roses and wine snapdragons with streamers of gold ribbon.

Bruce Rollins, brother of the groom, was groomsman.

The reception was held in the Rose-Lowery Hall, Frankford, which was decorated with pink and white streamers, and white bells. The bride's mother, gowned in a black and white dotted silk dress, with a corsage of pink carnations, and the groom's mother, dressed in sand and black jersey, received. About 30 guests were present.

The happy couple left on a honeymoon trip to an undisclosed destination. For travelling, the bride wore a hunter's green gabardine suit, with white accessories. On their return, they will reside on the groom's farm at Peterborough.

Eileen Palmer Beauty Contest Winner at Arena

"I'm very happy," was all that beaming Eileen Palmer could manage to say between radiant smiles Thursday evening as band leader Charlie Spivak crowned her Miss Belleville of 1949 at the Optimist beauty pageant held in Memorial Arena.

The new Miss Belleville, who won out over four other contestants, was greeted with an enthusiastic ovation every time she appeared during the contest and received a thunderous demonstration, when she stepped forward to receive her crown.

Mickie Thibaudeau, 44 Park Street, was runner up to Miss Palmer, while Audrene Martyn, 224 Albert Street was third. Other entrants in the contest were Maxine Forsythe, and Madelayne Walsh.

The girls made their first appearance of the evening in filmy evening gowns. They paraded up and down the runway for the inspection of the judges while the smooth working Spivak band played a muted background of "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody".

The girls next appeared in bathing suits with the eventual winners appearing later on stage to receive their prizes, amid the popping of flash bulbs and the enthusiastic approval of the spectators.

Miss Belleville received several handsome prizes including $75 in cash and a record player. Miss Thibaudeau, in second place, received $70 in merchandise while Miss Martyn received $55 in merchandise. The other contestants were handsomely rewarded as well.

Judges of the contest were Miss Dorothy Potts, superintendent of nurses at the Belleville General Hospital; Mrs. Georgia Smith of the Georgia Salon, Frank Follwell, and Dr. J. H. Bateman. Mrs. Claude Tice also of the Georgia Salon, was in charge of the make-up and wardrobe department. 'Stu' McDougall was contest chairman and Jack Devine was master of ceremonies.

The beauty pageant was held in conjunction with the appearance in Belleville of Charlie Spivak and his orchestra. The smooth working 16-piece organization served up very danceable melodies enhanced by the vocal offerings of two soloists and a quartet.

Wife, Mother Makes Good as Big-Time Lawyer

Liverpool. June 30 (CP) — "Rose, K. C., wins," sang out the newspaper headlines.

In the courtroom at Liverpool Assizes, bewigged barristers crowded round a slim, dark-haired woman.

Miss Rose Heilbron, 34-year-old lawyer, housewife and mother too.

Congratulations were in order for two reasons.

Rose had been a King's Counsel only since April. It was her first big success since taking silk. And she had gained an important legal point, one that would add a precedent to the common law of England which in itself is nothing more than a long string of precedents.

She had won the acquittal of a young window - cleaner accused of harboring a murderer. She argued successfully that statements the defendant allegedly made because of a police ruse were inadmissible as evidence.

Miss Heilbron's career is twofold.

As Miss Heilbron, the lawyer, her earnings run as high as £5,000 ($20,000) a year. She has defended in a dozen or more murder cases.

As Mrs. Nathaniel Burstein, wife of a Liverpool surgeon, she is the mother of a five-month-old daughter, Hilary.

"And apart from her legal work and the baby," said her husband, "she works in the garden, plays golf, reads a lot and is fond of music."

Good looking, with twinkling eyes and a quick sense of humor, she argues at the bar incisively and clearly, her lawyer's wig perched at a jaunty angle.

She is never at a loss for a reply when the judges interject on points of law. Indeed, she is so trigger - fast that she often has her reply started before the judge has finished.

Berries Are In

Berry-time is here. It is a joy to the homemaker to have strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, loganberries and blueberries follow in quick succession, making desserts no problem for the next few weeks.

Some families are satisfied to have fresh red-ripe strawberries with cream served three times a day while the season lasts. Old fashioned strawberry short cake is always tops. Double crust strawberry pie "like mother used to make", may be dad's choice while teen-agers rave about Rasberry Chiffon Pie.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture have many tested recipes using berries in various ways.

Plain cake served warm with a topping or sauce of sweetened crushed berries, is equally good with all types of berries.

Genuine strawberry short cake is not a cake but a baking powder biscuit baked in two layers served hot and well buttered, with berries lightly crushed and sweetened between and on top. It should be served with rich cream but not whipped. This masterpiece of cookery is supposed to have originated in the State of Maine and was originally a breakfast dish. Elswhere, however, it is usually a dessert.

Berry Pie Filling

4 cups berries
(strawberries, raspberries blackberries, huckleberries)
3-4 cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon quick-cooking tapioca
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1-8 teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons butter
Uncooked pastry shell

Mix together all ingredients except the fruit and butter. Sprinkle light layer of mixture on pastry in pie pan. Alternate layer of fruit and mixture. Dot top with butter, bake pie 15 minutes in a very hot oven 450 deg. F. reduce heat to 350 deg. F., and continue baking 35 minutes.

Berry Sherbet

2 eggs
1-2 cup sugar
1-2 cup light corn syrup
2 cups cereal cream
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 lemon, grated rind and juice
1 1-2 cups crushed berries
3 tablespoons sugar

Beat eggs until light and lemon colored. Add sugar, blending well. Combine remaining ingredients except the berries and sugar; add to egg mixture. Freeze at low temperature in refrigerator tray until just firm. Remove from tray whip until light and add crushed berries to which sugar has been added. Pour the mixture back into freezing tray and freeze until firm, about 3 hours. Yield: six servings. Garnish with hole berries.

Any fresh berries may be used Raspberries and blueberries are especially good.

Crumb Berry Pudding

1-2 cup fine dry bread crumbs
1-2 cup quick-cooking rolled oats
1 cup sour milk
1-4 cup shortening
1-2 cup brown sugar
1-2 cup of sifted all-purpose flour
1 1-2 teaspoon baking powder
1-4 teaspoon soda
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 cup berries
(strawberries, blueberries, or raspberries)

Soak crumbs and rolled oats in sour milk for 1 1-2 to 2 hours. Cream shortening and sugar. Sift together the flour, baking powder soda and salt. Add berries to dry ingredients and add alternately with crumb mixture to the creamed fat and sugar mixture. Blend thoroughly. Fill individual moulds 2-3 full. Bake in a moderately hot oven 375 deg. F. individual moulds, 25 to 40 minutes; cake pan, 40 to 45 minutes. Serve cold with sweetened crushed berries. Yield: eight servings.

The Last of the Loaf

In some families bread crusts are at a premium as the best part of the loaf and everyone prefers dry bread. Since such a group would be paragons there are few of them and, therefore, most home managers find that it requires careful vigilance if the bread box is to be kept clear of bread that is too dry to serve.

Dry bread should be considered an asset for there are so many ways in which it may be used in tempting dishes. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, have a host of good ideas for utilizing the last of the loaf.

Crunchy melba toast is a real delicacy, made by slowly drying thin slices of bread to an even, light, golden brown in a slow oven. This type of toast really needs no butter. If the bread is cut in rounds or fancy shapes with a cookie cutter, they make excellent "cookies" for the children. The thin slices of stale bread may be lightly buttered and sprinkled with a little sugar and cinnamon before toasting to make a tea-time treat.

Cheese Bread-Sticks

Cheese bread-sticks, made from ½-inch slices of bread, cut in fingers and spread with softened cheese, then toasted, are a perfect salad accompaniment. If served with a glass of chilled tomato juice these sticks are a good mid-afternoon refreshment.

Bread pudding may be either something to abhor or a delectable, creamy, light confection with no suggestion of the basic ingredient. It is all according to the way it is made.

French toast, made with tomato juice in place of milk, is an excellent base for scrambled or poached eggs or creamed vegetables. With half milk and half fruit juice the toast becomes a dessert.

If crusts and dry bread are further dried in the oven and rolled to very fine crumbs, they make excellent topping for escalloped dishes and some desserts.

Bread crumbs are a good thickener for sauce. The bread sauce, often served with poultry, is well known but bread-thickened cream sauce for vegetables and supper dishes is worth trying.

Bread Sauce for Scalloped Dishes

1 cup milk
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 tablespoon fat
½ teaspoon salt
Pepper to taste

Heat milk over water in double boiler, add crumbs. Cook, stirring until thickened, add fat and seasonings and beat until smooth. Yield: 1¼ cups sauce.

Arrange 2 cups diced vegetables or left-over meat and vegetables, mixed, in alternate layers with bread sauce, in a greased casserole. Top with crumbs and heat thoroughly in a moderate oven, 350°F., for 15 to 20 minutes, if ingredients are hot. It will require 30 to 40 minutes if ingredients are cold. Yield: six servings.

Refrigerator Bread Pudding

2 tablespoons gelatine
½ cup cold water
4 slices white bread (½" thick)
1¼ cups milk
½ cup sugar
1/8 teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks
1 cup crushed fresh fruit
2 egg whites

Soak gelatine in cold water 5 minutes. Remove crusts from bread and cut centres in one-inch dice (should make two cups.) Heat milk, sugar and salt in top of double boiler. Add softened gelatine, stir until dissolved. Pour over well beaten egg yolks. Return to double boiler and cook 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and pour over bread. Let stand 5 minutes and fold in drained fruit and stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a wet mould and chill until firm. Serve with cream or additional fresh fruit. Yield: six servings.

The Experts Say . . .

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, June 30 — (CP) — If Mother isn't careful Junior's first baby-shoes may cause him a peck of trouble in later life.

Officials of the Canadian Shoe Manufacturers Association say that even tucking the bedclothes too tightly over baby's feet may prove harmful. Bootees or socks too short in the foot also should be avoided.

When it comes to keeping a child healthy, his feet are just about as important as his eyes, ears, nose and throat, says the Association. Here are some rules it has drawn up for proper shoe fitting:

1 Choose a last that conforms to the child's foot.

2 A soft, flexible box toe, so that you can feel where the end of the toe is.

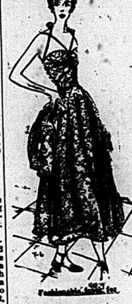
3 A cloth lining over the toes to absorb moisture during the daytime and to allow for evaporation at night.

4 Flexible inner and outer sole to keep the shoe in shape and to allow the toes free action. The sole should be heavy enough to protect the foot from hard pavements.

5 A rubber heel to absorb the shock of pavement pounding.

6 Snugness around the heel, under the arch, over the instep where the laces tie. There should be freedom at the ball of the big toe, the top of the toes, at the little toe to prevent curling and one inch growing room.

Laced shoes giving ankle support are recommended for infants and small children. However oxfords may be worn by older children with well developed feet and legs. Slippers should be avoided because they do not give good support. They also interfere with development of the foot.



Fashionable frock for summer dining

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Cafe au lait lace makes a beautiful and fashionable dress for summer dining and dancing. Made over a taffeta slip in the same delicate brown shade it has a formfitting little bodice and a flarred skirt. The criss-cross shoulder strap halter neckline is edged in black velvet. The hem gets similar treatment and this makes it stand out a trifle. There is a seperate little bolero jacket of the lace.

When shoe-buying time comes around Mother should first of all make sure that the child's socks are the right length (half an inch longer than the longest toe). She should also see that the salesman measures both feet for length and width with the child standing, his fuul weight on his feet.

For that well-dressed look milady should keep an eye on her feet-- at least when she goes shoe -shopping.

Long, slender shoes make feet and legs appear longer, whereas short, stubby footwear creates the opposite effect. Wide horizontal lines (such as straps) make ankles and feet appear wider.

Intricate arrangement of cross straps, bold single colors and also provides a less solid foundation to a dark costume.

Opera and V-shaped pumps add length to the foot and the figure. A pronounced color contrast between shoes and costume makes the feet appear larger and the figure shorter.

It is not surprising that a bridge player sometimes displays his cmfwy pmfw mfw fw fff ffff.. the courage of his antediluvian ancestors. Frequently he finds himself in a position where he must do or die.

There came a championship duplicate deal like this:

The bidding at one table went like this:

4 C	Pass	4 D	4 S
5 D	Pass	Pass	5 S
Pass	Pass	6 D	Pass
Pass	6 S	Pass	Pass
7 D	Pass	Pass	Dbl

It was evident that opponents were anxious to take a sacrifice in spades. On the other hand, south knew that his pair did not have the value for a grand slam bid in diamonds.

However, there is always a long chance for something unusual to happen with the hands he held. Reluctant to permit east and west to frustrate his getting the contract, south took the flier.

West realized that south would not have bid grand slam without immediate control of spades. So, instead of starting out with a lead of his partner's suit, the heart queen was sent forth.

Heart ace grapped trick one and declarer took the chances that might help make his bid. Two top trumps were cashed and his first break came when the queen dropped.

A small club was led toward dummy and the ten was finessed. When this worked, he was in. Club queen took a trick. A spade was ruffed. Three dummy hearts were sluffed on three south clubs.

Intelligent courage can pay the demurrage.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 2 (AP) — If Joan Fontaine ever tires of the movies, she can always tie a bandana on her head and open a palmistry tent at the beach.

The actress is an amateur palmist and entertains at parties with her readings.

"It's all in fun, naturally," she said, "but there is a certain intuition." She became interested in the craft after three unusual events happened to her.

1. "A palmist told me I should change my name to one that ended in an E. My name was De Havilland then and I just couldn't get a break. So I adopted my step father's name, Fontaine. Immediately, I got a job and began to be a success."

2. "The second time I talked to a palmist, she told me I would marry the host of a dinner party Olivia and I were going to that night. I didn't even know him. But a few weeks later I was Mrs. Brian Aherne."

3. "I was told before my last marriage I would marry a business man and have a little girl within the year. That's exactly what happened."

But she added, "There was the woman who told me I would marry five times!"

Mere Names

Speaking of names brings us to Ver-Ellen, who says her name is "Vera Dash Ellen". "Sounds better than 'hyphen'," says she. The handle came to her mother in a dream—dash and all.

The gal rose from hoofing with the Rockettes at New York's Radio City Music Hall to dancing with Gene Kelly in "On the Town" and next with Fred Astaire in "Three Little Words". She likes the movies best, because of the free evenings. But that doesn't mean the work is easy.

"I was in the hospital for three weeks after the 'Slaughter' number in 'Words and Music'," she relates. "If my mother could have seen how bruised I was, she would have whisked me back to Cincinnati."

Kingston, July 2 (CP)—Three ancient cannon, last fired in 1874 when the Earl of Dufferin, then governor-general of Canada visited Kingston, boomed out a three-gun salute Friday in celebration of Canada's birthday. The guns are at old Fort Henry, now a tourist attraction of eastern Canada.

Northern Electric Retains Top Rung of League

Northern Electric retained their place on the top rung of the Commercial Softball League Friday evening in one of the weirdest contests seen to date when they outlasted a Shell Oil squad to win 8-6.

Both teams booted the ball on several occasions but the zaniest bit of ball seen yet this season came in the third when Northern scored two runs on a walk and a strikeout.

Glen Young walked to start the inning. Locke struck out but the catcher dropped the ball and Locke streaked for first. The catcher hit the flying Locke between the shoulder blades and the ball bounded away. First baseman Lionel Blaker chased the ball and tried to head Locke off at second but no one was covering the bag and the ball went out into left field. Locke scored standing up as the left fielder's throw went wide. Young scored ahead of Locke for two of the most tainted runs of this or any other year.

Northern opened the scoring in the top of the first counting four times on a single, two walks, a triple, a sacrifice and a double. They were held to single runs in the sixth and seventh frame after the wild episode in the third. There sixth inning run was the result of an error.

Shell scored half their runs in the second on two walks, a double and an error. A double and two errors gave them two more in the sixth, and they wound up their count in the seventh when Lionel Blaker drilled the longest home run of the season into deep centre field, with two away. Ross Empy doubled and Burn walked. Rex Young was yanked and Lum Carson forced Reid to ground out on the second pitch to retire the side.

Rex Young went six and two-thirds innings in an erratic manner, walking five, striking out five and giving up six hits for six runs. Lum Carson retired the third man in the seventh.

Reid toiled vainly for the Shell philanthropists, walking three, striking out seven and giving up seven hits for eight runs and the defeat.

The line-up:

Northern Electric: — J. Barriage, lf; Whiting 3b; Wood cf; Young c; Locke, 1b; Halsey rf; Prout ss; Wannamaker replaced by Henn in 6th., 2b; Rex Young p; Carson in 7th., p.

Shell Oil—Simmons 3b; Smith rf; Jones 2b; A. Empy cf; P. Blaker lf; L. Blaker 1st.; Burns ss; Reid p.

Capital Closeups:

Liberals Will be Squeezed Into Conservative Section

By HAROLD MORRISON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 2 — (CP)—Liberals who conquered in the election will be making a second conquest when the next session of parliament begins.

About 56 of them will be invading seats formerly held by Progressive Conservatives. They will be squeezed right next to George Drew, Progressive Conservative chieftain who once more will take his seat as leader of the opposition.

Staff officers in the Commons now are juggling the seating capacity of the next parliament expected to open some time in September or October.

Big Problem

They say they've never tackled a bigger or more touchy problem. The problem embraces not only the record number of Liberals to be seated but also the question of where to place two heavyweights, Camillien Houde, Independent member for Montreal Papineau, and J. R. Garland, Liberal member for the Ontario riding of Nipissing.

Mr. Garland is believed to tip the scales at the 500-pound mark. Mr. Houde's exact weight is unknown but his jolly round figure leaves little to the imagination.

Both will need extra - wide seats and the decision appears to be that rather than build new structures, both members will be given back seats right next to the corridor where desk chairs are movable and can be pushed into the corridors.

This seating arrangement is expected to create a slight bulge both on the government and opposition sides since Mr. Houde, sitting as an Independent and known to be dead set against the Liberals, likely will cast his lot with the three other Independents elected for the next five years.

Overflows

Commons officers have had to contend with government overflow before but never on such a scale. There are altogether 372 seats in the Commons, half on the government side.

That takes care of 136 Liberals. The others, 56, as indicated by tradition, will take their places to the immediate left of the speaker. That means they likely will take the first five rows of seats — the sixth row is where Mr. Drew sits — and then swing behind the P. C. leader, using some of the seats behind him.

That means that Mr. St. Laurent, rising to address the House, will have Liberals to the left of him, Liberals to the right of him, Liberals behind him, and of all things to the front of him.

Railway Union Men Decide To "Work To Rule"

London, June 30 — (CP)—The decision of the National Union of Railway Men to "work to rule," beginning Sunday midnight, threatens traffic chaos on Britain's nationalized railways.

It means a gentle "go-slow" policy with men also refusing to work overtime and allowing freight to pile up at depots throughout the country.

The slowdown is in support of the union demand for a 10-shilling ($2) weekly wage increase. Management has offered raises of two to three shillings for lower-paid workers.

Negotiations between the union and railway executive are scheduled to continue today. Observers consider management unlikely to be in a mood for further concessions with the go-slow threat hanging.

"Working to rule" means going by the 240 separate rules in a blue - backed rule book issued to train crews, track workers and other employees.

Although the rules have been theoretically in force for decades, few railway men know them in detail. They always have taken more practical short cuts. Now they will take time out to study the rules.

Will Follow Rules

The rules which will be rigidly followed include:

Guards (conductors) and platform attendants will ascertain before the train starts that no smoking is going on in non-smoking compartments.

If requested, employees must assist ladies travelling alone in selecting an appropriate compartment.

Track men will refuse to couple cars while the train is in the slightest motion.

Some delegates at the union meeting asked:

What happens if a locomotive engineer finishes his 44-hour week in the middle of a long-distance run? Does he quit the train there on the track?

Does a signal man leave the controls exactly as they are at the end of his shift? No answers came from the union bosses on the platform.

Washington Spotlight:

Early Named Undersecretary Of Defence in U.S. Govt.

By GEORGE RONALD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, July 2 — (CP) — Steve Early, the efficient hot-tempered Virginian who handled press relations for President Roosevelt, has a wealth of top-level experience for his new assignment as undersecretary of defence.

And his army of friends show him a warm, honest respect which is bound to help him do a good job as "general manager" of the national military establishment.

Part of Stephen Tyree Early's success as F. D. R.'s press liaison officer was attributed to the fact that he was no mere publicity man. A seasoned reporter in his own right, he understood a reporter's problems and needs — and acted accordingly.

Quebec Prize Example

Newspaper men covering the Quebec conference in 1944 got a prize example of Early's good sense. British press attaches clammed up on the doing of Roosevelt and Winston Churchill. Then Early appeared on the scene.

He went before a tense press conference and promptly gave frustrated reporters something to write home about. No secrets — just "human interest" items about the food the two statesmen were eating, the suites in which they worked, and so on.

Before dashing for telephones and teletypes, the newspaper men took time to applaud Steve Early. It was a rare tribute.

Scored Famous Beat

Early, now 59, had some 20 years' experience as a reporter for the Associated Press and the United Press before taking the White House job when Roosevelt was elected in 1932.

In 1923, covering President Harding on a cross - country tour, Early was arrested as a "communist" in St. Louis as he tried to push through a crowd to reach the presidential party. The AP was preparing a suit for false arrest when Early scored a famous six-minute beat on Harding's death in San Francisco. He received a bonus — and the suit was dropped.

Early has steadfastly rejected suggestions that he write a book about his inside knowledge of the Roosevelt administration. He argues that Roosevelt's death did not give him any right to reveal official confidences entrusted to him as a friend.

Since 1945, as an executive of the Pullman Companies, Early had received a salary well up into five figures.

Asked if he would resign the Pullman position if the nomination was confirmed, Steve Early said:

"Yes, Sir, it is my duty."

GASOLINE CONTROL KEPT

Canberra — (CP) — Prime Minister Chifley said recently that if gasoline rationing were ended the consumption of gasoline in Australia would rise 20 per cent and total cost of abandoning controls would be about $17,000.000 in the next 12 months.

IVANHOE

Ivanhoe — A successful lawn social was held in Ivanhoe on Friday evening under the auspices of Beulah United Church with Tweed Salvation Army Band in attendance.

The church lawn was decorated with evergreens and home cooking and ice cream booths, hot dog stand and fish pond were well patronized. Proceeds amounted to $80. A ball game, Stirling and West Huntingdon Jr., was played on the Public School grounds with the local boys having the edge on the town players to the tune of 15-5.

Women's Institute

The Ivanhoe Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Donald Fleming on Tuesday evening.

The roll call was answered by 15 members and four visitors in the novel manner of giving the name of a newspaper and where it is published. The minutes were read and approved and business and correspondence were dealt with.

The motto "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works", was prepared by Mrs. Arthur Wood and read by Mrs. Chas. Keeble.

A very interesting address was given by Mrs. Earl McMaster on the life of Claire Wallace, radio commentator. This was followed by a duet given by Mrs. C. Keeble and Annie Crooks. Mrs. M. MacMillan prepared an interesting contest which was enjoyed by all.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Post-Bout Near Bedlam Reigns As Atkins-Lovelock Draw

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Mosquitoes chawed, gnawed and drilled without interruption; the heat wave rolled in unceasingly; perspiration rolling down heated brows, bustles, and torsos was secondary to the near-bedlam that reigned in Memorial Arena last night when Fred Atkins, British Empire champion, gradually becoming the most hated pachyderm in captivity, hereabouts, at least fought to a draw with lithe agile Al. Lovelock who gets his mail at Kingston.

Lovelock was a last-minute substitute for Tug Carlson, who fractred a shoulder bone while wrestling in Hamilton last week.

The third fall which went to the time limit after both had won previously, was an anti-climax to the rip-roaring smashing post bout near-Donnybrook.

Atkins, who suffered terrific punishment in the last chukker went near-berserk. He tore into Lovelock who battered him all over the ring; then smashed at Referee Bunny Dunlop and received a couple of wallops from an excited fan who climbed into the ring to do battle.

The crowd milled about the ringside. Both gladiators and Dunlop were a whirling mass of fist-flinging giants. Even the mosquitoes laid off nibbling their midnight snacks to enjoy the sight of near-crazy humans walloping the daylights out of one another.

Three-Man Affairs

The three falls were more or less three-man affairs. The estimable Bunny from the start proved he was not fooling. He emphasized his demands to "break" with solid slugs to the jaw or the more gentle manner of grabbing a handful of hair of the offender and gently but firmly hauing on it like the Number 2 in a college eight.

Atkins, who still wears a bandage on his left arm, used it in efforts to remove by various strokes the optics of the foe. He pulled hair, kicked, gouged, butted and slammed the agile Lovelock who eventually repaid the Australian in like manner.

He won the first fall after twenty-two minutes of savage mauling with his famous "Kangaroo Klutch". Lovelock, the opportunists took advantage of Dunlops neck-holds on Atkins to heave a husky fist or elbow in the general direction of the Australian jaws. But he missed on one occasion. The boys had the rotund Bunny acting the part of the ham in a sandwich. Lovelock was throwing punches at Atkins when that worthy decided to look at his shoelaces. Result the Lovelockian first bouaced off Bunny's jowls, and the former wrestler went glassy-eyed for the moment.

The Man Who Wasn't There

He shook his spare locks until two of them stood up like the mizzen on a yawl but decided to let bygones be bygones until M'sieu Lovelock decided to administer the coup-de-grace to Atkins via the flying tackle route. He was so overjoyed with success that he tried one on the unsuspecting Bunny. That worthy cartwheeled through the ropes and Lovelock fell on Atkins for at least a count of five.

But no official was in sight. So the play went on.

Lovelock tore into Atkins and ended a two-minute attack with a beautiful dropkick that caught the Australian squarely on the "button". He went down like a Conservative at the polls, and stayed down. He got up in a daze climbed out of the ropes and headed in the general direction of what a lot of fans hoped was Australia. A friendly hand put him on course and he staggered into port.

Came the third fall and you know the rest.

Popular Pat Flanagan gave Wee Willie Davis the scare of his life before bowing to defeat an exciting preliminary. Herb Larson and Red O'Malley, the latter a "deep-dyed villain" of the mat fought to a 30-minute draw in a fast and furious preliminary.

Starting Lineups For All-Star Game are Selected by Fans

Chicago, July 2 — (AP)—Baseball's armchair strategists — a record 4,637,743 of them from all parts of the United States — have selected by remote control the starting line-ups for the 16th annual All-star game in Brooklyn's Ebbets Field July 12.

Fans voting in the 20-day poll chose these players for the two rival managers, Cleveland's Lou Boudreau of the American League and Boston's Billy Southworth of the National:

American

Greatest oddity in the balloting was lack of support from Joe Fan for players of Boston Braves, 1948 National League pennant winners, and the world - champion Cleveland Indians.

Must Play Three Frames

Under the agreement by Commissioner A. B. Chandler and President Ford Frick of the National League and Will Harridge of the American the fans' first selections must play at least the first three innings of the game.

Boudreau and Southworth will select their own pitchers, eight or nine apiece, and the remainder of their staffs. Each group will total 25 players and undoubtedly some Braves and Indians will be included.

Only American repeaters for starting roles in the midsummer dream game are Kell and Williams. Williams — 1947 and 1948 batting champion — became the poll's "most popular champion" by reaping 2,087,466 votes. Jackie Robinson, the Dodgers' sensational Negro second sacker, was second with 1,891,212.

National League holdovers are Mize, Reese and Musial.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"This course," commented Norm. Carter rubbing a golf ball on his trousers," is one of the best of its size I have ever seen. You fellows down this way should be complimented on its excellent condition and a lot of credit should go to the pro and his assistants."

Norm Carter, by the way, is one of the provinces better golfers. He's rounding the 28 year mark, and he was practically born with a golf ball in one hand and a set of rules in the other.

He has been haunting golf courses for the last 20 years starting off as a caddy, and realising his golfer's dream last year when he won the men's championship of his home course at Islington, Toronto. And to make the victory all the sweeter, Norm defeated his bosom pal Jack Argent 2 and 1 with whom he has chased the elusive pill over courses for as long as they both remember.

The dark, slim, young star of the links was until last year "always a bridesmaid but never a bride" as far as the Islington club championship is concerned. He reached the coveted runner-up position on not a few occasions, but his bugbear was the championship round, that is until 1948 when he took the club title from buddy Jack Argent.

We met Norm at the Bay of Quinte Country Club on Wednesday evening while we were after a story of the Bay if Quinte District Championship Tournament. We were bunked in the locker room after he had come in from shooting nine holes. "Did it in 33" he smiled. Par for the course is 36.

Carter, a traveller for a Toronto firm, covers the territory between that city and Cornwall. His golf clubs are as much part of his standard equipment as are his brief case and order book. They are as inseparable as Mutt and Jeff, Damon and Pythias, peper and salt and Canada and the Liberal party. He can sniff a golf course for at least a half hour before he spots the fairways. He earmarks the playground; goes out and does his job of work for the day then hightails it for the course where he gets in an eighteen or so before or after dinner.

Not having seen Ben Hogan, Sammy Snead, Bobby Jones, Lawson Little, or Bobby Locke, sock the little white pellet, we decided to trail along when Norm was invited to join a foursome. He didn't disappoint us. A few practice swings bespoke the golfer. He teed off on the long par four No. 1 hole. His drive hit terra firma roughly fifty short of the green. His second stroke saw the ball nudge the lip of the cup — and you know the rest. He stroked the hole one under par.

BATAWA HIT-HAPPY

Hit-happy Batawa Shoemen, playing one of the best games of their careers, shone in all departments on Thursday night as they turned back the Zulu Jungle Giants 8-5 in a free-walloping contest. Fourteen clouts rattled off the Shoemen bludgeons including triples, doubles and single-basers. Manager Bill Easton divided the pitching chores among Gord. Muffitt, Art Wright and Don Semark with Muffitt looking the best yielding one ru noff two hits in three innings. None of the three hurlers gave a base on balls.

The Shoemen played fine baseball all the way through. They played errorless ball in the field, the hitting was excellent and the pitching was better than average. It's hoped they left enough good baseball in their systems for the all-important tilt against the league-leading Peterborough Marines in tonight's COBL game at Exhibition Park.

The Giants were a big husky, capable team, but in the latter innings appeared to "tire" and they adopted a more or less lackadaisical style of play. A four-run Batawa splurge in the first innings when the Shoemen got to big Jim Turner, Zulu hurler, for the quartet of markers off as many hits may have had something to do with it. But there was another factor, too.

We talked with some of the Zulu Giants in their dugout previous to the game and they appeared to be a fine gentlemanly bunch of fellows. They talked baseball, asked questions about the sport set-up in the city and district and spoke of the fine treatment they had been accorded in Canadian centres since the beginning of their barnstorming tour. They did not, however, like the lighting system here, claiming the floods were out of focus. There was no profanity in the dugout, just good-natured banter and baseball gossip.

But the Giants left Belleville with a non too pleasant taste in their mouths. Wise-cracking fans and boys, egged on by ignorant oldsters, indulged in personal heckling of some of the Giants that was absolutely uncalled for. We, in Belleville, are supposed to be tolerant. We live here with our friends, business associates and neighbors which include all creeds and nationalities. We are a happy gang, or supposed to be.

The fact that the Giants are a Negro team did not warrant the slurs cast upon their color by brainless specimens of the smart-Alec breed. The Giants, to all outward appearances and like the sportsmen they are, appeared to ignore the uncomplimentary remarks. To the contrary, they felt keenly about the matter. And they didn't lose any time shaking the dust of Belleville off their spikes after the game. And they can't be blamed after the reception accorded them by a few people whose brains departed with their first teeth.

Art. Wright, fresh out of Stratford, is back in town and did the second pitching stint for the Shoemen Thursday. He was touched for five hits for three runs in three innings. Wright tells us he worked out for a week with the Hamilton Cardinals in the Pony League, and expects to report to that squad within a couple of weeks.

Manager Bill Easton will field Mouse Bush and Keith MacDonald as well as Peter Jones in tonight's tilt with the Petes. Bridgeman, Watson and Beckstead will also be in the lineup with Gord. Muffitt getting the starting pitching assignment.

If Thursday night's exhibition is any criterion, tonight's game should be a "honey." The fast-travelling Petes will be out to increase their lead at the top of the loop ladder, while the Eastonians are equally as anxious to lower the Petes' colors. And if the Shoemen's batting eyes, and pitching arms are still with 'em, then anything can happen. It should be one of the best tiffs of the COBL season.

Corbys, Engineers Win Commercial League Tilts

A pile-driving 14-hit attack against two Howe and Hagerman hurlers paid off for Corbys' sixth win in seven starts Thursday evening as they downed the plumbers 10-3 in the first game of a Commercial Softball League doubleheader at the Alemite Field. In the nightcap, Provincial Engineers shut out Energetic Club 6-0 in a swift one-hour contest.

Howe and Hagerman opened the scoring in the top of the first collecting two of their three tallies on three singles and a walk. Corbys came back in their end of the first to pour over four runs on four singles and a double. They added four more in the second with two away on singles by Ray Reid and Moon, a triple by Harold Reid to right field, and a four-bagger by Nolan.

Corbys added single runs in the third and fourth innings to complete their scoring.

A walk, a single, and an error gave Howe and Hagerman their final counter in the top of the seventh.

Adams Started

Adams started on the hill for the plumbers and in five frames walked one, struck out one, and was blasted for 13 hits and 10 runs for the loss. He was relieved by Wilf Fitzgibbon in the sixth who went the rest of the way limiting the winners to one hit.

Keith Baldwin went all the way for Corbys walking three, whiffing five, and giving up four hits for three runs.

Big man at the plate was Corby righthander Storms with two doubles and a single in four trips. Harold Reid had a double and a triple in four tries.

Farraro Went Route

Led by the fine pitching of Farraro, Provincial Engineers downed Energetic Club 6-0 under the lights. Farraro went the route for Engineers, walking two, striking out a dozen, and giving up a measly four hits for no runs.

Engineers got to Energetic hurler, Middleton, in the bottom of the second frame with two away, for three runs. Lucas started the scoring with a healthy homer to left field. Burley crashed out a double, and Farraro helped his own cause with a triple, coming home on an error to the catcher.

Engineers came through for a single run in the third and wound up their scoring with two more in the fifth on a single and two doubles.

Energetic threatened in the fourth but two strikeouts and a forced out at third chilled the attack and Engineers were never in trouble afterward.

Middleton went the route for Energetic being nicked for two walks and seven hits for six runs and the ball game. He struck out eight.

Bata Defeats Jungle Giants By 8-5 Score

Batawa Shoemen turning in one of their best efforts of the season defeated the barnstorming Zulu Jungle Giants, an American colored baseball team, in an exhibition game under the Fair Grounds floodlights on Thursday night. The score was 8-5.

The Shoemen were never seen to better advantage. Their batting eyes sparkled as they rapped out triples, doubles and singles, fourteen hits all told at the expense of the giant Zulu hurler, Jim Turner. They played errorless ball afield while the three pitchers used, for working purposes, yielded but nine hits while striking out ten and issuing no bases on balls.

Gordie Muffitt opened the floodlight drama and worked the first three innings on the mound for the Shoemen. Muffitt was in rare form and whiffed four, yielding two hits for a single run during his stint. He was credited with the win.

Art. Wright, former Belleville and Stratford junior essayed the second "three" and was touched for five hits for three Giant runs. Don Semark took over in the sixth and let the Giants down with two hits for a single run.

Big Jim Turner, a Giant went the route for the Zulus. The Batawa bats lost no time in getting to his delivery and rapped four clean clouts off him in the 1st inning for as many runs and what eventually proved, the ball game. Turner a slow-moving hurler yielded hits in every innings but the seventh.

Giants came back in their half of the first when Jack Cox, huge centre fielder smashed out one of the longest home runs seen in the park. Batawa scored single runs in the second, third, fifth and eighth, while the Zulus shoved over a pair in the fourth and singles in the sixth and eighth.

Spencer Batting Hero

Spencer, Batawa right-fielder was the batting hero of the piece from a Batawa viewpoint. He smashed out two triples, a double and single for five. Keith MacDonald lashed out a double and two singles. Ken Peacock who hit the first ball pitched for a triple to start the Shoemen first inning splurge added a single for good measure. Bridgeman got a pair, one a scratch single while Wagar hit a double and Mouse Bush a single.

Swift, Brooks and DeShields hit two each for the Giants with Dorsay smashing out a clean double to aid the lost cause.

The Giants donned grass skirts in the seventh and gave a funny pantomimic display of baseball minus the ball. The crowd applauded the hilarious antics especially when the "anaesthetic" revived a player who supposedly "died" after being hit by a practice ball.

Giants 100 201 010 5 9 3

Champaign, Ill. — George M. Crowham, a talking crow, is going to school at the University of Illinois.

Or maybe you would call him a member of the faculty. At any rate, Dr. O. H. Mowrer, director of the Psychological Clinic. hopes to establish from George M. Crowham just how babies learn to talk.

Mowrer believes the process by which the crow was taught to speak is the same as that by which a mother coaxes the first words from a child.

Mowrer's hypothesis, which he is attempting to prove is that "birds and babies both make their first efforts at reproducing words because these words sound good to them."

Bloomington, Ind. — Mike and Spike don't look so much alike now.

Mike has grown a moustache, and professors at Indiana University are happier.

Mike and Spike are Yiannakis and Angelos Chattalas, identical twins from the island of Cyprus. They used to look exactly alike.

Enrolling at Indiana last October they took identical courses and made almost identical grades — good ones, too, in spite of their late start.

They even had identical middle names — Mike. So to keep them straight, friends tagged Angelos "Spike."

Newport, R. I. — Timmy Sullivan Tuesday was ordered by a court to clean up the clutter around his house — an eyesore that Timmy's neighbors have been unable to lessen, even by promising him a trip to Florida.

Sprawled in the yard around the house are heaps of second-hand possessions waiting to be sold — a monumental lumber pile, old glass, old crockery. old stoves, a dressmaker's dummy.

Judge John E. Mullen granted a petition of Mrs. Peyton Van Rensselaer — Sullivan's socially-prominent neighbor — restraining Timmy from adding to the clutter.

BAR BLOWN UP

Cleveland, June 30 — (AP)—A bomb explosion blew an automobile apart here early Wednesday, hurling pieces into the air as high as a nine - storey building. The car, a 1948 sedan, was parked across the street from the Sovereign Hotel. It was unoccupied at the time. Parts of the car were found scattered over a 500-yard area.

Brecheen Loses His After-Dark Magic and St. Louis Cardinal Pennant Drive Takes Nose Dive

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

What happened to Harry Brecheen's after-dark magic?

The wiry little St. Louis Cardinal southpaw was poison at night last season. Under the lights he had a 14-3 mark en route to his fine 20-7 season.

After winning three night starts early this season, he lost his touch.

With a chance to tie Brooklyn Dodgers for the National League lead by whipping Cincinnati Friday night, the Red Birds flopped, 10-2. Brecheen started, but faded for a pinch-hitter in the fourth. St. Louis trailed 3-0 and the lowly Reds had four hits off The Cat who walked five.

Brooklyn stubbed its toe on New York's Dave Koslo in an afternoon setback 4-1 that gave St. Louis a chance to close the gap. Don Newcombe was unable to hold an early 1-0 lead and finally was knocked out for the first time in a month while the Giants were en route to a three-run rally in the eighth.

Vern Bickford gave Boston Braves control of third place as he hit the 10-win mark with a 12-inning decision over the Phillies, 2-1. The young righthander singled to start the 12th, rode to third on Eddie Stankey's single and scored on Al Dark's game-winning single.

Muncrief Wins

Bob Muncrief, recently sold by Pittsburgh to Chicago for the waiver price, pitched the Cubs to a 6-5 edge over the Pirates in a relief role. Muncrief came on after Dutch Leonard was knocked out in the fourth.

Charley Keller, another one of Casey Stengel's cripples, took his turn at giving New York Yankees a lift. He hit a pinch triple with two men on to climax a four-run rally in the ninth inning. The Yanks came from way back to nip Washington 5-4 with Joe DiMaggio confining his activities to one single and a walk in four trips.

Eddie Joost, Philadelphia A's sparkplug, drove in five runs with three hits, including his 17th homer, in a 11-5 romp over Boston. The victory left the A's 5½ games back of the leading Yanks.

Cleveland took over third place by dumping St. Louis Browns 3-1 on Al Benton's six-hitter, while Detroit was being blanked by Chicago's Bill Wight 4-0.

FACULTY MEMBER DIES

Kingston, July 2 (CP)—Dr. Ernest Flammer, a member of the staff of the faculty of science, Queen's University, has retired. Known as "the instructor of instructors" among his colleagues, he devoted his life to the study and teaching of mathematical physics.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By TREVOR ICETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, July 2 (CP)—Here we go again with the question: "Are the champions of today really as good as the champions of 50, 60 or 70 years ago?" This time we have an answer.

Mike (Kingston Whig-Standard) Rodden quotes Tommy Burns, the only Canadian ever to win the world heavyweight boxing championship, as saying: "Despite the rigid training endured by mittmen of this era, they suffer in comparison with the playboys of old who did their fastest running while dashing to the nearest pub."

A remark like that might be expected from one of the old school, but looking over Burns' record, Mike finds the Canadian has had enough experience behind him to back up his statement.

The 173-pound Burns defended his title oftener than any other heavyweight ring champ until the coming of Joe Louis and it took Jack Johnson, the 215-pound negro who has been rated as the greatest of them all, to lift the Canadian's crown.

That bout, fought in Australia in 1908, was one of the most vicious contests in the history of modern heavyweight boxing.

"Burns lost, but by no stretch of the imagination can it be said that he didn't furnish evidence of courage and ability," writes Rodden. "Johnson was unable to depart homeward immediately after the bout as he had planned and required medical attention for a long time before he fully recovered from the effects of the body blows (which broke several of his ribs) landed by the wildcat who would not surrender."

And when Rodden describes Burns as "the wildcat who would not surrender," he isn't kidding. Checking back through an old sport almanac, we found that the police at the arena had to stop the bout to save the gallant Canadian from permanent injury.

At the enshrining of the name of Charlie Gehringer in the Cooperstown, N.Y., Baseball Hall of Fame recently, the honored guest—Charlie himself—was just a space in the crowd. He had sent his regrets that he would be unable to attend the ceremonies because of a previous "commitment".

Many criticized Gehringer for lacking in appreciation of the highest honors that could be conferred upon a ball player. They presumed the "commitment" was of a business nature. But Nelson (St. Thomas Time-Journal) Whitmore found differently.

"The commitment that Charlie did not care to cancel was a date to get married," Nel wrote. "That date had been set a long time before he was selected for athletic immortality.

"It proves again his obscurity as far as showmanship is concerned. Throughout his career Charlie has never sought the spotlight; in fact, the spotlight has been kept out of breath chasing him."

Shannonville Defeats Read by 7-0 Score

Shannonville—One of the best ball games of the season was played on Shannonville ball grounds on Wednesday evening, July 29, when the local team were hosts to Read in a scheduled game in the South Hastings League. The score was 7-0 in favor of Shannonville. A number of good plays were made by both teams, but Shannonville played an exceptionally good game. Jerry Louis made a 3 base hit. Ken Juby did a good job of stealing bases.

Batteries: Shannonville, Ken Juby p, Clare Smith c. Herb Breeze p, Shannon p (4), Jerry Callahan c.

Umpires: Walsh, bases; P. Coutts, plate.

Nine Speedboats Pass Qualifying Trials at Detroit

(By The Canadian Press)

A classy field of nine speedboats was tuned up for the 42nd annual running of the Gold Cup today at Detroit. Several other boat owners hurriedly sent their craft through qualifying trials in hopes of winning a starting berth in the race, oft-referred to as the "Kentucky Derby of American speedboat racing."

The qualifying tests left Wild Bill Cantrell's My Sweetie as favorite for the Gold Cup. Cantrell qualified earlier this week with a 92.402 mark and hit well past the 100-mile-an-hour mark on the straightaway.

Bandleader Guy Lombardo, a native of London, Ont., qualified with 73.127 in Tempo VI.

The race will be a 90-mile affair, staged in three 30 mile heats, over the Detroit River course. The winner will be adjudged on a point system.

The sleek-lined Killua, owned and skippered by Bill Binch of Toronto, Friday captured the Queens Cup, emblematic of top honors in the annual Royal Canadian Yacht Club's Toronto-to-Hamilton sailing race.

Quest, owned by Lorne Corley, crossed the finish line about 20 minutes ahead of the actual winner but placed fourth on corrected times. Second place in the 26-mile jaunt went to Stormalong, owned by Jack Wardrop, while Laurel ended third with owner Marty Lampart at the helm.

Struck on the head by a pitched baseball while practising with the St. Marys Intermediate O.B.A. team, Donald Bradley, died Friday while being taken by ambulance to hospital in London. Decision on an inquest awaits a postmortem report.

Eddie Waitkus, the Philadelphia Phillies' wounded first baseman, has been placed on the 60-day disabled list. To fill the roster position left vacant with the removal of Waitkus the Phils announced at Boston the recall of pitcher John (Jocko) Thompson from their International League farm at Toronto. Thompson, a southpaw, has won four games and lost one for Toronto.

At Chicago, Eddie Waitkus, Philadelphia Phillies first baseman, left the operating table Friday still carrying a bullet near his spine, but with both lungs working. Waitkus, wounded June 15 by a mentally-defranged typist, underwent two hours of surgery to re-inflate one lung. The lung has been partially collapsed by blood released by the bullet.

Proximity, the world's biggest money winning trotter, Friday night set a world's record of 2:11 for 1 1/16 miles on a half-mile track over the Buffalo Raceway track. The eight-year-old brown mare broke the previous mark of 2:11 4/5 set in 1947 by Sidney Hanover. She was driven by Whitey Dennison of Rochester, N.Y. The owners are Ralph and Gordon Verhurst of Victor, N.Y. Proximity's winnings, with her share of Friday night's purse total $115,054.67.

At Panama, a one-armed, one-legged angler Friday was credited with catching the largest black marlin ever boated with a rod and reel. The fish weighed 1,006 pounds. The International Game Fish Association issued a special certificate for outstanding achievement to Louis Schmidt, Jr., a United States citizen living at Ancon in the canal zone.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Parksville, N.Y., July 2. (AP)—The last time you visited the Borscht Belt, more formally known as the Catskill Mountains, it was to see Marcel Cerdan, the Frenchman, train for his title with Tony Zale. . . Friday it was to see Gerardo Gonzales, the Cuban known as Kid Gavilan, prepare for a welterweight title tussle with Sugar Ray Robinson. . . . You didn't think Cerdan could win, but he did. You don't at this moment, think Gavilan can win. . . .Maybe he can. . . Gavilan went through a languid workout, boxing six rounds against a trio of sparring partners who were no more interested than the kid. . . .He wore a big mask that almost hid his broad flattened nose; he was obviously making an effort not to hurt his sparmates— couple of them already have walked out. . . And off his non-title bout with Robinson last fall, you couldnt' see him as a new champion come July 11. Ray was the boss last September, so much so that some observers thought he was saving the Cuban for a future title shot. There's no proof so far that Robinson won't be the boss again—then you remember Cerdan . . . Also Ezzard Charles, whose tune-ups for the Joe Walcott bout were far from impressive, and you begin to wonder.

Non Sequitur

Murray Goodman, who is beating the drums for the Robinson-Gavilan tussle, tells about a regular customer he had noticed at the Ridgewood Grove fights in Brooklyn. . . After a particularly sour spectacle, the customer introduced himself to Murray and handed him a cigar and a business card, remarking "You'll be doing business with me" . . . It wasn't until some time later that Goodman peeked at the card and found the fan operated a funeral parlor.

Local Bowlers Make Clean Sweep In Tournament

Belleville bowlers made a clean sweep of the major prizes at a mixed double tournament held at the local greens on the holiday. There were 44 rinks in attendance and drawn from Stirling, Campbellford, Cobourg, Brighton, Toronto, Peterborough, Trenton and Madoc. Kingston was the only club in the district not represented, that organization running a local tournament against the Belleville club, when the local club has had the First of July for mixed doubles for many years.

A. E. Wonnacott, president of the club, welcomed the district bowlers and hoped that their afternoon would be one of enjoyment and keen competition. The president also thanked the bowlers for their attendance, when the prizes were distributed by the committee. Austin Watkin and Jerry Hyde, the committee in charge of the draw kept the games moving at a lively clip but it was nearly midnight before the last bowl was delivered.

Gordon Watkin and his mother, Mrs. George Watkin was the winner for the first time of the New Queens Hotel trophy, donated by J. N. Yanover with a score of 45 plus 19. The Tip Top trophy, secondary feature of the tournament, was won by Jerry Hyde and his mother Mrs. Charles L. Hyde with a score of 43 plus 2. The third high was won by Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wonnacott, 4th high by Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Price, and fifth high by Mr. and Mrs. A. Moore of Peterborough.

The high two-game winner was Austin Watkin and Mrs. Nora Kyle, while the one-game high winner was Ross Hubbell and Mrs. (Dr.) Allan of Trenton. The competition was exceptionally keen and the greens were in excellent condition.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

"What did you call me? Ken."

"Huh?" He interrupted himself to stare at her a second. Her gorgeous brown eyes had gone wider than ever. But he swallowed determindely and plunged on. "Ladies and gentlemen, I wish to nominate Miss Polly McMurray for fiesta queen. While there are many worthy of this honor, there is only one girl in all the university who is beautiful enough and sweet enough—"

"Ken. Ken Palmer." Polly shrieked that, and it shrieked all over the multitude.

People in the far back rows were beginning to stand now, electrified by the strange drama before them. This stage act was real! Nothing of make believe at all, and the people realized it.

"----sweet enough to be queen of the La Fiesta del sol! She looks like a perfection of all that we have idealized in senoritas from Spain and old Mexico. She is a native of the borderland herself, a girl brought up in the tradition of ----"

"Ken, stop it! Whatever are you saying? I was here to switch all my support to Joy because Ward wants her to---"

"I won't stop!" He glared at her. "FRIENDS, you must reason this matter out carefully and ---"

Polly had unconsciously grabbed his arms, straddling the microphone with her own to do so. She was barely shoulder high to him but she shook him hard now to command his attention.

"But Ken, whyever are you doing this? ...Why?...You don't—"

"Because I love you, Polly! I want to do it. I've got to!... you people of Arizona must reason this matter out for yourselevs before the vote is---"

"O-o-o-o-oh, Ken! Do you know what you said?"

He didn't hear that. "--- the vote is cast this day. Polly and her family have done more for Frontier than any other group of people. This fiesta is an Arizona event which--"

"Ken, do you? You said you loved me!"

She cried that almost frantically at him, and of course at all the multitude as well.

He was like a blond young god standing here, head erect on fine shoulders.Together they were silhouetted against the blue of the Arizona sky which canopied this university theatre. In the audience was only the slightest gasping-murmuring noise, for the crowd now was electrified with interest. It was as if the throng sat there poised to break instantly into cheering but hesitated lest it miss something of what was being said and done. Away up the slope of Shadow Canyon hundreds of people now were standing. Some boys had climbed even to the high top of Ho-Ho-Kam Ridge.

Others gripped the backs of seats in front of them. Some stood mouth agape, straining to see and hear.

Polly held to Ken's arm with one hand now and gripped the microphone stand with the other. Determinedly she shouted into it, trying to come over his own excited tones.

"No!" she cried. "Ladies and-please let me, Ken--- Gentlemen, herby tell you that I--"

"Friends!" Ken forced in over her. "Miss McMurray is confused about---"

"I am not confused! I--"

"You are Polly! If you will only let me---"

"No! I want---"

"But I've got to nominate you, I tell you! I want you to have it!"

"Oh Ken, Do you really?"

"Sure I do! I want you to have everything good You must--"

"Oo-o-o-o, Ken. Why you said it once! Please say it again,Ken! Please say it once more so I can be sure you mean it, and that I'm not dreaming."

Tension broke somewhere out in the vast audience.

A man laughed, Happily, shrilly.

Then a little undertone wave of excitement swept right across, but it ended in a sudden hush when Ken Palmer shouted into the microphone again. The blond young man seemed quite unaware that the mike and its loud speakers were broadcasting his private words to Polly as well and his utterances for the public.

"Say it once more?" he repeated to Polly. "You mean--that I love you? That I think you are the most wonderful girl who ever lived, Polly? Of course say it It's why I am up here now! I want you to be the queen. Oh Polly, my sweet--" His face showed the stress within him. He spoke very fast. "Haven't you known that I love you? Since that first day when I met you when we collided on the steps! I've wanted to tell you so! I have lived, Polly? Of course I say it! so many lovers, so many men who want to marry you! I have nothing to offer but myself. I---"

"Oo-o-o-o-oh, Ken!" She threw back her head in a wild sort of ecstasy. Then she literally grabbed the micrphone stand again and shrilled into the thing. "Ladies and Gentlemen, I want to say. I will not run for queen. I want Joy to have it. I have everything already. Everthing! I was queen last year and I don't want it again. Ken, I want nothing but you, my-darling! Don't you know I have loved you all the time? Oo-o-o-o-oh, Ken!"

The young man had seemed to come awake there.

He was staring at her, incredulous, but with a new look of elation beaming on him.

"Oh lord. Polly! We--we're up here! People have heard! We --I--come on!"

Abruptly he stooped and picked her up, as if rescuing her from strange danger.

She sat there in the cradle of his arms, her ebony hair and her trim, shapely legs dangling, and her breath coming in short frenzied gasps of happines. Then all at once he began to walk. .

In a moment he was at the edge of the rostrum and from there he started running down the steps. He contiued to run toward an exit, still carrying the girl for whom he had publicly proclaimed his love.

"EE-YEOW!" some rancher in the audience shouted.

Then pandemonium broke across the multitude.

Men jumped up waving hats and shouting. College girls shrieked and yelled. Press photographers, who had been taking their pictures, tore out down the aisle toward Phoenix, and their departure seemed to launch an impromtu parade.

All in a moment the 10,000-odd people were milling, laughing cheering throng making so much noise that it reverberated off the cliffs of Shadow Canyon and quite engulfed any further efforts at orderly proceeding here. And the secheduled election of fiesta queen? That little matter was wholly forgotten! People had come to their senses her. Dr. Palmer, the University President, first had shamed them, and then a romance had reached its climax right before their eyes.

Outside the exit where Ken carried Polly, he paused long enough to kiss her once.

Penzance Bay Scene of Naval Experiment

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

England's historic Penzance Bay is the scene of a naval experiment which is calculated to result in the creation of a united Western European fleet for defence against aggression.

British, French and Netherlands men-of-war are massed in the bay while smaller Belgian warships are engaged in separate manoeuvres with British vessels in neighboring waters.

It is the beginning of an effort to co-ordinate the widely varying methods of these fleets so that they can work as one.

These navies are as individualistic as are the men who sail and fight them. Their various customs and methods of operations are developments of many centuries. The different languages in themselves are a hazard for co-ordipation.

Not First Time

British, French and Netherlands warships joined with United States ships to form the allied eastern fleet based on Ceylon during the last war.

Charles Grumich, an old seadog by virtue having been with the allied navy in the far east during the war, says the consensus of naval officers concerned was that there were a good many rough spots in the operations of the combined fleets. By way of illustration Grumich says:

"Arrival of the U.S.S. Saratoga, a rather ungainly old carrier from the Pacific, led to a lot of celebrating. The British were so happy that they changed over to American signal flags, not knowing that the Saratoga had changed over to British signal flags. They had a helluva time making signals for awhile.

"The real Snafu came when the French battle-wagon Richelieu joined the fleet. Saratoga signalled over, asking if there was anything Richelieu needed. The French came back with a request for 1,000 brassieres and the American gobs were just about to swim over to see why when a French linguist discovered that's what the French call life-jackets."

Well, that's a page out of the past. Penzance Bay may well be seeing the beginning of a new era in allied naval co-ordination.

Letter States Rain Needed In Prairie Provinces

Rawdon.—In a letter received Monday, June 27, from Mr. Edward Montgomery, who is hollidaying in the western provinces, he said he had been undergoing electrical treatments for a minor ailment at Ou'Appelle Hospital, but hoped to soon be well enough to continue his journey to Edmonton.

"Rain is badly needed in the prairie, or the crops will only be about fifty per cent.

"Many farmers have several hundred acres and farm on a large scale with fourteen foot combines, a ten foot binder, 28 hoes drill, 12 to 15 one way discs, 24 foot harrows and all widths of cultivators driven behind tractors.

"Neighbors are two and three miles apart, and many farmers are ten miles from town. However, strawberries and tomatoes are plentiful in the stores and last

"Many have new cars and travel miles to a ball game, or a week a gala strawberry social was held on the prairie. show."

Mr. Montgomery sees many changes in 15 years since their last visit.

Personals

Miss Marjorie Bush, teacher of the Williams' School, sponsored a picnic at Oak Lake on Wednesday for the pupils and the older folk of the school section.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sager, Mr. and Mrs. L. Kaye spent a few days with relatives at Watertown, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl McMullen, Sudbury, are visiting relatives in Rawdon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fargey, Mrs. Louis Rodgers, and Mrs. John McInroy, attended a meeting of Kingston Presbytery at Gananoque, and all were entertained by one of the elders to a delightful boat trip through the Thousand Islands.

Scout and Guide Activities

For many years. the Brownies of Belleville, under the leadership of their Grey Owl, Mrs. Branscombe, have had a most worthy and exciting Project. They know it simply as "The Grenfell Mission", and to them it just spells "toys" for the boys and girls who are helped by the workers of the Grenfell Mission.

Inspired by Dr. Grenfell, the mission is composed of fearless men and women who work untiringly in the cause of the sick fishermen and their families of Northern Labrador. From their base in Mutton Bay they visit regularly. The lonely settlements scattered amidst the beautiful bays and inlets along the rocky coastline of Northern Newfoundland. Here the deep-sea fishermen live remote and lonely lives, working hard and uncomplainingly under very difficult conditions, and so isolated that they have very little help from civilization at all. "To minister to the needs of these people, the Mission maintains four hospitals, five nursing stations, two boarding schools, one day school, one children's home. one supply vessel, and a hospital vessel." (Mr. W. H. Davis, Executive Secretary of the Newfoundland Tuberculosis Association.)

The bales which are the contributions of our Belleville Brownies to this wonderful work, consist of toys and gifts for the children of these fisherfolk, and worn clothing to be distributed to the needy. Some of the toys are made by the Brownies themselves. Stuffed animals, woollen balls, and dolls wonderfully beautiful in their home-made curls or plaits and clothes, are made as part of their work in Handwork badges. The Brownies also dress dolls, often with the help of Mother and her piece-basket, and buy toys with their Fairy Gold. They love to do all this, and in so doing learn the happiness which comes only from service to others.

Dr. Grenfell himself once said, "The giving of a toy to a child who has never had one, is to me an act of worship." . . . In Mrs. Branscombe's cool rooms, that hot June afternoon. as Brownie leaders and friends wrapped and packed the gifts for those bales, their hearts knew that "act of worship", and they saw in their imaginations the smiles of happiness and joy that would transform the faces of children who are given a doll for the first time in their lives.

To all who helped in this work, the Brownies, the leaders, and parents, to Miss Florence Ayling who was of great assistance in making the dolls, to Walker Hardware Stores, and above all to Dr. and Mrs. Branscombe very grateful thanks and deep appreciation are due. But really they need no thanks, that little warm feeling around the heart inspired from the sight of the things for the bales, was reward enough.

Guhr Identified As International Burglar by F.B.I.

$20,000 Loot Recovered At His Toronto Home

Toronto, July 4. (CP)—Frank Guhr, 31, arrested Saturday while attempting to pass a cheque in a West End bank, was identified today by the F.B.I. as an international burglar.

The bureau office in Buffalo, N.Y., said Guhr is wanted for looting six homes in Nassau county of an estimated $100,000 in jewelry and furs. The bureau added that it had a voluminous file on Guhr, including the fact that he is a parole violator from the State Prison in Salem, Oregon.

"He made a practice of burglarizing nothing but the best homes," they said.

Appearing in court today, Guhr was remanded a week on 12 charges of forgery and fraud.

Guhr's activities were said to extend over more than two years. He was arrested on a car theft charge in Rochester, N.Y., but disappeared after posting $5,000 bond. No further trace of him was found on him until he was identified in Toronto.

He was identified as a jailbreaker in New Orleans where he was arrested previously. However, he escaped before police tabbed him as the suspect.

Loot valued at $20,000 was recovered Saturday when Toronto police raided his west end bungalow. Included in the find was a diamond ring valued at $4,300 and another worth $800 which Guhr obtained from Toronto department store with credentials stolen from one of the homes which he burglarized. Police said they found bags loaded with jewelry, furs, dresses, cameras and mantle radios in the bedroom.

They said Mrs. Guhr produced the two diamond rings from a cupboard hiding place.

In questioning by Toronto detectives, Guhr said the loot he stole in Toronto robberies was small compared with the loot obtained in New York. He seemed resigned to a prison and told police he had made arrangements for his wife and son to go to the State of Washington to live with his father, a railroad employee.

LIBERALS TAKE 60 PER CENT OF SOLDIER VOTE

40,000 Eligible to Vote but Many Exercised Franchise as Civilians

Ottawa, July 4 — (CP)—Canada's armed forces voted just like the rest of the country — only more so.

The Liberal party of Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent picked up 60 per cent of the 22,714 votes cast in special balloting by permanent force troops, reservists at training camps and veterans in military hospitals.

Liberals polled 13,977 votes, Progressive Conservatives 5,316 and the C.C.F. 2,294. Other parties got 564, including 32 votes for the Labor Progressive party, Canada's Communists.

That was 60.7 per cent for the Liberals, 23.4 per cent for the Progressive Conservatives and 10.1 per cent for the C. C. F.

The Canadian Press tabulation of the regular voting June 27 gave the Liberals 49.7 per cent of the total popular vote, the Progressive Conservatives 30 per cent and the C. C. F. 13 per cent.

192 Liberals in House

Final standing in the 262 - member Commons: Liberal, 192; Progressive Conservative 42; C. C. F. 13; Social Credit 10; Independent 4; Independent Liberal 1.

The service voting was done June 20 to June 25. Votes were counted in the men's home constituencies.

It was estimated some 40,000 men were eligible for the special ballot. But many of them probably voted as civilians.

George Nowlan, successful Progressive Conservative candidate in Annapolis - Kings in Nova Scotia, had the closest call. He got 92 service votes against 158 for Liberal A. A. Elderkin. Mr. Nowlan was left with a scant two-vote majority over Mr. Elderkin that probably will result in a recount.

The servicemen voted against military records in at least two seats. Lt. Col. Cecil Merrit, V. C., hero of the Dieppe raid seeking re-election in Vancouver Burrard, whose majority was increased from 238 to 251. In Charlotte, New Brunswick, the lead of Wesley Stuart, Liberal, was increased from 49 to 58 over Maj.-Gen. H.N. Ganong.

There was another close call in Montreal Papineau, the 85-vote lead Mayor Camillien Houde had before the soldier vote was counted dwindled to 57. His closest opponent, J. A. Meunier, Liberal, polled 37 service votes against nine for Mr. Houde.

Seven Persons Burned to Death

Aberdeen, Wash., July 4 — (AP)—Crackling flames brought a fiery death to seven persons and injured six others early Sunday in a combination masonry-frame residential hotel.

The fire broke out shortly before 3 a.m. in the lobby of the Lafayette Hotel. Its cause still is unknown.

Eighteen of about 36 guests escaped on ladders run up to the windows. Others leaped to the roof of an adjoining building.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, July 4 — (CP) —Synopsis: Sunday was another hot day for most of Ontario with maximum temperatures rising to above 90 in most districts. Cooler air which moved southeastward across Northern Ontario has now extended as far south as southern White River and southern Kirkland Lake regions. It will continue moving southward and will probably enter southwestern Ontario during Tuesday night. Occasional thunderstorms will precede and accompany the leading edge of this cooler air.

Independence Day Holiday Toll May Exceed 500

Chicago, July 4—(AP)—Death overtook at least 434 Independence Day celebrants.

Of the victims, 207 died on the country's jammed highways, 140 were drowned and 87 were killed in miscellaneous accidents during the three-day July 4 holiday.

The traffic toll climbed steadily toward the 290 predicted by the National Safety council. It mounted even before millions of automobiles clogged the roads in their homeward trek.

The complete death total threatened to exceed last year's 500 for the three-day weekend.

Polio Virus Striking Farther And Faster so Far This Year in U. S.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New York, July 4 — (AP) — The polio virus is striking farther and faster so far this year than last in the United States.

By the third week of June, 37 states had more cases than a year ago. The number of new cases each week was running about 10 per cent higher.

This could signal the worst year yet for polio. Last year was the second worst in the history of the United States, with 27,894 new cases.

But there was no way to predict what will happen in the next few months, the most dangerous ones for epidemics. The rate might keep going faster or higher, or change suddenly.

The United States Public Health Service reported 2,309 cases by June 19, or 36 per cent more than last year at that time. But more than 900 of this year's cases were really hangovers from 1948. They came from epidemics that began late last year, and which didn't die down until early this year.

One danger signal is that the virus is so widespread this year, said Dr. Hart E. Van Riper, medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

That means it may be spread easily to people who haven't been exposed to it in the last few years. The best medical guess is that it spreads by person to person contact.

An encouraging fact is that no state - wide epidemics had appeared yet, such as swept North Carolina in 1948.

The picture in late June, Dr. Van Riper said, pointed to two potential danger areas.

One is a circle of southern states — Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas and Oklahoma. The rate this year is higher in all of them, and all but Texas escaped severe outbreaks last year.

The second potential danger area is the northeastern states, including New England. The rate is up in all those states except New York and New Hampshire.

QUEBEC POLICE CAPTURE THREE AFTER HOLD - UP

Believed They Killed Boy Riding on Road

St. Joachim Des Plaines, Que., July 4 —(CP)—Quebec Provincial Police late Sunday night captured three men sought in connection with the $1,100 Saturday holdup of the Banque Canadienne Nationale Branch at the nearby Laurentian village of St. Alexis de Montcalm and for the alleged hit-and-run death of an 11-year-old boy.

At Montreal, Deputy Police Chief Hilaire Beauregard said that charge of either manslaughter or murder would be laid against Roland Verdon, 30, alleged driver of the car which hurled little Gaston Aubry of this village 50 feet through the air.

Verdon surrendered to police after the car he was driving crashed into a ditch one mile from the accident scene. The boy was killed about an hour after the robbery while riding his bicycle near his home, 15 miles from the hold up scene.

No Relief Seen In Heat Wave In Ontario

(By The Canadian Press)

The Weather Bureau today forecast no immediate relief from the heat wave which has been sweeping Ontario for the last few days.

At many points the mercury has soared to record highs and at White River, familiarly known as "the coldest spot in Canada", residents yesterday sweltered in temperatures which reached 83 degrees.

Weather Bureau officials say that cooler air which has been moving southeastward across Northern Ontario may enter south western Ontario by Tuesday night bringing some relief.

At Hamilton, the province's industrial centre, high temperatures forced shut-down of several departments in various plants throughout the city. Sunday the mercury reached an unofficial 101 degrees in the shade there. It touched an official 94 at Ottawa.

Two records were broken at Fort Erie Sunday as the thermometer rose to a high of 92 and more than 25,000 automobiles entered the Peace Bridge area from the United States.

According to official records, the hottest city in Canada, Sunday was Windsor where the thermometer rose to 96. Fort Churchill, on Hudson Bay, was the coolest population centre in Ontario with a high of 54.

Throughout the province doctors and others who might know were besieged with queries on what to do to beat the heat.

Toronto's Dr. Gordon P. Jackson, the city's medical officer of health, suggested, while mopping a dripping brow, several methods. Among them were wearing light clothing eating lightly, drinking water which is not too cold, taking tepid baths and getting plenty of rest.

Devout Catholic Slovaks Force Czech Reds to Change Tactics

(By Richard Kasischke)

Prague, July 4 (AP)—Violent defiance from devout Roman Catholic Slovakians apparently has forced Czechoslovakia's communist government to change its tantics in the Church-State war.

While Premier Antonin Zapotocky urged citizens to maintain "peace and calm" education minister Zdenek Nejedly told listeners in a radio speech Sunday the government was ready to "make concessions."

For the first time the government and its controlled- press admitted that peasants in Slovakia were organized as "minute men," armed with clubs and scythes, to guard their priests.

The newspaper Pravda, organ of the Slovak Communist party, said that 10 persons, including three women, were sentenced to prison for terms ranging up to 10 years for "insurrection" following riots in the town of Levoca.

Despite the jail sentences, reliable reports from strongly-Catholic Slovakia said the peasants were still prepared to rise any time their priests were threatened.

These clashes climaxed the government's campaign which church leaders said was aimed at state control of the Roman Catholic Church and undermining the authority of Archbishop Joseph Beran, Primate of Czechoslovakia.

Premier Zapotocky made a trip to Bratalslava, Slovakia's capital, to participate in that province's annual three-day religious festival. This trip was regarded here as an indication of how important the government considered peace in Volatile and frequently indelendent Slovakia.

Meanwhile the trade union newspaper, Prace, which usually echoes the premier's views, said the government had no intention of arresting Archbishop Beran. It said the government would not "make a martyr" of Beran, who is reported a semi-captive in his police - controlled palace in Prague.

Church circles buzzed about the disappearance of another prominent churchman, Rev. Frantisek Fiala.

His disappearance became public when he failed to show up for a government-sponsored meeting at which he was to have been assigned leadership in the government-backed Separatist 'Catholic action' Society.

Britain's Fighter Planes Still Lead World -- Embry

London, July 4 — (CP)—Britain's top fighter command officer says his country's fighter planes still lead the world.

Air Marshal Sir Basil Embry, Commander-in-Chief of the R. A. F. Fighter Command, commenting on the nine-day mock air battle over Britain which has just ended. said Sunday night the fighters could claim practically one interception for each bomber sortie flown against them.

Sir Basil said the fighters had shown they can master the United States B-29 Superfortresses in speed and altitude and can stand the test of raiding from other British fighters, notably the Vampire Jets.

"I see no reason why we should not keep the lead," he said. "We have got to keep abreast of developments." But he indicated that Britain is not "putting everything in the shop window" in the fighter line for others to see.

Sir Basil's remarks followed weekend reports that controllers of "exercise foil" believe Britain is well on the way towards solving any future threat from enemy high-altitude jet bombers flying near the speed of sound.

Air Secretary Arthur Henderson said the manoeuvres were an "outstanding success" with most effective co-operation from Western Union and United States forces. During some nights, between 80 ad 100 per cent of Britain's front-line fighter and bomber force was in the air, he added.

Henderson disclosed that the R. A. F. auxiliary squadrons, composed of "weekend" fliers who were veterans of the Second World War, will be transferred to the fighter command administratively so they can be brought into direct front - line service in any emergency.

Europe Gradually Piecing Together Network of Canals

London, July 3—(AP)—Europe is gradually piecing together again the great network of inland waterways torn to bits by the war.

Thousand of miles of canals criss cros the continent. They link its navigable rivers—the Meuse, Scheldt, Senne Rhone, Marne Rhine, Wester, Elbe, Oder, and Danube. The war wrecked the system.

Four years later, barges are beginning to clog the rivers and canals again. They are helping to heal the broken ties of pre-war international commerce. Millions of tons of bulk goods are gliding through the canals into the swiftly flowing rivers and the great interior river ports, So far the tonnage appears to be roughly just more than one-half that of prewar days.

The Netherlands, France and Belgium had to restore between 50 and 75 per cent of their canals and have virtually completed te job. Plans for modernization and improvement, however, are long-term projects.

Germany, which perhaps suffered worst of all, still has a long way to go before its canals are back to normal.

Europe's most important inland waterway, the Danube, is a victim of the cold war. The conflict between the east and the west has split the river as effectively as Europe itself.

For centuries the broad Danube carried the commerce of Central Europe and the Balkans. After the war, The western powers remained in control of the northern section and the communist-dominated countries of Eastern Europe of its southern reaches. The Danube is unlikely to resume its former place until east and west make their peace.

On the Rhine, which ranks with the Danube as an international waterway, traffic is moving freely between the Benelux countries France, Germany's Ruhr and Switzerland ever since they unsnarled the war-time hangover of controls.

But the Rhine no longer is carrying the huge tonnage of international transit traffic which made such a busy highway before the war.

A heavy percentage of the traffic to and from Germany's Rhur, which used to pass through the busy Dutch ports because of the great saving in time, now is being diverted to Germany's North Sea ports of Bremen and Hamburg.

The Netherlands Rhine fleet, developed at a cost of 800,000,000 guilders to move this tonnage, has felt the blow. The Dutch claim a large part of its capacity is lying idle.

79 Canadians Meet Death Over Holiday

(By The Canadian Press)

Violent death befell 79 Canadians during the long Dominion Day holiday weekend.

A Canadian Press compilation of fatalities reported between midnight Thursday and early today showed 44 drownings, 20 deaths in highway crashes, two in a plane smash and 13 from a variety of causes.

Ontario reported 38 accidental deaths, Quebec 29, Manitoba four, the Maritimes three, Alberta three and British Columbia two.

In Ontario and Quebec, particularly, many of the drownings were attributed directly to a heat wave which in some areas pushed the temperature over the 90-degree mark. Both swimmers and non-swimmers sought cooling relief in the water and some got into difficulties.

34,000 FROM U. S.

Windsor, July 4 — (CP)—An estimated 34,000 American tourists, approximately 10 per cent more than last year, crossed into Ontario by bridge and tunnel at Windsor the last three days, immigration officials reported today.

38 MEET DEATH IN ONT. HOLIDAY WEEKEND CRASHES

Drownings Take Heaviest Toll

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario's holiday week-end fatality toll stands at 38 with a plane crash, a boating mishap and a highway accident each accounting for two lives.

A Canadian Press compilation of fatalities reported since midnight Friday shows 14 drownings, five deaths in traffic mishaps, the two in the plane crash and seven from miscellaneous causes. Reported from midnight Thursday, at the start of the Dominion Day celebration, until midnight Friday were five drownings.

A Sunday evening boating trip on Henderson's pond in the Speed River near Guelph ended in death for Mr. and Mrs. Ken Cox of RR. 1, Campbellville. They had gone only a short distance when the boat upset and both were drowned.

Other drowning victims were: Pat Winters, 17, of Windsor, a non-swimmer who stepped into deep water in the Detroit River; Leon Norrie, seven, who slipped from a rock into deep water in Osler Lake near Parry Sound; Raymond Lavigueur, 22-year-old Montreal entertainer, who went swimming while in Ottawa for performance; Owen Fulton, seven, of Toronto, who waded into a hole in the Big East River near Huntsville, and Arthur MacDonald, 23, of Sandwich East, a swimmer seized by cramps in the Detroit River.

Half Holiday For Workers to Continue Search

Val D'Or, Que., July 4 (CP)—A half holiday was declared in Val D'Or and nearby Bourlamaque today to free workers so they could help in the search for 16-year-old Gilles Gray of Bourlamaque, missing for nine days in dense bush north of here.

The half holiday was declared after a proclamation was signed by Mayors Ozo Tetrault of Val D'Or and Paul Daragon of Bourlamaque.

It was not known immediately how many more would join the search, intensified during the weekend when a party of 25 Indian bush guides offered their help.

The Indians, under Chief Fred Jackson and his son Andrew came from a hunting resort 35 miles from here.

They struck out through country so difficult that even a bloodhound was lost for a day and its mate collapsed after black - fly attacks.

The two bloodhounds, brought from Toronto, are being rested while guides and woodsmen continue the search.

Gray disappeared on a lone fishing trip. Last week searchers found his brown jacket and tracks believed left by him Guides said the footprints indicated the man who made them was either exhausted or injured.

Millionaires and Room Clerks Take Over as Cooks, Barkeeps Strike

Reno, Nev., July 4 (AP)—"Gee this is better than a carnival." A 10-year-old bystander thus summed up the first day of a general culinary workers' and bartenders' strike in this biggest little city in the world.

One of the largest Fourth of July crowds in history found itself on the outside looking in when most restaurants and bars closed Sunday noon. Negotiations broke down between the Culinary and Bartenders Union and the Reno Employers Council.

The union members want wage increases of $1 to $4.50 a day and union recognition for hotel service workers.

Millionaires and room clerks took over the jobs of the absent bartenders—mixing drinks with utter disregard for the usual ratio of liquor and mixer.

A citizen's emergency committee set up tables in downtown Powning Park to feed the thousands of tourists. Food was brought in by the truckload from the closed restaurants, where the committee purchased it.

"All you can eat for 50 cents—where can you do better," blared loud speaker trucks roaming the streets. In four hours, 4,212 persons took advantage of the offer Sunday night and the lines were still forming.

At old Virginia City, heard of the fabulous Comstock lode, happy bartenders posted signs:

"Reno has no food, no whisky, no wimmin."

Legalized prostitution was outlawed in Reno earlier this year.

In some bars the striking bartender turned customer, demanding "Pink Ladies," "Orange Blossoms" and other fancy concoctions to befuddle the makeshift barmen.

Britons May Get Increased Meat Ration Shortly

Govt. May Restore Rationing To Candy in Face of Scarcity

London, July 4 (CP)—Side by side with the latest economic "crisis" news, Britons today read in their newspapers these rationing morsels:

1. They may get an increased meat ration within the next six weeks.
2. The government is considering restoring rationing to candy in the face of a mounting scarcity of sweets.

The news about meat rationing was unofficial. It came from a spokesman for the meat trade who said that if present expectations are realized the ration should certainly go up from the present level of one shilling, one penny (about 22 cents) a week for each individual to one shilling, four pence (about 27 cents). It might even go up this month, he said.

Apart from shipments from the Argentine, more meat is expected from Australia and meat now also is coming from New Zealand, the Republic of Ireland, France and other countries. The drive for more home-produced pork and bacon also is said to be gaining headway and there is hope that more feed will be available for poultry and cattle.

The news about candy came in the House of Commons. Dr. Edith Summerskill, parliamentary secretary to the food ministry, said in answer to numerous questions about the scarcity of sweets that the government is considering restoration of the ration which was abolished last April. She admitted that ending rationing was a failure, saying:

"The nation has a sweet tooth the size of which we could not assess."

Princess Elizabeth Takes Up Residence At Her Own Home

London, July 4 (AP)—Princess Elizabeth took up official residence today at a home of her own.

Her personal standard was flown from the flagstaff in front of Clarence House, where she will live with her husband, Prince Philip, and son, Prince Charles.

Clarence House, damaged by bombs while the Red Cross occupied it during the war, has been under reconstruction for months. It is a quarter of a mile from Buckingham Palace and is adjoined on one side by Marlborough House, where Queen Mary lives, and on the other by St. James' Palace. The palace, once the home of the Duke of Windsor, now houses the Duke of Gloucester, Royal Equerries and Buckingham Palace officials.

PLENTY OF PUNISHMENT

Toronto, July 4 —(CP)—Joe Bettina of Toronto, whose face "looks as if it had been through a cement mixer," today was acquitted of assaulting Mrs. Annie Zubywycz, who bore no visible mark of injury. The magistrate who compared Bettina's injuries to those of the woman, commented: "I think this man had plenty of punishment."

TORRID, RAINLESS WEATHER GRIPS EUROPEAN AREAS

Serious Condition Seen as Water Shortage Grows

London, July 4—(CP)—Things are tough all over.

Millions of Europeans are suffering from the same sort of hot, rainless weather afflicting large portions of the United States and parts of Canada.

Millions of Britons prayed for rain in churches through the country Sunday. Parts of their land have gone 30 days without rain.

One-third of Lisbon's 700,000 people were estimated to have gone to beaches to escape temperatures ranging up to 95 degrees.

Basel University's meteorological institute reported June was Switzerland's driest month since they began keeping records in 1864. Rainfall was about one-quarter of the average.

Industries in northern Italy will be cut 30 per cent of their maximum consumption of electricity as of today because hydro-electric plants are short of water.

Britain's drought has caused milk deliveries to drop sharply. Cows in some localities were reported giving one-third less milk than usual because of the lack of nourishing grass. Thousands of gallons of milk was souring on farms for want of water to cool it.

Measures for imposing water rationing already have been considered and in one northern England district tour of reservoirs were planned for housewives to show them the seriousness of the situation.

Ponds were running dry in many parts of the country, and farmers, who have made good use of the fine weather to get their hay in, were becoming increasingly anxious for their other crops.

While all western Europe swelters in the heat wave, reports from leading capitals told of daylong queues outside bathing pools, and packed road and rail transport out of the big cities.

Two Men Charged With Serious Offence

Sarnia, Ont., July 4 — (CP) — Two soldiers, stationed at Camp Ipperwash, were remanded in custody for trial today on a charge of having carnal knowledge of a 14-year-old Forest girl.

The two, Cpl. Douglas D. Hopkinson and Pvt. Norman G. Thurston, members of the R.C.A.S.C., were arrested after questioning by Chief Constable Edward Quinn of Forest and Provincial Constables Charles G. Wilkinson and Ray Perkins.

They are charged with having picked the girl up after a late show Saturday night and offered to drive her home.

She was taken to the outskirts of the town where the offence occurred, police said.

Freedom of the Press

What precisely is meant by that familiar phrase, "freedom of the press"?

Fundamentally it is not a special privilege reserved for newspaper publishers. It is rather a phase of a much larger freedom—the freedom of all men to speak their minds openly and without fear. The press claims no right which should not belong to every citizen in a democracy. But freedom of the press is an all-important part of this larger freedom because, under modern conditions, the press is the principal agency by which the ordinary man receives the information he needs to judge the actions of his rulers and make up his mind on public affairs. Without newspapers, or with only gagged and blindfolded ones, he is in the dark, and helpless. An unfettered press is therefore one of the essential bulwarks of a democratic nation.

If any proof be needed, it is provided by the record of the modern totalitarian states—the Nazi and Fascist dictatorships of the recent past, and the menacing Communist tyranny of the present day. Rigid control of all sources of public information, and especially of newspapers, was the cornerstone upon which all these regimes were built. Without it they could not have lasted for more than a few months. With it they could keep their peoples in blinkers through the years, and drive them on any course they chose. How much of the insecurity and misery in the world today stems from the simple fact that the Russian people—like the German and Italian peoples in earlier years—are prevented by their rulers from reading the real news of the outside world!

These tragic developments should provide a warning against any attempt, by government or by private interests, to restrict the essential freedom of the press. A free people must stand on guard not only against direct censorship, but also against more insidious encroachments. Nominal freedom is not enough. The only truly free press is one which can record the news faithfully and comment on it frankly, without fear of direct or indirect punishment. Neither the press nor the public is safe with anything less than this.

All liberty, of course, involves obligations. The obligation of a free press is to be truly free. It must strive to be thorough, accurate and unbiassed in its reporting, sincere and thoughtful in its editorials, and resistant to all outside pressure. It must be both cautious and bold—cautious until it knows all the facts, bold when it is sure of its ground. It must, above all, be inspired by devotion to the public welfare as its staff understands it.

Such a newspaper is worthy of the privileges which the free peoples of the world have traditionally granted to thejr press. Such a newspaper is also the best guardian of the liberties of the people.

112 Million Gal. Pumped to City During June

Direct result of the near record temperatures experienced during the month, a record high of 112 million gallons of water was pumped into the sweltering city in June, according to local pump house officials.

This is by far the largest amount of water ever pumped in one month and is approximately double what was pumped for June in 1935 when 58 million gallons went through the filtration plant. In June, 1940, 62 million gallons were pumped and in June 1945, 77 million gallons.

Last month five million gallons of water was used for washing the filter beds, while 12 tons of alum was used and 1,500 pounds of chlorine.

High temperature recorded for the month was a sweltering 89 degrees with a low of 39 degrees being registered. The mean temperature was 69 degrees and the rainfall 1.75 inches.

One year ago the high temperature for June was 84 degrees and the low 40 degrees with a mean of 63 degrees. Normal rainfall for the month of June is 2.66 inches and the normal mean temperature is 65 degrees.

The parade will pass along Bridge Street to Front and through the main portion of the business section.

Prince Edward district, North Hastings, and South Hastings district will form the nucleus of the gathering but many Eastern Ontario lodges will be represented with Oshawa, Peterborough, and Kingston, sending large delegations.

Belleville Lodge is anxious that the citizens of Belleville, and especially the merchants, endeavor to make our city attractive, extend a welcome to the many visitors and send them away with a good impression of our city.

The program following the parade will be conducted on the Fair Grounds with the exception of the closing dance which will be held at the Orange Hall.

Police Launch Summer Drive Against Speeding

Speeders lose!

With this warning, Chief R. W. Probert launched Belleville's summer drive against reckless and speeding motorists.

By tightening up traffic law enforcement Belleville is co-operating with the Department of Highways Traffic Safety Program and with the Provincial Police who have re-introduced motorcycle details this summer to help cut down the accident toll.

"Too much speed is reported more often in accident cases than any other single driver action," Chief Probert continues. "The statutory speed limits of 50 m.p.h. on rural roads and 30 m.p.h. in built-up areas apply only to ideal conditions," he states, "and most of the time at least one condition is far from ideal, whether it be condition of the road, the weather, the traffic, the car or even yourself or 'the other driver'."

"Every motorist must use common sense in setting his own speed limit below the legal maximum according to conditions and the requirements of safety," says the Chief. "Drivers who go faster than common sense and safety allow can be charged with careless driving, and we intend to see that our roads are kept safe for everyone. A life saved is worth far more than the few minutes gained by driving too fast for conditions."

PICTON

Famed Elm Tree On Main Street Being Cut Down

Picton — Two five-and-a-half foot crosscut saws welded together are being used to cut down Picton's famed elm tree which is said to be the largest tree east of the Rockies and is estimated to be 500 years old.

The tree is on East Main St., in front of the residence of Crown Attorney Gordon Walmsley. Decision to cut the tree came after a limb almost as large as a grown tree fell from the elm narrowly missing a young girl and boy and crashing onto the top of Mr. Walmsley's new auto. The tree trunk is hollow and there was no way to save the tree.

The top limbs are being cut off first and these are being made into a "bed" to act as a cushion to prevent damage to the pavement when the trunk is felled.

ROSS — In loving memory of a dear grandmother, Mrs. Wm. Ross, who passed away one year ago today.

Sweet to remember her who once was here,
And tho absent is just as dear.

Ever remembered by granddaughter Pearl and husband Donald, and great grandchildren Joyce and Lloyd. J4

NEW YORK

(Closed—4th of July.)

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 4 — (CP) — A slight upward trend was evident in very light trading here today as the market moved without direction from a holidaying New York market. Junior gold producers continued in slight demand and a few industrial issues climbed fractions.

The market seemed inclined to continue the holiday weekend today as opening trading was barely a trickle. Activity pepped up slightly in golds and prices began to turn slowly upwards as the session progressed.

International Paper featured a stronger paper list, climbing more than a full point. A few banks, steels and utilities also brightened but the remainder of the list showed hardly any change.

Gains ranged up about 10 cents in key junior producers. A few seniors tightened and activity was comparatively brisk in Eldon and Nicholson Mines.

Activity was slowest in base metals with barely a dozen issues turning over.

Bandits Flee When Youth Calls For Help

Markham, Ont., July 4 (CP)—Four black-gloved bandits fled empty-handed early today after a brief tussle with their intended victim, 21-year-old Ray Brooks, who shouted to his father for help.

The youth, an attendant at his father's garage near here, said the men, one armed, asked for a can of gasoline. When he went inside the station, he said, "they all piled into me . . . the man with the gun didn't use it."

The bandits fled when the youth's father, Aubrey Brooks, heard his son's shouts and rushed out to join the fight.

Ray Brooks said the men, each wearing a black glove on his right hand, escaped in a car driven by a fifth man. Markham is 18 miles northeast of Toronto.

Attlee Charges Commies Trying To Disrupt U.K.

Manchester, England, July 4 — (CP) — Prime Minister Attlee said Sunday Communists are trying to disrupt Britain's recovery.

He warned British Socialists and trade union members that Communists "are merely the instruments of an alien dictatorship."

The Prime Minister spoke in crowded King's Hall. An overflow crowd listened over loudspeakers outside. The number inside and outside the hall was estimated at 12,000.

Attlee struck out against unofficial strikes.

"The only people to gain from them are those people who would like to see our great social democratic experiment fail," said Attlee.

"They care nothing for this country. They do not mind how the people suffer."

"Spiritually they do not belong here," Attlee said. "Their hearts are elsewhere."

"Unfortunately that country which the Communists support is, from the point of view of real freedom and democracy and of true Socialism one of the most backward countries in the world."

Most critical of Britain's present unofficial strikes is a walkout of about 8,000 dock workers, tieing up about 80 ships, some carrying food, in London.

"I am certain that if the men and women who built up our movement were to be told the true facts about Russia today "they would say 'this is not Socialist society'," Mr. Attlee said. "There is no freedom. It is a classic example of a police state just as Russia under the Czars was a police state.'

Attlee said "we have no quarrel with the Russians," and "recognize their right to the kind of government they like. But we shall oppose resolutely any attempt to drag our people down to their level."

Halfway through the speech, three hecklers were escorted from the hall. Later another was ejected.

A cup and saucer was also given to Mrs. Lloyd, who has helped with the social gathering read. Candies and peanuts were at the school for the past year.

Some humor clippings were Both expressed their sincere thanks for the gifts. Mr. Lloyd has faithfully and successfully taught for the past year and it was with deep regret to learn of his resignation.

Mercury at High on Sunday Motorists Exude From City, Old Man Probs Offers Hope

"Ho,Hum, it ain't the heat, bub, it's the humility," quoth the veteran knight of the road as he tossed a dusty havesack on the dry, dusty, what used to be green grass, near the entrance of Victoria Park this morning.

"Jest arrived from Toronto and the folks up there are running around with their tongues hanging out like a hound dog after a two-mile stalk of a bear in mid-August," he said through sweat-streaked cheeks.

Toronto was only slightly worse off yesterday and today than was Belleville and other centres.

People here stifled under 90 degrees of heat yesterday with no respite today as the weatherman predicted even higher temperatures. In downtown Belleville this morning the atmosphere was sticky with the mercury struggling to stay below 88 degrees.

Some Hope—Thundershowers

But, there's a slight ray of hope for somewhat cooler weather tomorrow. The weatherman took time out from mopping a perspiring brow and sipping long cold drinks to say that cooler air is moving southeastward across Northern Ontario. It will continue moving southward and will probably enter Southwestern Ontario Tuesday night preceded by thunderstorms.

With the city yesterday bearing a strong resemblance to a bake oven under a full head of steam, heat-weary residents sought the alleged cooler spots in the rural areas, summer resorts, camp, cabin, lake, river and stream.

Motorists exuded from the city in a steady stream from early Sunday morning throughout the day.

Sultry, Sticky, Hot

There was little respite, however, for those who sought cooling breezes through the medium of open car windows. The air was sultry, sticky, hot. It surged through cars in a heat-laden stream.

District swimming spots were crowded to capacity. Oak Lake, the Sandbanks, the Outlet, Wellington, Huycke's Point, were meccas for thousands.

Veteran residents of Wellington-on-the-Lake, one of the cooler spots of the district, stated that the water of Lake Ontario off the sand beaches and park of the village, was the warmest experienced in over thirty years. Shore water was tepid. The majority of swimmers waded out to neck-depth and revelled in the coolness of the currents sweeping in from mid-lake.

Home-coming residents stated last night that not a few people were noted lying on blankets under roadside trees, apparently "bedded" down for the night in an effort to escape city heat and humidity.

Land-Office Business

Resort and highway canteens and pop-shops did a land office business. In some cases stocks were completely depleted at an early hour in the afternoon. In Wellington, ice cream was at a premium by 3.30 p.m.

In the city today, workers struggled to office, shop and factory for the day's labor under temperatures near the nineties.

Foundry workers in the Corbin Lock Company were given the day off because of the extreme heat conditions. Other plants reported foundry staffs working but not "pouring."

Some people were luckier than others Out of the array of heat reports this morning came one that brought a breath of coolness from reading it.

Beside a Northern Lake (58 deg.)

Sojourning in a cottage in a northern lake, the narrator stated that he slept under blankets last Friday night with the mercury playing around the 58 degrees mark. He wanted the name of the lake or lakes withheld to avoid a human avalanche of friends and acquaintances cascading on this Paradise in the wilderness of heat.

Major Changes May be Made In the Cabinet

Ottawa, July 4 (CP)— some major changes in the Federal cabinet may be made before the first session of the new parliament opens in September, probably Sept. 15.

There is widespread speculation in political circles that appointment of some veteran members of the cabinet to the Senate and to the bench will open the way for some young blood in the ministerial ranks before the first meeting of members elected in the June 27 Federal election.

Postmaster General Bertrand, Works Minister Fournier, Solicitor General Jean and Fisheries Minister Mayhew are among those mentioned as slated for new posts.

Some political observers say that Mr. Bertrand, Mr. Fournier and Mr. Jean were ready to retire from politics at the end of the last session, but were asked to fight another election.

It is said that at the time, Liberal organizers, thinking that the contest at the polls might be close, feared that newcomers might not be able to carry the seats held by the ministers. Now with a majority of more than 120 seats in the 262-seat Commons the Liberals have little to fear in opening up seats for by-elections.

At the last session, the government passed a bill providing for the appointment of six additional judges to the Quebec Superior Court. However, the legislation cannot become effective until an enabling law is proclaimed by Premier Duplessis of Quebec.

Once the proclamation is issued, the way would be open for the appointment of Mr. Jean, Mr. Bertrand and Mr. Fournier to the bench.

Mr. Mayhew, 68, is a comparative newcomer to the cabinet having joined it June 11, 1948. He has been in the Commons since 1937 and reports are that he will be appointed to the senate.

If the appointments are made, Mr. St. Laurent has an overabundance of material from which to choose to fill the vacancies. Among his 190-odd supporters are many of cabinet calibre.

Most observers are predicting that a sure choice for a cabinet post is Edouard Rinfret, 44-year-old Montreal lawyer, and son of Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret of the supreme court of Canada. Mr. Rinfret represents Montreal Outremont-St. Jean in the commons.

Lapointe May Be Chosen

Another likely choice is Hughues Lapointe, 38 son of the late Justice Minister Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, who represents the Quebec Constituency of Lot-member for Montmagny-L'Islet, biniere. He has been parliamentary assistant since 1945.

Jean Lesage, 37-year-old Quebec lawyer and re-elected as is another who frequently has been mentioned as being in line for promotion.

If the fisheries portfolio is to be retained by a member from the west coast, it might go to Thomas Reid, veteran member New Westminister, B. C., and parliamentary assistant to the Health Minister in the last commons, or to James Sinclair, member for the British Columbia riding of Coast-Capilano and parliamentary assistant to the Finance Minister in the last house.

It is believed that some steps will be taken to give Toronto some representation in the cabinet as a result of the Liberal sweep there. David Croll, member for Toronto Spadina and a former Labor Minister in an Ontario Liberal Government, is mentioned as a likely choice.

Stirling Downs Frankford 6-2

Frankford — Frankford Merchants Softball Club lost a tough one in Stirling Thursday night under the lights. For seven innings, Stirling and Frankford battled along on even terms, holding a two-all tie. In the seventh, the Stirling team bunched three hits, and a Frankford error to push across four runs. That was the game. "Willie" Rankin pitched a brilliant game for Frankford, while Rogers worked in the box for Stirling. The final score, 6-2.

TWEED

Many Attend Opening of Fine New Garage

Tweed, July 4 (Special)—After three months of quick and efficient building effort on the part of Ed Barry and his crew, the fine new garage constructed by Mr. C. Edward Way, local General Motors dealer, was officially opened on Thursday night.

The new building gives Victoria street an appearance of smart, big city progress. One of the finest looking buildings of its kind in this part of Hastings, the new show room is built of cinder blocks, plastered inside and out.

Mr. Way's new building, which he designed himself, and which was built by all local labor, is painted white outside and the interior walls are Nile green. It is 110 feet long with a frontage of 67 feet. The showroom window which gives the building much of its effective appearance has 26 feet of glass. The office and show room chrome furniture is finished in dark green leather. The ceiling is fir plywood and the walls, birch giving a smart contrasting effect.

The offices and spacious showroom are bright and well lighted with attractive ceiling fixtures, in the workshops will be a fluorescent type. The outside of the building will be flood-lighted. The modern designed building is set back from the street several feet, and in block letters in dark blue, on the front and top of the building, are Mr. Way's name and the name of the General Motors automobiles and trucks he is sellinf. The large show room window is shaded with Venetian blinds. Mr. Way is loud in his praise of the work done by Ed Bovay in the construction of this fine modern showroom.

Hundreds Visit

Hundreds of people visited the new building in the evening, as the general public was cordially invited to come and inspect the building.

Mr. Norman Thompson and his orchestra opened the evening's entertainment with the National Anthem. A few words of welcome from Mr. Way to his host of friends. He then called on S. A. McCarey, Reeve of Tweed and Warden of the County of Hastings to act as chairman. He congratulated Mr. Way on his new modern building which added a great deal to the appearance of Victoria street. Mr. W. S. Gordon, owner and manager of Tweed Steel Works, offered congratulations on the building.

Congratulations Offered

Included amongst others offering their congratulations were Mr. Jack Rodgers, district manager for General Motors, Toronto; Mr. Jack Trudeau, president of Dealers' Association for Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, Belleville, who said it was a pleasure for him to be present at the opening of this fine building, and extended his congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Way and their family; Mr. Felix LeSage of LeSage's Garage and distributors of McColl Frontenac products, and Mr. Keith Cotton of Cotton's Hardware.

Others taking part in the evening's entertainment and floor show were Norman Thompson and his orchestra, Fred Porter at the piano, Art Coyle, solos; Sheila Trudeau, tap dancing; Elmer Holmes, Western songs; Carl Fisher, Al Jolson songs; ona Champagne and Jeanette Fobert, tap dancing.

Mr. McCarey brought proceedings to a close by extending his compliments to Mr. Way from the village council and the citizens of Tweed.

Refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed for awhile by the young people.

Police Blotter

It may have been hot over the weekend but apparently it was not too warm for a considerable number of local residents to have a belated Dominion Day celebration. Since Saturday no less than nine inebriates were given the opportunity to sober up in the police cell room.

In fact drunks caused members of the police force more work than did other routine occurrences during the weekend. A St. Charles Street woman reported her husband was attempting to smash down the door but by the time police arrived on the scene he had driven away in his car. Police picked him up later for drunk driving.

A CONTINENT CELEBRATES

The holiday period on the North American Continent has been all of the same character. The heat wave continues for one of the longest stretches of time on record. Dominion Day came in the midst of the hot wave and the people had to enjoy it as any other Dominion Day for it was the national holiday and Canadians like to celebrate it by an exodus into the outdoor life in real earnest, as it really marks summer's arrival. The proximity of July 1st to Sunday led many to extend their celebration and in reality make holiday with the American people whose holiday is today and has been linked up with a real weekend celebration.

Neither Canadians nor Americans had the better of one another for weather was warmly indifferent to extending favor to the people of the northern part of North America or the southern part of the continent.

So millions upon millions of the inhabitants of North America took in days of celebrating their national holidays and never were two peoples able to celebrate with more unanimity than the American and the Canadians for they have so much alike, their historical and racial foundations, their political ideals, their sense of freedom and the leadership they give the world and the enterprise they have shown. And it is well that some of the visiting and really a large part of it is spent in one another's countries, at resorts partaking of hospitality which has a cross-border aspect.

It is well that these two peoples side by side mark their national birthdays at the same time for the very fact that they are observing their national days alongside one another makes their celebrations very much of the same character.

It would be a fortunate experience if most of Europe were marking if possible their national observances about the same time. It would have a tendency to cause them to think something along the same lines and see something of unity in the war-torn continent which has encountered innumerable conflicts between the fairly numerous number of races. But Europe has so many races, while in a large measure the peoples of North America, that is Canada and the United States, have also something of the same racial beginnings, language likeness and almost certainly very much the same ideals of freedom and democracy. They are fortunate also for the fact that there is another similarity, the music of "God Save the King" and "My Country 'Tis of Thee" is the same and yet Canada and the United States have other national numbers which are different.

Surely the paths of the two North American peoples run alongside in pleasant places, especially in the first few days of July.

GOETHE AND SCHWEITZER

People of this age can understand that the fact that the human mind is finite and cannot grasp everything of this age places modern thinkers and scientists at a disadvantage as compared with giants of the past who were able to hold in their minds the progress of their age and weld all this knowledge into a unity.

One of the supreme figures in this respect is Leonardo da Vinci, the Italian, whose grasp of the knowledge of his time and whose own discoveries in science made him the one world figure of his day. Goethe, who lived in comparatively modern times, in that troublous period that established and overthrew Napoleon Bonaparte, is known as "the last truly universal man." His range was by this measure the greatest of any modern and possibly of the world, poet, playwright, novelist, historian, statesman, philosopher and scientist, who died in his eighties with the cry on his lips, "more light," the spirit of the man who thinks in a cosmopolitan manner, sees life as a unity and tries to grasp it.

The Christian Science Monitor, speaking of this world aspect of Goethe, whose bicentennial celebration is being held at this time, which has brought together the great convention of scholars at Aspen, Colorado, remarks that this idea of culture remains the self-knowledge, self-enrichment, and self-discipline which Goethe united with the ideal of service. For him striving was all. The writer points to the success of Dr. Albert Schweitzer, who is at Aspen, as a man of universal genius for he is philosopher, theologian, musician, physician and missionary. In him it sees "a combination of wide learning and self devotion, which spans the gap between the ideal world of scholarship and the humblest practical necessities of the African natives he serves. The almost fabulous respect he has earned throughout the world is of a piece with the fame of his haster, Goethe.

JULY THE FOURTH

What do we mean when we say:
"Many happy returns of the day"?
Bless and tenderly hold
You and all whom you love!
May you live to grow old.

Here's the birthday once more
Of the land we adore,
Born in liberty's name
Out of struggle and pain,
And the wish is the same.
Happy birthday again!

Happy birthday! I cry.
May the flag in the sky,
Red and white, starry blue,
Long continue to wave!
Long, my country, may you
Be the home of the brave!

Happ land of the free
Evermore may you be,
Land of justice and truth
And the dreams that men hold,
May each age with its youth
Keep you going when you're old.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

LET US NOT FORGET

On July 4th, 1766, a people, awakening to a sense of national consciousness, proclaimed themselves independent of their mother country and enunciated certain principles of liberty which have been thundering down across the generations ever since.

Today we are still engaged in defending that liberty. There are a few foolish people in this country who believe that, having gained liberty, we can lie back in our satisfaction and thank God for victory. But liberty is not something that can be made secure once and for all. Every generation produces a multitude of men bent on destroying the liberty of their fellows. If we allow ourselves to indulge in the illusion that liberty will remain intact without any effort on our part, then these sinister men come in and ravage those liberties.

Liberty is something which must be continuously guarded It may be we shall have to keep a large military equipment to do this. Or perhaps some more constructive means may be found. But let us be conscious of the fact that even if we succeed in our international endeavors, and see to it that democratic governments are allowed to operate everywhere, still liberty will be in about as much danger as it has always been.

Liberty has to be guarded against the selfish encroachments of those who care for themselves and not at all for their fellow men.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Men who scratch their heads habitually, my barber tells me seldom grow bald.

You never saw bald-headed hoboes scratch their heads for a good reason. But there are many other men who have a nervous—or happy—habit of reaching up and scratching their pates whenever they are thinking, reflecting, or merely yawning and viewing the scenery. There is, we must admit, a head-scratching type which always has a good head of hair.

I suggested to my barber that maybe it was only hair-headed men who scratch their heads. What incentive would a bald-headed man have for scratching that shiny knob.

"You rarely see," responded my barber, "a man completely bald, unless as the result of fever. Nearly all men who are bald on top have fairly good hair on the sides of their heads their ears. They also have good eyebrows, can grow good beards and moustaches. This is due to the fact that the chewing and talking muscles exercises the skin around their ears, thus keeping the hair alive. Men who frown a lot have the bushiest eyebrows. Men who talk a lot have the best mustaches and beards. It is exercise that keeps hair growing. And it is the lack of exercise on the top of the head that causes baldness. In ancient times, when man was primitive, he was also crummy. From childhood on, he was always scratching his head. All you've got to do is watch a monkey for a little while to see what I mean. Ever see a bald-headed monkey?"

I had to confess I had not.

"Sanitation," decreed my barber, "is responsible for baldness. Since it is very unlikely that fleas will become fashionable again, the only cure for baldness is to add head-scratching to the calisthenics children are taught in the public schools. Head-scratching should be be the mark of the gentleman with a thought for his personal appearance."

38 MEET DEATH

Also drowned were Donald Shields, 17, who went under while swimming beside a raft in Wilcox Lake, north of Toronto; Robert Hebden, 17, of the Toronto suburb of Weston, seized by cramps while swimming in Innes Lake near Brampton; Percy Ryall, 46, of Toronto, who lost his life when a canoe was swamped in Lake Simcoe near Barrie; Gerry Kazimierez, 38-year-old Polish immigrant, a swimmer at Wawa, 175 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie.

Still others who fell victim of drowning accidents were: Marcel Sansoucie, 17, of Belle Valley, who slipped from a rock into Lake Timagami; Donald Ellis, 9, met death in a pool in a brickyard pit at Highland Creek, a few miles east of Toronto, and Arthur Kelleher, 60-year-old fishing guide, who fell from a boat into the Trent River near Campbellford.

Killed in the crash of a light aircraft near Wallaceburg in ent County were Ross Clayton (Bill) Shepherd of Windsor, 44-year-old president of Interprovincial Air Services, Ltd., and a flier whose experience dates from the barnstorming '20s, and Albert Jannssents, 31-year-old Wallaceburg district flier. The plane's left wing hooked onto the top of a cluster of trees and the machine plunged to earth and burst into flames.

Two Killed in Smash Ups

Motorcycle smash-ups killed two men. Percy Bard of R.R. 2, Guelph, was thrown to the pavement two miles north of Fergus when his machine went out of control. An accident in motorcycle races at Port Hope proved fatal to Duart Noardhof, 19, of Stratford.

A husband and wife died in an automobile collision near West Hill, on Toronto's eastern outskirts. Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Lake of Toronto had just set out Saturday for a holiday weekend trip to the Trent Valley when their car went out of control and crashed headon into a car driven by John Haleck of Oshawa. Lake, 61, was tossed out of the car by the impact, but his wife, 60 was pinned in the wreckage.

Killed In Cave-in

Mrs. Marion Yeman, 25, of Hamilton, died early Sunday in a collison between an automobile and parked truck near Hamilton. Fay Dupuis, 2 1-2, was killed by an ice truck in Windsor. James F. Adams, of Toronto, suffered fatal injuries in a collison near Kirkfield in the Lindsay area.

First reported Saturday was a Thursday well cave-in which killed Allan Rahn, 26, of Pembroke, at Chalk River, 12 miles from Petawawa. Rescuers who went to aid Rahn when he was trapped in the well were blamed for causing the cave-in which suffocated him.

A man identified as Felicien Sinnaeve, 49, of R.R. 2, Tilbury, was decapitated by a train near Jeanette's Station, 14 miles west of Chatham.

Accidents on farms claimed three other lives. Near Lindsay, James Marshall, 9, lost his balance and fell from a haymow. Another haying time mishap killed George Hossfield, 48, pinned to a beam by a tractor while unloading hay near Walkerton. A 20-foot fall from a cherry tree to a hard-surfaced driveway was fatal to Lorne Jolliffe, 30, of Mount Elgin.

Listed as fatality victims in a Canadian Press compilation Saturday were: Rock Rathier of Sudbury, Marcel Brillon and Clarence Jenkinson of New Liskeard, and Lorenzo Malette and Leslie McNeilly of Hull, Que., drowned; Gordon Murray, Stratford and Scott Chalk, of Cobourg, killed in traffic mishaps; Donald Bradley, St. Mary's, killed by a pitched baseball; Irving Feder, 45, who collapsed from excitement at a Toronto ball game; and Robert Hendry, 21, electrocuted at Hamilton.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,
The Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ontario.
Sir:

Many persons have been suggesting reasons for the unexpected result in the election for members of the House of Commons on June 27th. There are two reasons based on well-known facts.

1. Communism.
2. Organization and preparation.

As to communism, it is generally known that the Church of Rome has been most outspoken and antagonistic towards communism, and the Premier is a member of that church.

As to reason 2, it may be mentioned that there have been twelve persons occupying the position of premier in Canada in the 82 years since Confederation. Four of these premiers were Liberals, but as they have held office during most of the 82 years, these four individuals have had a much better opportunity to organize and perfect their party. Though there were double that number of Conservative premiers came into office, as each of the eight, assumed the leadership of his party, he naturally had to start organizational work, and with the exception of Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir Robert Borden, the Conservative Premiers held office for very short periods, affording little opportunity for organization.

QUEBEC POLICE

A squad of havily-armed police were rushed here from Montreal following first reports of the robbery and all roads leading to Montreal were blocked.

Verdon, his 27-year-old brother, Armand and Raymond D'Ambroise, 33, were taken to Montreal today on charges of armed robbery.

Chief Beauregard quoted Roland Verdon as telling a police constable in a telephone conversation that "I just killed someone while driving a car on the road. I'm ready to give myself up if you'll come and get me."

A detachment of police were rushed to an isolated farmhouse near Montee St. Louis, about four miles west of here, where Verdon was waiting for them.

The other two men were captured after they were intercepted in a wild scuffle on railroad tracks a short distance from the farmhouse where Roland Verdon was arrested.

Police at Montreal said the trio will be taken to Joliette, Que., Wednesday for arraignment on the armed robbery charge.

More than $700 was found in possession of the men when they were searched by police.

Bank Manager M. Picard told police that the daring daylight robbery took place at his bank when two men, each armed with a gun, stepped out of a bar bearing United States licence plates.

Later police discovered the guns were toy pistols.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

YOUR NEWSPAPER

Wendell Phillips once said that the power of the press, in influence, led all other institutions. This can hardly be disputed. Scarcely had the American Colonies become independent than the first newspaper was established. Benjamin Franklin recognized this fact and established one of the very first.

I was recently a guest at the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the London, Ontario, Free Press, one of the finest of all the Canadian newspapers. A few years ago I was present in the same capacity, at the one hundredth celebration of the Detroit Free Press; and there are many other newspapers on this continent that have reached this fine age of usefulness, and even beyond. On a wall of my office hangs the first edition of the New York Sun, established in 1833—and a great newspaper to this day.

In no countries in the world are more fine examples of public servants than the newspapers that serve the people of the United States and Canada. More than ever the publications serve the public good and are highly educational. Not only do they give the news from all over the world, but they entertain and instruct, and are one of the greatest of agencies in bettering the lot of every reader.

What could replace that newspapers of yours? All of them have the same faults that we who read them have. None are perfect, but nearly all are good servants If they were not they would not exist for long. And these newspapers today are freer than at any time in history, regardless of what is said to the contary.

People once thought that the radio would harm the newspaper but it hasn't. Both have been helpful to each other. Neither will television harm your newspaper. It will help it. You can sit silently in your home and read your newspaper—and think and learn. And you are in contact with the best, brains in the world. Wherever I go my favorite newspaper follows!

But your newspaper is neither worse nor better than you help to make it. You support it. And it craves that support. In a sense you are part owner every time you buy it. Support it and it will support you. It stands for freedom in the world.

PHYSICIANS TAKE A NARROW VIEW OF RICKETS

To the layman rickets means vaguely a disease or a fault of development which occurs in infancy. Unless or until it occurs in his own family, that is all the laymen knows or cares about it. It is related to malnutrition, isn't it? Malnutrition, thinks the layman, smugly, implies lack of enough to eat, privation, so he and his are not concerned.

Many physicians still take a narrow view of rickets, just as physicians do of some other nutritional deficiency scurvy and beri beri. There is still a strong tendency to question a diagnosis of rickets, scurvy or beri beri if one or more of the classical signs of the full-fledged disease be lacking. This attitude is a holdover from early times when these nutritional deficiencies were hardly recognized as of nutritional origin.

Today there is no disputing the fact that there is no sharp or clear dividing line between perfect health and fully developed pellagra, scurvy, rickets or beri beri. The doctor who withholds diagnosis and treatment until the patient presents all of the classical signs described in the textbooks may satisfy a quaint concept of "scientific" medicine but scarcely renders good medical service.

The essential cause of rickets is calcium-phosphorus-D deficiency—vitamin D being necessary for the normal assimilation and utilization of calcium and phosphorus. As the ordinary diet of most Americans, infants, children or adults, supplies at least some calcium and phosphorus, even though there is usually insufficient calcium in refined food, it is the vitamin D deficiency of the everyday diet which is chiefly responsible for rickets. Few foods in the ordinary diet contain enough vitamin D to supply even the minimum daily requirement—that is, enough to prevent actual manifestations of rickets. These foods are whole milk, cream, butter, egg yolk, salmon fresh or canned, sardines, mackerel, kippers, herring.

Contrary to the prevailing belief, even among physicians, rickets as we understand it today is by no means confined to infants. Older children suffer from rickets, especially in the early 'teens, and so do adults. In adults it is usually called "osteomalacia" (softening of bones) but it is identical with rickets in infants or young children, save thta adult rickets occurs after skeletal growth is completed. Then a still different picture is produced by rickets in mature adults or elderly persons — in them it is called "osteoporosis" (absorption, atrophy or wasting of bones).

For some peculiar reason, perhaps reluctance to relinquish traditional ideas or perhaps just professional myopia, many physicians who prescribe or advise daily rations of vitamin D for all infants throughout the first year, to prevent rickets, neglect to advise the same phophylaxis for growing children or in some instances arbitrarily declare that it isn't necessary.

The diet of the growing child is as likely to be inadequate in its calcium-phosphorus-vitamin D content as is the diet of the young infant, and the growing child's need for supplementary vitamin D is therefore as great as the need of the young infant.

In the No. 17 Little Lesson, V-i-t-e Spells Youth (for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope) I deal with some of the manifestations of rickets in growing children.

THIS ONE'S AN "IDEAL" HOUSE

Courtesy Westinghouse Elec. Corp.

THIS SIX-ROOM HOUSE, THE THIRD in a series of four recently constructed in Hartford, Conn., to demonstrate different degrees of "electrical living" typifies the "ideal" degree of efficiency. It has 123 electric outlets.

By MARION CLYDE McCARROLL

EVERYBODY today wants to live the electrical way.

But few can have everything they want in that line right away.

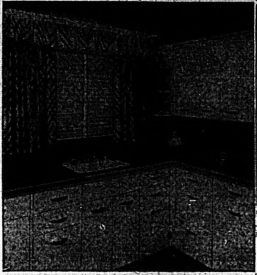
So, just for the reason that the majority of families must acquire what they want piece by piece, four different homes were built recently in the Hartford, Connecticut area, that represented four different degrees of "electrical living"—thrift, budget, ideal and deluxe.

The thrift and budget homes have already been shown and described here. Pictured today is the third of the quartet—the "ideal" home.

As completed in the Hartford project, this house was built, and equipped with certain electrical equipment, at a cost of $23,500, exclusive of the 73x150 foot lot. The first floor area, comprising 1,300 square feet, included living room, dining room, kitchen, laundry, two bedrooms and bathroom. An unfinished second floor provided space for two additional bedrooms and another bath. There was a full basement, and a two-car garage.

"Built-in" electrical equipment included range, refrigerator and freezer combination, garbage disposer for the sink, kitchen ventilating fan, clothes washer, clothes dryer, ironer, water heater, bathroom heater and sterilamps in the hot air heating system to destroy bacteria in the air.

IN THE LIVING ROOM, A SKILLFUL combination of general, local and decorative lighting is both effective and efficient, with concealed lighting which serves to accentuate the architectural beauty of the bay window.



HERE LIGHT FROM A central ceiling fixture is supplemented by concealed fluorescent lighting placed over the sink and under the wall cabinets.

Hands Need Fre

By HELEN FOLLETT

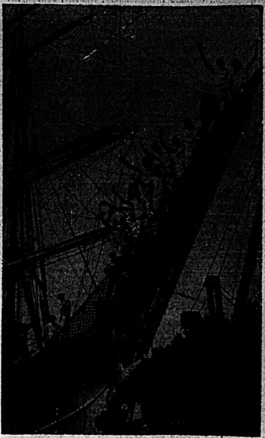
DO you know that, when you are going to a party, it is a grand idea to smooth some hand cream over the backs of your hands, up over the wrists and lower arms? The skin surface will look smooth, fine and white. The conscientious manicurist includes a bit of a hand treatment, and that is the medium she uses.

Gardening and outdoor play have a deplorable effect upon feminine mitts, especially as most women have a notion that hands require coddling only in the winter. A sad mistake. What about those discolorations left by the sun during summer? They have a way of staying by one. Moth patches, for instance. Like freckles, they are products of the warm season, grow fainter as the summer wanes. It is just as well to get after them with a bleaching cream or lotion.

Softens Skin

No matter what you are using, do not be stingy either with the cosmetic or with the massage. Friction helps remove discolorations because it softens and loosens dead, yellowed skin scales.

Vacationists, busy having fun, often skip the weekly manicure, so



U.S. CADETS, GERMAN SHIP, U.K. DOCK—The United States Coast Guard Academy training vessel Eagle arrived at Shadwell Basin, London, in company with the cutter Campbell. Aboard the two ships are 360 cadets on a training cruise before becoming coast guard officers, and the vessels will lie in the basin for five days. A three-masted barque with steel hull and diesel auxiliary, the Eagle, formerly known as the Horst Wessel, was built in Germany as a sailing training vessel for the German navy, and was commissioned in 1936. She was taken over by the United States three years ago. Here cadets of the Eagle wave a greeting from the ship's bowsprit after their arrival in Shadwell Basin.—Central Press Canadian.

PERHAPS THEY COULD BE PERSUADED—Here is what might be called, by many, very good news. At last there seems to be a chance that we can give the continent, with all its headaches, probes and problems back to the Indians. They seem to want it back. Heads of the Cheyenne-Arapaho tribes of Oklahoma appeared before a U.S. house public lands committee to urge that the government return the Fort Reno military reservation, taken from them on July 17, 1883, and never given back. Elizabeth Angus, committee clerk, is making note of the complaint here. Quick, somebody, throw in the rest of the continent before they change their minds!—Central Press Canadian.

Army and Navy Veterans Welcome Ontario Command

Many important discussions relative to the welfare of the returned veterans took place at a meeting of the Ontario Provincial Command, Army, Navy Air Force Veterans In Canada, held in the Hotel Quinte recently.

EXPERT'S CLINIC DOES WONDERS FOR THE HARD-OF-HEARING

H. ELLIS

Barrie, June 16—Having seen the Free Hearing Clinics advertised .. we decided to interview the hearing specialist conducting these tests.

Mr. H. Ellis' reply to our opening remark, "How's business?" .. was quite unexpected. In fact, he revealed our ignorance of the remarkable service Acousticon renders without charge or obligation to the hard-of-hearing.

"Like many others, I'm afraid you have the wrong impression of us. We are not salesmen .. and, don't pretend to be. We are hearing specialists, primarily interested in doing everything humanly possible to help those with a hearing loss regain a rich, active, normal life.

"The modern Acousticon makes this possible, yes, .. but, it's important that people realize the need of a specialist to ensure the correct fitting. That's the reason for our clinics .. we want to see these people who now wear a hearing aid, regardless of make .. as much as we do those who need one.

"You see, there are many different causes of deafness .. and each requires a different hearing aid fitting. Because of an efficient "speech-hearing" analysis, I can ensure your obtaining the one fitting that will return your hearing as close as possible to normal. Our main objective is to have you benefit from our experience, knowledge, and the sympathetic understanding we give each individual hearing problem.

"Examine for yourself these new Constellations .. notice that there are 36 different models. Acousticon engineers and scientists spent seven years and over a half-million dollars to achieve "Balanced Hearing" .. a factor which is so vital to your health and happiness.

"Then too, there's our new "Invisible Hearing" which allows you to hear the way people with no impairment do .. in a way that's so completely unnoticeable that even your closest friend can't spot it."

We certainly urge you to spend a few minutes with Mr. Ellis and our hat's off to Acousticon who provide this nation-wide service to help the hard-of-hearing come out of their world of silence.

Sunday School Picnic

The Frankford United Church Sunday School held a picnic supper in the Tourist Park in Frankford on Wednesday evening. Following a very enjoyable repast, the teachers and executive of the Sunday School held their quarterly meeting. Many items of interest were discussed. Topmost on the list was the annual Sunday School Picnic. It was decided that it would be held at Crystal Beach, on Moira Lake. The date is still under discussion, but it will be a Wednesday in July if possible.

It was decided that an effort would be made to publish a Sunday School Bulletin in which announcements of future events would be made, and detailed reports of past events could be made.

It was decided to hold the Sunday School promotions in September rather than at the first of the year. The reason for this was to have Sunday School promotions coincide with school promotions. It is also hoped to have a number of members of the Sunday School attend a leadership course at Albert College August 15-24, in preparation for teachers' offices in the Sunday School.

The subject of visual religious education through the use of the movie projector was discussed, meeting and picnic was very successful, and it is felt that a greal deal of progress was made in furthering the work of the Sunday School.

Miss Mary Styles and Mrs. George Wannamaker are enjoying a holiday trip along the St. Lawrence River.

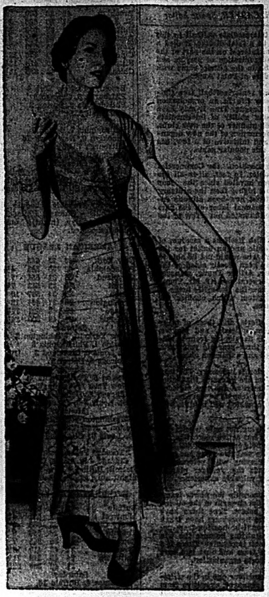
Beige Lace and Net



By PRUNELLA WOOD

Circular bands of pale beige lace, re-embroidered to give it surface interest, are set on matching bands of net to make this soft, cool summer dinner dress. The neckline is scooped out on a curve which follows the net insert of the bodice; buttons are of self fabric.

A narrow belt of contrasting darkness gives definite roundness to the waistline, and sets a harmony which suggests the color for other accessories.

Collars And Skirts Style Highlights in British Show

London, (CP)—Britain's fashion fortnight produced styles critics called both good and bad.

Worst mistake to which they pointed during the two-week series of clothing exhibitions was shown in some of heavier travel coats, bulky in line, cluttered with unnecessary buttons, trailing scarves and baggy cuffs and thick, belted waistlines were not complimentary to the slimest figure.

Off setting these were the rippling, swing-back swaggers of lighter weight, with individuality in the design of their wide cuffed sleeves, shawl collars or yoke tops.

Duveteens, gabardines, velours, tartans and horse-blanket checks contributed to the many fitted full-back or wrap-over coats. Fashion interest settles on the collar, which can be shawl, cape, tiered, notched, split at back, shooting to the ears in a face-framing point, or folding in many cavalier styles.

Tartans were favored for contrast—big artists' bows to highwayman collars, fitted waistcoats to swing swaggers and capes, linings for coats and capes, facing for revers and cuffs.

Suits had a soft look to the shoulders, longer jackets, well-defined waists and strong pocket emphasis. Skirts were pencil slim thin with slide or back slits, sometimes decorated with detachable peplum or floating panel pleating.

Button Interest

Many suits had button interest—back or front buttoning to the skirt repeated in split peplum, revers, cuffs or pockets.

Dresses for day wear were mostly slope-shouldered and many were bare-necked. Skirts were often drawn to the side or back and high, curving, stiffened waistbelts were popular.

Fashion favorite was the double-purpose dress — severely plain day styles with dramatically wide overskirts which button on; tiny demure boleros that reveal daring, off-the-shoulder cocktail tops.

The dipping hemline is back, especially in afternoon wear, with many varied shawl necklines giving the right amount of nudity.

Cocktail and afternoon dresses have become a sort of uniform—faille, grosgrain, tie silk and moire with floating panels, petal skirts, shawl collars or boned strapless tops. Big applause in this line went to a simple style in navy fine wool trimmed with white silk.

Evening gowns were romantic-looking and rich in detail. The water-lily corsage returns—folded-back petals cupping each breast. An innovation was the spiral skirt resulting from fan pleating winding softly round the body from waist to hem.

More applause went to the typically English coat-frock. A model in navy and dusty pink checks had apron overskirt and navy shawl collar while a deceptively simple style in fine grey worsted had a tulip skirt and coachman's collar.

Paris spring colors were used in profusion—greys, navy blue, mimosa greens and yellows and all shades of lilac pinks and mauves. Two new colors were mushroom pink and parchment.

St. Mark's Church Holds Annual Garden Party

Bonarlaw—With ideal weather prevailing the annual garden party of St. Mark's Church was held on the church lawn Wednesday evening of last week with a good attendance.

The grounds and booths were prettily decorated with colored streamers, union jacks and strings of electric lights making a gala appearance.

The nine-piece Havelock Kilties band entertained throughout the evening with splendid music

The refreshment booth, ice-cream, soft drinks, candy gum, cigarettes did a good business, and there was also a hot-dog stand, home-made candy, free lunch and games.

Prior to the garden party, a ball game was played on the nearby diamond. Rylestone vs. Springbrook. The score at the end of the 9th innings was tied 11-11, but a tenth inning gave Rylestone a winning run.

British Stylists Boost New Gloves In Wide Variety

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) —Accessories count in this year's British fashion trends.

Hand-made novelty gloves are one front-liner. In suedes, leathers and snakeskin, they are designed specially to go with this year's styles and colors.

Wrist-length styles with frilled or turned-back cuffs are popular with color teams like navy and white, black and pastel pink, grey and green, brown and fawn. Smoothly-fitted gauntlets with button-backs are reminiscent of cavalier styles.

An attractive, practical idea is a plain navy leather glove with three-inch white pique gauntlet which can be detached for washing.

Hard-wearing snakeskin-backed country gloves with soft leather palms are made in varying shades of brown and burgundy, with snakeskin handbags to match.

An unusual style in navy has a white Vshaped gusset down the back and white gussets on the inside of each finger.

Matching accessories in rayon taffeta are popular. Examples? A taffeta cloche in navy and white check has matching gloves with wide cuffs and navy suede palm and Dolly bag in navy suede with top frill and handles of taffeta. Taffeta gloves have bag and umbrella to match. Tartan and leather shoes have matching scarf and belt.

Rayon Popular

Rayon accessories are notable this year. A black and gold rayon court shoe is toeless with gold platform and big double pompoms. A blue rayon hat with under-felting is set off by a white embroidery edge and matching embroidery gloves.

For beach wear the weavers are busy. A fisherman's creel provided with a space for a gay head scarf was combined with bandbox - sized wickerwork shoulder-bag, large enough for all seaside necessities. A wickerwork frame with a long stocking-like attachment in gaily colored cotton could be used for hat or bag in old smuggling style.

Long gloves are gay as can be. White mesh is trimmed with beads, buttons and bows. One pair has two bands of broderie anglaise, threaded with black velvet ribbon, high up on the arm.

A lovely evening glove in white satin sports a top embroidered with pearl handbag. Plain matching court shoes have embroidered toes and the wrist handbag is embroidered completely.

A long evening glove in black suede has a cuff row of pearl buttons giving a detachable glove, designed for dinner engagements to save the necessity for removing the entire glove.

Mesh and silk jersey gloves are also popular for evening and garden party wear in almond, lime, absinthe green daffodil yellow, egg-shell and caramel.

Twin Handbag

By ALICE ALDEN

The novelty handbag is both interesting and different. The attractive double handbag depicted here was designed by Dofan. It is of calfskin in various color combinations, a nice idea for the wardrobe that is done on a budget. This model is in navy and in white calf, and each bag is topped by gold-plated ball fasteners. Even the handle shares in the duo color schemes.

Dadson Too Good for Shoemen Loop - Leading Peterborough Marines Win a 7 - 1 Victory

The good left arm of southpaw Lefty Dadson, star portside flinger of the Peterborough Marines was too good for the Batawa Shoemen bludgeons at the Exhibition Grounds on Saturday night, and the youngster fashioned a neat 7-1 victory for his team to strengthen their hold on the top rung of the COBL ladder.

The slim youngster breezed through to an easy win while his mates, exploding in a hitting orgy that lasted practically the entire game were racking up sixteen solid clouts including a homer, triple and doubles. Dadson was never in trouble and the only Batawa run came in the fourth when Keith MacDonald who had doubled, raced across the plate when Johnny Aquino lashed out a clean single. Dadson struck out ten and issued no bases on balls.

Meanwhile the Peterborough war clubs were making merry at the expense of Gordy Muffitt, starting Batawa hurler. They pounded out thirteen hits for five runs off his delivery, four of them clustered in the seventh that ended Muffitt's stint. Don Semark relieved him and although he struck the side out in the ninth he was nicked for three hits to give the Petes their remaining 2 runs. Muffitt whiffed six and walked one while Semark had 5 strikeouts and issued two free tickets.

Petes Start Early

The Petes started early to get their runs. Two hits by Menzies and Whitehill plus Mouse Bush's error gave them a pair to start with. Three more clouts got them a single in the third and the four in the seventh tucked the game away for Dadson and company.

Lowery started off that fateful inning with a towering home run that sailed over Spencer's head in deep right field. Estick flied out and Edwardson came up with his second hit of the game, Menzies swung at the ozone and Stewart lashed out his fourth clout of the pastime. "Skipper" Murphy, playing shortstop drove out a single to end the agony and Muffitt's sojourn on the mound.

The Petes came back strongly again in the top of the ninth, scoring two runs off solid hits by Murphy, Edwardson and Stewart and a base on balls.

Stewart Heads Petes

Stewart led the Peterborough attack with four singles for five with Lowery hitting a home-run, a double and single. Edwardson got himself a trio of clouts as did Gunner Whitehill. Murphy added two to the cause and Menzies contributed a single.

"Mouse" Bush led the Batawa bludgeon - wielders with a triple and a single. Keith MacDonald, who played a sensational game at second base got a double and a single with Beckstead, Aquino and Muffitt adding singles.

Johnny Aquino was forced to retire from the game in the sixth when he injured a shoulder going after a foul fly. Spencer took over the receiving duties with Peter Jones going to first base and Watson to the outfield.

Rogovin Earns Another Chance With Detroit

(By The Associated Press)

Saul Rogovin, Brooklyn-born righthander of Buffalo Bisons, is earning another crack at a mound berth with Detroit Tigers.

Since returning to the Bisons from Detroit the 205-pound pitcher has been a vital factor in the Bisons drive to their current post atop the International League standings.

Rogovin turned in his seventh victory Sunday, pitching the Bisons to 3-2 triumph over the runnerup Montreal Royals in the second half of a twin bill at Buffalo. The Bisons dropped the opener, 10-7. Rogovin checked the Royals on four hits.

The Bisons staged a five-run eight-inning uprising to tie the opener at 7-7 but the Royals bounced back in the ninth with a three-run attack. The triumph was King's 11th. against one defeat.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Three years ago organized intermediate softball in this city contracted what proved to be a fatal disease. It died a slow lingering death from lack of interest on the part of the faithful and mainly through disorganization of players and managements. Its complete demise in the district came with the passing of the late Frank Sedore of Point Anne.

But seeds from the collapsing senior softball tree fluttered over the city and took new life in an organization named the Commercial Softball League. True it may have been a far cry from the diamond ability of intermediate veterans to the more or less crude manner of the new clubs, but as it eventually proved, the formation of the new organization, thanks to the foresight and initiative of a few, has injected a new spark of life into this popular game.

Like every new sports organization, the Commercial Softball League has had its troubles. In fact, all-in-all the barriers most of which have been hurdled since the loop came into being, were tougher and higher than the ordinary run-of-mine headaches that confront new-born athletic endeavors. Hard work, a lot of it manual labor on the part of those interested in the league eliminated not a few of the road-blocks to success.

Efforts of the league to establish itself as a medium of entertainment for the softball public and an outlet for the activities of young and old players who would not be able to engage in their favorite sport, have been greatly aided by the generosity and co-operation of Mr. Arthur Young, manager of the Stewart Warner Alemite Corporation here. Mr. Young donated the fine grounds that is now the Belleville home of softball, also the floodlighting system which enables the teams to play post-twilight fixtures.

Due mainly to Mr. Young's efforts, and those of other business concerns, team managers, officials, and players, the Commercial Softball League is developing from a toddling infancy to a husky growing three-year-old youngster, with plenty of years of betterment and expansion ahead.

It is doubtful though if expansion is necessary. The loop now comprises eleven teams and we are informed that other squads were reluctantly denied admission due to a crowded entry list. The ultimate aim of the loop is to develop six or eight top-flight teams, the pick of which will hold its best in its classification in the province.

Meanwhile the league is supplying not only wholesome athletic entertainment for the fans but active recreation for players young and old numbering between 150 and 200. Development of younger players in the past two years has been somewhat out of the ordinary. Playing with veterans of former intermediate softball squads the younger players are benefitting greatly and gaining valuable experience.

Showing a fine spirit of sportsmanship the newer teams in the league, while not possessing the strength of the others, are battling gamely in scheduled games. True there have been some lop-sided scores, but the newcomers have taken their defeats with a smile and "you'll-be-hearing-from-us-later" spirit. There is no talk of quitting because the win column in the score books do not look impressive. There is a fine league spirit permeating each team and that is a sure stepping stone to success in any sports organization.

The Commercial League is an amateur one in the strictest sense of the word. Every play, manager, executive from the president down to the water boy, are doing their best and giving their all, for the sport and success of the loop alone. The source of revenue is not through a box office, but through the generosity of the fans who can show their appreciation by tossing some silver in the hat when it is passed to them. Unfortunately, on some occasions the "take" has not been very large. Fans should remember that they see two softball games on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights and surely one of these twin-bills is worth 25 cents of any man's money.

But, you'll find 'em in any ball park. There are those who can well afford to drop a quarter or half in the hat, but either turn their heads or satisfy their conscience with a nickle. On the other hand there are the loyal fans who realize the situation and give generously. So remember, youse guys and gals who follow the fates of your favorite softball team, to loosen up the strings of the old pocket-book and help give the boys a much-needed financial boost. We assure you, it will be greatly appreciated.

The league, however, is gradually forging ahead, and is now a firmly established sports organization in the city, one that is doing a grand job for players and spectators alike and which should be encouraged to the utmost by all. The hard-working executive of President Harold Bawden, Secretary Don Lee, Convener Bill Dennis, Treasurer Jack Howe and their associates have done and are doing a grand job. More power to their elbows.

Peterborough's youthful "Lefty" Dadson hung the Indian sign on the Batawa bludgeons on Saturday night, turning in a neat and nifty bit of flinging. The youngster fashioned a seven-hit mound chore that included ten whiffouts with nary a walk. His team played flawlessly behind him, not letting him down as far as hits and runs were concerned. He had the Shoemen at his mercy practically all evening and breezed through to a well-earned victory.

In this corner's opinion, the star of the game from any point of view was Keith MacDonald at second for the Shoemen. MacDonald came up with sensational plays and fielded his position brilliantly without committing a single bobble. Adding lustre to his game was two clouts in the lost cause.

Peterborough arrived here with only nine men, sufficient, 'tis true, to field a team, and as events turned out, nine men were plenty. However, Manager Murphy had some misgivings at the start, but as the game got under way with Dadson out there as cool as an ice cube and hurling like a Newhouser, the clouds of misgiving gradually disappeared, and smiles of satisfaction were noted on the managerial mug.

Tonight at Exhibition Park, Northern Electric play hosts to the Point Anne team, and that should be well worth the price of admission. The Ox Pointers fresh from their more or less sensational 6-3 victory over the league-leading Napanee Merchants Friday night, are riding high and will be out to increase their win-column figures at the expense of the planters. Electric, however, are in no mood to be trifled with, and the result should be a slam-bang baseball affair.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Jersey City Giants remained six game. behind the Bisons by splitting a pair of bargin bills.

Toronto split with the Rochester Red Wings, winning the first game 6-5 but losing the finale 3-0

Jersey City divided with Newark Bears, grabbing the first game 6-5 but losing the second 3-1.

The Leafs staged a five-run seventh-inning rally to win the opener from Rochester and snapped the Red Wings eight-game winning stream. George Copeland blanked the Leafs on two singles in the nightcap in besting Nick Strincevich.

Jersey City overcame a 6-0 deficit to beat the Bears in the first game. The Giants won out in the eighth with a five-run blast that included a pair of two run homers by Dick Culler and Neal Watlington. Home runs by Lew Riggs and Ed Ehlers provided the Bears with their margin of victory in the finale. Joe Valenzuela limited the Giants to four hits to record his second victory in nine decisions.

Four-baggers also were the deciding factors in Baltimore Orioles' 9-5 victory over Syracuse Chiefs in a single game at Syracuse.

Glenn McQuillen socked his 14th. homer with one on in the eighth inning and Bob Repass his fifth with a mate on in the ninth to give Al Widmar his 11th triumph.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, July 4 — (CP) — Once a crackerjack track performer herself, Myrtle (Montreal Star) Cook believes Canadian girls aspiring to berths on the Dominion's team for the British Empire Games will have to do a lot of homework to reach standards set by the committee.

She admits the standards are tough — they're identical to those for last summer's Olympics. But she feels that is as it should be for competition at the games will be keen, judging from the performance of girls from the other Empire countries last summer.

Myrtle rates Pat Jones of Vancouver as Canada's best runner at the moment.

She says the 220 is the toughest and most important race. The committee wants it done in 26 seconds and Myrtle recalls that was her own time for the distance once at Hamilton — but she left the track horizontal.

Empire games trials are scheduled for Toronto July 15-16.

Myrtle thinks Pat Jones and Toronto's Viola Myers both finalists in last summer's Olympics, should be able to reach the 11.2 asked for the century.

Elaine Silburn of Montreal and Pat Jones are Myrtle's choices for reaching the 17 feet six inches required for the broad jump. She is pretty certain the pair will represent Canada in other events, too, because in Miss Cook's books both are versatile track stars.

The Canadian girls will stand their best chances in the relays, Myrtle believes and she hopes the committee selects the team carefully.

Showing Weakness

Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll's version of what's wrong with International League baseball this season:

"The most glaring weakness . . . is the catching department. There is only one standout catcher in the loop — Hag Gagner, of the Toronto Leafs.

"Everybody seems to run now-o'-nights. You know the moment they get on base, but nobody seems to be able to do anything about it. Sometimes the pitchers are to blame for not pinning the runners to the bags, but mostly it's the catchers' fault. It's a long time since there have been so many scatter arms behind the plate."

FOREMAN'S FOOT CRUSHED

Toronto, July 2 (CP) — Harry Fish, 56, foreman at the Canadian National Railways yards here, suffered a crushed foot Friday night when he slipped under a locomotive tender. Hospital officials say the foot likely will have to be amputated.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP

is a lot of little things

IT'S HEALTHY—OUT IN THE SUN

With good weather ahead and vacation time here, it's going to feel nice to lie on the beach and soak up the sun. Some people are bound to overdo it—as they do every year. Make sure you're not one of them. Start off with a few minutes daily and gradually increase the dose. Sudden exposure for long periods can be painful—sometimes dangerous. It's in your interest to enjoy your vacation. It's "Good Citizenship" to keep healthy!

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

Athletics' Fans Boosting Joost For Valuable Player Award Kellner For Rookie of Year

By Joe Reichler
(Associated Press Sports Writer

Philadelphia fans today were boosting Eddie Joost for the most valuable player award and Alex Kellner for rookie -of- the -year honors.

Joost, the 33-year-old shortstop, and Kellner, the 24-year-old hurler, have done more than any Philadelphia player to keep the Athletics within striking distance of the American League—leading New York Yankees.

Joost and Kellner combined Sunday to lead the A's to an 8-3 victory over Boston and a sweep of the three-game series with the faltering Red Sox. The victory coupled with Washingon's 2-1 triumph over New York, cut the Yankee's margin over the A's to 4½ games.

The bespeckled infielder, enjoying his greatest of 11 seasons in the majors, slammed his 18th home run of the year off loser Joe Dobson. The blow, with two on in the sixth inning, broke a 2-2 tie.

Kellner, who only last year pitched for Savannah of the class-A Sally League, twirled a six-hitter for his 12th victory. He now has won six in a row.

The defeat was Boston's sixth in a row and Dobson's eighth against five victories. Kellner has lost only three. The fifth-place Red Sox trail the fourth-place Detroit Tigers by 2½ games and are 10 games off the pace.

Senators Edge Yankees

The Reynolds-Page combination received one of its rare setbacks as Washington Senators edged out the Yankees 2-1. In 11 innings. With Page on the mound, a single by Sam Mele and two safe bunts loaded the bases with nobody out in the last of the 11th. Clyde Vollmer then singled over Johnny Lindell's head in a drawn-in out-field, to score Mele with the winning run.

Reynolds started the game but failed to finish for the 12th time in 13 starts. In the fifth Page took over and his mates tied the score in the ninth on singles by Yogi Berra, Jack Phillips and Billy Johnston.

Joe Hanyes, who replaced Lloyd Hittle in the ninth, was credited with the victory.

The Indians soared past Detroit into third place by a sweeping doubleheader from St. Louis by identical 4-3 scores, while Chicago White Sox downed the Tigers 8-4. A bases-loaded single by catcher Jim Hegan in the 10th inning won the second game for the Indians. Les Moss' three-run homer accounted for all the Brown's runs.

Paige Big Help

Satchell Paige saved the first game, halting a ninth-inning rally and received credit for the second, pitching one hitless inning of relief.

Veteran shortstop Luke Appling got four hits in four times at bat, and drove in three runs to lead the White Sox to an 8-4 victory over the Tigers. Marino Pieretti went the distance for his third win with Ted Gray with loser.

St. Louis Cardinals once again climbed to within one game of first place in the National League, knocking off Cincinnati Reds 8-1 while the front-running Brooklyn Dodgers were absorbing a merciless 16-0 drubbing from New York Giants.

Philadelphia Phillies took undisputed possession of third place, 3½ games off the pace, shutting out Boston Braves 7-0. Ralph Kiner's 21st home run sparkled Pittsburg Pirates to a 7-3 triumph over the last-place Chicago Cubs.

Batterymates Jerry Staley and Joe Garagiola teamed up to give the Cards their victory over the Reds. Staley spaced eighth hits for his sixth win, and catcher Garagiola cracked a home run and scored three runs. Herm Wehmeier was the loser.

A crowd of 36,014 saw the Giants belabor four Brooklyn pitchers for 20 hits including a grand-slam homer by pitcher Monte Kennedy who waltzed to his sixth victory with an eight-hitter. Ralph Branca dropped his second loss in 13 decisions.

Young Robin Roberts spun the Philly shutout over Boston, his third of the season, as well as his ninth victory. Roberts gave up five hits and none of the Braves got beyond second base. It was the ninth loss for Johnny Sain who has won only five this year.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

Golf clubs are made to swing. The player who "lifts" his club back, around and up, is a high handicap golfer. The good player is the one who swings his club rather slowly, backand up. It makes all the difference in the world whether you swing the club or lift it. By swinging his club, the player "winds up" all the muscular forces that contribute to the downswing. The player who merely lifts his club does not get this muscular wind-up, this coiled spring type of body action indispensable to a good golf swing. The player who lifts his club or rushes his backswing gets his club into the position for the downswing before his hip and shoulder pivot and weight-shift to the right leg have been completed. As a result, he starts swinging down before his body "windup" is complete. That means there is no co-ordination, little control and lack of power. because two forces that should contribute to the swing are opposing each other.

Louise Brough Captures Two Wimbledon Titles

London, July 4. (AP)—Blonde Louise Brough retained two Wimbledon tennis titles Saturday and barely missed another in one of the greatest marathon performances by a woman in the history of big-time tennis.

In five hours and 20 minutes on the sunswept centre court, she captured the singles and shared doubled honors but lost the mixed doubles in partnership with John Bromwich of Australia.

The well-built miss from Beverly Hills, Calif., opened finals day with a victory over her chum, Mrs. Margaret Osborne du Pont, of Bellevue, Del., 10-8, 1-6, 10-8.

After an hour's rest during the men's doubles won by Frank Parker and Pancho Gonzales of the United States, she returned to the worn court as a partner of Mrs. du Pont to defeat Gertrude (Gussie) Moran of Santa Monica, Calif., and Mrs. Pat Todd of La Jolla, Calif., 8-6, 7-5.

The sun was setting but the officials allowed the "iron woman" a 15-minute intermission before her mixed doubles.

Against fresh opponents, Eric Sturgess and Mrs. Sheila Summers of South Africa, she and the ambidextrous Bromwich bowed in a thriller, 9-6,9-11, 7-5.

Altogether she played 117 games an, until the fag end, Miss Brough was jumping like a ballerina and hitting the corners of the court like a sniper.

Last year Miss Brough swung the "hat trick"—as Britons call it—by winning all three titles but only 57 games were required in the feat and she had one rest of more than two hours.

Parker and Gonzales, both from Los Angeles, overwhelmed Ted Schröeder of La Crescenta, Calif., who captured the men's singles Friday, and Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, Fla., 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

Experts Predict Locke Will Pick Up British Open

Sandwich, Kent, England, July 4 (CP)—The British Open Golf Championship got under way today with the experts predicting that South Africa's Bobby Locke would carry off top honors and that the scores in general would be mighty low.

Locke, favorite since he entered, gained supporters by firing a pair of 67s in practice rounds.

If the weather holds good, par 72 on both qualifying courses seems at the mercy of the hot shots.

Half the entries will play in one round here on the 6,728 yard Royal St. George's golf course. The others will go off in pairs at six-minute intervals on the nearby Royal Cinque Courts, measuring 6,740 yards.

They swap courses Tuesday and the low 100 start the 72-hole tournament proper.

Like all British championship links, the two courses are treeless, built on low sand dunes by the sea.

Twenty-five overseas entries from 11 countries provide a strong challenge to the British defenders who have won the title the last two years.

Seven are from the United States, but the chances are slim of an American picking up the crown. Sam Snead was the last to export it in 1946.

Johnny Bulla, a runner-up in 1939 and 1946, and Frank Stranahan, the Toledo, Ohio, amateur, are the best bets and they are outsiders.

To deny a successful overseas raid, Britain is relying on Fred Daly, Sam King, Charles Ward and Dick Burton.

Cantrell Wins Gold Cup Race At Detroit

(By The Canadian Press)

Wild Bill Cantrell who is equally at home in a racing car or a speedboat, drove his My Sweetie to victory in the 42nd annual Gold Cup Speedboat race, Saturday. Cantrell won the second and third heats of the 90-mile race after finishing third in the opening 30-mile sprint.

Cantrell piled up 1,425 points in the speedboat classic to edge out R. Stanley Dollar Jr's Skip-A-Long which finished second in each of the three heats.

Joltin' Joe Dimaggio, now in a roaring comeback after being a fixture among the New-York-Yankee halt and lame, will be back doing business as usual at the All-Star stand in Brooklyn July 12. The Yankee Clipper Saturday was named to the American League squad for baseball's major league classic in a special appointment by all-star manager Lou Boudreau of Cleveland Indians.

Dimaggio, named to 10 previous all-star contests, didn't get a tumble in the recent poll of 4,637,000 fans for the simple reason that the "grandstand coaches" figured the only way he could get to the game was in a wheel-chair. So Boudreau used his prerogative of selecting whomever he chose beyond the eight non-pitching starters picked up by the fans.

"He's a great star who deserved to be named this year's just as he deserved to be named to 10 previous teams,' said Boudreau.

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison chased Sam Snead all day in the Washington Star open golf tournament Sunday and finally caught him with a 15-foot putt for a birdie on the 18th green.

This gave Harrison a five-under-par 67, and a first place tie with Snead, who had a 69. Each has 202 at the end of 54 holes in the 62 hole, $15,000 tournament.

Catcher Arnold (Mickey) Owen, one of the "forgiven' jumpers to the Mexican League, Sunday was purchased by Chicago Cubs from Brooklyn Dodgers for the 10,000 waiver price. The Cubs have sorely needed an experienced receiver since Bob Scheffing fractured his thumb, May 17.

At Wilmington, Del., Capot, the year's leading three-year-old, Saturday set a track mark of 1:48-2/5 in the 12th running of the $20,000 added mile and a furlong Leonard Richard stakes but lost on a foul by his stablemate, Wine List. The disqualification made Sun Bahram the winner in what trackmen said was the most stunnnig upset in Delaware Park history. Capot, the 1-to-10 favorite, and Wine List, who finished third behind Sun Bahram, were placed third and fourth in the four-horse field after the stewards upheld a foul claim against Greentree stable entry. The place spot was awarded Brandywine stable's Cochise, a badly-beaten fourth in the actual running.

At New York, Assault, King Ranch's gallant old former champion, Saturday proved they do come back when the scorched down the aqueduct stretch in a blazing finish to capture the $53,700 Brooklyn handicap.

Assault, voted "Horse of the Year" in 1946-after he won the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont for a triple Crown Grand Slam, has been out of action since February 21, 1948, when he ran fifth in the Widener Handicap and came out lame.

At Hamilton, Karl Smithers of Buffalo edged out a fellow Buffalo sailor to win the lightning-class event and the Arnott Hicks trophy in today's Royal Hamilton Yacht Club regatta.

Paul McLaughlin of Toronto won the 14-foot Dinghy race, with Bill Gooderham, also of Toronto, a close second. E. J. Doyle of Youngstown, Ohio, finished second in the eight-meter class. The winner was Ossie Shenk of Hamilton.

At Niagara Falls ,Ont., Eddie Howard of London, Ont., suffered a cut eye Sunday in a mishap in the third annual regatta of the Greater Niagara Boating Club. During the first heat of the free-for-all, H. Oakman, of Peterborough, tried to put his boat between the turning buoy and Howard's boat. Oakman lost control as his craft went over the stern of Howard's boat.

Brooklyn Dodgers Sunday announced the sites of nine tryout camp-schools which they will conduct in four States and Canada this month. The Dodgers plan to run 19 camps this summer in a search for young baseball talent. All of the camps will be open three days. In Ontario a camp will be held at Welland starting July 19.

Moncton Hawks of the Maritime Senior Hockey League Sunday announced the signing of Les Colvin, last year's goaler with Shawinigan Falls of the Quebec Senior Hockey League and Cliff Ryan, a top-scorer in the Ontario Hockey Association last season. Colvin was with Oshawa Generals when they won the Memorial Cup in 1939.

At Windsor, Sterlings Soccer Club won its second game in as many nights Saturday when it blanked Toronto Silverthorne Legion, 4-0, in an Ontario Major League contest. On Friday Sterlings eliminated Garson gunners at Sudbury, to advance to the provincial semi-finals in Dominion Cup play.

Oshawa Takes Both Ends of Doubleheader

Oshawa, July 4 — (CP)—Oshawa Merchants Saturday took both ends of a scheduled Central Ontario Baseball League doubleheader from Brockville Memos 6-0 and 10-3.

Bill Gingerich blanked the visitors with a nifty four - hit pitching performance in the first game in which he fanned nine batters and did not issue a single walk. Red Jubenville drove in two runs with his three hits in four tries and Andy McMullen's timely single in the first inning drove in two other mates to give the homesters a three - run lead right at the start.

Paul Michael got off to a shaky start in the seven - inning tussle but the two runs he allowed were wiped out when Fred Bidgood hit a three-run homer, the first out-of-the park home run in league competition in the new Kinsmen's Civic Memorial Stadium. Red Jubenville hit the next ball pitched for an inside the park homer.

Rowe replaced McDonald for Brockville in the second but failed to get past the third inning when Dafoe took over and finished out the game.

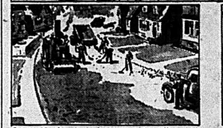
DRIVES OIL TRUCK THROUGH WALL OF FLAME

WINS DOW AWARD
ROY NORTHROP
of Woodbridge, Ont.,
calmly averts disastrous explosion

Workmen were re-surfacing the road with oil from Northrop's truck. Suddenly the oil on the road caught fire . . . flames shot up into the air. Northrop realized that the truck must be moved if an explosion was to be avoided — a blast that would wreck the nearby houses. Calmly, he started the engine and drove the oil truck through the wall of flame to a dry section of the road.

For risking his life to prevent a possibly tragic explosion, we are proud to present Roy Northrop with The Dow Award.



1. Roy Northrop's truck was supplying oil to town workmen who were re-surfacing a road in North Weston, near Toronto.

2. The oil on the road suddenly caught fire. Flames swept the surface — shooting 15 to 20 feet into the air. The oil truck was in the midst of it all!

3. Quickly, Northrop drove his truck through the flames to a dry spot. He had risked his life — but a disastrous explosion had been averted.

THE Dow AWARD

THE DOW AWARD is a citation presented for acts of outstanding heroism and includes a $100 Canada Savings Bond. The Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Canadian daily newspapers, selects winners from recommendations made by a nationally known news organization.

When north discovered 12 tricks in the pair, he was interested in slam, of course. If south happens to have the spade ace among his other values, there may even be a grand slam.

To find out, north bids four no-trump. This is the convention for asking partner how many aces and kings he holds. Five clubs in response is signal for saying he has no aces.

How did north discover 12 tricks in their pair? Easy. South told him of at least four tricks and north had eight in his own hand. Add eight and four to get the answer.

Responder in south is assumed to have two tricks. His two club bid over one heart was a raise that showed a third trick. His raise with four clubs over three diamonds showed a fourth trick.

North has a count of eight tricks. He told south about them. How? When south showed three tricks, north jumped to show tricks enough for a game. To make 11, north must have eight.

Pt. Anne Defeats Napanee 6 - 3 In Fast Game

Giving Phil Loft outstanding support in the field the Point Anne entry in the Belleville District Baseball League defeated the loop-leading Napanee squad by a 6-3 score over the weekend.

The game devveloped into a pitcher's duel between Loft and the Napanee righthander ace McTaggart with the former yielding seven hits and the Napanee flinger giving up but six. The Points hits however were more timely and a few of them were of the clutch variety when solid smacks meant runs.

The game was one of the best played on the Point Anne diamond this year with the fielding of both teams the outstanding feature. Loft did not strikke out a single batter while McTaggart sent but two down via the whift route.

The Pointers nibbled away at the McTaggart offerings from the start scoring singles runs in the first, second, fourth and fifth innings before Napanee broke into the soring in the fifth. They added another in the sixth but the Pointers scored the clinchers, if they were necessary when they shoved two runners across the plate in the seventh. Diamond Sculls Won by Kelly For Second Time

Henley-on-Thames, England, July 4 — (AP)—Jack Kelly of Philadelphia, a former bricklayer's son, won the Diamond Sculls Saturday by 20 lengths in the 110-year-old Henley Regatta's first all-United States final.

Kelly, whose father was barred from the event some 20 years ago because he was a laborer, whipped through the mile and 550 yds. of the placid Thames River course in eight minutes, 12 seconds, for his easy triumph over Jack Trinsey, also of Philadelphia.

He won the Sculls in 1947, but passed them up last year to compete in the Olympics.

Kelly's triumph was so one-sided that it caused many among the record crowd of spectators to wonder why he kept pouring on the heat at the finish. The distance between the two boats at the tape was not announced, but newspaper men estimated it at about 20 lengths.

Belleville Holds Trenton to Draw In Soccer Match

Belleville United and Trenton Merchants shared the points in a 1-1 draw in a Bay of Quinte Soccer League game played at the Exhibition Grounds on Saturday afternoon.

Belleville won the toss and elected to play with the wind. The first half play was close with Belleville having a slight edge scoring one goal after 30 minutes of play from Lane.

Trenton pressed strongly at the start of the second half and after ten minutes of play Silver scored the equalizer. Trenton had much the better of the play and but for poor finish on the part of their forwards should have scored the winning goal. The Belleville goal seemed to have a charmed life.

The teams; Belleville, Blaker, Findlay, Lewis, Hay, Ferrara, Lane Scott, Barclay, Hay, Barclay, subs James, Rudd, Finden.

Trenton: L. Helyer, Cornish, Jones, D. Helyer, E. Helyer, Campbell, Brown, Terrill, Silver, Tatt, Gill, Rushnell.

Fuss Grows Over White Queen For African Tribe

Johannesburg, South Africa, July 4 (AP) — The fuss over whether the Bamangwato tribe in Bechuanaland will have a white queen is growing and growing.

The British government, which governs the Bechuanaland Protectorate, must give the final decision and doesn't relish the job.

The Union of South Africa, immediately south of Buchuanaland and with a mixed population more colored than white, is steamed up over whether Seretse Khama, chief-designate of the Bamangwatos, will reign with his white bride, London typist Ruth Williams.

Tshekedi Khama, Seretse's uncle and tribal regent for 20 years, who talked last week about going into voluntary exile if the white queen ascends the throne, got back his fighting spirit, and summoned a lawyer from Capetown for legal advice. The lawyer, Douglas Buchanan, reached Serowe, tribal capital, at the weekend.

At a recent four-day palaver, Tshekedi and 40 minor chiefs turned thumbs down on a white consort for their chief. But Seretse, who has been studying law himself at Oxford and London, rallied 6,000 representatives of his 100,000 tribesmen and was upheld by a voice vote that shook the surrounding hills.

After the arrival of Buchanan, Tshekedi's followers expressed belief Seretse had gained only a snap decision by the tribal representatives' vote and it might be reversed.

Newspapers supporting the governing Nationalist party, which advocates segregation, have made their attitude clear. One leading Nationalist paper said:

"The Union Government cannot stand idly by in the face of developments of this kind, and the decision of the British Government will be awaited with exceptional interest."

KISS AND MAKE UP — Having boldly admitted a "Romeo" technique that appeals to women, Sigmund Engel, 73-year-old Casanova, demonstrates that he can still practise it on one of his alleged victims. Mrs. Pauline Langsston of New York. In his Chicago jail cell he plants a welcome kiss on the woman who says she was duped out of $50.000 in gems. Engel says all his victims gave him money and jewels voluntarily.—Central Press Canadian.

Police Believe Woman Struck While Asleep

Toronto, July 4 — (CP)—Earl E. Amacher, 49, was charged with attempted murder today after his wife, Gertrude, 51, was found bleeding from wounds about the head.

Police said they believed the woman was struck with an ax while asleep. Fifteen stitches were required to close a wound in her forehead. Doctors said the woman has a "fair" chance of recovery.

Neighbors said the Amachers had been arguing over cramped living quarters.

Married 32 years, the Amachers have lived for the last 10 years in a two-room flat near a factory. They received word last week that their tenement block is to be razed and replaced by modern apartment buildings.

Neighbors said the couple had a violent quarrel Friday, which was renewed Saturday. They said that on Saturday night Amacher, partially crippled, had been drinking beer.

Neighbors described Mrs. Amacher as a quiet woman who seldom had much to say. A friend said of her:

"Why, she'd never harm a fly, she wouldn't. She used to get up every morning and see her man off to work."

1,000 Men Fight Bush Fire Near Chuckery Hill

Picton — More than 1,000 men turned out Sunday to battle a pasture land and bush fire which swept over 100 acres before it was brought under control. The fire was five miles east of Picton.

The fire started in the dry grass along Chuckery Hill Road it is believed to have been caused by a carelessly dropped cigaret butt. The Royal Canadian School of Artillery at Picton sent 500 regulars and reserve force men, while neighborhood farmers, volunteers from Picton and district, and tourists also aided in fighting the fire.

The Bloomfield Fire Department aided in bringing the fire under control as did county and township road maintenance men and farmers who plowed furrows around the area.

The fire started on Percy Rosseau's farm and leaped across the road. No buildings were lost.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 4—(AP)—Extra! Extra! Big Hollywood scandal.

Newsboys have been able to issue this call many times in recent years. Adverse publicity concerning big stars has rocked the town and serious minds have worried about it's effect on the public.

The question is: Does scandal affect the popularity of stars? I posed the subject to several famous names and here are their answers for the AP Hollywood Forum.

Mickey Rooney— "Yes, scandal hurts a star. A star gets a big paycheque and fancy clothes and other things because people pay to see him. He has an obligation to the public to behave himself; when he doesn't he suffers for it. However, some players are hurt more than others. I am much more criticized for marrying three times than Bob Mitchum is for smoking marijuana."

Paul Douglas— "I don't see much difference between publicity and notoriety."

Victor Mature— "You came to the right person; I have a Ph.D. on the subject. I think it depends a lot on the type of individual the player is. But any wrong-doing is always bad for Hollywood as a working community."

Charles Bickford — "Scandal seldom hurts a young romantic star—in fact, often enhances his popularity. But it can damage a comedian or an older actor. If I did something out of line, I would just be considered a dirty old man"

Joan Fontaine—"They tell me it doesn't make any difference—but I'm not going to try it. Scandal doesn't seem to hurt the men, but I don't know about the women."

Ann Blyth—"Scandal may enhance a star's popularity for a while, but in the long run it is bad business. Eventually the public will look down on the star.

Susan Hayward— It's my opinion that the public is quick to come to the defense of someone in trouble in Hollywood. Whether this is good or bad, I am in no position to judge.'

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was watching pop smoking himself in his private chair, sing the ferst half of his 2nd igar, and after a while she said, William, haven't I heard you say hat Alcoholics Anonamiss is a thing for those that need it? nt know whether you heard y so, but you may of heard e think so, because that's what think, pop said, and ma said, Vell then why wouldn't it be a ood idea to apply to tobacco?

Maybe it would, but you never eard me think so, pop said, and s said, You're always bemoan- g the amount of money you pend on cigars, only to see it go in smoke forever, and yet the erest you ever come to curing ourself of the habit is once a year when you make your proverbial New Yeer resolution and brake it again almost in the same breth. But if you started an organization called Nickoteen Anonamiss, it mite catch on like wild fire, and you would go down in history as the founder and originater, she said.

By gollies you may have a thawt there, pop said. In no time at all the country would be dotted with little groups of men gathered together to celegrate the joys of breething naturel air, pure and untainted except for the dusty germs traffic and the foggy smog of commerce, and throwing their pipes, cigaretes and cigars into the dancing flames of the open fire-place. But after all, would it be werth while, at sutch a price? Better to remain inveterate smokers than to become confirmed gamblers, and how are you going to get a buntch of smokers to meet regularly without the bait of a poker game? pop said. But dont worry, my dear, if we play till after midnight, we'll be as quiet as possible, he said, and ma said, Oh let's change the subject for land sakes.

Which they did.

TANKS AID IN FIRE FIGHTING—Military museum filled with hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of irreplaceable war trophies was totally destroyed in fire at Camp Borden, Ont. Ammunition and shells exploded every few moments and the air was cloudy with oily black smoke. Tanks were called into action to batter down buildings to keep fire from spreading. Here firemen bring up extra hose at the height of the blaze.—Central Press Canadian.

IN COMPETITION WITH WORLD BANK—A fortune in bogus currency is examined by Mary C. Brand, U.S. treasury department employee in Washington, shown here with part of $100,000 in counterfeit $20 bills seized by secret service agents. Ironically, the counterfeiting plant was next door to the world bank and the office of the international monetary fund in Washington.—Central Press Canadian.

WAR HATREDS STILL SURVIVE—A gendarme comes to the rescue of a combatant who has his back to the wall as riots break out around Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris. The battle started when members of the "Miliciens", policemen who served under the Vichy regime, had a Mass said for Philippe Henriot, who was slain by the Free French forces in 1944. The "Miliciens" were attacked by Veterans of the Resistance Movement members.—Central Press Canadian.

FRONTIER U.

By Oren Arnold

"No one is looking, sweetheart," he murmured, squeezing her close. "or this moment we are alone——you and ——" he kissed her a second time.

"Not quite, Ken," she managed. "If you will look down there. If you will....only....only."

Down the slope not fifty yards from them, Ward McMurray was holding Joy Boone close. Or, perhaps it was the other way round. In any event she was sobbing happily while Ward held her and patted her, his eyes ecstatically closed.

"It's all Joy needed," Polly whispered. "Something to cure her restlesness. Some one to really love her, and for to love. Oh Ken, and once I was afraid that ——"

She could talk no more, for his lips held hers yet again.

On the evening of Armistice Day, the opening of La Fiesta del Sol, more people were in Phoenix, Arizona, than had ever been there before in the city's history.

You can't tell 10,000 people a thing and expect to keep it a secret. News of what had occurred in the Frontier U. amphitheatre had traveled fast. The papers themselves had made discreet but thorough coverage, which was soon duplicated by the state's three radio chains. But beyond all that was the incomparable word-of-mouth proclamation which permeated to every county and hamlet of the state.

As a result many thousands of men, and women and children were tonight in Spanish costume. Hotel accommodations had long since been exhausted, but no matter; sleep would be negligible anyway.

"They're paying outrageous prices to get in the grand ballroom." Some one said, truthfully. "Tickets were only three dollars each originally, but scalpers want twenty-five now."

Every ticket was sold by the time the Fiesta parade started from a vacant field down in Mexican town where the forty or more flower floats had gathered, the procession moved on Jefferson street thence onto Central Avenue and northward. Everywhere great Spanish shawls and colored streamers were draped over the streets, and countless millions of electric lights had been festooned. In the parade were fifteen orchestras, most of them string bands playing the soft, seductive music of old Mexico or inviting the populace to join in Sonoran dancing. American business men who were normally quite dignified had laid aside their severe fronts tonight. They had become caballeros instead The Dons Club, co-sponsors of this Fiesta, rode fifteen milk white horses heading the parade. College girls, high school girls, business girls and women from every other walk of life, had been costumed this day as senoritas. Phoenix was a city gone frenziedly into the spirit of play.

Just behind the Dons in the parade was a long float of fragrant red roses and on a white throne in the middle of it sat a girl in a golden costume. Thirty Frontier U. girls walked beside it as attendants.

People said she was the most beautiful queen the fiesta had ever known.

When the parade was over, this float moved on through a special opening into the great Civic Auditorium at McDowell Road. When steps were added to it inside, it became then an altar. And while a throng of people looked on in hushed rapture, an aisle was formed and an orchestra began playing the Wedding March from Lohengrin.

Ten little flower girls came first down that long aisle. They were dainty muchachitas, children five to eight years old costumed in white and gold from Mexico And then, without further ceremony——

"Look." one excited spectator whispered. "That Bettina Carlson, with Dr. Palmer himself. And then his son Ken with Polly. And poor Ward McMurray has to walk anone."

Behind those five moving slowly and with rapt gaze, came the two ministers who were to conduct the sacred ceremonies here. Only sound, beyond the music, was the soft rustle of dresses and the quiet sobbing of women who could not quite contain themselves. All the audience was standing.

When the group walked sedately up to the float that was now a platform, Ward McMurray moved in stately dignified and assisted Joy from her queen's throne. She trembled just a little and whispered, "Oh Ward. Oh Ward, my darling."

Polly, near to her then also, squeezed her hand, for mutual confidence. In a moment the couples were together, backs to the audience, listening to the prayer and the exhortation by the Rev. Rollo C. La Pryor.

In fifteen minutes the three wedding ceremonies had been performed. Dr. and Mrs. Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. McMurray, then came down to the main floor to dance one number officially opening the Fiesta ball, before fleeing to waiting airplanes.

No one of the three couples would tell the others what place had been chosen for honeymoon.

The Phoenix morning newspaper next day carried everything in its Fiesta Special Edition. But there was one news article deemed sufficiently important to front page headline read:

"STUDENT ADDS $5,000,000 TO UNIVERSITY FUND."

The sub-heading under the larger banner added: "Endowment More Than Doubled by Wealthy Girl on Eve of Wedding; College Expansion Program to Be Announced After President's Return."

The End

DANCING TO COMMUNIST TUNE—Formerly part of Japan's war machine, 2,000 Japanese soldiers, repatriated from Siberia, arrived at Maizuru singing Communist songs and shouting Russian slogans. This group even put on a dance for the welcoming crowd. The returning war prisoners called themselves "the vanguard of a Communist army". Jap officials were amazed.—Central Press Canadian.

Pilots Boat To World Mark

Alexandria Bay, N.Y., July 4 (AP)—Dr. Walter G. Robinson Sunday piloted his 225-cubic high inboard motorboat to a world's record of 81.6 miles an hour.

Robinson, of Alexandria Bay, was clocked over a five-mile course in the annual thousand Islands international inboard regatta. He swept both heats to capture the division one competition.

His time, sanctioned by the American Power Boat Association, broke the previous record of 73.170, set by Joseph J. Taggart of Canton, O., in West Martinsville, W. Va., in 1941.

The 225-cubic inch division-two event was won by Edward Pine of Brockville, his fastest heat over the five-mile course was five minutes, 18 seconds.

Frank F. Smith of Kingston, took the 135 cubic inch restricted division. His fastest heat was 9 minutes, 36 seconds.

16-POUND 'LUNGE BOATED

Montreal, July 2 — (CP)—It was everbody for himself and a scrambly start Friday when 1,127 anglers, including men, women and children, set out from seven starting points on the annual big fish derby on nearby Lake St. Louis.

At weigh-in time, after nine hours on the lake, the catch was slim and each angler had the same story to tell. Even the fish lacked ambition in the heat and they weren't biting.

Biggest catch: a 16-pound, two-ounce muskie hooked by John Radford of suburban Ville La-Salle.

MAKES 181ST PARACHUTE JUMP

St. Catharines, July 2 (CP)—Keith Douglas of the Canadian Parachute Club was his 181st jump here Friday at the St. Catharines airport during Dominion Day celebrations. The annual air show, presented by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the St. Catharines Flying Club, showed a bit of everything in the way of flying—including pretty Danny Pinder, Canada's only woman 'chutist, who made her second jump.

Little Benny's Note Book

Berglers broke in our house last nite and stole stuff out of the clothes closit in the frunt hall, sutch as ma's new white coat and pop's favorite old hat, and pop telefoned to the police station, and a policeman rang our doorbell and asked ma questions and wrote down notes, and I was bragging about it this afternoon on our frunt steps and making the other fellows jelliss, and Sid Hunt said, Aw, it couldn't of been mutch of a robbery or elts it would be in the papers.

Sure, our name was in the paper the time our kitchen got on fire and the firemen had to come and save the whole rest of the house, Glasses Magee said, and Skinny Martin said, Our name was in the paper the time my ant took too mutch of the wrong medicine by mistake and had to be taken to the hospittle in an ambulants to save her life.

Well what's your hurry? I said. Our name will be in the paper all rite, you just wait and see, I said, and Puds Simkins said, We wont have to wait mutch longer, here comes the paper boy rite now.

Which he was, and he handed me our paper and I looked all through it at the big headlines and little headlines without seeing the name Potts about a robbery or anything elts, and the fellows started to laff sourcastic, and I said, Here it is what old I tell you?

Meening a headline about a robbery, saying under it, The home of Jules Pockstein, well known department store executive, was entered last nite and robbed of clothing and joolery valued at $3,000.

Aw baloney, what's you talking about, aw go on, what's that got to do with your house? the fellows said, and I said, Pockstein sounds like Potts when you say it fast, dont it? Well, that proves the policeman got excited and made mistakes in the name and address and stuff when he told the reporter, I said.

Not being quite the end of the subject.

THREE INJURED IN NEAR RIOT AT DESERONTO

Two Airmen Killed Near Mountain View

Airmen Were on Summer Exercises From Deseronto

Members of 400 Auxiliary Squadron, Names Withheld

Picton, July 5.—Two RCAF airmen were killed shortly before noon today when their Harvard training aircraft crashed and burst into flames two and a half miles south of Mountain View Air Station.

The aircraft was from 400 Auxiliary Squadron, Toronto, which is doing summer exercises from the air station at Deseronto. The names of the dead were not immediately available.

Eyewitnesses said the plane appeared to fall into a tight spin from a great height. It spun downward, hit the ground and burst into flames which immediately touched surrounding grain fields afire.

The bodies of the two airmen were burned beyond recognition.

Twenty Acres Burned Over

The Harvard plane crashed near Crofton, within 400 yards of the former Ben Gill cheese factory which burned two weeks ago and immediately set fire to the dried grassland.

The heat from the dried grass and underbrush was terrific and burned over 20 acres before it was brought under control by the Mountain View Fire Department assisted by farmers with tractors who plowed furrows around the burning area. Before they were extinguished the flames came to within a few yards of a nearby farmhouse.

House Afire

James Lloyd, who recently had purchased the Stan Brummel farm was assisting to fight the fire at the scene of the air crash only to be informed that his own house one and a half miles away was afire.

A flare from the plummetting plane is believed to have dropped on the Lloyd farm and in the absence of the owner, set fire to the house. The farm house, still empty was completely destroyed while here again the flames burned over an area of 30 acres before they were extinguished.

The Bloomfield Fire Department assisted in extinguishing the fire but not before it got within 200 yards of the Royal Munro farm buildings.

Harold Munro, a district resident, said it was believed a falling flare started the second fire.

COST OF LIVING CLIMBS TO NEW ALL-TIME HIGH

Canadians Paying More for Their Basic Needs Since Records Kept

Ottawa, July 5 — (CP)—After idling along for several months, Canada's cost of living was accelerated by rising food prices during May to climb to an all-time high.

The Bureau of Statistics reported Monday that at the beginning of June Canadians were paying more for their basic needs than at any time since the first cost-of-living records were kept back in 1913.

Between May 2 and June 1 the cost-of-living index jumped a full point from 159.5 to 160.5 to beat by nine-tenths of a point the previous high of 159.6 established last October and equalled in November and January.

Food stood alone as the cause of the cost-of-living increase.

A seasonal rise in meat prices was chiefly to blame for the increase in the food index. There were a number of other food price increases as well, most important of which were for fresh vegetables and oranges.

While the cost-of-living index was rising in the Dominion, the U. S. recorded a drop of .3 to 169.2.

The two categories which showed decreases in Canada were home furnishings and services and light and fuel. Both dropped .4 placing home furnishings and services at 167.7 and fuel and light at 128.7.

Fatality Toll Of 103 Recorded During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

A fatality toll of 103 was recorded in Canada during the combined Dominion Day - Independence Day weekend.

A Canadian Press compilation showed that by early today 59 persons were drowned, 27 died in highway crashes, two in a plane wreck and 15 in other types of mishaps.

Ontario, with 43 fatalities, had the largest number of violent deaths, Quebec had 40, British Columbia eight, the Maritimes 5, Manitoba four and Alberta three.

Service Vote In S. Hastings

Servicemen in the riding of Hastings South voted just the same as the rest of the people—only more so.

This was indicated today when the results of the servicemen's vote were announced by the returning officer M. C. Burgess, Charles Street.

Votes registered by servicemen in the riding practically all from the Trenton Air station and No. 6 R.D., showed R. D. Arnott, Progressive Conservative as receiving 69 votes; Arthur C. Cole, C.C.F., 34 votes, and Liberal Frank S. Follwell, 288 votes.

Nearly Nude Woman Tells Story Of Rape, Death in Lonely Cabin

Sonoma, Calif., July 5 (AP)—A nearly nude woman ran down a mountain road and incoherently sobbed out a story of rape and violent death in a mountain home in Jack London's idyllic valley of the moon.

A picnic party she reached in her wild flight Monday called officers, who found two men dead inside the home. They began a search for a mystery man she knew only as "Hank".

The two dead men evidently had been clubbed with a four-pound stone pestle once used by Indians to grind grain. It was found, bloody and hair-covered, outside the house.

Police identified the victims as Peter J. Jensen, 55, and Peter J. Flint, 31.

In a serious, but apparently not critical condition in a hospital here was Mrs. Eva Paget of Berkeley, Calif., 27-year-old mother of two children. It was her story of being beaten and raped which led officers to the bodies.

Picnickers told police Mrs. Paget, wearing only a T-shirt and bleeding from severe blows, came upon them and hysterically told them she had been raped.

Sheriff's deputies said she told this story:

She was vacationing with her children about five miles from Jensen's home. Sunday night, she met Flint, whom she had known eight or nine years, and he introduced to her a man she was to know only as "Hank".

"Hank" came to her in Flint's car Monday morning, told her Flint had broken his arm, and asked that she go with him to the Jensen cabin.

On the front steps, the man struck her over the head. Declaring, "You know what I want," he dragged her into the back yard and raped her. Then he tied her to a tree with a belt, a towel and a pair of trousers.

Afterwards, he entered the house, changed his bloodstained clothes for others and left.

Finally freeing herself, she entered the house, she found blood dripped all along the floor and the two bodies beneath sheets in beds in different rooms. She ran for help.

MURDER SUSPECT FORMER OFFICER AT EDMONTON

Victim Buried Alive In Shallow Grove

Edmonton, July 5 (CP) — The man being held for murder in the strange axe-slaying of William McKay, 59-year-old warehouse worker, was disclosed today to be a former Edmonton policeman who was discharged for "unsatisfactory" service after only 34 days on the force.

Police said that Michael Joseph Hayes, who has been charged with McKay's killing last week in a dingy converted box-car home on the city's outskirts, served as a constable here from October 5 to November 8, 1943. He is said to have joined the police department under the alias of Michael J. Hayes left.

The investigation of the slaying of McKay, believed to have been hacked to death with an axe after being buried alive in a shallow potato patch grove, was probed further today by police as the whereabouts of Hayes' pretty 23-year-old wife remained a closely-guarded R.C.M.P. secret.

An eyewitness to the killing in their box-car home, she is said to be in "protective custody". Police said the slaying followed a beer-drinking party.

Police first learned of the killing from Mrs. Hayes, who said she was held prisoner in her home for half a day before being able to evade her husband and telephone information which led to his arrest.

Held as Witness

Al (Buster) Robbins, 40-year-old railroad workers who allegedly held Mrs. Hayes back while her husband beat McKay over the head with a length of pipe, is being held in police custody as a material witness. He will testify at McKay's preliminary hearing this Saturday.

McKay, widower and father of three children, was dragged from the shack and placed in a shallow ditch in the back yard. Police said they believed that when he struggled to rise out of the loose dirt covering him he was attacked with an axe.

"I've seen a lot of this sort of thing," commented one investigating officer, "but I have never seen a case worse than this."

The axe, length of pipe, samples of clothing worn by the three men at the drinking party and bloodstained hair and mud found clinging to the axe are being tested at R.C.M.P. laboratories in Regina.

Hayes, who had been unemployed lately, is slated to appear in court for preliminary hearing Saturday.

Firefighters Gain on Blaze Threatening to Wipe Out Newfoundland Mining Town

St. John's, Nfld., July 5 (CP)—Firefighters reported at mid-morning today that they are "gaining" on a blaze threatening to wipe out Buchans, a mining town in Central Newfoundland.

The report, which reached St. John's after being telephoned from a town near Buchans, said, however, that the outbreak was still serious and unchecked. It gave no other details.

Telephone and telegraph lines were down, making it impossible to check on the fire from here.

The fire broke out early this morning and first reports reaching the capital said all available men in the area were fighting it. The blaze started in a large lumber yard in the centre of the town.

The fire made speedy headway because of dry weather which had prevailed in the area during the last few days. A heavy rainstorm, accompanied by thunder and lightning over other parts of the island this morning, missed the fire area.

How many buildings had been gutted or damaged was not known here. Buchans is a town of about 5,000 that produces chiefly lead and zinc.

Health Conference in London Told of Canada's War on TB

By Norman Cribbens
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 5 (CP)— More than 1,100 doctors from 25 dominions and colonies and 20 other countries gathered today in the vast central hall at Westminster for the opening of the second commonwealth and Empire health and tuberculosis conference.

Two Canadian delegates — Dr. Charles Beckwith of the Canadian Tuberculosis Association, and Dr. Cecil Gordon Shaver, superintendent of the Niagara Peninsula Association, St. Catharines — contributed to today's discussions.

The conference, called by the National Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, opened on an ominous note.

Dr. Beckwith, one of the six Canadian doctors at the conference, outlined tuberculosis control in Canada.

Throughout 10 Canadian provinces, he said, the same basic principles of control were applied and the objective of each province was to x-ray the whole adult population.

"One of our biggest problems is to dispel the popular belief in the public mind that tuberculosis over the age of 50 does not exist," he added.

"On the contrary this group is one of the largest contributors to tuberculosis mortality and a prime factor in the epidemiology of the disease."

He said x-ray and particularly miniature x-ray, mobile or stationary, had become the "sheet anchor" of case finding in Canada.

Deaths from tuberculosis in Canada had fallen from 8,116 in 1926 to 5,443 in 1947. During that time the population rose from 9,500,000 to more than 12,500,000.

This afternoon Dr. Shaver lectured on modern treatments of tuberculosis, while speakers from the United States, India, South Africa, New Zealand, France and Sweden were also heard.

In an informal BBC broadcast outside the conference hall, Dr. C.B. Rooss, superintendent of the Muskoka Hospital, at Muskoka, Ont., said he believes Canada has the tuberculosis problem "under control" and a solution is "chiefly a matter of time."

He told the Canadian Press he was impressed by the apparent high standard of health among British children.

Busiest July 4th Week-end at Soo

Sault Ste. Marie, July 5 (CP)—The busiest July 4 weekend on record at the immigration office here closed with 10,574 United States tourists crossing into Ontario by ferry in four days. In the same period last year 9,329 tourists entered Canada at this port.

Line-ups for the ferries, at times stretched a half mile from the docks, were lengthened by 3,052 Canadians returning from their own long weekend holiday. Canadian traffic entering the United States was also up to 5,226 from the 3,836 who crossed the border in the same period last year.

U.S., CANADA AND GRT. BRITAIN WILL DISCUSS ECONOMY

Parley Preliminary to Commonwealth Talks

London, July 5 (CP)—Financial experts of Britain, Canada and the United States will discuss Britain's grave economic situation at talks here starting late this week, it was learned today.

The talks are preliminary to the conference of Commonwealth finance ministers due to start at the end of next week.

Canada will be represented at these talks by Finance Minister Douglas Abbott. A Canada House spokesman said today the Canadian Cabinet minister is expected to arrive in London Thursday.

He will be assisted by Norman Robertson, secretary to the Cabinet and formerly Canadian High Commissioner to Britain. Robertson is due in Britain tonight aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth.

Canada, occupying the key position among Commonwealth powers in relation to the dollar area of which she is a part, is regarded as the most important single factor in any Commonwealth attempt to alleviate the crisis caused by Britain's dwindling dollar and gold resources.

The talks will start Thursday between financial leaders of Britain and the United States, it was learned in Paris, Monday. Taking part in the opening discussions will be John Snyder, United States Treasury Secretary; W. Averell Harriman, giving ambassador for the Marshall plan, and Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Disclosure of the forthcoming talks came after London newspapers Monday estimated that Britain's dollar and gold reserves have been reduced to £400,000,000 ($1,600,000,000).

This figure is £100,000,000 less than what was considered a few months ago as the danger level.

It was also believed that Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France was given a first-hand account of Britain's dollar crisis during an hour-long discussion

Even Harder Times in U.K.

The extent of Britain's gold and dollar losses will be announced officially in the House of Commons Wednesday by Sir Stafford.

In speculative stores Monday the London newspapers generally estimated them at £152,000,000 during the first 15 months of the Marshall plan and at £71,000,000 during the last three months. A source close to the Treasury admitted these figures were "close to the mark".

Even Harder Times in U. K.

The newspapers told Britons that this means even harder times are in prospect, with fewer dollars available to buy food, gasoline, tobacco and raw materials for industry.

The suggestion has been brought forward especially by several American experts that the only solution lies in the devaluation of the pound. But Treasury officials feel that juggling the currency is not a cure.

Among moves suggested by the British Press are:

Four Killed, Seven Injured as Neon Signs Thunder Down From Building

Pittsburgh, July 5—(AP)—The top of a building thundered down on a group of pedestrians out for a stroll on Federal Street Monday night. The barrage of bricks, mortar and heavy neon signs killed four and injured seven.

Four of the injured were listed as "critical" at hospital.

"It was a terrifying thing," said Joe Deveny, 32, who suffered a compound fractured leg. "I looked up and saw those two big signs coming at me. Then the whole building seemed to come down."

The dead were T. J. McGee, 60; Charles Schmidt, 29; Donald Hanlon, 22; and Mrs. Viola Dickson, 39.

Critically hurt were John McDonough, 27, broken back; Rose Grandee, 22, fractured pelvis, leg and hip; Forest McCallister, 40, fractured skull; and David Stevens, nine, arm and leg fractures.

Fire department officials said the weight of neon signs advertising two cafes housed in the one-storey building apparently caused the brick parapet to give way.

Chief of Police Mobbed Taking 'Drunk' to Home

Three Shots Fired and One Struck Bystander in Leg

Three persons are in Belleville hospital, one with a gunshot wound in his leg and a two-inch gash in his scalp, as the result of a near riot in the town of Deseronto early Tuesday morning.

In hospital are Police Chief Albert Marks, who was mobbed and manhandled by the mob after he had taken a drunk into custody; AC1 J. B. Theriault, RCAF service police, who went to the chief's assistance, and 51-year-old Joseph S. Maracle, Deseronto Indian, with a gunshot wound in his left leg and a nightstick wound on his scalp.

Theriault is not seriously injured and was released from hospital today. He said he had been hit in the groin with the wadding of a blank cartridge fired as a warning by Police Chief Marks. The police chief was not believed to have suffered broken bones but was mauled and kicked by the mob.

Believed Chief Fired

It is stated that Police Chief Marks, while pinned on the ground, fired three shots into the ground as a warning. It is believed one of the "live" shots struck Maracle in the leg.

The whole affray started when shortly after midnight Chief an Indian whom he believed to be intoxicated. He was leading the man up the street to secure a taxi to take him home when it is alleged another Indian named Geo. Baptiste interfered. The melee then ensued.

In the fracas Chief Marks was forced to call for help and Theriault, the RCAF service police came to his assistance. But the mob, the majority of whom were stated to be Indians, crowded in and overpowered the two officers of the law.

Escaped to Hall

Finally Chief Marks and Theriault were able to break clear and escaped to the town hall where the town police chief put in a call for provincial police assistance.

Police officers from Belleville, Napanee, and Kingston, numbering approximately 12 converged on the scene and rapidly restored order.

Although badly shaken by the mauling which he had received at the hands of the mob, Chief Marks pointed out George Baptiste as the one, who had interfered and Baptiste was taken into custody and taken to Belleville jail. Police did not say what charge would be preferred.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, July 5 (CP)—Synopsis: Cooler air spread into Southern Ontario Monday night to bring some measure of relief from the spell of torrid heat. Present indications are that this air will persist over the province throughout Wednesday. There is a risk of thundershowers in the Lake Erie, Lake Huron and White River regions, but elsewhere it is expected to remain generally sunny, with afternoon temperatures in the eighties.

TWO CHILDREN DROWN BUT U.S. TOURIST SAVES 3

Montcerf, Que., July 5 (CP)—An American tourist and his 12-year-old son fought to rescue 5 children from drowning Monday and managed to save three of them. Claudette Aumond and Bernard Deschene, both 10, were drowned in the fast-moving Eagle River.

Victor Lemieux of Holyoke, Mass., and his son, Philip, saved their three companions.

The five children were part of a group of 11 that Mr. Lemieux took swimming near this village 85 miles north of Ottawa. All five were poor swimmers.

He and his son rescued: Therese, Francois and Michel Aumond, the brother and sisters of one of the victims and the children of the mayor of Montcerf.

Mr. Lemieux and Philip were on shore, watching a two-year-old member of the party paddling in the water while the other children swam in an inlet in the river.

He said that five of them disappeared. He and Philip dove in after them, the boy swimming for Bernard Deschene and Mr. Lemieux going after the other four.

He shoved Francois towards the shore on a log, grabbed Therese and Michel under his arms and seized Claudette by the hair. As he struggled towards shore he lost his grip on Claudette. Philip was unable to bring Bernard ashore in the swift current.

Haying General, Yield About 25 To 50 P.C. Normal

Toronto, July 5 (CP)—Haying operations now are general throughout most sections of Ontario but the yield will be only 25 to 50 per cent normal, the Provincial Agriculture Department reported today in its weekly crop report.

Only in Northern Ontario, where considerable rain fell while the rest of the province experienced a prolonged drought, were hay and grain crops reported satisfactory. Farmers in the Cochrane South area said the yield of hay will be higher than any year during the last five years. In the Sudbury district, grains are growing well, but farmers reported losses on low-lying lands because of flooding.

Continuing heat in other parts of the province has caused a serious decline in pasture feed for cattle. Dairy cows are largely on short pasture and many dairymen have already started barn-feeding.

Corn and pea crops are in fair condition generally, but yields are reported very low. Raspberries have made their appearance on the market in Lincoln County in Southern Ontario and the sweet cherry crop is nearly exhausted in many areas.

POLICE COURT

A lengthy docket gave the magistrate's court a busy morning today with several cases of breach of the Liquor Control traffic regulations, "having", a bigamy charge, theft and other cases causing the court to sit until twelve noon.

The majority of the traffic and drunk cases were settled out of court. James Chapman charged with "having" had his case dismissed.

Private Harold Long, Canadian Army, charged with bigamy, was remanded till Friday for sentence, after Magistrate T. Y. Wills heard statements from the accused and a plea from his counsel.

Three juveniles charged with breaking and entering had their cases laid over until Friday until the parents of two of the boys who live in Toronto, were notified. The third lives in the city and was released on $500 bail.

Two assault cases were laid over.

Pres. Fred Deacon Assumes Duties As Rotary Head

Newly-elected President Fred Deacon took over his official duties as head of the Rotary Club at the regular Monday luncheon meeting in the Hotel Quinte yesterday.

His first official duty was the presentation of the "President's Roses" to newly appointed secretary Rotarian Al. Davis, and and bulletin editor Rotarian George Campbell.

The guest speaker at the luncheon was Rotarian Joe Vallas, of Bermuda, an honorary member of the local club and who has been appointed representative of the branch at the Rotary International Convention to be held in New York City.

Rotarian Vallas, whose permanent home is in Bermuda, is a past-president of his home city Rotary Club and has attended sixteen Rotary International conventions during his service club career.

His address centred around his experiences at the last international convention held in New York city which attracted over 16,000 Rotarians and their wives from all parts of the world.

He gave a highly informative and colorful talk of international convention-procedure and his adventures in New York while in attendance.

Rotarian Vallas was introduced by President Deacon and thanked by past-president O. H. Scott.

Members and their wives were extended an invitation to join the Moira Boys' and Girls' Camp which has been sponsored by the club for many years, on Wednesday next when a special program of sports, etc has been arranged.

John Deacon led the singing with Stan Hagerman, Jr. at the piano. Rotarian Clare Hayes collected the fines from non-button wearers, including himself.

Kinsmen Club Takes Over Pool As Club Project

The local Kinsmen Club will take on the community swimming pool venture as a club project it has been decided by members of the service club. A special committee headed by Kinsmen Cleo Colling has been formed and full information as to costs and other details will be secured.

Club members at their regular dinner meeting Monday evening held a round table discussion as to the advisability of taking on the project and unanimously approved of the venture.

As chairman of the special committee Cleo Colling pointed out the matter of site for the pool would have to be of first consideration.

Arthur Cruji told club members that with expansion of the city toward the east it would be advisable to build the pool on the east side of the river. A survey of the city showed that the east-end playgrounds at Bleecker Ave. and Queen Street was the only site available.

Could Obtain Site

He pointed out that the pool could be located next to Queen Street and thus not interfere with the present playground set-up. The playground, he said, had been given to the city for the use of children by the Ritchie Estate and he believed the site could be obtained for construction of the pool.

It was decided by the club members to get basic prices for the cost of the swimming pool with the necessary filtration and pumping facilities and for dressing rooms and to report at the next club meeting.

As head of ways and means for special committee Ernie Colebourne outlined a number of fund raising projects for club approval.

He said the swimming pool project had been carried on for some time by the Inter-Service Club Council but that as little progress had been made it had been turned back to the Kinsmen Club which had originally inaugurated the venture

Beaten Candidate Questions Number Of Soldier Vote

Annapolis Royal, N. S., July 5 (CP) — George Nowlan, defeated Progressive Conservative candidate in Annapolis - Kings in the June 27 federal election, Monday night questioned the large number of service votes cast in the riding.

The service vote, made public July 2, gave Mr. Nowlan 92 votes against 158 for his Liberal opponent, A. A. Elderkin.

This reduced Mr. Nowlan's election - night lead to two votes and Monday's Declaration Day count showed that Mr. Elderkin had won the riding by a seven-vote margin — 13,196 to 13,189.

Mr. Nowlan, who held the constituency in the last Commons, said a statement that in the Halifax division poll for servicemen more votes were recorded for Annapolis - Kings than for three other Nova Scotia constituencies of similar size combined. These were Digby - Yarmouth, Cumberland and Colchester - Hants.

Mr. Nowlan said this point should be cleared up in the recount asked by his party after it was found that Mr. Elderkin has won the seat.

Polar Air to Bring Relief to South Of Ontario

(By The Canadian Press)

Polar air flowing into Southern Ontario is expected to bring relief by tonight from five weeks of hot weather.

The cool air is not expected to reach as far southwest as London and Windsor, where today's maximum temperatures are forecast at 90 and 96 respectively. But elsewhere in the southern section of the province, where drought and heat have prevailed since late May, it is expected to shake the grip of a warm air mass that drifted in from the Gulf of Mexico.

The temperature in Toronto today is expected to reach 90 degrees before the cold air reaches that city, possibly preceded by thundershowers. The Ontario capital Monday sweltered in 93-degree heat which was held a factor in two deaths of elderly persons.

Weather observers at Malton, near Toronto, said Monday night that the heat wave has been one of the longest in recent years. They said such a prolonged spell of high temperatures is unusual in Southern Ontario in June and July, although hot spells lasting several days often are experienced in August.

Local Lawyer Swims a Mile After Canoe Upset

Picton — Only the fact that he is an excellent swimmer saved the life of Reginald E. Nourse, prominent local lawyer yesterday. He was alone in a canoe on the Bay of Quinte when the frail craft overturned. Thrown into the water, he set out for shore with no one having witnessed the mishap. Through choppy waters he swam nearly a mile before reaching the Glenora shore, where his summer home is located. Although exhausted from the ordeal, he suffered no ill effects.

First 'Lunge Hooked

Picton — The first muskellunge of the season to be taken from Prince Edward County waters was landed by Gordon Wagg of Belleville yesterday. He was fishing in West Lake at the time. The fish weighed 14 pounds and measured 38 inches in length and 17 inches around the girth. Other fishermen report big catches of bass, pike and pickerel in East and West Lakes and at Indian Point. One party of six fishermen arrived from East Liverpool, Ohio, by plane, and returned yesterday with their quota of bass.

Wins Car for 25 Cents

Picton — A twenty-five cent ticket won a new car for Harry Eveleigh who resides three miles southwest of Picton. The young farmer was not present when his ticket was drawn at the fair grounds Friday night by Rotary Club officials. It is expected that the club will clear $3,000. to assist with the work for crippled and underprivileged children. The tickets were placed in a huge churn made of wire netting and thoroughly mixed. The lucky ticket was drawn by Charles Mavety of Kleinburg, who was present to stage the evening performance.

Family Returns

Picton — Mr. and Mrs. Jack Way and four children were released yesterday from Prince Edward County hospital here, having recovered from the effects of food poisoning. The family, who reside near West Lake, ten miles southwest of Picton, were all taken suddenly ill after eating canned fish. They were rushed to hospital here by Dr. J. H. Cryan. Mr. and Mrs. Way were the most seriously affected.

Roads Black with Cars

Picton — Prince Edward County was the mecca for several thousand tourists over the holiday. They came by land, water and air. Roads were black with cars but there were remarkably few accidents. Picton harbor saw seven United States yachts and three Toronto yachts there on Sunday. Coming by air was a party of fishermen from East Liverpool, Ohio. They landed on the RCSA station field.

All resorts were filled almost to capacity. The visitors enjoyed excellent fishing, especially in East and West Lakes. The first maskellunge of the season was taken by Gordon Wagg of Belleville, while fishing in West Lake.

The ferry at the Glenora-Adolphustown crossing was unusually busy, the smaller ferry being pressed into service to aid the big ferry.

Beaches were popular spots as everyone sought to escape the heat wave. More than 1,000 swimmers were reported at the Outlet Beach.

Storms Cause 28 Forest Fires During Weekend

Toronto, July 5 (CP)—A series of scattered electrical storms caused 28 fores fires during the weekend, but all now are under control, Lands Department officials said today.

Only one of the fires, in Heathcote Township in the Armstrong division of Soo Lookout district, reached major proportions. A 1,000-acre area was afire before it was controlled.

Districts where fires are now being patrolled are: Soo Lookout, 10; Kenora, eight; Port Arthur, three; Geraldton, one; Sault Ste. Marie, three; Timiskaming, one; Trent, two.

Officials said the greatest fire hazard exists in western Onario, where 21 of the 28 fires occured.

Scientists Off Again to Find Elusive Pole

Ottawa, July ' — (CP)—For the third time in three years, Canadian scientists will hunt the elusive north magnetic pole. They will take off today in an R.C.A.F. Canso flying boat on the first lap of the eight-weeks hunt.

The north magnetic pole—mysterious part of the earth's crust that cakes compass needles and magnets act the way they do — keeps shifting its location. An accurate pin-point is necessary for navigational maps.

It's now believed to be somewhere on Prince of Wales Island, some 2,000 miles north of Winnipeg.

Ralph D. Hutchison of Toronto, a member of the Dominion Observatory's Magnetic Division, heads the 10-man expedition, sponsored jointly by the R. C. A. F. and the Resources Department.

A seven-man R. C. A. F. crew of northern veterans will fly the Canso farther north than any flying boat has gone before—possibly 1,000 miles inside the Arctic Circle. The crew comprises: Flt.-Lt. D. R. Cuthbertson, Brantford, pilot; FO. A. G. Carswell, Toronto, co-pilot; FO. J. E. Goldsmith, Halifax, navigator; FO. J. R. Boucher, Ottawa, radio operator; Sgt. A. V. Hillman, Ottawa, engineer; LAC. W. Southcombe, Sarnia, crewman and LAC. C. Service, Almonte, Ont., crewman.

Where they're going, the magnetic compass doesn't give any accurate indication of the aircraft's heading. They'll have to rely on the sun.

R. A. Madill, chief of the Terrestial Magnetism Division of the Dominion Observatory, told a press conference Monday the information gathered by the expedition will be "classified." That means it will be released to only certain countries on certain conditions. Russia won't get it.

Both Mr. Hutchinson and Flt.-Lt. Cuthbertson are making the trip for the second time.

P.D. Ross Dies, Ottawa Journal Pres. for 60 Years

Ottawa, July 5 — (CP) — P. D. Ross, president of the Ottawa Journal and one of Canada's oldest working newspaper men died at his home here this morning. He was 91 years old.

Death had been expected for several days when Mr. Ross failed to rally from the latest of a series of heart attacks which had kept him inactive for months.

For more than 60 years he was president of the Journal which he bought a few months after it was started in 1886.

Last March he disposed of the paper to a group of his editorial associates but remained as president.

Mr. Ross was born in Montreal Jan. 1, 1858, and was educated at McGill University as an engineer. But after only a few months in that profession he became a newspaper reprter and remained one throughout his life.

Interested in Sports

He was an ardent golfer and a supporter of athletic activities, particularly organized hockey, golf and curling.

His parents were Philip Simpson Ross and Christina Chalmers Dansken who came to Montreal from Scotland. Mr. Ross was named Philip Dansken, for his parents, but to all his great army of friends and associates he was "P.D."

His tall, erect and soldierly figure was familiar to Ottawans and he was a popular after-dinner speaker, noted for his dry wit and his clear understanding of the affairs of the day.

Mr. Ross was married in 1891 to Mary Littlejohn, daughter of the late Col. W. A. Littlejohn of Plymouth, N.S. Mrs. Ross died two years ago. There were no children.

One of C.P. Founders

Mr. Ross was a promoter of The Canadian Associated Press in 1904 and one of the founders of The Canadian Press. He was a former president of The Canadian Daily Newspapers Association.

He started his newspaper career in 1879 as a $5-a-week reporter on the Montreal Star and in six months was city editor.

After short periods with the Toronto Mail and Toronto News he returned in 1885 as managing editor of the Montreal Star.

In 1886 he bought a half interest in the Ottawa Journal which had been operating only a few months. It cost him $4,000. The next year he completed the purchase with another $4,000.

Last March he turned the newspaper over to a group of Journal men headed by E. Norman Smith, vice-president of the company and Mr. Ross close associate for 32 years.

Dual Purpose Red Poll Breed Of Cattle Shown

Brandon, Man., July 5 (CP)—A breed of cattle described as the answer to a 50-year-old prayer by Canadian farmers is on display at Manitoba's Provincial Exhibition.

The breed is ReRd Poll which herd owners claim is ideal for small mixed farms. A dual-purpose animal, the cow can be milked and the calves steered for beef.

Wilmott McComb of Hayfield, Man., president of the Canadian Red Poll Association, said in an interview Monday that for 50 years farmers in the Dominion have been looking for such a breed.

In 1944, Mr. McComb said, there were only about 120 purebred Red Poll breeders in Canada. Today there are 205, and their numbers are increasing yearly.

The modern Red Poll breed originated 120 years ago in England with a blending of Norfolk beef and Suffold dairy cattle.

Chicago, July 5 (AP)—A record accident toll for the independence day week-end marked the observance of this year's extended holiday in the United States.

Latest figures show 663 killed in violent accidents.

The grim report on the country's celebration of the three-day holiday was: traffic fatalities 289; drownings 240; violent deaths from miscellaneous causes 134. The country-wide survey covered violent deaths from 6 P.M. local time Friday to midnight Monday.

The 1949 toll was the highest ever recorded for any Fourth of July. The previous record of accidental deaths on the Independence Day holiday was 628 in the three-day period in 1941. This year's mark compared with 571 deaths reported over a three-day period in 1948.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 5. (CP)—Profit-taking of Monday's gains pushed golds into the minus column in one of the most active sessions in about two months here today. Industrials climbed higher and base metals weathered early realizing sales to continue advancing.

Opening prices in golds were higher as the group continued to climb upwards to the best level since late April. However, profit-taking set in and prices began to drop from their high points early in the session. Activity tended to slacken across the general mining list but a few issues attracted considerable attention.

Eldona, Nicholson and Donalda were very active for strong gains. A few producers touched new highs at the opening.

Base metals were under realizing pressure early in the day and then resumed yesterday's late advance in mid-session. Key issues were quite strong in moderate dealings.

Papers led industrials quietly higher. Steels, liquors, utilities and agriculture groupings showed a majority of fractional gains.

10 Million Claims Nat. Insurance First Year in U. K.

London, July 5 — (CP)—Britain's national insurance scheme, one year old today, dealt with 10,000,000 claims involving 40,000,000 separate payments during its first year of operation.

A report of the pensions ministry shows the plan, which first took shape in the famous Beveridge report, cost an estimated £425,000,000 ($1,808,000,000) during the initial year.

The scheme covers sickness, unemployment, retirement pensions, widows and orphans allowances, maternity allowances and grants and a death grant for adults. The death grants begin today. The report says 7,000,000 new claims for sickness benefits were made in the first year and there were 800,000 claims for maternity benefits. Families receiving family allowances increased by 100,000 to 2,900,000. About 24,000,000 now are contributing for the scheme's family benefit.

Nearly 2,000 claims a week were made for widowhood benefits, which were paid to 460,000 widows under 60 years of age.

In addition, guardians allowances or orphans pensions were also paid to 10,000 children.

About 750,000 claims had been made for industrial injuries benefits of all kinds during the year. About 16,000 claims were made each week for injury benefits, and claims to disablement benefit, a pension or gratuity numbered nearly 60,000 a month.

Under the scheme on unemployed person receives 26s weekly with an additional 16s for a dependant and 7s 6d for the first child.

A retired person under the plan receives 26s weekly. Widows allowances and pensions range from 26s to 36s weekly, maternity allowances, 36s weekly, maternity grant, £4 weekly and the death grant for adults £20.

Lucian Freud Given Damages

London, July 5 (Repters) — Lucian Freud, 26-year-old artist grandson of Sigmund Freud, the noted psychologist, today was awarded damages of $200 with costs in a libel suit against the weekly magazine Time.

Freud, who lives in London, said an article in the magazine, published May 26, 1947, suggested that he had been attacking Britain and Britons. He contended it misrepresented his remarks.

Counsel for Time said the article, based on an interview with the artist, was true in substance.

Counsel for Freud said the article quoted the artist as saying: "In Britain everything is so foul and filthy that artists either go crazy, become surrealist or get into a rut."

Freud told the court during the hearing:

"I know very little about my grandfather's views. I have hardly read a word he has written."

Rain in W. Europe Falls First Time In Many Weeks

London, July 5 (CP)—Most of Northwest Europe, breathed easier today in the wake of the first rain in weeks.

London Monday welcomed its first rain in 21 days which broke the official drought, but was hardly enough to dampen the ground. Temperatures fell sharply however, from the year's high of 82 reached at noon.

In churches throughout Britain, millions had prayed Sunday for rains as the drought caused hardships.

In The Netherlands, thunderstorms broke today over large areas bringing the first rain since June 14. Netherlands' farmers had become anxious about the drought.

Frankfurt, Germany, today had its first rainfall in 23 days. Rainfall for June in the area was 40 per cent below normal.

AIRMEN

"Everybody was up fighting the first fire where the two men were burned to death when the second one started," he said. "Someone noticed another column of smoke and some of us rushed back to our own homes to find them threatened.

"I just got back from the first fire to find the flames from the second one within five feet of my house This fire started near Bill Lloyd's home and some people said they thought it started from a flare dropped by the plane."

Mrs. Albert Broadbridge, on whose farm the plane crashed, said gasoline spilled from the crashed aircraft ignited wooden fences and spread over fields and pasture as far as two miles from her home.

Missing Girl Found Staying At Hamilton

Toronto, July 5 (CP) —Delphine Wharton, 12-year-old resident of suburban Swansea who disappeared Saturday, has been found safe in Hamilton, police said today. She vanished after leaving home with $20 to buy groceries.

Police said they had received word that the girl had been found staying at the Hamilton Y.W.C.A.

Earlier today police picked up a false clue.

Police said a girl answering Delphine's description bought a dress at a midtown Bloor Street store about 5 p.m. Saturday. They said the girl paid for the dress with a $20 bill.

Alberta Board To Guard Export Of Oil and Gas

Edmonton, July 5 (CP) — The watchdog of Alberta's multi-million-dollar oil and gas development today is over the first hurdle to becoming a powerful authority over export of the two resources.

Less than an hour after the 57 members of the province's legislature met in special session Monday, six bills concentrating power over export in the hands of the Oil and Natural Gas Conservation Board were given first reading.

Broad powers are contained in the bills now before the legislature:

1. Permits to export natural gas may be refused or granted by the board after first giving a hearing to the applicant and with cabinet approval.

2. Production quotas may be set by the board when it grants a permit.

3. The board shall have power to say where the gas for export is drawn from.

4. Gas may be diverted from the exporter is the board considers an emergency exists.

The Board of Public Utilities Commissioners also came in for some attention as the province's Social Credit government prepared to take a firm grip on natural resources development.

The Utilities Board will become a court of appeal in cases where gas buyers and sellers and the Conservation Board cannot agree on what the selling price is to be.

Pipe lines distributing gas directly to the consumer also will come under the board's power. But other pipe lines will be controlled by the Conservation Board.

Scorching Drought Causes 50 Million Loss in U.S. Crops

New York, July 5 (AP) — A scorching, 43-day drought apparently has killed or spoiled more than $50,000,000 worth of crops in the farmlands of eight northeastern states.

Farm experts warn the damage in the area's rich fruit, vegetable and dairy regions will soar to a vastly higher figure if rains do not come in a few days.

The parched drought region stretches from southern New Jersey's truck crop areas up through the dairies and farms of New York states, and then fans out over almost the whole of southern New England.

New Jersey's drought damage has reached an estimated $28,000,000. Loss in the potato crop alone accounts for $4,500,000.

The upper New York rainfall for May and June was 2.75 inches below normal.

A storm that hit some parts of New York state yesterday was termed a "million dollar rain".

Scattered parts of the state got the slaking rains, while the New York metropolitan area was whipped by a violent wind and rain storm.

The storm, though, dropped little water on the baked land.

New England's drought area includes the vegetable, dairy and tobacco lands that stretch from southern Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts and Rhode Island to Connecticut.

CHIEF

Police Chief Marks and Service Police Theriault were then taken to the hospital. The police chief could not be reached for a statement today but it was understood he had been X-rayed for possible broken bones.

Claim Substantiated

Maracle claimed to have received a bullet in the left leg during the melee and this was more or less substantiated by his attending physician Dr. Willoughby of Deseronto. The doctor said no bullet was found in the leg, but there was a point of entry and exit, the missile having gone through the leg.

The fracas between the Indian townspeople and the police chief came following the conclusion of the evening program of the Old Home Week which is being held in Deseronto.

Sponsors of the "Old Home Week" are stated to have suggested the assistance of provincial police be secured for the duration of the Old Home Week program, but Chief Marks is said to have declined.

Provincial Police will be on duty in Deseronto until the end of the Old Home Week celebration, Wednesday evening.

COUNTIES CENTENNIAL

Ontario Counties have reached the age of a century, twenty-seven of them having been established under the Baldwin Act of 1849. Other counties grew up and were formed as the province expanded until there are now in all forty-three.

People of the Ontario Counties have had a notable past and have a prosperous present. One point about their development is that they have been associated with men who knew their needs and were experts in their class. They have builded well and the Ontario of the rural areas is something of which the people of today may justly be proud. Their populations have been more steady than that of the cities for farmers do not move as much as the people of towns or cities. Having a population which contains descendants of many of the original folk who inhabited these parts the counties in Ontario can trace steady progress. There is a definite link or tie between the land and those who farm it and produce the harvests.

Their history is something which has been growing decade after decade and generation after generation. To the city dweller rural life has a charm that does not fade and the rural life of Ontario as far as the townsfolk see it is one of the developments of Canadian life which has meant much to the steady advance of the counties' growth and widening influence.

One of the great advances of recent years has been the outward development seen in the building of roads. Those who first built the modern type of roads were brave men of vision and the present has justified their unfailing faith in what the opening up of the counties would mean to the development of Ontario. The roads are opening up and expanding the resources of this province and will continue to do so and help to increase the importance of the Dominion.

HAZARDS TO BE AVOIDED

Motorists, most of them, do the most of their driving in summertime, especially in the holiday season, and feel added responsibilities in these days when across the country, hundreds of thousands of children are free from the bonds of school hours and in their enjoyment of liberty may wander across roads, or dart across streets in their play heedless of the heavy volume of swift-moving traffic these arteries of travel carry in this age.

Children's movements are spontaneous and unpredicable in most instances and the good driver has this very much at heart. He drives with extreme care so that he may be able to halt his car in the very shortest distance should an emergency arise.

The Ontario Department of Education this year has done a worthwhile job in trying to impress upon the school-age youngsters that they be always thoughtful when crossin ga street or road. They know that in the new freedom the children are enjoying it may not always be possible to foretell what they will do in a moment of forgetfulness or burst of spontaneous action which may take them in the path of a motorcar. Therefore a heavy responsibility devolves upon the operator of the conveyance that he be eternally vigilant so as to avoid regrettable occurrences.

A writer draws attention to the responsibility which should lie close to the heart of the driver in respect to the pre-school age toddlers who have not been trained against the risks of the streets and highways and have no instinctive fear of the moving vehicles. It takes time for the little tots to come to realize that they must be watchful but if they are not, there may be disaster in store for them. This condition will rest heavily upon the careful driver who will not want anything painful or tragic happen as a result of his manner of driving.

Today many cars are parked on streets and this condition adds more responsibility to the driver who is passing a row of few or many of the cars. A little child heedlessly and innocently may dart out almost from nowhere and if the car is not under control one of those awful events may happen which the driver will never forget and which will be associated with that part of the street for a long time.

What may prompt a child spontaneously and without warning to dart into the roadway may be a bit of play or the pursuit of a ball and it is the test of the careful driver if he happens to be coming upon such a scene. Drivers find too a great sense of responsibility resting upon them as they remember how little they can see when they are backing up their cars. Such a movement demands the utmost in carefulness.

THOUGHT FOR JULY THE FIFTH

This morning youngsters used to wake
With fingers burned and eyebrows lost.
The risks we ran for freedom's sake
To us seemed worth the pain they cost,
But parents all throughout the land
Thought home-made cannon should be banned;;
That proudly celebrate we might
Without the use of dynamite.

From frantic mothers went the cry
Again, again and yet again:
"Let's keep the Fourth day of July sane!
A rousing speech is noise enough.
Let's put away explosive stuff.
To save our children needless woe
The giant cracker has to go!"

Today, though none in anguish screams,
I wonder, being safe and sane,
If liberty as precious seems
As in those days of noise and pain?
Are children learning now to love
As we, the starry flag above?
Though wise the quieter, safer way,
Was something lost we need

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

PLOWING WITH PIGS

In his famous book Gulliver's Travels, Jonathan Swift described an imaginary country named Balnibarbi, chiefly distinguished for its foolish inhabitants. Among other things, Swift told about the method of plowing. Instead of using horses and plows, the inhabitants buried acorns and other food in their fields, and then turned loose a herd of pigs. The pigs, in rooting up the acorns, were supposed to dig up the ground sufficiently for planting, thus saving the farmers all that work.

Unfortunately, it proved more difficult and more expensive to bury the acorns and care for the pigs than it would have been to plow by ordinary means. And to make matters worse, the fields plowed by this method never produced good crops.

It is interesting how often people who are always looking for the easy way are finally forced to do more work for poorer results than the people who are willing to do the necesary work in the beginning. There is a simple reason for this fact. We live in a world where no one ever gets anything for nothing. Everything costs something—time, money, labor, thought, sacrifice.

And so there really is no easy way. The man who puts nothing in gets out exactly the same thing—nothing. The reward is waiting for the man who works for it.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

The worst feature of a poor meal in a restaurant is that it cheats you out of a good meal. You have to start to eat it before you discover it is poor. And having started, you feel under some sort of contract to go ahead with it. Few of us any more are old-fashioned and snorty enough to create a scene by shoving our dinner away from us, refusing to pay the check and stomping out of the restaurant.

But actually there is no contract. It might do our modern commercial restaurant trade some good if a few Victorians or Edwardians among us staged the odd scene. The production dustrialized standardized, commercialized. Food tastes pretty much the same in every eating place along the street, from the big hotel down to the lunch counter. Even the self-styled epicure restaurants find it unprofitable to stray too far away from the standardized flavors, seasonings and styles of cooking thoroughly established their less pretentious rivals up and down the street. It is undoubtedly our own fault. We take on a tankful of food the way we take on a tankful of gas for the car. Drive in, and holler fell her up! And perhaps oftener than once in five times, we hit a bad one. We would raise a pretty row if we got a bad tankful of gas.

other evening I entered an attractive - looking restaurant which advertised sea food prominently on its facade.

I ordered a shrimp salad. When it come, it was a most imposing spectacle. You might think an advertising agency had designed it. It looked like a shrimp salad out of the color pages of one of the slick magazines.

It consisted of a great crisp hay-mow of finely shredded cabbage and lettuce; a firm, cold, compact scoop of potato salad; long fingers of carrot; a chastely chiselled dill pickle; Greek cornices of lettuce; and peeky-weeky in the middle, five miserable, cowering little shrimps. Like a

In a way, few Chinese better personify their country's struggle for freedom and reform than Mme. Sun Yat-Sen, widow of the founder of the Republic.

She is above all a product of the impact of western ideas of democratic freedom in an ancient and backward land. These made her a revolutionary, and set her apart from the rest of her family who have largely ruled China for 22 years.

In the end she has wound up in the arms of the communists. Why?

Her story is the answer not only to her personal fate, but is a key to understanding how the biggest single bloc of the human race — the Chinese people — are submitting to communist control.

She was born Soong Ch'ing-Ling in Shanghai. Her father was a wealthy Bible-printer. As a Chinese, he resented the way the Manchu throne misgoverned his country and kept itself in power partly by trading bits of Chinese sovereignty to foreign powers. Like many wealthy Chinese in these not-so-gay-nineties, Ch'ing-Ling's gather supported a revolutionary doctor named Sun Yat-Sen.

Ch'ing - Ling was a student at Wesleyan College for women at Macon, Ga., when word came through in 1911 that Dr. Sun finally had overthrown the Manchus.

American Ideas

She returned to China and joined Dr. Sun. When a warlord drove him out in 1915, she followed him to Japan and married him. When the Suns returned, they found a coalition of other warlords had taken over in Peking and were keeping alive, like the Manchus, by trading bits of Chinese sovereignty off to stay in power.

Dr. Sun sought help from Britain and the United States. They turned him down. He turned on Soviet Russia, which posed as the friend of freedom in Asia. Russia sent advisers to help Sun reorganize his Kuo-Mintang party along communist lines.

Sun died in 1925, and a rising young general named Chiang Kai-Shek took command of the party and its army. By 1927 he had defeated the northern warlords. He also had broken with the communists who had helped him win. The same year he married Ch'ing-Ling's little sister, Mei-Ling.

Sided With Reds

Ch'ing-Ling chose to flee with the communists. She went to Moscow and stayed until 1931. Back in China that year, she said: "The Kuomintang has lost its position as the country's revolutionary party. The party's destroyers, far from being external enemies, are its own leaders."

She means her brothers in law, Chiang Kai-Shek and H. H. Kung, and her own younger brother, T. V. Soong, among others.

The Kuomintang was getting more corrupt instead of less and depended more and more on outside help to survive. In contrast the Reds had practically no outside help and were getting strong support from the peasants.

A Landmark

Last Friday was the 28th birthday of the Chinese communist party.

"This," she declared, "is a landmark in the revolutionary struggle of the Chinese people. We have shaken off the fetters of imperialism and colonialism, we have rooted up feudalism, and the people are travelling toward a new and brighter peak."

There you have it — reform and freedom. And who can Mme. Sun or any Chinese thank but the reds?

In her speech she said "Salute to the Chinese communist party." But she also said "Long live the Chinese peoples revolutionary movement," and thereby told the reds to keep on leading that movement if they don't want big trouble in that big country of hers.

Large Lumber Mill At Duquette Siding Destroyed by Fire

Bancroft — The large lumber mill operated by Carl Goodwin of Maynooth and situated at Duquette Siding was totally destroyed by fire Monday evening. The blaze broke out while the men were at supper and seems to have started close to the boiler. Personnel of the Department of Lands and Forest at Bancroft including Henry Taylor, Julius Gorgeret and John Cole, rushed 18 miles to the scene of the fire with pump equipment but were unable to save the mill but prevented fire from spreading to nearby lumber piles. The loss is estimated at $14,000 and believed not to have any insurance coverage. This is the second mill they have lost by fire.

Decisions Could Affect Future Promotions

Halifax, July 5—(CP)— Naval spokesmen said today that recent courts martial decisions against two naval officers could have the effect of delaying or cancelling future promotions.

The officers, Commodore G. R. (Gus) Miles and Lt.-Cmdr, W. D. F. Johnston, commanding officer and navigation officer of the aircraft carrier Magnificent, faced charges after the 18,000-ton capital ship ran aground off southern Nova Scotia during a June 4 training cruise.

Commodore Miles lost command of his ship and was sentenced to be reprimanded. Lt.-Cmdr. Johnston was also ordered reprimanded but retained his post.

So far the chief of naval staff has announced no new command for Commodore Miles. It appeared likely, however, that he would be stationed ashore.

A naval reprimand amounts to a black mark in the officers' record book. It is not given verbally. Such a black mark could delay or cancel any future promotion.

In other words, if two officers were being considered for a promotion, the officer without such a black mark would get the post.

It does not mean any loss of seniority, pay or leave.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SUMMER

How we all welcome the "good old Summer time!" With the beautiful foliage in full array, birds returned, fishes biting (sometimes) and all Nature awake and alive. There is such freshness and maturity to the days of Summer. Ripening berries and fruits, man's blessings, gifts from the Creator of all things.

"The vials of Summer," write Thoreau, "never made a man sick, but those which he stored in his cellar." Nature is the great medicine for us all. Vacationists can well testify to this fact. The return to business and the pursuits of life is always on a happier basis after a few weeks in the open. We carry their benefits with us throughout the remainder of the year.

Summer is the season's maturity. Planting is over. It is the season of growth and harvest. Fields of flowers bloom and spread their perfume. There is color everywhere. Nesting time, too, and glorious song from the throats of endles varieties of birds. White lilies in ponds and lakes, and the good earth everywhere a garden. What a multitude blessings are ours!

If a person cannot gain a sense of peace during the beautiful days of the Summertime, nothing else can give it to him. For these days are God's choicest. Beauty and abundance are what Summer gives to us all. And spiritual ozone, as well—all thrown in lavishly.

There is no season of the year in which all Nature is so active as Summer. Its birthtime and seed time alike. Nature is prolific. All strangely arranged that there might be life to all, at least for some period of time. We often wonder why certain species of life have been created—but there was a reason for it all. We are indeed ignorant of the ways of Nature. But she is our greatest Teacher.

There is no period of the year when relaxation is so important as during the warm months of Summer. It is a time in which to think, and to give over to the appraisement of life's values. We can put important things in their place, as well as those things of lesser importance. It is a good time in which to get hold of

ONE GOOD MEDICINE YOU CAN'T KEEP DOWN

The great Dr. Abraham Jacobi, father of pediatrics, suggested, and the late Dr. Louis Fischer, in his textbook on Diseases of Infancy and Childhood, recommended as a reliable, quickly acting emetic in cases of acute bronchitis, croup, broncho-pneumonia and as an emergency remedy in cases of poisoning, one grain of copper sulfate administered dissolved in a teaspoonful of water.

Copper sulfate is commonly called "blue stone" or "blue vitriol." It is used in the form of blue crystals, granules or powder. Crude copper sulfate is much used (one part per ten million) for ridding swimming pools and ponds of algae. When so used, one part per million will destroy typhoid germs in the water in three hours.

Oculists have used pure copper sulfate (pencil) as an astringent to control the granulations in trachoma, sometimes called granulated eyelids or granular conjunctivis (misleading because trachoma is a serious communicable disease which, if not properly and vigorously treated, may bring a partial blindness.)

The official dose of copper as an emetic is five grains, given dissolved in a tablespoon or about one-half fluid ounce of water. This dose may be repeated in fifteen minutes if the first dose fails to produce vomiting. It is especially useful in phosphorus poisoning (for example when a child has eaten the heads of matches) because it not only empties the stomach quickly but acts as a chemical antidote through the formation of copper phosphide.

The traditional syrup of ipecac—tablespoon for the adult, two teaspoonfuls for a child—is still a reliable emetic if there is no great hurry. It takes ten or fifteen minutes to act.

Two level spoonfuls of mustard flour stirred in a cupful of water is a good emetic for an adult if neither ipecac nor copper sulfate is at hand. For a child two level teaspoonfuls in a half cupful of water is the proper emetic dose.

From experience I plump for copper sulfate as the best emergency emetic. The dose is scarcely down when upsy-daisy!

When you and I were young, Maggie, it was still customary to use as an antiseptic or disinfectant for the hands a solution of corrosive sublimate (mecuric chloride, bichloride of mercury) in water. I kept in my office a bottle of bichloride tablets for this purpose. The tablets contained a blue dye which colored the solution blue, to prevent mistaking it for plain water. One day our first million dollars crept into the office, knocked the poison bottle off the medicine cabinet shelf, breaking it on the floor. She proceeded to eat the pretty blue tablets—her mouth and face were dyed blue when we discovered the mischief. Whether she swallowed any we didn't know, but an immediate dose of copper sulfate emptied her stomach and its blue contents in less time than it takes to tell about it. I'd hate to have to wait for an ordinary emetic to act in such circumstances.

Fortunately the baby's stomach was well filled with milk—one of the best antidotes for corrosive sublimate. The experience cured me of the bad habit of using bichloride of mercury. The poison is rarely used as an antiseptic or disinfectant today.

For the household medicine cupboard , any druggist can dispense a small bottle five grains of copper sulfate disolved in five spoonfuls of boiled water, and label the bottle: Copper sulfate, one grain in each spoonful. Emetic dose for an adult five spoonfuls, for a child one or two spoonfuls. If the dose does not induce vomiting within two minutes, give the same dose again but no more. Such a solution will indefinitely.

It Doesn't Pay To Ignore Parking Tickets

Those little parking tickets which are placed on the windshields of motorists who have overstayed their time in front of parking meters are not merely for the motorists to tear up.

At least that it what an even dozen drivers found out this week when they found themselves summoned into court for failure to report to the police station after receiving parking tickets.

Had the motorists visited the police station the tickets could have been settled for the sum of $1. But when it was necessary to issue sommons, the ante was raised to $3.50 and this is the amount which the erring motorists were assessed.

Youth Weds Girl Whom He Saved By Killing Bandit

Los Angeles, July 4 (AP)—A wounded boy and the girl he saved from a bandit's attack are man and wife today.

It was a far cry from the church wedding the young sweethearts had planned. Instead, Alwyn (Sonny) Ivers, 19, his face swathed in bandages, was married to little Betty Bowen, in a solemn bedside ceremony at General hospital.

Tears glistened on the blonde 16-year-old girl's cheeks as she breathed the words "I do". Sonny, his bullet-shattered jaw bound in wires, nodded his head and managed a husky whisper.

The rites were conducted less than 40 hours after Sonny had fought and killed Friday night a masked lovers' lane bandit who threatened his girl.

Sonny was shot by the holdup man, later identified as William E. Brock, 18. Betty told Sheriff's officers Brock took Sonny's wallet at gunpoint and then said "he'd do what he wanted with me". She said Sonny leaped at the holdup man and, though shot in the scuffle, grappled with Brock. Betty said she got Brock's gun when it dropped and handed it to Sonny who shot the youth four times.

George D. Young, B.A., B.D., Phyllis Joyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gray of Marmora, became the bride of Gerald Winfred Fox, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Fox, of Malone. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion with delphinimum, hydrangea, sweetpeas and fern.

The organist, Mrs. A. F. Fraser, played the wedding music. Before the bride entered the church, Mrs. Percy Gray sang "When Song is Sweet" and during the signing of the register, "Bird of Love Divine".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a floor length gown of white satin with lace insertions. Her silk embroidered tulle veil was caught with a halo of braided satin. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Audrey Brown, of Harold, cousin of the groom, was bridesmaid. She was frocked in pink moire taffeta, with shoulder length veil, with matching accessories, and carried a bouquet of cream roses.

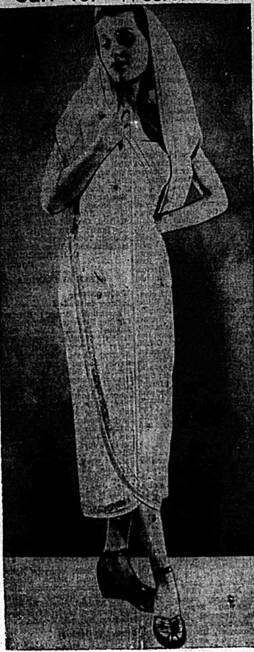
Sari for Westerners



By PRUNELLA WOOD

The girl in the sari, above, got her effect on Seventh Avenue, and not on Tahiti. It is Margaret Newman's resort model made of crisp, fresh rayon sharkskin, accented with a binding edge of gilt lurex braid. As you know, lurex neither corrodes nor dims, in damp air, direct sunshine, or water which is salt or fresh, It stays as bright as a mermaid's scales, and for all I know, mermaid's scales may be made of lurex.

There is a strapless boned bodice (separate piece) under the sari, and one can drape it as shown, over the shoulders stole fashion, or about the waist as a cummerbund.

PINE GROVE W.I.

The Pine Grove Women's Institute held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Harry Coulter on Thursday.

Twelve members and four visitors were present. The minutes of the last meeting were read. The roll call was answered by taking something to put in the new kitchen at the school. The regular business was discussed. Plans were made to hold a sale of home cooking and afternoon tea on July 13 on Mr. Jerry Marshall's lawn. Mrs. Bartindale, convener for Home Economics, took over the meeting. Each one present was given a household hint to read which were very helpful. Mrs. Bartindale served a delicious rhubarb drink with cookies.

Mrs. Ralph Campbell read a paper on baking without an oven. Mrs. Bartindale then staged a contest called "Do You Know?" Refreshments were served by those in charge.

FRANKFORD

Frankford — Boys of the Intermediate Sunday School Class of the Frankford United Church enjoyed a picnic at Oak Lake on Friday. They were driven by automobile to the lake shortly after 9:00 a.m. A period of swimming was enjoyed, following which boats were rented for a trip around the lake. Dinner was eaten in a cedar drove along the side of the lake. Most of the afternoon was spent in swimming and in playing horseshoes. Allan Forge emerged the undisputed horseshoe champion, throwing two ringers during his one turn. Supper was eaten at Searles' Beach, immediately following which the boys left for home.

The regular monthly meeting of the Frankford Branch of the Canadian Legion was held in the Community - Memorial Hall on Thursday evening. Many plans for the coming Street Carnival July 20 were discussed, and suggestions were made for new and better entertainment.

An item which appeared in the Trenton Courier - Advocate on Capt. Rev. A. S. McConnell's address in Trenton Sunday was read to the members as an inspiration to turn out in numbers for Frankford decoration day August 14.

A number of other items of business were discussed, and the meeting closed at 22:45 hours.

The Peterborough Salvation Army Band will again be providing music for the annual Legion Decoration Day parade and service in Frankford, August 14. It is by special request of hundreds of people from the village, and from neighboring towns that the Legion has again obtained the services of this great organization. WHO CARES ABOUT HOLLYWOOD?

Glamour? This little girl knows the secret. A full tummy at regular intervals and lots of sleep. Keeping her warm is certainly no problem now, but don't forget that later on you'll need your furnace again. Five tons of fuel may only do the work of four if your furnace, pipes, chimney are clogged. A layer of soot or fly ash only 1/16 inch thick can cut down a furnaces's heating efficiency up to 20%. Save money by having your furnace conditioned by an expert. The cost is trifling, and you'll be sure of comfort—clean, healthy heating—for less money, this winter. Please yourself which you use. Both Certo and "Certo" crystals are fruit pectin, the natural substance in fruit that makes jams "jam" and jellies "jell" — extracted and concentrated for better, easier jam and jelly making. The word "Certo" is a trade-mark.

Boil ONE MINUTE only for both Jams and Jellies

That's all you need when you use Certo or "Certo" Crystals . . . one minute's full, rolling boil! What a saving of time and energy. This short boil gives you other advantages, too:

Major Leagues Pass July 4th Tell-Tale With Yankees and Dodgers Marked for Pennants

By Jack Hand
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

The 4th of July has come and gone with the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers still showing the way in the Major League pennant races.

Tradition says the night of the 4th is the tell-tale date. If you lead then, you can start building new stands for the world series. Actually it's right only about 50 per cent of the time.

The return of Joe Dimaggio to the Yankee line-up continues to spark the American League leaders. Since Jolting Joe came back they have won seven of eight, including five straight over the respected Boston Red Sox. They have a 4½ game lead over the Philadelphia A's.

Vic Raschi in winning his 13th game for the Giants, went all the way to win the opener 3-2, in the second inning.

Dimaggio's homer pulled the Yankees up into a tie in the fifth and Billy Johnsons's single with the bases loaded in the seventh provided the winning 6-4 margin for reliefer Willard Marshall over Mel Parnell.

The second game was delayed by a rain storm and finally called on account of darkness after 7½ innings. The second game loss extended Boston's losing streak to eight games.

A's Keep Pace

The Athletics kept pace by trimming Washington 9-7 and 8-0 with little Bobby Shantz hitching a 10-hit shutout in the second. Sam Chapman provided the big fireworks with two homers, one with the bases full.

Dick Fowler working on relief, came through with a single that drove in the tie-breaking runs when the A's rallied for six runs in the seventh inning of the tpener.

Cleveland, moving strong, solidified its third-place position, seven games behind New York, by beating Detroit 3-2 and 7-3. Bobby Feller squeaked through in the first game with relief help from Satchel Paige after he was lifted for a pinch hitter.

The Indians knocked out Hal Newhouser in the second. Finally handing the loss to Freddie Hutchinson with a 14-hit blast that included a two-run homer by Larry Doby.

Homers by Dick Kokos and Berry Priddy gave the St. Louis Browns a 4-2 victory and an even break with the Chicago White Sox who rapped the Brownie staff for 15 hits, including two doubles by George Metkovich in the 12-5 first game.

Dodgers Boost Lead

Brooklyn Dodgers won a morning and afternoon game from Philadelphia, boosting their lead over St. Louis to two full games. Preacher Roe just missed a shutout in the 7-1 morning game when Willie Jones homered with two out in the ninth. It was Preacher's eighth victory, seven in succession. Don Newcombe needed help from Jack Bar , in the eighth inning to save an 8-4 decision in the second when Pee Wee Reese, Carl Furillo and Bruce Edwards hit homers.

Max Lanier's return from 'exile' in Drummondville, Que., was not a success but the Cardinals rallied after Max was knocked out in the third inning to take Chicago 9-4. Fred Mertin, like Lanier another re-instated "jumper", was the winner.

Bob Chipman stopped the Red Birds in the second game with an efficient shutout, 5-0, scattering four hits. Hank Sauer hit a homer in each game.

Move Ahead of Reds

Pittsburg Pirates copped two from Cincinnati, 2-1 and 1-0 to move ahead of the Reds into sixth place. Cliff Chambers allowed only two hits in the first game but one was Walker Cooper's seventh home run. Bill Werle yeilded seven singles enroute to his shutout victory over Erautt who took over after Ewell Blackwell bowed for a pinch hitter in the sixth. It was Blackwell's first start.

Boston Braves moved into a third place tie with the Phillies, 5½ games behnd the Dodgers, by splitting two with New York Giants. Tommy Holmes' second homer of the day launched a four-run rally in the last of the ninth that pulled out the second game for the Braves, 8-7. The Giants banged out 17 hits in the 11-4 first game.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Tennis players in the upper brackets, like opera stars and movie queens (and princes) are developing temperaments that threaten to bring the "love" game to the status of third rate boxing matches; backyard housewives brawls and wisecracking duels.

Bill Fay writing in Colliers says the lack of brotherly love on the amateur tennis circuit is at an all-time high. Number One in the unpopularity polls is temperamental Ted Schroeder who admits he's the world's best amateur but is too busy selling refrigerators to prove it.

Pancho Gonzale who won the U. S. national title last year while salesman Schroeder was tending to his ice cubes on the West Coast and later was beaten three times in a row by Schroeder is hotter than his favorite tamales over Schroeder's latest remark." The only reason I beat Gonzales is that I'm a much better player."

The ill-will of the topflighters has spread to the lower brackets according to Fay. At Seabright last summer Gardner Mulloy was upset (in every sense of the word) by Earl Cochell. After missing a forehand on match point, Malloy ran up to the net to extend traditional congratulations to his conqueror — or so it appeared to the gallery. But Malloy departed from the "nice-going-old man" script.

Grasping Cochell's hand as though it were a deceased and unrefrigerated sturgeon, Mulloy muttered, "You are the most obnoxious jerk I've ever played."

Cochell, smiling for the lens hounds, whispered back, Nuts."

Later, Mulloy explained why he considered Earl such an undesirable opponent. "Cochell stole my towels every time we changed courts. He spit water in my face and on my racquets. And when I asked him what was going on he merely sprouted a silly grin."

Overheard at the 19th hole at the Bay of Quinte Country Club:

" . . . So the caddy took up his position when Joe was about to tee off. He swung a mighty swing at the ball and it sloshed through the air for a distance of two feet, and stopped. It was a 245 yard hole."

The caddy squinted at the ball, extracted a putter from the bag, looked up at Joe and murmured, 'Now for one hell of a putt'."

To recognize Toronto's Diamond Jubilee in organized baseball, arrangements have been made to bring the Philadelphia Phillies of the National League to Toronto to play the Maple Leafs on Monday, July 11th. The Phillies, parent club of the Maple Leafs, will arrive intact with such former Toronto stars as Manager Eddie Sawyer, Puddin-Head Jones, Stan Lopata, Eddie Miller and Jim Konstanty.

In addition, the Phillies will field such veteran Major Leaguers as Del Ennis, Bill Nicholson, Andy Seminick, Ken Silvestri, Ken Heintzleman, Schoolboy Rowe, Dick Sisler, Hank Borowy; ace rookies Richie Ashburn, Granny Hamner, Putsy Caballere , Stan Hollmig, Curt Simmons, Robin Roberts and coaches George Earnshaw, D ty Cooke, Benny Bengough and Cy Perkins. It will be a battle of the present Phillies versus the future Phillies. The Maple Leafs are determined to show Manager Sawyer that they are Major Leaguers as well as International Leaguers.

There should be softball high jinks at the Stewart Warner Alemite field tonight when the two top teams, Northern Electric and Houston's Knotholers clash in a battle which should see one team or the other take over the top rung of the loop ladder. Houston's broke up a three-way tie for the top slot last week when they nudged Corby's 5-4 in an overtime game. That left the Electrics and Houstons still still arguing as to which team was the better. Tonight should prove something or other along these lines.

Enthusiasm is running pretty high among the supporters of the teams and it should be one of the best mushball battles of the season. In addition the radio on which the planters have been selling tickets will go to its owner. The draw will be held sometime during the game. Houstons-Electrics tilt is the first of a twin bill and gets under way at 6.30. Swacos and Shell will provide the entertainment for the nightcap.

"Doc" Robinson, well-known speedboat driver of Alexandria Bay, New York, realized a lifelong dream on Saturday when he drove his 225 cubic inch water demon to a new worlds record of 81.6 miles per hour over a sanctioned American Power Boat Association course. The amiable "Doc", one of the best liked men in speedboat circles both in Canada and the United States, won both heats from stiff competition to establish the new mark. He was one of the two drivers who hurled themselves overboard on the Picton course when the late "Pops" Cooper suffered fatal injuries after being catapulted from his speeding boat last year. Robinson raced in Rotary Club regattas here for the past three years.

And Ed. Pine and his gallant "Maple Leaf" carrying the colors of Belleville, raced home to a sparkling win in the 225 Class, Division II at the Alexandria Bay regatta. "Maple Leaf" was clocked over the five mile course at a speed of slightly less than 60 miles per hour which means that the gallant Belleville craft and driver were not extended. "Maple Leaf" can do much better than 60 miles per hour.. In fact she has been clocked at well over 70 m.p.h.

Attendance Down From Last Year

New York, July 5 — (AP) — The holiday is over, and so—temporarily at least — are the days of record - breaking business if you ask big league baseball and race track operators.

Attendance at eight major league ball parks Monday showed a decline of about five per cent from Independence Day last year, which was celebrated on Monday. July 5. And 11 race tracks fared even worse, dropping 19 per cent in crowds and betting.

The holiday doubleheaders attracted 256,781 fans, or 13,143 less than in 1948, when the count was 269,924.

A total of 230,003 racing enthusiasts bet $11,325,766. Last year attendance hit 285,332 and batting, $14,089,735 at 10 tracks.

Largest throng for either sport Monday was the 63,876 which saw the New York Yankees, American League leaders, play host to the Boston Red Sox.

Today we Live in a Greater Canada

They Drained a Lake to give Canada a Great New Industry

IT HAPPENED in Ontario's Rainy River District. Steep Rock Lake — fifteen miles long and ranging in depth from 40 to 265 feet — was emptied by batteries of giant pumps. Finlayson Lake was lowered by draining from the bottom. The course of the Seine River was completely changed. And one of the richest bodies of iron ore on the continent was uncovered. Providing millions of tons of ore a year — with enough uncovered for years to come — Steep Rock's development has been spectacular, but it is only ONE of many examples of Canada's tremendous modern advance. Today we truly live in a Greater Canada—one with productive capacity vastly increased and diversified, offering to young Canadians greater opportunities than ever before in every field of endeavour.

SO MANY OPPORTUNITIES
"A sound idea and the determination to carry it through— those are sure passports to success in Canada today where there are so many interesting opportunities in so many different kinds of activity" —says MR. LESLIE BUTCHER, of Windsor, Ont.

Mr. Butcher—member of Canada's 1936 Olympic basketball team—after returning from college in the U.S. and being manager of a local insurance office, started his own Butcher Enterprises. Their development provides many examples of this young Canadian's energy and enterprise. They include: a unique and successful service in the wrapping of products for shipping; and the modernization of the Windsor Arena to present outstanding sports and entertainment events with great success.

The iron and steel manufacturing industry presents another spectacular example of development: productive capacity and number of employees have been doubled since before the war, striking indication of Canada's new position as one of the world's great industrial nations.

Molson's

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Men whose business it is to deal in manoeuvres go for bridge. The squeezes and endplays are right up their alley. Their planning comes naturally. And they are quick to become expert at the game.

My spring lecture tour was full of experiences with such men. Their bridge is not solely relaxation. For them it is good mental practice. Just as many used to do with chess.

My series in Moscow was topped off just right. It was a bridge game partnered with Dixie Howell. His fame has spread as football coach at the University of Idaho.

Let me show you how he handled this deal:

NORTH
♥A K Q 4 3
♦A K 5 3
♣A 8 7

WEST
♠10 6 5
♥J
♦Q J 10 9 4

EAST

♥10 9 8 5 2
♣J

SOUTH
♠Q 7 4 2
♣K Q 10 6 3

He became declarer in south at a contract of six clubs. Spades having been bid by east, the opening lead from west was a card in that suit. There goes the only trick he dare lose.

It would seem that dummy trumps should ruff off the south spades. But south lacks the entries without ruffing that would give east a trump trick. Something else must be worked out.

When east took trick one a diamond was returned. Dummy won with the king. A small trump lead was taken with the south queen. A small spade was ruffed small in dummy and the trump ace took a round.

Ace of diamonds was cashed and a small dummy diamond was ruffed small in south. Now a round of trumps was pulled, dummy sluffing his last diamond. This left each player with five cards.

Dummy had his five hearts; east four hearts and spade king; south a top trump and two spades and two hearts; west a trump and a heart and a spade and two diamond. The last trump was then led by south.

This picked up the west trump and dummy sluffed a small heart. But east is squeezed. He dare not give up spade king. So, he gives up a heart and dummy has the rest. Nice touchdown, coach.

Canada, Australia, N.Z., South Africa Need Total Of 226,000 Immigrants Yearly

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 5 — (CP) — The British element in Commonwealth countries overseas is likely to diminish in coming years, says the report of a royal commission on population, recently published.

It urges a conference to consider this matter "of vital concern to the whole Commonwealth."

The report says that Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa need a total of 226,000 immigrants a year to increase their populations at a rate of two per cent annually. Britain can be expected to supply not more than 65,000 annually.

Canada needs 110,000 immigrants a year to achieve the two per cent increase, which would double the population in 35 years, the report says. At its present rate of natural increase (without immigration) Canada's population would be only 16,000,000 by 1980.

The trend toward smaller families and increased social security in Britain discouraged emigration.

"The most powerful stimulant of all to emigration would be a worsening of Great Britain's economic position," the report says. "But unless this takes a really serious turn it seems likely on the whole that the numbers wishing to emigrate will decline and there will be continuing pressure to bring young adults from aboard to make good shortages in occupations that are relatively unattractive to our own people."

Must Have High Standard

Emigration might be encouraged by special inducements, but the final factor would be whether the receiving country had higher standards of living to offer than Britain.

In this event the ideal arrangement would be for Britain to work out at the same time an immigration policy which "would ensure that the needs of the rest of the Commonwealth for manpower were met as far as possible from people of British stock and that Great Britain, with its much larger population, would take on as much as possible of the problem of assimilating people of other than British stock."

Sources of supply of suitable immigrants were limited.

In estimating Britain's emigrant potential at 65,000 a year, the commission records that if the birthrate here remains at its present level, the annual number of persons reaching the age of 20 will be 650,000. Not more than 10 per cent a year could be expected to emigrate; in fact, that rate was higher than the average for the 19th century.

"It is not to be expected, therefore, that the other parts of the Commonwealth could rely on emigrants from Great Britain alone to maintain their pre-war rate of growth."

Truck and Bus Collide, Five Are Killed

Smithfield, N. C., July 4—(AP)—At least five persons were killed today in a head - on collision between a bus and a dairy truck about six miles south of here.

State highway patrol officers said both the truck and the bus caught fire after the collision. The driver and two passengers of the bus were either killed by the impact or burned to death in the fire and the driver and one passenger in the dairy truck were killed and burned.

B. of M. to Have Drive-in Banking First in Canada

Shank's-mare takes a beating at the new building planned for the Bank of Montreal's Broadway and Granville street branch in Vancouver. Featuring drive-in banking facilities — the first at any chartered bank in Canada— the emphasis at the new building is on stream-lined banking service for customers on wheels, even to an inside parking area for baby-carriages.

Busy customers will drive up to the special outside teller's wicket, sit in their cars while being served, then drive on—in a fraction of the time taken for shank's - mare customers.

Mothers, bothered with the baby-carriage parking problem in the teeming west-coast metropolis will wheel baby right along with them to the bank, and leave him in the B of M's special pram-parking area, while they do their banking.

Drive-in banking has been successfully tried by a number of U.S banks in recent years. South of the border, bank clients have taken to the new idea enthusiastically, but the B of M is the first chartered bank to try it in Canada Baby-carriage parking, more common in large chain and department stores in this country, is still an unusual convenience in banks.

Border Crossings Over Holiday Constitute Record

(By The Canadian Press)

The two-way flow of traffic between Canada and the United States during the holiday weekend has established an all-time record at Ontario's international boundary points.

Although final figures have not yet been computed, Travel Minister Decile of Ontario said Monday that the influx of United States tourists will create a record. And D. Leo Dolan, travel director for the Federal government, said the flow of Americans into Canada was the greatest in history, with most of the visitors coming to Ontario.

At Windsor, Ont., more than 100,000 tourists in 34,000 automobiles entered Canada to celebrate their Independence Day holiday. No figures are yet available on the number of Canadians who headed south for the long Dominion Day weekend, but immigration officials say the 1949 total is up at least 10 per cent over last year.

The total number of cars handled at the Peace Bridge, Fort Erie, passed the 25,000 mark and continued to mount today, while all available police officers directed snarled traffic.

More than 10,000 persons crossed into Ontario from the United States at Sault Ste. Marie, an increase of 30 per cent over last year. More than 5,000 Canadians headed south at that point, compared with less than 3,836 during the 1948 holiday.

Electrics Drub Pt. Anne 17-4 In Dull Game

What at first appeared to be the makings of an interesting baseball game turned into a near-farcical comedy of errors at Exhibition Grounds last night when a small crowd yawned its way through a tilt that resulted in a 17-4 victory for Northern Electric over Point Anne.

For three innings the pastime was a hurling duel between Electric's veteran hurler "Chuck" Barriage and Juby of Point Anne. Both teams had scored single runs in the first innings and blanked the opposition in the next two heats. Point Anne flung over a pair of runs in the fourth to take a three-run lead — and then it happened.

The Point Anne infield fell wider apart than the Grand Canyon. They kicked the ball around like a soccer player gone berserk. Electrics scored five runs in the fourth, shoved over three more in the fifth and when the Point defence went completely to pieces in the seventh scored seven runs off two hits. They added the 17th marker in the eighth.

Johnny Green, although he belted two doubles was tabbed with five errors while the usually reliable shortstop Nicky Sero had the remaining four of the Point's nine miscues. There were three passed balls and two wild pitches credited to the Point battery.

Juby lasted until the fifth and yielded eight hits for a dozen runs. Bennett relieved him and gave up four hits for five runs in four heats. Barriage went the route for the winners giving up ten hits and striking out eight.

Mac Carson had a perfect day at the bat for Electrics getting three, two of them doubles, for three. Vance did likewise getting four clouts for four. Wardhaugh, Rutherford and Fitzpatrick got a pair each. Barriage got a double and two singles.

Johnny Green hit two doubles and brother Peter one and a single for the losers.

Recluse Lived In 'Junk House With Fortune

Philadelphia, July 5 — (AP)—Authorities disclosed Monday that a gloomy, junk-jammed house was the home of an elderly woman recluse, with a fortune at her command, who chose to live like a beggar.

Police found the body of the woman, Mrs. Catherine S. Ritter, 79, Thursday. For nearly 30 years she had lived alone in the dark, forbidding, nine-room house subsisting on bread and milk.

An assistant Fire Marshal, Joseph Heffernan, and two deputy coroners said they probably were the first persons outside her family to enter the house in half a century.

The house in the once-fashionable Strawberry Mansion section was stuffed with five-foot-high mounds of rubbish. In that mass of junk, police said, they expect to find a clue to the whereabouts of some $2,000,000 Mrs. Ritter is said to have hidden.

Police were called to the house by neighbors, who complained of bad odors emanating from the house. The coroner's office said Mrs. Ritter apparently had died from natural causes and had been dead several days when found.

There was no heating system. Hinged shutters kept the entire house in complete darkness.

The history of the woman herself is cloaked in mystery.

A niece, Mrs. Lillian Kinkel, told police Mrs. Ritter was separated for many years from her husband, whom the niece described as a "gentleman's tailor."

It was at least a year since anyone had seen the recluse emerge from the building. From that occasion neighbors said they remembered her as a woman "with grey, stringy hair falling around her sharp nose and chin, and with only two teeth showing when she opened her mouth."

When found, her feet were wrapped in rags which substituted for shoes.

Some Farmers Stall Feeding Their Cattle

Toronto, July 5 — (CP)—Lack of pasture has forced some farmers in Southern Ontario to stable-feed cows to help reduce a drop in milk production, the Ontario Department of Agriculture said Monday in a weekly crop report.

In Halton county pastures have dried up on many farms. In Perth county dairy cows are getting supplementary feeding because the short grass conditions. Stable feeding usually starts in the fall.

Feed supplies will be short this fall and winter in Simcoe county also, the department said. Conditions in the counties of Haldimand and Wellington are about the same.

While the quantity of hay has been light, the quality is good. Hay is bringing as much as $25 a ton.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, July 5 — (CP)—The hot-weather sport of beating the horses is in full swing these days and Andy (Montreal Standard) O'Brien describes still another "system" for coming out on top.

Andy has been describing a number of "systems" in recent weeks and the other day he ran into general manager Lucien Chartrand of Blue Bonnets race track — who thoroughly enjoys taking a flyer on the bangtails.

"It's the 'beaten favorites' system," Chartrand told Andy. "I watch for a horse that has been beaten by a favorite the last time out. I promptly bet on his and, even if he loses, bet on him the next time. If, after two more tries he still doesn't win, I drop him. Also, if in that time he wins, I drop him."

Andy asked him if he always won with the system.

"Well—I—I, not exactly . . . one meeting at Saratoga I ended up wanting to take the gas pipe."

Hockey Down Under

Is Clarence Campbell off on a secret mission to sell hockey to Australia Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll asks the question, noting that the N. H. L. president plans to fly to the Antipodes next Sunday on an inaugural flight junket staged by a Canadian airline.

"The alert Tommy Gormon debated taking a couple of N.H.L. teams on a tour of Australia during the off-season a few years ago, but he didn't follow through on the idea," Dink adds.

Come to think of it, hockey, with its speed and color, might be a natural in sports-mad Australia. As for the warmer climate, isn't it true that the Pacific Coast League is flourishing in California cities.

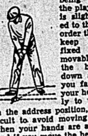
Better Golf

By Sam Snead



In the correct address position, as here pictured, the legs are straight but not locked, the arms extended straight down instead of being bent and the player's head is slightly turned to the right in order that he can keep his head fixed and immovable through the back and down swings. If you fail to turn your head slightly to the right in the address position, it is difficult to avoid moving the head when your hands are at the top. And if you move the head during the back-swing, you are very apt to sway to the right in the back-swing and to the left in the down-swing. The head should be kept immovable throughout because it is the top anchor of the axis of your swing. Your knees are never locked during any part of the swing for that produces rigidity and resulting lack of smoothness and accuracy. At impact, a good swinger returns to approximately, but not exactly, the address position. The difference here is that in the downswing the left shoulder is moving up in a rather vertical plane as the right shoulder passees down under the chin. Simultaneously, there is a corresponding slight left hip upthrust and most of the weight should be forward on the left leg.

Snead Withstands Gallant Challenge By Skip Alexander

(By The Canadian Press)

At Washington, Sam Snead withstood a gallant challenge by Skip Alexander Monday to win the Washington star open golf tournament.

Snead shot 70 for a total of 272, 16 strokes under par for the 62 holes. In second place was Cary Middlecoff, the National Champion from Memphis, who also had a 70 for 274.

In third place were Alexander, who had a 69 on the final round, and Chick Harbert of Detroit. Each wound up with a 275.

Alexander started the final round four strokes out of first place, held jointly by Snead and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of Little Rock, Ark. Harrison, Canadian open champion, dropped all the way down to Skith, getting 75 for 277.

Dick Metz of Virginia Beach, Va., was fifth with a 68 for 275.

Calumet Farms' sensational Coaltown and game old Armed ran one-two in the $54,800 Stars and Stripes handicap at Chicago Arlington Park, Monday, with Coaltown establishing a track record of 1.48 2-5 for the mile-and-an-eighth holiday racing fixture.

Coaltown, in winning his ninth victory in 10 starts this season, blotted out the old record of 1.49 15 established by Armed in capturing the same race in 1947 and equalled by Citation in winning the event a year ago.

Coaltown earned $36,700 for Warren Wright, owner of Calumet Farms, bringing his winnings for the year to $179,825 and $282,475 from two years of racing.

Holes-in-one came in threes on Montreal and district golf courses over the holiday week-end but Ian C. Innes of Wentworth, Que., scored the daddy of the lot.

Innes, son of John Innes, professional of the Thames Valley Golf Club of London, Ont., holed out from the tee at the 252-year par four 16th hole of the Royal Montreal Golf Club.

Doug Turner, former ace centre with Toronto Argos Football Club, arrived in Calgary during the weekend to take up permanent residence. It is expected he will turn out with the Dominion Champion Stampeders for training later this month.

At Pittsfield, Mass., right-hander Johnny Masuga of Pittsfield Indians pitched an 8-0, no-hit-no-run victory Monday night over Schenectady in a Canadian-American League game.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

SAM CHAPMAN, ATHLETICS, hit two homers, one with bases loaded in Philadelphia's 8-0 second-game win over Washington driving in five runs; smashed two doubles in opening 9-7 victory.

CLIFF CHAMBERS AND BILL WERLE, PITTSBURG PIRATES. Chambers stopped Cincinnati with two hits in first game win, 2-1; Werle blanked Reds with seven hits in second.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, July 5 — (AP) — Disturbed by many claims that the 1949 major league baseball is livelier than ever, John Kobs, Michigan State baseball coach, recently conducted an informal test . . . He dug up some baseballs from about 1910 and a high step ladder and tested the old ones against the new by dropping them from the same height on cement paving . . . His conclusion: "Those old balls bounded just about even with the new ones." . . . We've always wondered why the manufacturers, who have testing machines accurate enough to show "less than two percent variation" in minor league baseballs, don't run a real test on balls of various makes and ages and put the results on record to settle the argument for good . . . Kobs probably is right in saying that the "liveliness" is due to the hitters swinging for homers, where the old-timers were punching for singles, and to the modern practice of tossing in a new ball every few minutes.

Strike Three

Bert Bell, National Football League boss, gets a chuckle out of telling how one usually - reserved coach in his league exploded a few years ago . . . the coach, unversed in the niceties of insulting officials didn't notice the ball was only 30½ yards from his own goal when he began sounding off . . . the referee silently stepped off a 15 yard penalty. As he placed the ball, the coach made another remark and the ref again stepped off 15 yds . . . Seeing the ball on the half-yard line, the coach shouted: "Now where are you going to take it"? . . . this time the ref just walked away.

Mack Comes up With Three Good Southpaw Hurlers

Philadelphia, July 5 — (AP) — If, as Connie Mack says, pitching is 75 per cent of baseball, his Philadelphia Athletics should be American League champions of 1949, or the next thing to it.

For 17 years the A's floundered around in the second division — for 17 years between Lefty Grove and Lou Brissie.

There wasn't a portside pitcher on the club during that stretch who was of much more help than bat without a batter.

But the A's fortunes have perked up. And among the more prominent reasons is the southpaw flinging trio of Brissie, Alex Kellner and Bobby Shantz.

And the club is only four and one-half games behind the front-running New York Yankees. The A's have a two - game set with the Yanks opening tomorrow.

Kellner, a rookie, has won 12 and lost three; Brissie, sophomore, has captured nine and dropped three.

Shantz, five-foot-seven lefty, has won only three and lost four, but has showed promise of becoming a splendid hurler.

Earlier this year, Shantz turned in a nine-inning no-hit relief trick against Detroit and won the game although he gave up two safeties in his 10th inning on the mound.

Brissie, with the war-shattered left leg, throws the hardest of the trio and Mack figures Brissie may become the greatest of all the lefties he has groomed.

That's tall pitching. Grove was right fair himself. And so was a character named Rube Waddell, who did his pitching from the port side for Mack a long time.

Buffalo Bisons Win Two Games From Toronto

(By The Associated Press)

If July Fourth tradition holds, Buffalo Bisons will be the new International League pennant winners.

The Bisons today boast a five-game lead over last season's champions, Montreal Royals, and are gaining momentum with each succeeding game.

Monday the Herd swept their holiday doubleheader from Toronto Maple Leafs, 10-4 and 5-1.

Home runs turned the trick in both games for the league-leaders. Ray Coleman and the veteran Doc Cramer hit homers in the first game to make Bob Hooper's eighth straight victory an easy one.

Cramer's blow, a pinch - hit in the sixth innings, came with the bases full. Hooper, who has yet to lose, yielded home runs to Johnny Blatnik and Lou Heyman.

George Byam and Lonnie Frey were the home run hitters in the second game. Clem Hausmann spaced eight hits to record his 8th pitching triumph.

Montreal, meanwhile, edged Rochester Red Wings 2-1 in the first half of a scheduled doubleheader. The game was halted and after five innings because of rain. The second game was postponed.

Sam Jethroe stole home in the first innings for the Royals' first run and Chuck Connors' run-scoring double gave them the winning marker in the fourth. Dick Cole homered for the Wings' only run in the fifth.

Jersey City and Newark divided their doubleheader, the Bears winning the second game in overtime 8-5 after the 'Lil Giants captured the opener 6-4.

Frank Lamanna, third Newark hurler, registered his fourth win in the nightcap. Andy Tomasic kept 10 Newark hits well scattered to pick up his eighth triumph in the opener.

Baltimore Orioles made it three straight over Syracuse Chiefs at Syracuse by taking a doubleheader, 7-5 and 9-5.

Vern Wilson won the first and Ernie Bickhause the second, although neither went the route.

Frank Mancuso hit a three-run homer in the first game for the Orioles and teammate Bob Repass repeated the act in the second.

Ireland's Economy Still is Highly Unsatisfactory

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Dublin, July 5 K (CP)—Though she is more prosperous than ever in her history, the Republic of Ireland's economy still is highly unsatisfactory, says Prime Minister Costello.

The fundamental trouble, he told the Waterford Chamber of Commerce recently, was that over the last 50 years there had been no long - term opportunity for development of the Irish economy. Domestic disturbances and abnormal world conditions had combined constantly to interrupt national growth.

There had been, as a result, "chronic under - investment." There had been resources idle in land, labor and capital and frequently not only was Ireland incapable of exploiting these resources to national advantage but had even been forced to employ them to the profit of other countries.

By assisting capital investment, the state hoped slowly to remedy the position. Meantime the way ahead was difficult.

For Peat's Sake

Another problem— Irish unemployed who refused work offered them — was aired in the dail by Daniel Morrisey, minister for industry and commerce.

From four Labor exchanges 319 men, none over 45, were selected as suitable for the work of cutting peat. Of those, only 9 volunteered for the work. This was a situation "dangerous to this country."

Questioned by an opposition member, Morrisey said he was altogether satisfied with the wages and conditions of work offered. A man could earn up to £8 ($32) weekly cutting peat. And such men were badly needed. The Turf Board was 1,670 men short of its requirement.

"This country," said Morrisey, "cannot afford to keep in idleness men who are able to work and not willing to work."

Butter is rationed in the United Kingdom and therefore in Northern Ireland. Therefore, claims Agriculture Minister Dillon, it must continue to be rationed in the Republic of Ireland.

Asked if butter could not be derationed, he told the dail:

"We could do that tomorrow, but it would all go across the border. I want to keep a bit of it for our own use."

ANOTHER NEW TELEPHONE BUILDING

High Building Costs... Have Raised Our Costs Too!

WE'VE HAD TO BUILD or enlarge 100 telephone buildings in the last three years. We were obliged to do this at a time when building costs were about double pre-war costs.

Yet, up to now, despite rising costs on all sides there has been no increase in the basic telephone rates established 22 years ago.

To meet unprecedented post-war demand for more telephones, our expansion and improvement of service have of necessity taken place in a period of rapidly rising costs. Most businesses have offset their higher costs by higher prices for their products. We have not yet done so.

You can be sure we will keep on doing our best to provide you with adequate and constantly improving telephone service — and to provide it at the lowest rates consistent with a fair return to our investors and employees.

Britain's National Health Scheme Causing Headache to Exchequer

By ASTLEY HAWKINS

London, July 5 — (Reuters)—Britain's national health scheme, with its free medical treatment for Britain's 50,000,000 persons as well as for visitors to the country has given spectacles, glass eyes, artificial limbs, false teeth, wigs, corsets and hot water bottles to thousands during its first year.

But it is causing a headache to the Exchequer.

Reaching its first anniversary today, the scheme, though popular with all its free benefits, has in the last 12 months developed into a chronic topic for national and political argument.

Already running to more than its original estimated annual cost of £155,000,000 ($620,000,000), the health program, some believe, may prove to cost twice that much.

Critics today are asking how Britain's highly-taxed resources can afford it.

Little or no relief was given in the last budget — sharp reminder to taxpayers that public benefits such as free medicine still have to be paid for through taxation.

Free medicine prescriptions made up by druggists were running at a rate of 140,000,000 and 150,000,000 a year.

Estimates Shattered

In recent months, these figures have doubled as the demands on the scheme continue. Nearly all estimates have been shattered and the Ministry of Health has been forced to apply some brakes.

Opticians, dentists and chemists all over the country have never had so much business, or profit, as the health scheme brought them.

Doctors and hospitals, overworked and not so well rewarded, were not as happy.

The public liked the illusion of having something for nothing, but grew restive over delays which the demand for hospital space, spectacles and false teeth created.

Optical factories and dental mechanics are working day and night to cope with the demand for free spectacles and dentures; but new clients still have to wait two or three months before they can be fitted.

Dentists' appointments books are filled for months in advance. A sudden attack of toothache is a thing to be dreaded more than ever, because there is no guarantee of quick treatment.

Doctors have little time for home visits after examining queues of patients at their surgeries.

Hospitals are so crowded that urgent cases sometimes have to travel many miles across country to find an institution with a vacant bed.

No Harsh Laxatives for two years!

Are you constipated due to lack of bulk in the diet? You may get grand relief by eating an ounce of tasty ALL-BRAN, drinking plenty of water daily. If not helped after using one box, send empty carton to Kellogg's, London, Ont. Double your money back!

W.T. Hawkins Ltd Packages First 'Cheezies' Here

Tweed. (Special.) — Three weeks after locating in Tweed, W. T. Hawkins Ltd., began production on Wednesday afternoon with ten men and fifty girls at work, when the first "cheezies" were packaged and placed into cartons to fill waiting orders. Armand Turpin, manager of the local plant, has things well under way. Ray Schoen, superintendent of the firm's Chicago plant, has left for home, after supervising the setting up of the plant.

Jim Marker, who is in charge of all engineering in the Chicago factory, has supervised the installation of the machinery and will remain here for some time. Jim Arrigo, another Chicago man has also been here, lending whatever aid is necessary in the production.

W. T. Hawkins arrived in Tweed on Wednesday armed with sheaves of orders to be filled. Marketed by Kraft Foods, which is handling the national advertising and all distribuiton, the product is likely to find a ready market in Canada and those who have tasted the delicacies are more than pleased.

In addition to the local labor employed at the plant, the packages, which will be marketed across Canada will bring valuable advertising for Tweed.

Medical Party Leaves Queen's For the North

Ottawa, July 5 — (CP) — A seven - man medical expedition from Queen's University in Kingston, will leave here by air today for Canada's northland to study the health and ailments of people in northern latitudes.

The expedition, the fourth to be sent out by the university in the last three years, will make its headquarters at Coral Harbor on Southampton Island, at the northern end of Hudson's Bay.

Members of the expedition, to be headed by Dr. Malcolm Brown of the Medical Faculty at Queen's, will study the effects of climate on health, the high incidence of certain diseases among peoples living in northern latitudes, the lack of certain vitamins in their foods, and the prevalence of parasitic infections among the Eskimos.

Other members of the expedition will include John Green of Burgessville, Ont., a final year medical student at the University, Dr. Thomas Boag, a recent arrival from England who is interning at Kingston General Hospital, Dr. J. D. Hatcher, a Fellow in Physiology at the University of Western Ontario, John Page of Owen Sound, Ont., another final year medical student, Don Delahaye of Kingston and Don Whittier of Ottawa.

The expedition will take with it more than a ton of equipment and a ton of food. Abandoned huts of the United States Air Force's wartime camp at Coral Harbor will be used as headquarters. A clinic will be established there and as many Eskimos as possible will be given a medical check-up in addition to chest examinations and tests for the diseases.

Nationalization of Coal Industry Raises Prices But Miners Better Paid

By H. L. JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 5 — (CP) — This is the year Britain's vast, nationalized coal industry is to stand up and walk by itself.

Viscount Hyndley, chairman of the National Coal Board which runs the Labor government's biggest single experiment in state ownership, said a year ago that after "crawling" in 1948, the industry would "walk" in 1949 and "run" the year after that.

How has his prediction worked out?

Today coal prices are much higher than before nationalization, but miners are better paid. Manpower is still inadequate and is threatening another decline. Production has increased slowly and erratically and is still below pre-war but Britain is exporting coal again. Absenteeism is still high but strikes now are few.

On Jan. 1, 1947, the board became the administrator of the world's largest single business with an annual turnover of £400,000,000 ($1,600,000,000. It took over 1,500 collieries,' the mineral rights to all coal yet unmined and became owner of depots, coke ovens, brick plants, repair shops and power plants. The lot cost £164,000,000, a bill it will take years to repay.

Target of Criticism

In the first year of nationalization 1,600 strikes cost 1,652,000 tons of coal. A fuel crisis developed and the board was forced to sacrifice some of its long-term plans in order to maintain production. It was the target of much criticism for losing money.

Now after two years, board spokesmen admit that things are still in a "critical" stage, despite the fact that in 1948 a profit of £1,700,000 was reported compared with a deficit of £23,000,000 in 1947.

The miners themselves were the biggest agitators for nationalization. Today their ranks total about 723,000, a drop from 726,000 at the start of the year but comparing favorably with the low of 692,000 when the board took over. They generally agree that things are better in the mines under state ownership.

They work a five-day week, enjoy higher wages, better and safer working conditions, are being given modern mechanical aids in the pits, better housing and medical facilities and educational opportunities. Whole mining communities are being moved from uneconomic coal areas to better mines.

But there have been grumbles on both sides. Some miners complain of board "redtape," charge "you have to know someone" to get ahead.

The board is not satisfied with response of the men to calls for more production. One board spokesman said recently that some miners were reporting "sick," drawing tax-free compensation and winding up as well off financially as if they had worked. A bonus plan to induce higher production has been termed a failure.

Board spokesman says that to bring British mines to a high level of efficiency and production will be a long, hard job. But the coal board does not intend to try to run before it can walk.

Enjoyable Picnic

The pupils and teachers of the Shannonville Junior and Senior rooms had a very enjoyable picnic last Monday on the beach near Mr. Fred Louis fish house. The pupils hiked there and back and on arrival at the beach were quite ready for their lunch. The teachers, Miss Verna Fox and Mr. Orville Reynolds supplemented the lunch with a treat of oranges and soft drinks.

After a swim in the Bay of Quinte, a ball game was played and enjoyed by both participants and spectators.

A tired but happy crowd wended their way home around 4.30 p.m. To the majority this picnic was the ending of their school term, while the entrance class returned to school this week to write departmental exams.

Farewell to Teachers

Milltown teacher and pupils recently enjoyed a picnic at "Flat Rock" as a climax to their school year and to bid farewell to their teach Miss McGee, of Stirling, who will not be returning next term.

A number enjoyed a swim and others participated in playing ball. All enjoyed the treat of wieners and soft drinks.

Shannonville Orange Hall was a busy spot last Monday afternoon when it served as the polling booth for this vicinity. In charge of the polls were Mrs. Sid Fitzgerald, Messrs. Kenneth Juby and Harry Sine.

Bandits Threaten Banker and Wife At Gunpoint

Fail to Force Papineauville Manager to Open Bank Vault

Papineauville, Que., July 6.—(CP)—Ontario Provincial Police patrolling the Ottawa-Montreal highway were told to keep a sharp lookout today for two bandits who Tuesday night made their getaway after an unsuccessful attempt to rob a branch of the Banque Provinciale in this town 35 miles northeast of Ottawa.

Officers of the Quebec Department from Buckingham, Lachute and other points in the area were staging a hunt for the bandits, questioning people living along the highway between Papineauville and Buckingham for possible clues.

The bandits fled in a burst of gunfire, without loot, after striking Mrs. Medard Lalonde, the manager's wife, in the mouth. They held the manager and his wife at gunpoint for more than an hour, trying to force him to open the bank vault.

Detective John Ross of the Hull detachment of the Quebec Provincial police was on the scene early today directing the search for the two gunmen. He awaited arrival of members of the Provincial Police holdup squad from Montreal to take over the investigation.

The men entered the Lalonde apartment in the Provincial Bank of Canada building here while the manager and his wife were watching a small fire in the barn on the outskirts of the village.

Attention Diverted.

When they returned, the two bandits ordered Mr. Lalonde to open the vault. When he said he could not do it alone, they indicated they would spend the rest of the night in the apartment.

The attention of the bandits was diverted when the Lalondes' daughter returned from the fire and Mrs. Lalonde ran yelling to the street. One of the bandits hit her in the mouth in a futile attempt to stop her.

Mrs. Lalonde, in poor health fainted after her ordeal.

The bandits drove off in the direction of Buckingham, 10 miles east of here.

Montreal, (CP) — Provincial police headquarters said today the only clues they had to the attempted robbery of a Papineauville Bank branch Tuesday night was that the bandits were a "Mutt and Jeff" pair.

Hilaire Beauregard, assistant director, said the description which he had of the men who entered the apartment of Medard Lalonde, manager of the Provincial Bank of Canada branch, was that one was six feet tall and the other about five feet, five inches.

Rob Banker

He said both were apparently "country boys" because they were dressed in rough clothing.

Although they took no loot from the bank, police said, the pair took $10 and a watch from Lalonde.

PROTESTS SHOWING

The Hague, July 6 (Reuters)—The Russian ambassador to The Netherlands, Vassily Valkov, has protested against the showing in this country of the American film about alleged Soviet espionage, "The Iron Curtain", it was learned here.

ONTARIO'S CROPS BELOW AVERAGE SAYS REPORT

Conditions in Manitoba Excellent and Improvement Seen in Saskatchewan and Alberta

Ottawa, July 6 — (CP)—Ontario's crops are below average, Manitoba's are excellent and crop conditions have improved in part of the Saskatchewan - Alberta dry belt.

British Columbia crops are "backward" as a result of cloudy weather and light rainfall, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday in a regular telegraphic crop report.

Crop conditions in the Maritimes and Quebec were satisfactory.

Rains in Ontario during the last two weeks checked crop deterioration after the worst drought on record in the province but moisture conditions in Central and Southwestern Ontario are "still very unsatisfactory," the bureau said. Field crop production is expected to be poor in central parts of the province.

Fruits up, Vegetables Down

In a separate report Tuesday, the bureau predicted moderate increases in Canadian fruit production this year but a sharp reduction in vegetable production.

In Manitoba, rain was needed around Morden, 65 miles southeast of Winnipeg, but crops were "generally excellent."

Dusty southwest Saskatchewan still was plagued by drought and the bureau said "fall rye is almost a complete failure in this area and it is too late for other grains to make any substantial recovery."

Alberta crop prospects had improved but all parts of the province will need further rain. In parts of East Central Alberta the rains came too late to help crops badly damaged by drought.

Almost all crops in British Columbia, expected low yields as a result of cold weather and light rainfall.

UK Govt. Orders Troops Unload Food Ships

London, July 6 (CP).—The government today ordered troops into the London waterfront to unload food ships paralyzed by a strike of stevedores.

The strike continued to spread today despite a threat by United States dock workers to boycott British ships there unless it stops.

Most of the ships harbor-locked by the Thames River strike carry food for rationed Londoners. Labor Minister George Isaacs told parliament the government had decided to use troops as a means of "safeguarding food supplies".

Meanwhile another 93 men ceased work today at the London docks, bringing the total involved in the stoppage to 8,577. Ninety-five ships are idle and eight are under-manned in the strike which started two weeks ago.

LAW AGAINST LYNCHING

Austin, Tex., July 6 (AP) — The legislature Tuesday passed Texas' first specific law against lynching. By a voice vote the Senate approved the measure and sent it to Governor Beauford Jester. Earlier in the session, Jester recommended passage of the bill as "a matter which the state can and will handle with federal help or interference."

FINANCIAL MEN WILL DISCUSS DOLLAR CRISIS

Ministers of Canada And Britain to Meet

London, July 6 — (Reuters) — Talks between the finance ministers of Canada and Britain here Saturday may be more important than the meeting of Commonwealth finance ministers July 13.

Canada and France are the two countries most precariously balanced between the sterling and United States dollar areas.

The French, United States and British economic triangle was probably discussed when Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France met Foreign Secretary Bevin and Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, during a flying visit to London Monday.

In the present crisis Britain could immediately believe her dollar plight by defaulting her Canadian bulk contracts for wheat, cheese, bacon and timber. She could then get these goods from the United States with Marshall - plan dollars instead of from Canada with her own dollars.

But this would merely transfer a large part of Britain's dollar crisis to Canada and Britain is morally as well as contractually bound to her Canadian contracts.

409 Million at Stake

No less than $409,000,000 is at stake in them compared with the $40,000,000 dollars at stake in last week's Paris Conference.

On the wheat contract for $300,000,000 a year and the cheese contract for $15,000,000, the United States has already made it clear that Marshall-plan dollars will be provided for purchases from the United States and not from Canada or any other country.

Similar action is expected on all or part of Britain's $56,000,000 contract for Canadian bacon and $38,000,000 for Canadian timber.

Britain is committed for the Canadian wheat contract for another 13 months and to the others up to the end of this year. Britain might encounter sheer. inability to pay for these contracts unless Canada can enlarge her present credits of $10,000,000 a month to Britain.

Either course would be serious for Canada since the cash dollar payments from Britain for these contracts play an important part in squaring Canada's accounts with the United States.

Quebec Crops About Average, Rainfall Helps

Quebec, July 6 — (CP) — Crop conditions in Quebec are "about average and the outlook is satisfactory," the June report of the Quebec Bureau of Statistics said today.

Rainy weather at the end of June considerably improved the condition of most crops. Haymaking has begun and prospects differ widely according to locality.

In the Ottawa River Valley recent rain helped vegetation. Hay is being cut but the crop is smaller than last year. Grain crops promise to be normal while strawberry growth was satisfactory.

Radio-activity Section Set Up Under Mines, Resources Dept.

Ottawa, July 6 — (CP)—Keeping up with the atomic age, the Department of Mines and Resources Department has set up a new section — known as the Division of Radio-Activity.

Establishment of the new department was announced today by Mines Minister Gibson who said it is the result of increased interest in Canada in the hunt for radioactive minerals.

The division was formerly a part of the mineral dressing and metallurgy division, which also contained sections in charge of mineral dressing and metallurgy. Departments have now been set up separately for the three sections.

The radioactivity unit, headed by Arvid Thunaes, specialist in metallurgy, will maintain the chemical and physical laboratories which aid the radioactive mineral and prospecting industry.

Notably increased interest in this work and in more efficient methods of detecting radioactive ore deposits has continued to multiply the demands upon such services, Mr. Gibson said.

Boycott Against British Ships in U.S. Ports Announced by Union

Montreal, July 6. (CP)—The Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.) today announced that a boycott against all British ships in Eastern United States ports will start tonight. The rival Canadian Seamen's Union immediately called it "nothing short of blackmail against the British people."

The boycott was announced by Hal C. Banks, S.I.U. International representative, who said it is a reprisal against refusal of British dockworkers to work Canadian vessels.

Banks said he advised Prime Minister Attlee in a cable of the action which will be taken at midnight by longshoremen and port workers in U.S. east coast ports. His cable to the British Prime Minister said: "Regret to inform you that all British ships will be boycotted in Eastern U.S. ports as of July 7."

Harry Davis, president of the rival C.S.U. which called a strike against Canadian east-coast shipowners March 31, when they signed with the S.I.U., gave his Union's views in a prepared statement.

The leader of the allegedly Communist- led C.S.U. said the boycott "proves once again how false is the smear campaign that the seamen's strike is a red plot."

Banks, leader in Canada of the strongly-rightist S.I.U., said the boycott is a reprisal against British dockers who have acted in sympathy with the striking C.S.U. and refuse to work Canadian ships.

More than 80 vessels, two of them Canadian freighters, now are tied up in Britain because of the British dockers' action.

"If they want desperate action, they'll get it," Bank said. "There are more than 3,000 British ships docked along the Atlantic seaboard and the Maritime Trades Council have assured the Seafarer' Union that the boycott will be observed."

(C.S.U. President Harry Davis said the figure of 3,000 ships "sound a little exaggerated". Mr. Banks could not be reached immediately for elaboration.)

The Union official said the Maritime Trades Council includes seamen, longshoremen, teamsters and other port workers on the U.S. Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

He recalled that Mr. Attlee had recently urged the dockers to return to work.

"But he has not had much success," Banks said. "When the British Merchant Marine, which is carrying Marshall aid to European ports, finds itself worse than becalmed along the Atlantic seaboard, it should spark British authorities into action."

British Warships Will Defend Any U.K. Ship Attacked In China, Says Admiral

Tokyo, July 6 (Reuters)—British warships will defend any British ship attacked in Chinese waters wherever possible, Admiral Sir Patrick Brind, commander-in-chief of the British Far Eastern Station, told a press conference here today.

"Neither side is entitled to attack British shipping by sea or air and British warships will stop that wherever possible," he said.

(The Nationalist government has ordered "closure" of Communist--held ports in China.)

The admiral confirmed that the British aircraft carrier Triumph is on its way to Hong Kong to be ready to operate from the colony.

"There may be another carrier should it be needed," the admiral added.

The British government has told the Chinese Nationalist government that it cannot recognize the "closure" of Chinese territorial waters from Foochow to Manchuria imposed by the Chinese Nationalists on June 25.

The Chinese replied by saying that conditions in the areas declared closed were still unsettled, and urged the British government to warn its shipping not to enter these waters.

Shift of Wind Blows Flames From Nfld. Mining Settlement

Buchans, Nfld., July 6. (CP)—A treacherous forest fire lurking on the outskirts of this central Newfoundland mining town was brought under control today for the second time by volunteer firefighters.

The fire roared out earlier today to threaten this town's railway link with the rest of the island and it also burned furiously near the airport.

It was brought under control after a four-hour battle during which a shift of wind assisted the volunteers.

For a time there was danger that telephone and telegraph communication might again be severed.

Tuesday a west wind swung a wall of flame away from this town of 5,000 at a time when the settlement seemed doomed. Armed with bulldozers and other equipment, firefighters followed the fire, hoping to master it, but it sprang up out of control again early today.

Meanwhile, one home was destroyed by another forest fire at the western farming village of Cormac, where some 200 homes are being built by the Newfoundland government for veterans. That fire was brought under control except for scattered patches of smouldering bog.

BOY SHOOTS SELF

Winter Haven, Fla., July 6 (AP) — A 17-year-old high school musician died Tuesday of a shotgun charge he fired into his side as he talked to his girl friend over the telephone. Betty Thrasher, 16, said she heard a gun hammer click twice and then an explosion as she begged William C. Rackley, 17, not to shoot himself.

Oil Company Raises Price Of Gasoline

Toronto, July 6 — (CP) — A half-cent a gallon increase in the wholesale price of gasoline in Ontario and Quebec was announced today by Imperial Oil Ltd.

The increase brought retail prices in Imperial Service stations in Toronto to 40½ cents for premium grades and 38½ cents for regular grades.

A company spokesman said the increase follows a recent half-cent increase in the Maritimes and earlier increases in prices at eastern U. S. and Gulf Coast points.

He said there would be no increase in the wholesale price in Western Canada.

Officials of other oil companies in Toronto said they were considering the move by Imperial and would probably follow suit.

TRY TO ISOLATE BATTLE

East Orange, N. J., July 5 — (AP) — The United States Department of Agriculture announced Tuesday it was blockading a 128,000 square mile area on the eastern seaboard in an attempt to isolate the Japanese beetle. The blockade extends from Southern Maine to North Carolina. All fruits, vegetables and cut flowers moving out of the area are affected.

SHIPPING STRIKE BLAMED ON UNION BY GOVERNMENT

C.S.U. Called Upon To Cancel Walkout

Ottawa, July 6 — (CP)—The Canadian government has bluntly called the east-coast shipping strike a failure and advised the striking Canadian Seamen's Union to call it off.

The government put full blame for the strike on the executive of the red-influenced C. S. U., now under suspension from the Trades and Labor Congress.

Arthur MacNamara, Deputy - Minister of Labor, placed responsibility for the strike on C. S. U. President Harry Davis, Secretary - Treasurer T. G. McManus and their "associates."

He made the statement in a letter released Tuesday, replying to a four - point proposal by the C. S. U. executive for settling the strike.

It started March 31, after east-coast deep sea operators began signing contracts with the anti-communist Seafarers' International Union (A. F. L.) The strike has spread to 35 world ports and tied up more than half of the 80-ship Canadian merchant fleet.

Mr. McNamara's letter, addressed to the two union men, said they called the strike "without consulting anyone."

"The events which have transpired since then can all be laid at the door of the union executive in making these disastrous decisions and now that the strike has failed and has been a disastrous one for the seamen and their families and the future of the shipping industry in Canada, my recommendation to you is to call off the strike immediately."

He said the Labor Department will do its best to get operators to put their ships back in service, if the C. S. U. stops the strike.

The C. S. U. proposals for ending the strike were rehiring of all strikers without discrimination, payment of all wages to strikers owing them prior to the strike and while returning ships to home port, holding of a government - supervised vote aboard the ships to let the seamen pick their own union and dropping of all charges against strikers.

Make Marriage Bit Easier to Get

Toronto, July 6 — (CP) — They're going to make marriage just a little bit easier to get into in Ontario.

Beginning Aug. 2, one of two forms now required for marriage will be eliminated and the officiating clergyman won't have to ply the bride and groom with a series of questions. All he'll have to do is certify as to the persons being married.

The couple, however, still will have to fill in answers to 29 questions required by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

No Immediate Break Appears In U.S. Longest Heat Wave

New York, July 6 (AP) — No immediate break appeared today in the summer season's longest heat wave over an area from the Atlantic coast to the Rocky Mountains.

Some showers fell in scattered sections of the hot belt in the United States but in most places they afforded only temporary relief.

There were heat deaths and prostration cases reported from all sections of the torrid zone.

Most of the midwest was weary from a week of hot, sticky weather. The eastern states also sizzled in the searing heat. And in the northeastern area there was no sign of rain to break the long drought. The new heat wave only added to further damage farm crops already badly wilted by seven weeks of rainless weather. Crop losses in the region have been estimated at more than $50,000,000.

The United States Weather Bureau said the only comfortable spots over the two-thirds of the country in the grip of the hot weather were the northern border states. Temperatures also were pleasant along the Pacific coast.

But the heat was on full blast in the central, eastern and southern states. Some rain fell in the upper lakes region and north central states. But generally after the showers the mercury started to climb and humidity increased.

New temperature records for the date were set in many cities yesterday as the mercury ranged between 99 and 100. At Lancaster, Pa., the reading was 101 for the second straight day. At Springfield and Youngstown the top was 103

A temperature of 100 degrees buckled the concrete pavement on a highway near Owensboro, Ky. The bulge in the pavement was as high as 18 inches in some spots.

Bans Purchases In Dollar Area Except in Need

No Intention to Devalue Pound Says Chancellor

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 6 — (CP)—Britain will mark time on new dollar spending for at least three months and then may make further retrenchments, Sir Stafford Cripps today told the House of Commons.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer said it may be necessary to reduce imports of some foodstuffs and raw materials from dollar areas in an effort to cope with Britain's "new and dangerous financial position." Britain, he added, however, "has not the slightest intention of devaluing the pound."

The Chancellor announced this "corrective action" after soberly warning that the sterling area's reserves have fallen to £406,000,000 ($1,624,000) as of last June 30 compared to £471,000,000 last March 31.

Contracts to Remain

Existing contracts — such as agreements with Canada on wheat, cheese and bacon — will remain in force.

Sir Stafford said the government reluctantly advised all purchasing departments to postpone new dollar purchases to "the maximum extent practicable."

"But specific authority will be required for any new dollar purchases and will only be given when a clear case of urgent national interest is established."

The new import program would be drawn up shortly. It was hoped it would go into effect by September.

Sir Stafford reiterated the familiar appeal for greater efficiency in production and restraint in wage demands. He said any other course would lead to lowering of the standard of living.

He expressed hope that the rising trend of exports to Canada would continue.

Must Establish Need

Existing contracts for dollar - area purchases will stay in force, Sir Stafford told the House of Commons, but the treasury will permit further spending only "where a clear case of urgent national interest is established."

PRODUCTION HIGH

London, July 6 (Reuters)—Britain's weekly production rate for automobiles and commercial vehicles in May was the highest in her history, it was announced Tuesday night. Average weekly car production for May was 7,902 compared with the previous weekly record rate of 7,535 in March.

PRODUCTION SETS PEACETIMERECORD DURING APRIL

Index Reaches 187.2 Compared With 184.1 at Same Time Last Year

Ottawa, July 6—(CP)—Canada set a peacetime production record during April. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics production index reached 187.2, compared with 184.1 at the same time last year.

During 1943 and 1944 the index —computed on 1935-39 equals 100 —hovered just below 199.

Production of cars and trucks and transportation equipment jumped to the highest levels since 1945 to help boost the index. The motor vehicles index zoomed from 189.3 in March to 212.9 and the transportation equipment index went from 252.5 in March to 266.7.

At the same time, the Bureau's review of current economic conditions reported 270 commercial failures during the first three months of 1949, the largest quarterly total since 1941.

Wholesale prices of farm products were higher, going from 147.3 in April to 147.6 in May as compared with 150.4 in May last year.

Production drops since April last year were shown in pulp and paper, coal and foods and beverages.

199,000 Unemployed

The Bureau estimated 199,000 unemployed in the country in March, some 4.1 per cent of the total number of persons over 15 working or available for work. Labor income during the month was $605,000,000.

The index of metallic mineral production was 107. during April, up from 103. in April last year and coal production was 108.

Electric power production was 194 3. against 174.5 a year ago.

The goods and beverages index stood at 178.6, a drop from the 181.4 recorded in April, 1948. Iron and steel products production was 233.0 compared with 255.8 and pulp and paper was 174.4 compared with 176.

The trade section of the report noted that the removal of restrictions on imports from the United States and increased Canadian travel in the U.S. were responsible for the bigger adverse trade balance with that country. The adverse balance for the first four months of the year had increased from $155,900,000 in 1948 to $197,900,000 this year.

DIAMOND, SIGNET RINGS RETURNED TO BUFFALO COUPLE

Scarcely believing in their good fortune a Buffalo couple rode happily homewards yesterday.

The gentleman of the party on Saturday left two rings, one a diamond circlet valued at $500 and the other a valuable signet ring, in the washroom of a city hotel.

A story in this newspaper on Saturday stating that a suitable reward would be paid for the return of the jewelry had results. For on Monday the rings were returned to the hotel management and subsequently to their more or less surprised owners.

Pranksters Will Be Punished Says Police Chief

As result of a recent epidemic of awning fires in the downtown section of the city which are believed to have been caused from cigarette butts, Police Chief Walter Probert warned today that police action would be taken against pranksters who intentionally toss cigarettes onto awnings.

In one or two cases awning fires in the business section could only be explained by cigarette butts intentionally tossed up onto the awnings. In these cases there were no apartments with open windows above from which a cigarette butt might have been carelessly dropped.

"Pranksters found responsible for starting awning fires by carelessly thrown cigarettes will be severely dealt with," stated the police chief.

Hearing to Take Place in City

To avoid any possible further outbreak in connection with Monday night's attack on the chief of police at Deseronto, the hearing of George Baptiste, Deseronto Indian charged with obstructing a police officer, may be heard in Belleville, it was stated today by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan.

Provincial police at Belleville say George Baptiste was pointed out to them by Chief Albert Marks as the man who had interfered when he was taking a drunk home.

The incident occurred during an Old Home Week celebration at Deseronto and the resulting riot sent three to hospital, including Chief Marks, AC1 J. B. Theriault, and Joseph S. Maracle, who is said to have received a bullet wound in the leg. Chief Marks received a mauling at the hands of the mob.

Baptiste who was taken into custody by provincial police has been remanded but according to the Crown Attorney it is doubtful whether the case will proceed this week. Chief Marks is still confined to hospital.

PICTON

Town Tax Rate Raised Two Mills To Stand at 56

Picton, July 6 — The tax rate for the town of Picton was increased two mills when the rate was struck last night at 56 mills for 1949. The increase is due to the fact that part of the cost of the first installment of the second series of debentures for sewerage installation are included, and account for about four mills on the rate. Another factor is the increase in the county rate by three mills and $45,000 budgetted for improvement to town streets following the installation of sewerage.

The increased expenditures were offset in part by reduced requisitions for collegiate and public school purposes, this being four mills less than last year. The provincial subsidy on cost of police and fire protection also assisted in keeping the rate down.

Estimated expenditures are $81,752.58 with estimated receipts of $39,839.87.

The rates include 12.60 mills for county; 1.32 for public library; 7:15 for public schools; 2.68 for collegiate; .55 for public school debentures; 1.04 for public utilities debentures; 14.30 for sewerage debenture rate; 1.00 mill for relief a total set rate of 40.64 mills. The additional mills are accounted for by streets and general expenditures.

Must Water Early

If Picton residents wish to water their lawns they will have to rise early. It was announced yesterday that watering hours will be from 5 to 8 a.m. This has been found necessary due to the increased demand for water and the necessity of having a sufficient supply on hand to fight any fires. During the month of June five million more gallons of water were pumped at the local station, according to Milton Branscombe. The total for the month was 19,850,000 gallons. Residents are enjoying water with less chlorine due to the fact that more water has moved into the bay from Lake Ontario. Water is pumped from the bay to a reservoir situated on Macaulay's mountain at the rear of the town.

Colorful Display

United States visitors celebrated Independence Day at the Outlet summer resort Monday night with a colorful display of fireworks. A crowd of nearly 2,000 was present to see the spectacular show.

The Outlet, long famed for its sand beach, was the most popular spot over the weekend. County Constable James Lovelace estimated that 1,500 persons were in swimming there on Sunday at one time.

Also evidence of the great influx of tourists over the weekend was the number of cars carried by Glenora ferry. Capt. Robert McLeod reported that the total for four days was 2,670 cars. The smaller ferry was pressed into service during rush hours.

To Sponsor Project

Prince Edward Federation of Agriculture will sponsor a calfhood vaccination project in the county, it was decided at a meeting this week. Two persons in each school section will be appointed to arrange to have all calves ready on the appointed days, so that the work can be done more efficiently and less costly. It was stressed that vaccination is an important factor in the sale of cattle, especially for export, and that since it is expected there will be a heavy sale of cattle this fall due to lack of feed, this work should be done at once.

A report of the International Federation of Agriculture Producers' Conference held recently at Guelph was given by William Nightingale. Co-op insurance was discussed.

Police Blotter

A strange quietus in city police activities was seen during the past twenty-four hours in which only two occurrences were entered in the occurrence book.

For the first time in several weeks there were no drunks picked up and neither were any traffic offenders listed. There were no break-ins and there was no report of thefts.

But an Eldorado woman, Mrs. C. Chidley lost her suitcase. The woman from Madoc township had alighted from a train at the north station and had hired a taxi to come downtown. The taxi driver forgot the suitcase and left it standing on the station platform. It was gone when the owner returned for it.

New York, July 6. (AP)—Five persons still are missing and nine known dead from a violent wind and rain squall that raked the New York Metropolitan area on Monday.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer said Britain must reduce the price of her products to encourage exports. He said this can be done through efficiency of production and "We have no desire to see wages cut."

The "standstill" in dollar buying which Sir Stafford ordered will continue at least until September. By then E. R. P. funds for the coming year will be distributed, and a new scheme of payments among European controls will be in effect.

"We shall get out a new import program in the light of circumstances which then exist." he said.

The Chancellor said he and John W. Snyder, United States Secretary of the Treasury, will discuss "the whole matter" this weekend in conferences here. Canada will be represented at the talks. Then next Wednesday the finance ministers of the Dominion will meet with Sir Stafford to give their views.

Speaks To Commons

The sterling area comprises all British countries except Canada and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, and also Burma, Iceland and Iraq. Previously, the danger point of sterling reserves has been considered as around $2,000,000,000. The reserves now have sunk nearly $400,000,000 below that.

Sir Stafford told the Commons: "The problem of the relationship between the sterling and dollar worlds is not one to which the United Kingdom alone can find a problem. It is a problem in which our friends and partners of the United States and the Commonwealth are especially involved.

"We must seek together a long-term remedy for the stubborn problems of the balance of trade between the western hemisphere and the rest of the world, of which the sterling area forms an important part."

He said diminishing exports to the United States were the main reason for the drain on Britain's reserves.

Immediate Action Needed

"A drain upon our reserves at present rate calls for immediate corrective action as well as for longer term and more fundamental measures."

As a first step, he said, all purchasing departments of the British government have been told to postpone dollar buying wherever possible.

"Existing contracts and commitments will remain in force," Cripps said, but specific authority will be required for any new dollar purchases and will only be given where a clear case of urgent national interest is established."

He continued:

"Dollar expenditure other than on imports will only be permitted where essential and then at a reduced rate."

"Unless the sterling area succeeds in restoring the volume of its sales to the dollar area, these restrictions upon dollar expenditure will have to be continued."

Cut Out New Program

"As soon as the distribution of E.R.P. aid for the coming year has taken place and the new intra-European payments scheme has come into operation we shall get out a new import program in the light of the circumstances which then exist.

"We hope to have such a program completed in September."

(Finance ministers of the Dominions will discuss the crisis with the Chancellor of the Exchequer here next week.)

When those talks are over, Sir Stafford said, "we shall have to reconsider the situation in the light of any decisions reached."

He said it may prove necessary to "reduce consumption of certain selected foodstuffs which are primarily drawn from the dollar area and of certain raw materials."

Tobacco, wheat, cotton and gasoline might fall within this category, although Sir Stafford did not single out any specific import.

Sir Stafford said the "standstill" order to government departments on dollar purchases "is no solution for our difficulties" although it was "absolutely essential".

He said it would have "little immediate effect in reducing the drain on our reserves."

Try To Increase Trade

While it is in force, "the government will press on with every practicable method of increasing our export trade, above all the sale of goods and services for dollars."

The critical situation "demonstrates the need for positive long term policies," Sir Stafford said.

He said Britain must reduce her export prices. The time is past, he declared, for "the rather easy methods resulting from the unlimited demand of the last ten years" for export goods.

Sir Stafford said there must be "complete co-operation" on the part of everybody in Britain.

"While we have no desire to see wages cut we must and can cut down costs," he said, "and this we can do if we increase our efficiency of production."

He said British treasury officials "have not the slightest intention of devaluating the pound."

Sales Well Maintained

"It is good to know that our sales to Canada were well maintained in May and that in that month they were very nearly an all-time record. We hope these exports will be increased still further," he said.

"We are also hopeful that our exports to the United States will resume their upward tendency.

"Success in that task does of course also depend on the willingness of the United States and Canada to accept our exports and to continue to purchase the raw materials which the sterling area can supply.

"When the discussions with the dominions' finance ministers are over we should have to reconsider the situation in the light of any decisions reached and it may then become necessary to reduce consumption of certain selected foodstuffs which are certain raw materials."

OBITUARY

THOMAS HILL
(Shannonville)

Well-known Indian veteran of the first world war, Sgt.-Maj. Thomas Hill died at his home four miles east of Shannonville, on the Tyendinaga Reserve early today following a lengthy illness. He was 73 years of age.

One of the first residents of the Mohawk Reserve to join the Canadian army in World War I, the late Mr. Hill served overseas for a number of years with the famous 21st Battalion. An expert rifle shot prior to enlistment, he specialized in musketry after joining the army and became one of the crack sharpshooters of the Canadian army overseas.

He was a good soldier, and his ability, and leadership soon brought him promotion. In the field he was fearless and led his men with the courage characteristic of his race, and a heritage from his Indian forbears. He slowly climbed the ladder of promotion and was discharged with the rank of company sergeant-major.

The late "Tommy" was a popular figure with war veterans both on the reserve and in Belleville. He commanded the respect and admiration of his "white" comrades especially in Branch 201 Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada here. He was quiet, unassuming and extremely modest regarding his military exploits. His greatest treasure was a valuable 'sergeant-major's' sword presented to him years ago by respectful comrades. "Tommy" will be missed in war veteran circles as well as in his own environment of family and friends.

Born on the Reserve, the son of the late Henry and Mary Hill, the late war veteran lived in the locality in which he died, all his life with the exception of the years of war service.

Surviving are his widow, the former Sarah Elizabeth Brant and four sons, Henry, of Oshawa; Abraham and Thomas at home; and Russell, of Buffalo, N.Y. He was a member of All Saints Anglican Church, Tyendinaga Reserve.

The funeral notice appears elsewhere.

JAMES WESLEY PARKS
(Plainfield)

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 6. (CP)—Base metals turned strong in mid-session while golds were under mild selling pressure here today. Activity slowed considerably from Tuesday. A few industrials climbed steadily.

Early activity in base metals was dull but prices suddenly swung ahead in mid-session with key issues leading the way. Consolidated Smelters, Hudson Bay, International Nickel, and Noranda, the Big-Four group, were ahead fractions in brisker activity.

Golds continued under selling pressure as investors continued to realize profits on Monday's advances. The statement from London that England would not devalue the pound tended to depress activity since some recent buying has been attributed to devaluation talk.

Junior producers showed losses ranging up to 15 cents and a few seniors eased fractions.

Selected industrials were in slight demand for fractional advances. Imperial oil added a fraction following announcement of an increase in gasoline prices in Ontario and Quebec.

HOGS

Toronto, July 6 (CP) — Hog prices were $1 higher at Stratford today. Grade A were $31.85 from farmers and $32 from truckers.

At Hull, Que., dressed grade A hogs advanced $1 at $32.75 delivered.

An advance of $1 was shown at Peterborough as grade A hogs were quoted at $31.40, plus transportation.

Compete With Established Literatures

Halifax, July 6—(CP)—Philip Child, 1949 Ryerson Fiction award winner, said here Tuesday Canada's literature is not "as full and mature" as that of England and the United States, but Canadian writers have to compete with the long established literature of other lands.

Speaking at a civic luncheon tendered delegates to the Canadian Authors' Association convention, Dr. Child expressed hope that Canada's literature would "not merely record, but interpret the mind and spirit of the people of Canada in time to come."

Vandenberg Asks Senate to Ratify Atlantic Pact

Washington, July 6 — (AP)—Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan today asked the Senate to ratify the North Atlantic Pact as a shield for free men against "embattled, greedy Communism."

He opened the second day of debate on the 12-power alliance with the double-barreled statement that (1) Communism is the sole threat to world peace and (2) its final target is the United States.

The treaty will be a warning to would-be conquerors, Vandenberg said in his prepared text, that 300,000,000 people will resist aggression.

As republican leader in Foreign Affairs, he added the weight of his prestige to that of Senator Tom Connally (Dem. Tex.) who led off in the debate Tuesday.

As Vandenberg spoke, Senate leaders saw a good chance to win final approval of the treaty in less than a week of debate. They were encouraged by a general lack of opposition to the Act and its stated purpose of heading off any attack on the Western, non-Communist world. A two-thirds vote of approval by the Senate is needed to bind the United States to the treaty.

Vandenberg called the treaty "the best available implement to discourage armed aggression and thus to stop another war before it starts."

"In my view," he said, "the pact's invincible power for peace is the awesome fact that any aggressor upon the North Atlantic community knows in advance that from the very moment he launches his conquest he will forthwith face whatever cumulative opposition these united allies deem necessary to beat him to his knees and to restore peace and security."

About $1,500,000 of the debentures will be used to finance buildings for the new 250 - bed Peterborough hospital.

Where the Bank fits into this Picture

When you travel, set your mind at ease on the score of the safety of your money. The Bank makes it possible through Travellers' Cheques. In effect, a book of Travellers' Cheques, which you can obtain at any branch of the Bank, is "money" that is readily negotiable anywhere you travel—and yet money in a form that secures you against the risks of loss or theft. The bank charge is trifling—only 50 cents per $100 in domestic travellers' cheques, or 75 cents per $100 for foreign travel.

BE A MODERATE DRIVER

The other day Ontario Highways Minister, the Hon. George H. Doucett, expressed the view that motorists would get much more enjoyment and true pleasure if they form a habit — a good one — of driving moderately and taking it easy instead of trying to force their way through dense traffic. He believes that open stretches of highway should not be looked upon as the excuse for a burst of speed but rather as welcome intermissions which will ease the mental and physical strain of driving when traffic is very heavy.

The Minister points out the significant fact that should never be forgotten, that the top speed of fifty miles an hour is a wise measure for the driver has only to realize what will happen at this speed if he needs to make a sudden stop—the car will go 55 feet before the driver's foot can touch the brake pedal and will then travel another 111 feet before the best of brakes will stop his car. That means the distance of 166 feet in all will be covered under the most ideal conditions. What even that distance may mean in safety is worth consideration. Then besides conditions at the time may not be ideally favorable and then the stopping distance is much greater. And what of the driver who is exceeding the speed limit of 50 miles an hour? How much farther will it take him to stop his car and will he be able to stop it before someone is injured? That is a terrifying predicament to face.

What makes careful driving of a car so necessary is that this is the time when the roads are cluttered with almost every car that is in use. The more there are on the road, the greater the risk of acident.

So the advice to take it easy is good advice for safety's sake and for peace of mind.

NO RISK

Yesterday the weather synopsis seemed rather naive in its forecast when it said that "there is a risk of thundershowers." After what five or six weeks have done to parch the crops of the fields and the skin of the people, there are not many who will consider a thundershower "a risk." Some electric storms may be severe and strike heavy blows but there are many thundershowers or thunderstorms which are almost gentle in their behavior. Thunderstorms are sometimes violent but not so violent that people are not familiar with them. If there are enough thundershowers to cool the air and prevent torrid temperatures surely no one will object and think the risk too great.

People have a strong recollection of what dry weather —not so dry as it has been this year — did for us last year when it made the water levels low and in due course compelled Hydro authorities to impose blackouts for a good share of the latter part of last autumn.

Rain remains the great need to help fill the reservoirs of water however incompletely. Rain is needed for the crops yet to mature, for the pastures, and for the fields. Man and beast need water. Electric power plants need large volumes of water to draw from for power and light.

ONE OF THOSE PERFECT DAYS

Long weeks of dry weather and heat have gone by and like a breath from spring has come the touch of cooler weather, just about the time people were feeling almost discouraged and certain that the end of the heat wave was not yet for a long time.

Comparatively by surprise it stole in during the night of Monday like a thief but unlike the thief left a kindly gentle cooler atmosphere for everybody which was felt all day Tuesday and for once at least in their lives in this season everyone seemed perfectly happy.

If it grows very hot again this year the inhabitants of this part of the earth can look and pray for nothing more kindly than such cooler hours which ended for the moment at least the ninety-degree temperatures to which everyone was growing acustomed.

As those things man likes are appreciated by contrast so this cooler spell brought that contrast which set Tuesday as a day apart from the like of such days as those of the past weeks when ninety and over was the average score of the thermometer.

A series of such days would doubtless lose some of the charm Tuesday exerted. But there are days which stand out beyond all others in the year's course and they are not many and they can be numbered quickly. Sometimes in early spring there is one of those heralds of spring yet with all the fascination and attraction of springtime. Tuesday was one of those days set in the midst of the warmest summer in recent years and it will go down in memory as the day which brought wholesome draughts of vintage of cooler air with an entire lack of the sense of heat.

FATE AND DESTINY

A subtle thing the human mind.
A subtle thing the human will.
The more we search the more we find
This life to be a mystery still.

The scientists tear steel apart.
A substance chemists separate,
But none can read the human heart
Or trace the course of love

There is so much we cannot know.
The action, not the cause, we see.
Two wed, a thousand years ago
To let my mother smile on me.

This certain seems both good and ill
We carry as we live the years,
But know not now and never will
How one life touches all it

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

CONCERNING SNOBBERY IN GENERAL

Snobs are usually filled with a sense of arrogant pride over things that they had no hand whatsoever in producing. They are proud of their social position, or their wealth—both of which are usually inherited—or their brains, given them by intellectual forebears, or their great physical strength, or their cleverness. The man who makes his own fortune is almost never a snob. The people who start at the bottom and attain high position in life are generally filled with a sense of fellowship for all men. It is their descendants who assume the reprehensible characteristics which cause everyone to despise them.

Inherited wealth is nothing over which to work up pride. Neither are inherited brains, inherited strength, or inherited social position. We can endure a little pride and boasting from a man who started at the bottom rung of a ladder and by honest and diligence got to the top. But we can stand no pride or boasting from his son or daughter.

Snobbery is a disease which lays hold on lives that have too richly fed advantages someone else secured. The snob feels insecure, and he should. Everyone is willing to take off his hat to a man of privilege who uses his privilege to some good end, but no one has any use for the type of chap who regards privilege as a rocking chair in which to take his ease.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

The new styles in men's shoes have enormous thick soles of elephantine corrugated rubber or one-and-a-half inch composition. Fashion, apparently, has decreed that men shall be worn taller.

This is embarrassing for those of us who are a little on the short side. The shoe manufacturing trade for years has been producing a line of shoes with thicker heels and soles solely for the benefit of short men. When the shoe clerk sees a shorty enter the shop, he makes it a point to produce are spoken. Nobody in the trade is cross enough to mention the higher heels. It's all very discreet.

But where do the shorties get off now, with these two inch sport soles newly on display? Are we going to have to wear three inch wedges?

In the United States, where money talks more rudely than in Canada, there are several lines of men's shoes expressly made for the short men and blatantly advertise as such. They have skil-the heel and sole which add considerably to the height of a man, yet without any outward appearance of artificial hoisting. It is said these secret devices for increasing a man's apparent height were first worked out for the benefit of movie stars who had everything the public wanted save altitude.

Half an inch means a great deal to a man under five foot three. It means more than two inches do to a man of five foot ten. In Canada, the shorties have to confess their half inch by wearing thick-heeled, thick-soled footgear. Their feelings when they stare into a shoe store window today, can be imagined. With everybody wearing inch-and-half soles, back go the shorties to their normal ratio. This is probably going to be a tall man's

Mackenzie's Column:

Chiang Declares More U.S. Aid Must be Given

By James D. White
Associated Press News Analyst
(For Dewitt Mackenzie)

Chiang Kai-Shek has said it again.

—If the United States doesn't come to his aid, the Communists will take all China and eventually Asia.

He tells us what will happen if he doesn't get American aid. He does not say what will happen if he gets it.

Now Inactive

Today Chiang is the "retired" leader of the Vestigial Government whose hold on the Chinese mainland is conditioned largely by how soon the Reds decide to push it off entirely.

It got into this fix while getting American aid, and the evidence is that one or both of two things are true: either the aid wasn't enough, or was misused to such an extent that it didn't do what it was supposed to do.

Both are probably true. American aid to Chiang to fight the Communists (one figure cited is $4,000,000,000) was never more than a fraction of that voted for Europe. And the story of what happened to American-equipped and trained Chinese armies is one of the most profound studies in futility and corruption the world has witnessed for some time.

In what is left of the Chinese Nationalist Government any more capable of using help efficiently?

Little Resistance Left

The little evidence is that what resistance there is felt in China depends upon regional chieftains like the Moslems in the northwest whom Chiang never could depend upon in the past.

Why, then, does he ask again for American aid?

While there's life, there's hope, and Chiang says he still is the leader of the Chinese revolution.

Another profound conviction that Chiang holds is his belief that a third world war between Russia and the United States is inevitable. His whole strategy is based on this idea, that war is coming.

Anyway Chiang has staked everything on prolonging the existence of his regime as the legal government of China until war breaks out.

Then he will again become a necessary ally of this country against Russia, just as he was against Japan.

His price for being an ally will rise accordingly, many Chinese predict.

FINANCIAL MEN

Ottawa — Finance Minister Abbott departed for London Tuesday to help solve the United Kingdom's economic ills.

"Canada will co-operate in seeking a solution," he said in an interview as he boarded a Montreal-bound train. He will fly to London from Montreal today.

"We are outside the sterling area but if the U. K. takes any steps to curtail purchases from the dollar area, naturally it will affect us to a great extent."

In London Mr. Abbott will meet with John W. Snyder, United States Secretary of the Treasury, before joining a Commonwealth Conference of Finance Ministers.

"The essence of the problem is that the U. K. is living beyond her means," Mr. Abbott said. "She is not exporting enough to pay for the commodities she imports."

If the U. K. could increase production and increase efficiency in producing and exporting goods, the economic crisis probably could be solved.

Meanwhile, he hoped the U.K. would not proceed with a threatened curtailment of dollar imports as a means of conserving dwindling supplies of dollars and gold.

"I trust that by reasonable persuasion I may be able to remove the curtailment possibility," the minister said.

There were indications as Mr. Abbott left the capital that Canada would reject any U. K. request for another loan. Canada's position was that she had insufficient reserves of dollars. Reserves have declined to below the $1,000,000,000 mark as a result of recent United States withdrawals of profits made in Canada.

There was the expectation, however, that Mr. Abbott's talks with Mr. Snyder may bear fruit and that there likely will be a concession made to the U. K. by the U. S. as a means of meeting the crisis.

This concession may result in a lowering of the U. S. tariff on British goods, making it easier for U. K. producers to compete with U. S. industry.

Canada is not expected to make a similar tariff move since it is considered that there are currently no high tariff barriers retarding U. K. exports.

ENLIGHTENING TALK

Our most consistent occuption, perhaps, is just to talk! Whenever we meet some one whom we know and often when we meet someone whom we do not know, we start some talk. It's a natural way of expression, and one of which we never need to be ashamed— unless, of course, where we talk foolishly or to no account.

Stevenson once wrote that it was "the first duty of a man to speak" and that it was "by far the most accessible of pleasures." He further said that "it costs nothing in money; it is all profit; it completes our education; founds and fosters our friendships, and can be enjoyed at any age and in almost any state of health."

For many years I travelled thousands of miles and met people in almost every walk of life, and I always made it a point to engage in talk with those with whom I came in contact. I learned much by doing this; most, perhaps, by merely listening to the talk of someone else. I like to talk to people. It's a common trait of us all. But we like most to talk with those who will enlighten us and give us some thought to carry away with us.

One of the great books of the world is Boswell's Johnson. To read it is a liberal education. It is mostly made up of the enlightening talk of Dr. Johnson and his friends. But it was worthwhile talk, full of wisdom. After one of these sesions the good Doctor remarked: "Didn't we have a good talk!"

One of the most interesting talkers I ever listened to was the late Robert H. (Bob) Davis. He had traveled the world, but he never lost "the common touch." In every part of the world he left friends behind. And it is good that he left many volumes of his experiences and travels in books as well. Words flowed from his active mind with the coolness and wonder of a waterfall.

We give expression to ourselves when we talk. That is one reason why we should learn to talk only when we have something to say. And if we can't say something good and enlightening, we had better remain silent.

Personal Health Talks

WHY SOME PERSONS HAVE ENLARGED VEINS

Dilated, enlarge, prominent or varicose veins may occur anywhere in the body, internally or upon the surface, most frequently in the legs.

The veins in the legs are most frequently affected because of their dependent position. The veins have to support a column of blood against the constant downward pull of gravity. Normally valves in the veins relieve some of the pressure, but if the veins become over distended and the individual's general physical tone is not as good as it should be or the subcutaneous fatty tissue (panniculus adiposus or sheet or blanket of fat) is deficient, the valves become incompetent, the veins become varicose, permanently enlarged.

People who are fat, that is, plump but firm, that is, with good tone, rarely suffer from varicose veins.

People who are on the thin side and flabby—that is, without good tone—are more likely to develop varicose veins.

These statements apply to varicose veins in any situation. Common situations other than the legs are the left spermatic cord (varicocele) and the anal canal (hemorrhoids).

The firmness or tone of the body tissues in general depends primarily upon nutrition—and that means a great deal more than just eating "nourishing, easily digestible" food. For instance the everyday diet of most of us who get more "nourishing, easily digestible" food than we can use to advantage is inadequate in several essentials of good nutrition, functional efficiency or vite, notably calcium, phosporus, iodine, thiamine, riboflavin and vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin.

Occupations that require prolonged standing favor development of varicose veins. Strolling slowly or walking too slowly favors development of an aggravation of varicose veins. Walking briskly every day, skating, dancing, climbing stairs, hill climbing and other kinds of active exercise or physical work tend to prevent development of or to alleviate varicose veins.

Persons with little or no panniculus adiposus, (blanket of fat under the skin) generally suffer from a sense of fulness and heaviness in the legs and more or less dull pain and perhaps swelling (edema) of ankles and feet late in the day or in the evening—shoes that fit losely become too tight—for months or years before they notice undue prominence of the veins, ache or pain of varicose veins is due to pressure of the overdistended vein upon nerve filaments around the veins, one with varicose veins usually get considerable relief when the leg is bandaged with an elastic bandage from toes to knees or if necessary above the knees; or from wearing an elastic stocking. Bandage or stocking should be applied first thing in the morning or better before getting up, after a night's rest.

Any one with even a suspicion of varicose veins should make it his or her business to get a reasonable amount of exercise daily, and of all exercises especially effective for the prevention of the trouble, a daily walk is probably the best—that is, from two to six miles of oxygen on the hoof every day.

The stunt described by a readvaricose veins is an excellent one er in the preceding talk about for those who can't afford to walk: Lie on the back and elevate the legs and ride an imaginary bicycle upside down for a minute or two at three times a day. This and walking are both advisable, whether the tendency to varicosity is manifest in the legs or in other situations (varicocele, hemorrhoids).

Practical advice about nutritional condition is given in the phamphlet Young Folks and Old Folks. Any reader who asks for it in writing, signs his request and incloses stamped self addressed envelope may have a copy. A clipping will not suffice.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Running Ear

My husband had a running ear for nearly two-years. I urged him to write to you. He did, began using the drop you recommended and now his ear is all right. (Mrs. C. E.)

Answer—Thank you. Instruction for using the drops for chronic running ear are available on request. Enclose stamped self addressed envelope.

After Sixteen Years

Several years ago I sent for your Iodin Ration pamphlet, used the ration and had excellent results. I had hay fever and I attributed my freedom from it to the iodin ration. Now my daughter has it, and I have lost the pamphlet. (Mrs. S. E.)

Answer—For a copy of the pamphlet The Iodin Ration send stamped self address envelope. I do not recommend it particularly for hay fever, but it can do no harm in any case. Hay fever suffers may find these three pamphlets helpful: (1) Hay Fever, (2) Asthma, (3) Relief for Allergy. For any one send stamped self addressed envelope or inclose twenty-five cents in addition for all three.

Type of Heater

Building a house, doing all the work we can ourselves. We are undecided whether a gas or coal burning heater would be more healthful. (Mrs. C. R. M.)

Answer—So far as health or hygiene may be concerned it is immaterial. Whatever type you choose be sure it has vent to the outdoors, via chimney or otherwise, and provision for evaporating water constantly while house is artificially heated.

Christianity Faces Testing Situation

Liverpool, England, July 5.—(AP)—British Methodists said today word christianity faces "a testing situation". They urged the churches to resist state interference with all their power.

"The conscience and judgment of Christian citizens will be evoked by many state enactments," said a declaration on church-state relations drawn up for the annual Methodist conference, which opens next Friday.

"Churches may find their freedom to worship and proclaim the gospel rudely challenged.

"To such challenges the Christian answer is clear. The church must everywhere be free to proclaim its faith and develop its own life.

"In a world where Caesar claims to rule supreme, God finally must be obeyed."

Heat Exhaustion And Sunstroke Are Different

Toronto, July 5 (CP). — Dr. Gordon P. Jackson, Toronto Medical Officer of Health, today issued a warning to differentiate between heat exhaustion and sunstroke.

He said the treatment for the two conditions is almost exactly opposite. Heat exhaustion affects the whole body, especially the heart. Sunstroke, on the other hand, is the effect of too much sunshine on the head.

Dr. Jackson said victims of heat exhaustion should be removed to a quiet place, clothing loosened, and head kept down while a sunstroke victim should be stripped of his under clothing and have his shoulders and head raised.

C.N.E. CANDY: "Can I exhibit home-made chocolates and candy at Canadian National Exhibition? Are the prizes worth while?"

Sorry. No classes for home-made chocolates and candy at Canadian National Exhibition. Weather is usually so hot candy will not stand up to it, hence it is difficult to judge.

VARICOSE VEINS: "Is there any possible way to get rid of varicose veins on the legs? They are not large, just small and red and blue."

Best take this question to your doctor. There are three tried and proven ways to get rid of varicose veins: treatment, injection and surgery. Your doctor will give you good sound advice.

ROUND SHOULDERS: "My 13-year-old daughter is quite round-shouldered. Indeed, just the figure of her dad. I don't want to keep nagging her about straight shoulders. We tried shoulder braces when she was seven years old. What would you suggest?"

Our medical experts say the round shoulders may be the direct result of adenoids. Have your doctor first check this condition, they advise. If the round shoulders result from poor figure habits, better take the young daughter to the Hospital for Sick Children, Out-Patients' Department, for examination. Doctor in charge will suggest treatment and probably corrective exercises.

MADOC

Enjoyable 'At Home' Held to Honor 50 Years' Practice

Madoc—On Friday evening last, an enjoyable 'at home' was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lewis, commemorating the fifty years of medical practice of Dr. S. Eagleson.

Mrs. Ralph Black, Belleville, received the guests at the door, and Mrs. Russell Lewis was the dining room receptionist. The dining room was tastefully decorated with summer flowers.

At one end of the daintily appointed lace-covered table, was the large square anniversary cake, lovely with its appropriate golden decorations in honor of the event .

Mrs. F. Aylsworth presided at the tea table.

Among the many guests who came bringing congratulations and good wishes for the future, were some from Peterborough, Belleville, and Ohio, U.S.A.

Teacher Honored By Staff, Pupils, Gifts Presented

A pleasant feature of the closing day Assembly exercises at Point Anne School was the presentation of a lovely table lamp to Mrs. J. E. Baxter by the staff and pupils. Mr. H. O. Walkom, principal, paid tribute to Mrs. Baxter's splendid teaching and leadership and the influence for good that she has been in the lives of the many pupils whom she has taught through the years. He voiced the regret of the school and community that Mrs. Baxter was leaving and wished her success in coming years.

In expressing her appreciation of the lovely gift and the kindness that prompted it, Mrs. Baxter told the pupils she would always be interested in each of them and in what they decided to make their life's work. She pointed out that all types of work are equally important and urged them to always do their best in whatever they chose and be the kind of person that Canada will be proud of. She invited everyone to visit them at their new home in Gardenville.

On the afternoon previous to the closing day, members of Mrs. Baxter's own grades presented her with many lovely gifts at a party planned and carried out by the pupils themselves.

Mrs. Baxter has accepted a position on the staff of the Breadner Public School at the Trenton Air Station for the coming year. Her many friends in Point Anne wish her every success.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

They're Fed Up On The Wrong Kind of Parties

Dear Miss Fairfax:—

For about two years now, some of our girl friends have been having parties. We have attended some of them, but they all lead to petting. Everybody pairs off.

These parties have not been chaperoned, and consequently some the boys drink and smoke. We don't like this sort of thing, but how can we warn the girls what they are getting into without hurting their feeling? Also, what do you think about boys who ask the girls to give parties but never ask them out on real dates?

"Three Curious Girls"

Dear "Curious Girls":

Why bother about warning your girl friends that the sort of parties they are giving will only land them in trouble sooner or later? I am sure they know it fully as well as you appear to realize it.

If you simply refuse to attend any such parties it will make much more of an impression than anything you could possibly say. I suggest that you, and some of the others who feel the same way, start giving parties of your own of a more wholesome kind, and invite only boys you can trust. Take the lead in your crowd in setting up better standards for your good times, and ask your parents to help you in this.

As for your question about the boys who want to be given good times but never reciprocate, you can solve this problem very easily by doing as I have just suggested, and inviting only boys with more gentlemanly ideas to your parties.

She Married "For Spite" at 16

Dear Miss Fairfax:—

I got married at 16, and have been married a year. I started dating when I was 13, and went with the same boy for two years. We were very much in love, but broke up because my parents didn't like this boy because he was a different nationality from mine. So I got married for spite. I didn't realize what I was doing until it was too late.

I am still in love with my old boy friend. I liked my husband at first, but he has turned me against him because he beats me. I can't make a good wife for him anyhow when I am thinking about the other boy all the time.

I don't tell my husband anything about this because I am afraid of him. I know my boy friend still loves me because he tells my friends he'll never love anyone but me.

I don't want any children to bring up in a home like mine. So should I leave my husband before I have a child? I don't want to step out on my husband and ruin my reputation, so what shall I do? I am very sorry for my husband.

"Shortie"

Dear "Shortie":

I wish there were no states that allowed a girl to marry at any such age as 16. If you had not been able to marry when you did, it would have given you you time to think things over, and then you probably would never have taken such a reckless step.

Usually, I feel that when either a man or a girl marries for spite, the only decent thing for them to do it to try and make the marriage work. But on the other hand I certainly don't think you are obliged to remain with a man who abuses and mistreats you.

Under all the circustances, I think you should talk your situation over with someone in your own locality who is competent to advise you. I have the name of an organization in your own town whose business it is to try and help people with problems such as yours. If you would like to go and see someone there, please write me again and give me your name and address, so that I can send you a personal letter.

New Standard Of Screw Threads Now Adopted

Ottawa, July 6 (CP)—Canada is weeping over her fields of industrial standardization.

Backed by some 300 Canadian industries and commercial associations, the Canadian Standards Association appears to be nearing completion of three projects to help the Dominion both in war and peace.

"Standardization projects now under development in the C. A. S. may have a far-reaching effect on the industry and national economy of Canada," Col. W. R. McCaffrey, C. A. S. general manager, said in an interview.

Most important project is a new standard of screw threads for nuts and bolts, which has been unified with the practices of the United Kingdom and the United States in an agreement last year.

Acceptance by industry of the new unified thread is expected to result in savings in future capital expenditures and increased production efficiency.

The C. A. S., functioning through funds provided by industry as well as a small annual grant from the federal government, also is helping solve production problems for Canada's shipbuilding industry.

It has under its wing a project on marine valves and fittings, designed "to reduce the great number and types of valves now appearing in manufacturers' catalogues and will eliminate considerable confusion in the shipbuilding and ship repairing industries."

To cope with incendiary bombing during war and widespread fire during peace is a plan to provide a standard 2½-inch fire-hose thread.

A maze of different kinds of fire-fighting equipment have made it difficult for one municipality to help another in serious outbreaks.

Arraignment on Charge Postponed For 24 Hours

St. Joachim Des Plaines, Que., July 6 — (CP)—Arraignment of Armand Verdon, 27, on a charge of manslaughter arising from the death of an 11-year-old boy following a bank hold-up was postponed Tuesday for 24 hours.

The postponement was due to the bereavement of Judge Aime Chasse of Pierreville whose 23-year-old son, Jean, was drowned near Three Rivers last Sunday.

Verdon also faces a charge of armed robbery along with his brother Roland, 30, and Raymond D'Ambroise, 33.

(The Canadian Press erroneously reported Monday night that Roland Verdon was the man held criminally responsible by a coroner's jury for the auto death of the boy.)

All charges arose from the $1,100 holdup last Saturday of the Banque Canadienne Nationale at St. Alexis De Montcalm.

Caston Aubry, 11-year-old cyclist, was killed when struck by the getaway car which was so damaged it was abandoned a mile down the road.

The youngest of the great DiMaggio clan, although enjoying his best year in baseball, has been shoved into the background by the electrifying comeback of Big Joe.

Nearly all baseball fans know that Joe has slammed five home runs since his return to active competition a week ago. But few are aware that Dom has made more hits than any other American Leaguer and is second only to Detroit's George Kell in batting. And there is no better fielding centreman in the majors.

However, Tuesday night Joe faded into the background despite his double, single and two walks in the four times at bat for the New York Yankees.

He took a back seat to Dom, who walloped a home run and triple and scored two runs to lead the Red Sox to a 4-2 triumph over the Yankees. This helped the Red Sox snap an 8-game losing streak.

While Dom was supplying the fireworks, Maurice (Mickey) McDermott, a 20-year-old southpaw, limited the Yankees to four hits to win his third game since joining the Red Sox several weeks ago. Ed Lopat was the loser.

Cut Yankee Lead

It was Boston's first victory in their last six games with the league leaders, and cut the Yankees' margin over the idle, runner-up Philadelphia Athletics to four games.

The third-place Cleveland Indians advanced to within six games of the Yankees, drubbing the Tigers in Detroit, 8-1. Frank Papish, making his second start for Cleveland, gained his first victory with a seven-hitter. Joe Gordon led a 14-hit attack against three Bengal hurlers with two singles and his 13th home run. Marv Grissom was the loser.

St. Louis Browns came up with six runs in the seventh inning to defeat Chicago White Sox 9-5. Paul Lehner singled with the bases loaded to drive in two runs, and when catcher Joe Tipton let the throw home get away from him, then threw wild to third, everybody scored. Joe Ostrowski was the winner and Bill Wight the loser. Luke Appling hit a triple and two singles for the losers.

Cardinals Gain

The second-place St. Louis Cardinals cut Brooklyn's National League lead to one game, winning a 10-inning, 2-1 game from Chicago while the Philadelphia Phils whipped the Dodgers, 7-2.

Singles by Red Schoendienst and Marty Marion, and Stan Musial's fielder's choice accounted for the winning run in the 10th. Musial cut down the potential tying run in the last half of the 10th with a fine throw home. Howie Pollet, who relieved starter Harry Brecheen in the seventh, was credited with his 10th victory. Bob Rush went all the way to be charged with his 10th loss for the Cubs.

Ken Heintzelman, veteran Philly southpaw, allowed seven hits in racking up his 10th victory and his fourth straight over the Dodgers. Joe Hatten was kayoed by a six-run blast in the first inning. Bob Blattner homered for the winners.

All other teams enjoyed an off day.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Al Lovelock, the talented and promising young Canadian athlete from Windsor, Ontario, will get his big chance at the British Empire heavyweight wrestling title on Friday night at the Memorial Arena when he meets Fred Atkins, the Empire champion from Australia.

Lovelock, who earned top mat laurels in the big U.S. grappling centres these past few years, was a star football player for Queen's University under the coaching of Ted Reeves and qualifies as a contender for the Empire Crown currently held by Atkins.

Not only his sterling athletic background, however, earned Al the top shot he is getting here on Friday night. The rousing showing he made here last week when he gained a draw with the rugged Atkins was more than sufficient proof that he rates as a dangerous threat to the rugged Aussie's title.

Lovelock leaped into the gap when Carlson suffered a broken shoulder previous to the match and he gave Atkins such a battle that he had no trouble demanding a return go with the crown at stake. Both men were slugging it out outside the ring at the final bell after a hammer-and-tongs bout and Flinty Fred had to put his title on the line this week, even though with great reluctance.

* * *

In the semi-final, Sliding Billy Hansen will take on the Ozark hillbilly grappler, Ski-Hi Lee and in the opener Frank "Tarzan" Hewitt will try to get past Pat Flanagan.

SPORTS POURRI

Roger Mallory, Point Anne catcher, who recently had a knee cartilage removed following a baseball injury, is out of hospital and limping with the leg in a cast . . . Not much chance of the Ox Pointer seeing action again this season . . . In a Babe Ruth gesture, Vern Goyer, Northern Electric fielder who was perched on first with a pal on second in the game against Point Anne Monday night, sang out, "How about a double steal, coach?" . . . He called it. Both runners scooted with the pitch — and both were safe . . . A pitcher up west recently walked 18 batters and won his game 4-3 Allen Kelleher is awaiting his release from the Stratford junior master-minds . . . Tennis league correspondents are respectfully requested to get copy to this office as soon after matches as possible . . . Stories of matches a week old get the W.P.B. . . . Rumor has it that Picton baseball magnates have had a change of heart regarding releasing Keith MacDonald to senior baseball hereabouts.

Reason Kiwanis Juniors are playing a Bloomfield junior is that the canning factory village team has folded . . . Trenton RCAF Flyers of the Belleville Baseball League will play all future home games on their baseball pitch at the station . . . Northern Electric will be the Flyers' guests on Friday twilighting . . . And the planters squeeze in their third game of the week tonight at Point Anne . . . Picton is here Friday under the kleigs when they meet the Kiwanis Juniors . . . "Red" Carson's batting eye is keener than "Look Sharp, Be Sharp and Act Sharp." . . . The sorrel-top is clipping the pill at a .452 pace . . . Commercial softball, if last night's Houston's - Northern Electric tilt can be judged a criterion, is stealing the attendance thunder from the baseball buckaroos by pulenty . . . The chatter of the players of both teams, plus the vociferous encouragement of their supporters sounded like a couple hundred hives of bees on a midsummer binge . . .

"Red" Townsend, popular sports equipment purveyor, is bidding Old Man Business a reluctant farewell, for keeps, in the near future . . . More about that later . . . Add Surprise Department: Nicky Sero making four errors at the shortstop position in one game . . . Pome: The scene, the Belleville baseball park; the fans were all aflitter; the reason? not the baseball game, but not a danged moskitter . . . Thanks to the powers-that-be that used the sprayers where they were most needed . . . Unsung heroes in the local sports world, Speedy St. Louis for doing a magnificent job in keeping the Exhibition Park baseball diamond, and other things, in shape . . . Add Good Showmen: Rotund Al. "Bunny" Dunlop, ex-wrestler and now a third man in the ring . . . The amiable "Bunny" whose equatorial expansion within the last year is such that the last wrinkle has been eradicated from his pear-shaped abdomen, can always be depended upon for a one-man show . . .

So the old boys can't take it? . . . Look at venerable "Chuck" Barriage who has been hurling since away back when . . . His good right flipper apparently has a lot of baseball left judging from his 1949 season record . . . It's not his fault if he was the leading strikeout artist of the Crimean League . . . Keep goin' fella, you're doing a fine job . . . Rumored a well-known New York Giant scout was in town the other gloaming . . . If he witnessed that Northern Electric - Point Anne game he probably left on the one ayem choo-choo . . . One of the cheapest guys in the world is the Joe who parks his car for free on the back stretch of the Exhibition Ground track and sneaks a looksee at the baseball game, and between innings uses a pair of binoculars to "take in" whatever show is on the Drive-In Theatre screen . . . Bet a dollar to a plugged nickle that if it rained he'd ask for rain-checks.

The Watson - Flanagan team takes on the Atkins - Wee Willie Davis duo in Tarawnta tomorrow night in a four-for-all wrestling brawl . . . And "Soapy" the office nitwit and golf-bug wisecracks that the "Point Anne Greens are in a fairway to link themselves up with another club . . . "Quick, Murgatroyd, my driver . . . Ha . . . got him . . . Hmmm, too bad, that driver cost plenty." . . . The C.N.R. softball league, we are told, is providing a lot of entertainment for railway folk . . . How about a little information occasionally, me'lads? . . . So you think some modern catchers are good? . . . We recall a certain Belleville receiver in the COBL of the gay twenties who wasn't satisfied 'till he could park the ball inside a tomato can perched on second base without touching the sides of the tin. He would start off with a water pail and reduce the size of the container according to his progress in heaving the pill to second . . . Perfection was the tomato can stage . . . Name on request . . .

And we know an ex-gowfer, who resides not far from this desk, when in the dub stage, drove a ball off the Number One tee in Picton. The ball travelled 3½ miles before it struck the ground . . . Incredible, eh? Here's the answer . . . To drive off this tee you have to sling the ball across the highway . . . Our hero, eye on ball, as is the usual custom, let go . . . The pill singed in a straight line towards the highway where its flight was halted by a passing load of hay. It parked in the alfalfa and the farmer-driver drove on to his place 3½ miles down the road . . . The ball dropped out of the hay when the cow-feed was being disembarked from the wagon . . . Correction, an error occurred in the tabulation of the Northern Electric-Point Anne game of Monday . . . Vance, of Electrics, got one hit, not four, for four.

Escoe Was Only Canadian to Win On All-Star Card

London, July 6 (CP)— Verne Escoe was the only one of three Canadian boxing titleholders to gain a victory on an all-star card at the Olympia last night.

Escoe, Canadian heavyweight champion from Toronto, won a technical knockout over Jack Gerdner, Market Harborough, Leicestershire, when the Briton couldn't come out of his corner for the sixth of their scheduled eight-round tilt. The Toronto scrapper scaled 194 1-2 to Gardner's 200 1-4.

Jean Richard of Montreal, Canadian featherweight champ, was outpointed by Ray Famechon of France, European featherweight titleholder, in 10 rounds.

In another 10-pounder Fernando Gagnon, of Quebec, Canadian bantamweight champion, was outpointed by Danny O'Sullivan of London.

In the feature, Dave Sands, Australian triple-crown holder showed the best form since he came to England two months ago to outpoint Robert Villemain, of France in a 10-round non-title affair.

Sands, who holds the middleweight, light heavy and heavyweight titles in Australia, dropped the Frenchman for counts of six and nine in the second round.

Sands weighed 161, Villemain, 160 1-4.

Trainer, Groom Suspended for Doping Horses

(By The Canadian Press)

At Fort Erie, the first suspension for a positive saliva test on Ontario's racing circuit in more than a year was announced today.

Suspended were J. B. (Whitey) Hardison, Buffalo, N.Y., trainer, and George Bailey, groom employed by Hardison.

Four horses trained by Hardison will not be allowed to start until a ruling is made by the Incorporated Canadian Racing Associations permitting them to be placed in charge of a trainer in good standing until Hardison is reinstated. The horses are High Air, Mia Maria, Huelwen and Our Boss.

John Lewis (Jack) Scholes, 71, a former United States and Canadian amateur lightweight boxing champion, died at his home in Toronto Monday.

Considered one of the world's greatest amateur boxers at the turn of the century, he was the proprietor of a hotel in midtown Toronto at the time of his death.

His father, the mighty John F. Scholes, was the world's snowshoe-running champion in the days when that winter sport occupied the spot now held by skiing. His brother, Lou, won the diamond sculls, highest possible prize in sculling.

At Kitchener, defending champion Phil Farley of Toronto turned in a warmup 72 over the Par-Wuq Westmount golf course Tuesday in preparation for the Ontario Amateur championship that starts today. A total of 161 entries have been filed.

Farley, president of the Ontario Golf Association, has won the title six times.

Outfielder Monte Irvin and infielder Henry Thompson, the first Negro players to appear on the club's roster, have been purchased by New York Giants from the Jersey City Club and will be in uniform at the Polo grounds when the Giants meet the Phils tonight, it was announced Tuesday at New York.

To make room for the two men, the Giants sent infielder Jack Lohrke and outfielder Pete Milne to the Jersey City Club, a Giant property, on option.

George T. McGowan, collector of internal revenue for the Port of Buffalo, said Tuesday sports promoters of events in Canada must pay a 20-per-cent American admission tax on all tickets sold in the United States.

Promoters of such events also pay 22-per-cent Ontario tax on tickets sold either in that province or in the U.S. several Buffalo promoters woh have staged boxing and wrestling bouts in nearby Fort Erie, Ont., said today that tickets for future matches will only be sold in Fort Erie. They said the tax was "a temporary blow" because substantial numbers of tickets are sold here.

The Brandon Wheat Kings lost the Memorial Cup finals to the Montreal Royals Juniors Hockey Club, but came out of the playoffs with a profit of $11,000, making their year-round surplus more than $16,000, it was announced Tuesday at Brandon.

Henri Rochon of Montreal, a member of Canada's Davis Cup team, will compete in the Canadian Lawn Tennis Championships at Halifax, Aug. 1-6, tournament officials said Tuesday. Bill Tully of Bronxville, N.Y., 1948 Canadian Singles champion, will defend his title. Gordon McNeil and Edgar Lanthier, both of Montreal, will defend their men's doubles title and Pat Macken of Montreal her ladies' singles crown.

A. L. Derby's Martha Doyle, Tuesday, tied the world record of 2:05 for trotting three-year-old fillies on a half-mile track in winning the $15,611 coaching club trotting oaks at Historic Track in Goshen, N.Y. The roan filly's time also set a track record for three-year-old trotting fillies. It was recorded in the second heat. Martha Doyle now shares the world mark with Pearl Harbor, which set the record at Du Quoin, Ill., in 1944.

46 Game Schedule For Junior "A" Is Announced

Toronto, July 6 — (CP) The Ontario Hockey Association executive committee wound up its day-long session Tuesday night by screening everything from league schedules and group insurance to player disputes.

Out of the meeting, presided over by J. J. (Jim) McFadyen of Galt, came word of a 46-game schedule for Junior "A" Clubs and a 40-game schedule for the Senior "A" loop.

McFadyen also convinced the Junior "A" delegates that the so-called "Group Insurance" policy should be retained in the league. This is a plan whereby 7½ per cent of the gross gate of each game is pooled, the total sum then divided by the number of games played with each club receiving one unit of the money for each game played.

Considerable discussion over Doug Towers, young prospect on Toronto Maple Leafs' negotiation list, who was drafted by Oshawa Generals, was heard. Barrie Flyers said they had already signed Towers, claiming he was a Junior "A" player with Porcupine Combines.

However, the Generals claim he was a Juvenile with Moneta. Towers played in both leagues last season, and McFadyen said the O.H.A. will investigate the matter thoroughly.

A new entry for the five-team Senior "A" loop was received from Niagara Falls. Jay MacDonald said his sponsors were willing to gamble $50,000 that Niagara Falls could make a go of Senior hockey.

Many Applications

George Panter, assistant secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association, said "everybody wants to get into the Junior 'A' Act."

He said the executive committee of the Association, in session here, has applications on file from Niagara Falls, Kitchener and Waterloo.

Marlboros, Oshawa, Barrie, Galt, Stratford, Guelph, St. Michaels, St. Catharines and Windsor, he said, are the Ontario towns already re-entered for next winter's Junior "A" series and added a few more are interested.

Treasurer George Dudley of Midland reported that prospective revenue from last year's playoffs will be more than $31,000 for all series. The Intermediate "B" playoffs brought in $1,000 more than the Junior "A", he said.

New clubs at the O.H.A. meeting were Lakefield and Tillsonburg, probably with Intermediate "B" ratings, and Lindsay Meteors, formerly Toronto Meteors, Senior "B".

President J. J. McFadyen of Galt will tour the Sarnia-Windsor area to study hockey interest there, delegates were told.

"Buck" Boucher Hired to Coach Boston Bruins

Boston, July 6 — (AP)—George (Buck) Boucher of Mountain, Ont., who coached Ottawa Senators to the Allan Cup title last season and a member of one of Canada's outstanding hockey families, has been named coach of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League under a one-year contract.

Boucher succeeds popular Dit Clapper, member of hockey's Hall of Fame, who resigned last April.

Brother of such hockey notables as Frank, the New York Rangers' immortal, Billy and Bobby, oldtime Montreal Canadiens players, Buck turned professional for the Ottawa Senators in the National Hockey League back in 1915. One of his teammates then was Art Ross, the vice-president and general manager of the Bruins.

After winding up a long N.H.L. playing career, Buck coached the now disbanded Montreal Maroons and Chicago Black Hawks before joining forces with the Bruins, in 1933-34, as coach of that club's farm team in the Canadian-American Hockey League, the Boston Cubs.

Buck also coached Springfield Indians in the Canam circuit, the Noranda Club in the Gold Belt League and Quebec Beavers.

"The Bruins' management is very happy it could select Buck from a long list of applicants," President Weston Adams of the Bruins said. "He always has coached smart hockey teams that displayed impressive fighting spirit. We're sure he can get everything out of his players plus a little bit more."

"We looked for a two - fisted guy and I'm certain we found him," was Ross' tribute to his oldtime teammate. "Boucher never has been a 'yes man' and I'm positive that he, at 53, is too old to change now. He'll be strictly on his own, in full charge of the playing end and I can assure him now he'll never get any second-guessing from the front office."

"This is the happiest day of all my many years in hockey and all I can say is I will give my best to the Bruins," the modest Boucher added.

The Bruins will conduct a hockey school in Sudbury, Sept. 4-14 and open their regular pre-season training camp at Hershey, Ont., about Sept. 24.

Ezzard Charles To Defend Title Against Lesnevich

New York, July 6. (AP)—Maybe Ezzard Charles can't carry Joe Louis' gloves but he's beating the Brown Bomber's record for a first title defence.

The lean young Negro from Cincinnati who won the National Boxing Association share of Louis' vacated heavyweight championship at Chicago June 22 has agreed to defend his crown Aug. 10 against Gus Lesnevich, the former world light heavyweight king.

New York's Yankee stadium will be the site of the 15-round bout to be held only 49 days after Charles captured the crown by outpointing Jersey Joe Walcott.

Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission which insists on a "tournament" to determine the heavyweight champion, said he would not recognize it as a title fight. Thus Charles will be making the first defence of his N.B.A. Crown in a non-N.B.A. State that does not recognize his right to the throne.

There are other complications, too. Britain will tab the winner of the Lee Savold-Bruce Woodcock fight Sept. 6 as their world champ.

Charles and Lesnevich each will receive 25 per cent of the gate for the fight promoted by the International Boxing Club of New York. Joe Louis, Art Wirtz and Jim Norris, who promoted the Chicago bout, will run this show in conjunction with Madison Square Garden.

Wild Heave Beats Toronto In Thirteenth

(By The Associated Press)

Newark Bears are on the verge of giving up their season - long lease on the International League basement.

They trail the seventh - place Baltimore Orioles by only one game today following Tuesday night's 14-1 romp over Jersey City Giants.

At the same time, the Orioles bowed to Syracuse 8-0 to lower their season percentage to .347, the same mark held by Newark.

While Harry Schaeffer, rookie righthander, was holding the Little Giants to four hits, his mates pounded two Jersey pitchers for 19 safeties. Lew Riggs, Marty Hansen, Johnny Dyck and Leon Culberson clouted home runs for the Bruins.

Johnny Hetki pitched the six-hit shoutout for the Syracuse Chiefs. It was his ninth win of the season.

A wild throw by catcher Hal Wagner enabled Montreal to score three unearned runs in the top of the 13th inning and gave the Royals a 4-2 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs. With the bases loaded and the score tied at 1-1, Wagner attempted to complete a double play by throwing to first. The ball went wide and two runners scored. A single by Chuck Connors then sent another tally across the plate.

The Leafs came back to get one run on Eddie Sanicki's 22nd home run.

Dan Bankhead went all the way to register his ninth win for the Royals. Oscar Judd was the loser.

Harry Bradshaw Leading Locke In British Open

Sandwich, England, July 6—(AP)—Irishman Harry Bradshaw, who captured medalist honors with a 67-72-139 score, today led 95 other linesmen into the 72-hole final round of the British Open Golf Championship.

Bobby Locke, the South African wizard who finished only a stroke behind Bradshaw with 67-71-140, was picked by most observers to come up with the big end of the spoils to be decided over the historic Royal St. George's course.

An ugly looking old golf club with a broken nose kept the United States Army from having a representative in the Open.

The Club in question is responsible for Sgt. Charlie Rotar of Canton, Ohio, a professional stationed in Frankfurt, Germany, being sidelined.

Charlie brought the club with him from Frankfurt. It was his favorite putter — a handmade, goosenecked type with an aluminum head. Krotar used it when he stroked a respectiable 74-76-150 to land among the qualifiers Tuesday.

Two hours later he had smashed it against the clubhouse wall. That was just after the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, tournament sponsors, informed him he was disqualified for using an illegal club.

"I've been here eight days," moaned Rotar, "and I've used this putter every day. But nobody ever said anything to me about it. Why did they wait until I had qualified and then give me the boot?"

The Rotar ouster left only three Americans in the chase for the crown vacated by Henry Cotton of Britain.

The leading Yank is big Johnny Bulla, professional from the Westmoreland C.C. in Pittsburgh, who carded 69-72-141 in the two-day qualifying round.

Frank Stranahan, the amateur from Toledo, Ohio, finished five strokes behind Bulla, with 71-75-146. The last American re-representative is the 57-year-old transplanted Englishman, Willie Hunter, now a pro in Los Angeles, with 73-78-141.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

The backswing is started with an inward push of the left knee which starts the hip pivot. As the left knee bends inward the left heel rises so that both knees are kept in the same horizontal plane. There must be no dipping of the knee for that will cause a left side sag and your rhythm and coordination will be gone. At the point pictured the player is now ready to start adding the cocking action of the wrists to the swing. And it's important to notice how high his hands are before this cocking action begins. If this action is started sooner, the hands reach the fully cocked position before they are at the top of the backswing. This produces a tendency, an almost irresistible temptation, to start uncocking the wrists and putting in that priceless wrist lash action much too high in the downswing. And if you put the wrist throw into the stroke too soon, you are spending it in the air and not on the ball where it contributes so much to distance, timing and accuracy.

TURNING THE PAGES OF "CANADA UNLIMITED"

The sight of carriages on rails was a source of much excitement in the little town of La Prairie, near Montreal, in 1836. Clanking and rattling on their way to St. John, Quebec, these horse-drawn cars were Canada's first railway.

A line from Montreal to Sarnia was finished in 1856. It covered 1,100 miles, and was at that time the world's longest railway. The first trans-Canada railway was built by the Canadian Pacific and completed in 1885. Overcoming great hazards, railroad men pushed across the prairies and foothills, through rugged moutain passes—then on to the Pacific coast.

Today Canadian trains travel on rails that would twice encircle the world, and carry more than 40 million travellers swiftly, safely and comfortably.

Canada has grown with the railways. With the appearance of diesel-electric locomotives and the gradual change-over to this more modern form of motive power, a new era of transportation is beginning. This new era offers vast opportunities for Canadians. Yes, there's room to grow—in Canada Unlimited.

Just how much room is told in "Canada Unlimited", an illustrated 144 page book published by the O'Keefe Foundation. You may obtain your copy by sending 25c in cash (no stamps or cheques, please) to "Canada Unlimited", Dept. N3-12, O'Keefe House, Toronto, Ontario. Please print your name and address clearly. All monies will be donated to the Canadian Citizenship Council.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

There is a radio program that showers with gifts a bride and groom on their way to the altar. After the ceremony they are given a week honeymoon trip to some resort.

Recently such a pair were guests at the Desert Hotel in Couer d'Alene. My lecture series was on there at the time and a bridge game with them was arranged.

The other player in our foursome was Ray Flaherty, famous coach of the Yankee football team. He and I used to play bridge at his nearby Hayden Lake cabin. So we could have spotted them a few aces. The original plan was to have the young pair play as partners against us. But the bride took my advice, at least temporarily. It was: "Husband and wife should never play bridge as partners."

Never do I give advice to the lovelorn. And I make it a point never to stick my nose into the affairs of any married couple. But husband and wife should never play bridge as partners.

This match reminded me of the last newlyweds who played against me. After a couple of deals they were not on speaking terms. In fact, they got mad at what they thought the other thought.

So, she opened the south hand with seven no-trump in this deal:

♠7 6 4 3 2
♥6 4 3 2
♦10 7 3
♣10

WEST
♠K Q J 9 8
♥K Q 7
♦6 5 4 2
♣K

EAST
♥J 10 9 8 5
♦K
♣6 5 4 3 2

♦A Q J 9 8
♣A Q J 9 8 7

This I doubled and led spade king from the west hand. At the time I remembered thinking how mean it was for me to defeat her so easily. It looked like a shame to take the honey.

But she snapped her ace of spades on the trick and won it. Then she plunked down her ace of clubs and dropped my lone king. Down banged her diamond ace and it killed my partner's king.

She then spread her hand for the rest and sniffed: "You men think you know everything." And swooping up her purse, she went home to her mother's.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 6. (AP)—Question—What's in a name?

Answer: Fame or failure for Hollywood hopefuls.

You and I generally go through life with the handle our parents dubbed us with, whether it be Robert, Roderick, or Rhoda. But acting folk sometimes change their names with the seasons. It's all a matter of finding the one that will bring them success.

Ever wonder how some of the stars got their names! Here's how:

Judy Garland was one of the Gumm sisters until a Chicago theatre, one night made their bill "The Glum Sisters". George Jessel suggested her last name, from the New York critic, Robert Garland.

Billboards Help

Chorus girl Ruby Stevens was dubbed Barbara Stanwyck by her new bosses, Willard Mack and David Belasco. They took it from an old playbill advertising Jane Stanwyck in "Barbar Fritrichie".

Myrna Williams' father picked his daughter's first name from a way-station in Montana. When she starting playing slinky sirens in silent films, she decided she needed a more exotic name. So —Myrna Loy.

And Numerologits

Zelma Hedrick switched to her middle name and a variation of her mother's maiden name, Gray. Result: Kathryn Grayson.

A numerologist told movie hopeful Harriet Lake she would have better luck with a new name. She has been doing very well as Ann Sothern.

Szdke Szakal obviously needed a name-change for U.S. audiences. So he became S. Z. Sakall. But he got tired of telling people the S. Z. didn't mean a thing. Now he's just plain Cuddles.

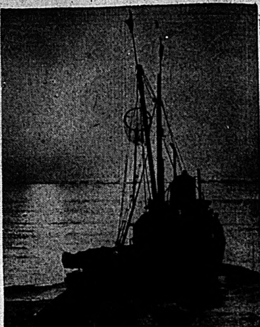
I.O.O.F. Enjoys Gala Time at Lawn Social

Tweed — A splendid get-together was held on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Jeffery, when the I.O.O.F. Tweed Lodge, No. 290, enjoyed their annual lawn social.

Mr. Norman Thompson was master of ceremonies, and the guest speaker, the Reverend A. L. Sisco who, in a brief, but interesting address, remarked that the Independent Order of Oddfellows was a lodge of world-wide friendships, banded together in the bonds of loyalty. This loyal friendship was the bond which held not only the Oddfellows together, but the Rebekahs as well.

An enjoyable part of the social was the fine program provided by local talent, including Misses Joyce Jeffery, Betty Montgomery and Beverley Way, who rendered among other items, the song, "Chasing Clouds with Sunshine." Betty Montgomery tap danced; Mr. Elmer Holmes sang a number of Western songs; Jimmy Howse and Betty Montgomery, a duet, "Tin Soldiers"; Joyce Jeffery and Betty Montgomery gave a humorous skit; and Mr. Norman Thompson, a cornet solo, accompanied by Mr. Fred Porter at the piano.

Greetings were brought from the lodge by Mr. Bert Jones, Noble Grand, and the Reverend F. F. Downing, pastor of St. James Anglican Church, Tweed, added that when among a group of Oddfellows, he always enjoyed himself.



FLEET TIED UP

Fishing boats like the one pictured here normally head north from Vancouver during the first week of July for the annual harvest of salmon in the Pacific, but a fisherman's disagreement with the boats owners has kept them in port. The fishermen want to sell their catch to the highest bidder. The owners claim the catch should be sold to them. — (CP Photo.)

Two Stratford Youths Arrested After Accident

London, Ont., July 6 (CP) — Fourteen hours after a stolen auto crashed into a utility pole near London, two battered and bruised Stratford youths were arrested by provincial police Tuesday near Talbotville, 14 miles southeast of here.

They are Alfred Diehl, 16, (of St. David St.) and a 14-year-old companion. who were returned to Stratford Tuesday night.

The car went out of control on No. 2 highway, clipped two poles and smashed off a third pole, tearing down hydro wires. A 14-mile square area in the Delaware-Lambeth territory was without electricity for several hours.

Constable Owen Collins was patrolling No. 4 highway when he saw the youths climb over a fence and head for some bushland. Questioned, they said they were on a hike.

Police said Diehl had a laceration on the left side of his forehead, while the juvenile had minor lacerations to his neck and chest and knee bruises.

Provincial police were alerted early Tuesday when on a report that two persons were attempting to break into Hook's restaurant at nearby Glendale.

The pair escaped in a car and police gave chase. The stolen car went out of control on the curve and the occupants fled in the darkness.

Owned by Sam Ellis, of Stratford, the car had been reported stolen Monday night.

ma terned on the radio, saying to pop, The Question Box program is going to start, William, so don't use the telefone til the coast is cleer.

Fame and fortune only a million chances away, pop said, and ma said, Just think, William, at any minute our telefone may ring, and a long distance voice will ask me a simple question sutch as where was Napoleon sent, or name any vitamin and what good is it.

I hope for your sake they don't draw your name, pop said, and ma said, Why William Potts, do you meen you don't want to see me showered with countless addition of a half intrist in a shrimp cannery?

That's just what I meen, pop said. I was reeding about a poor chap who won one of those things. They called him up and asked him what part of the eye rimes with a valuable fur, and of course he guessed the wink, which rimes with mink, and they sent him a 60-foot motor boat, and a deep freeze installation with a capacity of 200 cubic feet, and a 2-ton into a cement mixer, he said, and ma said, Why was that so unfortunate for land sakes?

The billiard table went rite through the floor into the basement and smashed the plumming and flooded the whole house, pop said. The poor chap's wife got trapped in the deep freeze and was cold to him for three munths. And the motor boat blocked the street in frunt of the house for 3 weeks and the city sued the poor said, That's just a lot of your nonsense, but just the same you may be rite in a farfetched way. So if you get started rite away I'll let you take me to a movie

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By Dave Cross
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, July 6—(CP) Western horse owners are reported having difficulty in obtaining good accommodation for their horses in Eastern stables. The problem seemingly has been the same way for years.

John (Winnipeg Free Press) Siftop scores Eastern officials for treatment which, he says, over the years "has been anything but good."

He reports that Dan Kennedy's Oak Tree stud farm had difficulty getting stable room at Fort Erie, Ont., and other points on the Eastern racing circuit this summer.

Kennedy has a stable of five two-year-olds, one four-year-old mare of good allowance class and a six-year-old handicap horse.

Good Stable

He says that when Westerners ship to Toronto for the Fall meetings they are usually stabled at Long Branch, a good distance away from the other three tracks in the city and well out of Central Toronto.

He adds, however, that there are exceptions. "When R. J. Speers, prominent Western breeder, shius to Toronto they are not going to give him the shuffle. That would be bad business."

Stabling Preference

"It seems funny that the many American stables racing in Eastern Canada should receive stabling preference over a visiting Western Canada stable with good, fit horses."

Sifton says when Eastern horses come West they are given the best stalls, and if there is not enough room for all, they are given preference.

The Eastern operators would do well to take a lesson in public relations and 'trade' relations from the Prairie Circuit."

Northern Electric At Top of Loop, Defeats Houstons

For the first time in two seasons of play the Houston "Knotholers" are looking up at the league leaders. Last evening a thundering Northern Electric attack drilled out 15 hits off three pitchers to win a free wheeling contest 12-9. In the thrill-packed nightcap Stewart-Warner edged Shell Oil 3-2 in overtime.

Houstons opened the scoring in the first frame with a trio of runs on a walk and three singles. Northern came back for three counters in their end of the first on a single by Barriage, a triple by Young and a home run by Locke.

Houstons returned to the attack in the second scoring two on two singles, an error and a sacrifice. Northern made those two up in their end of the stanza on a triple, two walks, and a single. The Electrics went one up in the third on a walk, a sacrifice, a fielder's choice, and a single. Wood led off with a home run in the fourth to put Northern into a two run lead. Glen Young clouted a double and that was all for Houston starter Green who was relieved by Hunter.

The "Knotholers" notched a single counter in the fifth on a triple by Rollins and a single by Adams. They went into a two run lead in the sixth on three walks and two errors.

Score Five in Sixth

Electrics stormed back for five runs in the bottom of the sixth to blast out Hunter, on three singles and two doubles as eleven men came to the plate. Burshaw went in with two away, loaded the bases and then forced out Young at third. Lum Carson broke up the ball game in the sixth with a two run double to give Electrics the lead and spark the winning rally.

Carson went the distance on the firing line for Electrics walking four, striking out six, and surrendering nine hits for nine runs.

Green started for the Knotholers and in three frames was clubbed for eight hits, and seven runs. He walked five and struck out two. Hunter fared no better in relief going two and two thirds innings being nicked for seven hits, five runs, and the ball game. Burshaw retired the last man in the seventh.

Glen Young was big man at the plate with, a triple and two doubles in four trips.

Line Up: Houstons: Wood lf. rf; Wardaugh 3b; Spafford ss; Watkins rf, cf; Rollins 2b; Adams c; Temple 1b; Blaind, replaced by Taylor in 5th, cf; Green p; Hunter p; Burshaw p.

Northern Electric: J. Barriage lf; Whiting 3b; Wood cf; Young c; Locke 1b; Halsey rf; Henn 2b; Prout ss; Carson p.

Overtime Contest

In a hard fought overtime contest under the lights, a persistent Stewart-Warner nine outlasted Shell Oil to cop a thrilling 3-2 victory and enhance their playoff chances mightily. It was the fourth Stewart-Warner win in five games.

Both teams played very tight ball with two of three errors committed coming in overtime with the pressure at its peak.

Stewart-Warner pushed over the first run in the top of the second on three walks. With one away Shore, and Shaw walked. Both runners advanced on a passed ball and Shore was nipped at the plate trying to score on another passed ball. Shaw came home when Bertram slid safely into second base after being walked.

Shell, harassed by double plays in the first and second frames that kept their attack under wraps, tied the score in the fourth when pitcher Empy hammered a homer into deep centre field.

In the seventh, Alemite shortstop Lewis led off with a triple. Shore bunted and Lewis was nailed at the plate as he came sliding in. Shore was forced out at second on Shaw's grounder, and Burley struck out to retire the side. In the bottom of the seventh Shell centrefielder Vickers got a life on the first baseman's errors. Pinch hitter Lionel Blaker struck out and Jack Ellis put Vickers on third with a double. Vickers however rounded third and was streaking for the plate when the right fielder's relay came winging in. Vickers scrambled for the bag but was tagged on a close play for the second out. Ross Empy struck out to retire the side.

Scores on Passed Ball

Rowbotham doubled to lead off the eighth for Stewart-Warner took third on a passed ball and slid home with the tie breaking counter on another passed ball. Two singles and a sacrifce gave Swaco their third run. A walk and a single gave Shell their second run in the eighth and with the tying run on the third the attack died.

Dracup went the route for Swaco walking three, striking out six and giving up six hits for two runs. Art Empy toiled vainly for the oilers walking three, striking out three, and being nicked for six hits and the ball game.

Line Up: Stewart - Warner: Hammitt cf; Booth 1b; Leforte 3b; Lewis ss; Shore 2b; Shaw lf; Bertram rf; replaced by Burley in 5th, rf; Rowbotham c; Dracup p.

Shell Oil: Miller ss; Simmons 3b; Jones 1b; A. Empy p; Vickers cf; Smith rf, replaced by L. Blaker in 7th; J. Ellis 2b; R. Empy c; J. Reid lf. .

Big-Four Agrees To Carry Out Ministers' Wishes

Berlin, July 6 — (AP)—Russia and the three western powers agreed Tuesday on machinery to carry out the will of their foreign ministers on Berlin and Germany.

The four deputy military governors announced in a communique after the meeting that they have agreed that meetings of the four Berlin commandants should be resumed.

They also agreed on creation of a special committee of exports on trade, transport and finance to submit recommendations on how to carry out the agreement of the Paris Foreign Ministers Conference.

The communique said the commandants will meet "for implementation of paragraph 3C of the Paris communique."

This paragraph was accepted after the four foreign ministers were unable to agree on re-establishing four-power control of divided Germany and Berlin. It called on the occupation authorities to "consult" together with a view to expanding east - west trade and travel in Berlin and Germany and "normalizing, as far as possible," the life of Berlin.

Before the Russian blockade started more than a year ago, the four commandants regularly met in what was called the Allied Kommandatura. The veto applied to its proceedings, however, and the four commandants often were unable to make decisions. The Russians finally walked out and broke up the four-power body.

A western official said the veto will still apply to the commandants' meeting, but their functioning together is not a revival of four-power government as it existed before.

Improve Cream Quality is Aim Of Producers

Ontario cream producers for the most part are cooperating fully in the matter of improving cream quality, instructors indicated last week at the mid-summer conference of field staff, Dairy Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture.

The conference was held at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph. C. E. Lackner, director of dairy branch and his assistant J. L. Baker, presided.

However, several of the instructors present at the meeting reported that the small producer with only one, two or three cows, has a tendency to use every means possible to side-step cream improvement regulations of the department. Here are a few of the things that instructors reported make for poor cream:

Causes

Failure to deliver to the creameries oftened than three times in two weeks or once in each week; lack of proper cooling facilities; use of galvanized iron milk pails or tin pails of inferior quality; keeping cream in the cellar where potatoes and turnips are stored; failure to properly clean up barn and milking premises and lack of attention to other small details in handling.

However, practically all instructors reported that cream quality was improving and for the most part a visit by the instructor had resulted in a much higher grade product being turned out.

Full Cooperation

"For the most part, all producers, large and small, realize that the Ontario Government by its cream improvement regulations, is endeavoring to improve quality and help both producer and creamers," one instructor told the gathering. "In the overall picture there is quite evident desire to co-operate fully with us."

Another instructor said that he could trace most of the trouble in his area to "lack of proper cooling devices for the cream". He added that most of the smaller producers with only one, two or three cows haven't the money with which to install proper cooling equipment.

Another instructor said that the excessive heat of the past few weeks had caused serious impairment of quality in cream. Another found that lack of an abundant supply of water might cause difficulty for some of the larger producers.

Several told of large creameries rejecting inferior quality cream from the producer and one declared that he would be in favor of "rejecting all cream that did not come up to required standards.

Summing up at the conclusion of the reports, C. E. Lackner, director of the Dairy Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture declared that the comments of instructors were most interesting and instructive.

C. A. Davies, who recently retired after 26 years as an instructor declared some of the smaller producers were "not sufficiently careful".

Little Benny's Note Book

Miss Kitty was telling the class about tact, and how important it's libel to be in our future life, saying, Tact is meerly politeness in its highest form. A tactful person always says what is known to bo the rite thing, in other words he never imbarrisses other people unnecessarily. For instance if I meet an excessively sout person I am careful to be tactful and keep the conversation on general lines and not keep harping on the subject of over weight and over eating. Now you can give me another example of tactfulness? she said.

Which Artie Bromfield did, waving his hand and saying, If I met a midget I wouldn't start rite in talking about the smallest things I could think of, sutch as microbes.

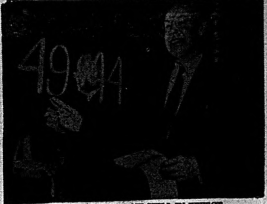
Not many of us are apt to meet midgets, Miss Kitty said. I would prefer a more practical illustration. Well, Samuel? she said.

Meening Sammy Polland waving, and he said, If I was in a shipwreck, and I saw a lady going down for the third time and I couldn't rescue her on account of both my hands were busy rescuin 2 other people, I'd talk to her about general subjects instead of asking her how deep sh thawt the ocean was rite here.

I'm sure hat would be very considerate of you, but I would still appriciate an example more true to every day life, in other words not so far fetched, Miss Kitty said.

Me waving and giving her one, claiming if I met some guy owing me a cent, I wouldn't embarries him by askin him for it more than once, and even then I wouldn't yell at him across the street.

The result being Miss Kitty changed the subject to arifmetic.



TAFT-HARTLEY LAW STILL IN EFFECT

U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft points happily to the 49-44 figures which indicate the vote by which the Senate approved his amendment to the administration's labor bill, thereby retaining in the bill virtually all of the vital parts of the present Taft-Hartley law. Later the Senate passed the bill offered by Taft by a vote of 51-42. It was a crushing defeat for President Truman, who during the 1948 campaign pledged repeal of the Taft-Hartley measure. — Central Press Canadian.

18 PRISONERS AT DON JAIL ATTEMPT BREAK

$150,000 Blaze Believed to Have Incendiary Origin

Westminster Presbyterian Church, Hamilton, Burns

Hamilton, July 7. (CP)—A $150,000 fire, believed to be of incendiary origin, today destroyed Westminster Presbyterian church here.

The blaze had swept through a large section of the interior before the alarm was turned in by an unidentified passer-by who stood on the street and shouted: "Fire, fire".

Police constables James Galloway and James Gavin, first to reach the scene, said a rear door on the west side of the building had been kicked in although the caretaker had left everything in order Wednesday night.

Fire Chief William Murdoch said he believed the fire was deliberately started, but declined further comment.

Charges of Laxness

Destruction of the east-end church resulted in charges of laxness in the Hamilton fire department by Ald. H. Arnott Hicks who said he would demand that Board of Control conduct an investigation.

He charged that residents had to help three firemen pull hoses from the first truck on the scene.

"Then it took the firemen more than an hour to get the aerial ladder here and into action. Once the aerial got there, the firemen soon had the blaze under control," Mr. Hicks said.

Twenty minutes after firemen arrived, the roof buckled and collapsed, the first floor and gallery fell in and only the walls were standing when the blaze was extinguished.

Eyewitnesses reported the flames shot high in the sky, topped by a dense pall of smoke. The three-alarm blaze, one of the most spectacular since the destruction of Hamilton Central Collegiate several years ago, was brought under control two hours after scores of firemen were called from seven stations.

Must Look Fire Over

Deputy Fire Chief E. J. Nixon said the blaze spread rapidly and "I called for reinforcements as soon as I arrived."

"You have to look at a fire before you know what equipment is needed," he said.

Fire Chief Murdoch said the department's aerial ladder is not "usually" dispatched to fires as far east as the church.

"It is kept in the downtown area where the high buildings with high property values are concentrated."

Church officials, meanwhile, planned to call an immediate meeting of the Board of Sessions to discuss plans for rebuilding the 24-year-old structure.

Norman Anderson, chairman of the church's management board, said the Board had planned to spend $5,000 on repairs this summer. Workmen had nearly finished re-roofing the building this week.

He said the church carried a $23,000 mortgage and the loss to the congregation will be heavy.

Rev. T. G. Marshall, pastor for the last six year, said "This will mean we must start all over for the last six years said, "This again."

U.S. FACES THREAT OF FIRST STEEL STRIKE SINCE '46

Steel Corporation Says "No" to Demands for Fourth Round Wage Hike

Pittsburgh, July 7 — (AP) — The United States today faced the threat of its first major steel strike since 1946.

United States Steel Corp., bellwether of the industry, said "no" Wednesday to demands of the United Steelworkers (C. I. O.) for a fourth round wage increase and for company - financed pension and insurance programs.

The union immediately called a July 13 meeting of its wage policy committee to consider a possible strike July 16.

Contract negotiations between the Steel Union and the United States No. 1 steel producer were recessed indefinitely. The talks had just resumed after a two-week recess.

Philip Murray, president of the C. I. O. and the steelworkers, told a press conference:

"There is no hope as I see it at present of a mutually satisfactory agreement being arrived at on any of the issues."

Benjamin F. Fairless, president of United States Steel, said in New York that "with business now receding in almost every industry across the land, nothing could be more damaging to the economy of the nation than generally to increase labor costs at this time."

The present wage for steelworkers is $1.69 an hour. A two-month strike in 1946 resulted in an 18½ cent wage boost. The following year the union gained 15 cents more an hour and last year another 13 cents.

Murray charged the Steel Corporation with "negating" collective bargaining and with ignoring its contractual and legal obligations to bargain collectively on pensions.

The Steel Union has presented its wage, pension and insurance demands to all major basic steel producers. However, all have held up their talks — waiting to see what big steel would do.

Enters House Afire To Save Dogs, Has to be Rescued

Aurora, July 7. (CP)—Clarence Doolittle of Aurora, who entered a blazing kitchen to save his two dogs, was rescued from his home today by his son, Loring, and an unidentified taxi driver.

Doolittle was overcome by smoke after he handed the two dogs to his son who took the animals outside. When his father failed to come out of the flaming house, Loring and the cab driver, who was passing by at the time, went in to get him. He was revived by an inhalator squad.

Origin of the blaze was not known but damage was estimated at $1,500.

Thought He Was Stung by Bee, Finds He Has .22 Bullet in Chest

Milwaukee, July 7 — (AP) — Young Mike Dragolowich wasn't stung by a bee at all—he was hit by a .22 calibre bullet.

That was the word from physicians Wednesday night after nine-year-old Mike had hiked two miles with the slug in the right side of his chest.

Mike and his two sisters were playing Wednesday in a dump area. Suddenly Mike screamed, "I'm stung." Then he headed for home, about two miles away, but was afraid when he got there to tell his mother he'd been playing at the dump.

His arm began to ache, though. Still he didn't talk, but his sisters did. An ambulance took him to a hospital and X-rays disclosed the slug. His condition was described as good.

Detectives said they'd had previous reports of children firing small calibre rifles in the area.

$1,500,000 FIRE LAYS WASTE WATERFRONT AREA

FuelPlants, Warehouses Levelled at Bangor

Bangor, Me., July 7 (AP) — A $1,500,000 blaze early today laid waste a quarter mile of Bangor's waterfront.

Five fuel plants, a bus garage, and store houses of a hardware and a plumbing supply firm were levelled. Drums of gasoline and oil caused the explosions.

Four big gasoline and oil tanks were in danger for more than 3 hours. At times the flames licked the sides of the tanks.

Five fire departments won their spectacular battle shortly before 2 a. m. They stopped the flames just north of the big Maine central railroad freight sheds.

Visible for miles from this Penobscot River city of 30,000, the fire attracted thousands.

A National Guard battery was turned out to help police control the crowds around the fire zone, which stretched a quarter of a mile south of the Penobscot's confluence with Kenduskeag Stream.

Other thousands lined the opposite river bank in Brewer.

Several firemen overcome by smoke were the only casualties reported.

Although fire still was all around them, four big gasoline and oil tanks did not ignite.

The fire zone was wholly industrial and commercial. No residences were in danger.

Dollar Purchases Affect Canada As Well as U.S.

London, July 7 — (Reuters) — The standstill on dollar purchases announced tonight by Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, applies to purchases from Canada as well as the United States, it is understood here.

However, the arrangement is described as relatively minor, pending much bigger decisions to be taken at the forthcoming commonwealth Finance Ministers Conference and other talks.

Thus the import tax is suspended — it remains to be seen whether it will fall.

During the last quarter Britain received £85,000,000 ($340,000,000) of Marshall - plan aid. For the year starting July 1 she has asked for no more than an average of £59,000,000 a quarter. Other things being equal, the drain would be worsened to that extent. It was indicated tonight however, that in the changed circumstances Britain might have to ask for more Marshall-plan aid. Reasons for the gold loss in the last quarter included the sharp drop in purchases of sterling - area commodities by the United States.

Britain's arrangements with South Africa also contributed to the loss. Britain pays out certain hard currency on South Africa's behalf, and it was disclosed tonight that, before reimbursing this to Britain, South Africa is entitled to deduce her surplus with France and other soft - currency countries.

The arrangement with South Africa lasts until the exhaustion of her £80,000,000 gold loan to Britain.

Leakages from the sterling area were another cause.

WISH TO EXPEL HIM — BUT TO WHERE?

Robert R. Carter, of Danville, Ill., is an international problem to government officials in Germany. He entered Germany illegally to join his German girl friends, Anni Schmidt, unwed mother of two children at Frankfurt. He gave up his U. S. citizenship and announced he wanted to become a German. The military government is considering expelling Carter as an "undesirable," but doesn't know where to send him because he has no citizenship at all. Meanwhile, he and Anni continue to live in her crowded apartment in the Textorstrasse, at Frankfurt on the Main.—Central Press Canadian.

Girl Accused Of Calling Gang To Start Fight

Toronto, July 7 — (CP) — An attractive 16-year-old girl was accused Wednesday in county court of calling her "gang" from a West-Toronto pool hall to start a "zoot-suiters" fight in an east-end school yard.

Seven teen - age youths and the girl, Gladys Hull, were appearing on charges of causing a disturbance.

Alan Stokes, 18, testified he and two other east-end friends called at the girl's home to collect some money and a fountain pen they had loaned her. He said the girl told him there was going to be a "livening up in the district," and that she was bringing her boys down.

Stokes said that a short time later 12 or 13 youths from the west end appeared and provoked a fight with him and his friends in the grounds of the Normal school.

"The fight started and the girl just stood over by the corner," said Stokes. "After we got ruffled up the gang dispersed."

Stokes said his nose was smashed and his eye blackened. He said he had only known Gladys Hull two days but had lent her his pen the previous night.

Red-Influenced U.E.W. in Trouble With Congress

Ottawa, July 7. (CP)—Long a thorn in the side of the Canadian Congress of Labor, the Red-influenced United Electrical Workers is in trouble with the Congress again.

Five top officials of the Union were suspended from the C.C.L. Wednesday night for "slanderous the Union Paper and the C.C.L. the Union Papjer and the C.C.L. warned that the whole Union will be suspended if similar statements are published again.

The Congress executive, at a special meeting, suspended the men whose names appear on the masthead of the U.E. News, official publication of the U.E.'s District 5. They were: C. S. Jackson, district president, Vice President M. Chambers, Secretary-Treasurer George Harris, Organizing Director Ross Russel and Jack F. Douglas, editor of the U.E. News.

They were denied "Voice or Vote" in any "convention, federation or council of the Congress".

Follows Protest

The suspension followed a protest in March by the Ontario Federation of Labor, provincial organization of C.C.L. Unions, against an editorial in the U.E. News. It referred to federation officers in terms like "union-splitting" and "war-mongers" and accused them of "Hitler-like tactics."

The Congress executive also decided to continue the suspension of U.E. representatives from executive council meetings. That ban was first imposted March 24, pending investigation of the charges.

A five-man committee investigated the federation's charges that the U.E. was attempting to destroy it.

Sprinkler System Being Used to Water Farm Lands

Lethbridge, Alta., July 7 — (CP)—The sprinkler system of watering a lawn is being applied this year to sugar beet and vegetabla farming in the Lethbridge irrigation district of southern Alberta.

Just as the city-dweller can do two jobs at the same time with the aid of a lawn sprinkler, the irrigation farmer now may give his attention to other chores while a big sprinkler system waters his crops.

Previously the flooding and furrow methods have been the accepted means of spreading water from the irrigation canals to the cropland.

Many using the new system say it saves manpower, providing more even crop growth with less water and eliminates costly land leveling because it can water up and down hill.

Sprinkler irrigation is done through light-weight aluminum piping which is laid out over the crop land. Water, pumped in under pressure, shoots out of the pipe at 40-foot intervals through spray nozzles.

One setting of the pipe will irrigate an area 90 feet wide and the length of the system, which covers up to five acres of land at one setting.

Beet and vegetable growers have found that they can make three to four "sets" a day, irrigating 12 or more acres of land. It takes only between 30 minutes and an hour to change the position of the pipes.

More than 100 five - acres sprinkler irrigation plants are in operation in the Lethbridge area. The average size of the farms they irrigate is 160 acres.

Skeleton Found In The Ashes Of Log Cabin

Brantford, July 7 — (CP) — The charred skeleton of George General, 84, of the Six Nations Reservation, was found in the ashes of the log cabin of his nephew, Grant General, three miles south of Ohsweken Wednesday afternoon.

The house was burned to the ground late Tuesday night while the elderly Indian was home alone.

Neighbors who rushed to the scene were unable to enter because of the intense heat and it was not definitely known whether General had perished in the flames until his remains were found.

R. C. M. P. said the fire was accidental.

They said that the lower portion of the house contained one ton of chopped oats for General's livestock. He and his nephew occupied the two room upper portion.

A longhouse funeral — an Indian tradition — will be conducted for the victim at the Cayuga Longhouse on Friday, police said.

ATLANTIC PLANE WITH 54 ABOARD RETURNS TO BASE

Develops Trouble 600 Miles From Ireland

Shannon, Ireland, July 7—Fifty-four passengers on a Trans-Atlantic plane forced to turn back when it developed engine trouble 600 miles out of Shannon, breathed a sigh of relief today when the plane arrived back here.

"I can swim," said Comedian Danny Kaye, one of those aboard, "but not 600 miles."

The Pan American World Airways Stratocruiser was enroute from London to New York.

The pilot, Capt. H. G. Gunbransen of Lake Success, N.Y., said magnesuim fire broke out in one of the port engines. When he tried cutting off that one motor, the propellor fell off, he said.

Gunbransen said he took the ship down from 18,000 to 3,000 feet. "We were ready to ditch on the ocean," he added.

The plane, using three engines, made it back to Shannon in three hours and 45 minutes. The airline is sending two planes from London today to take the passengers on to New York.

Other passengers included tennis stars Louise Brough and Margaret Osborne Dupont, returning from the Wimbledon Tournament.

Miss Brough said everybody aboard the plane donned lifejackets. "I couldn't help laughing at Danny Kaye," she said, "when I saw him in his lifejacket, even under the circumstances."

(Pan American World Airways reported in New York that Paul V. McNutt, former Governor of Indiana and former head of the Federal Security Agency, also was on the plane.)

Council Asks Inquest Over Drowning

Timmins, July 7. (CP)—Timmins Town Council, Wednesday passed a resolution requesting the crown attorney to call an inquest into the June 23 drowning of Norma Gagnon in Gillies lake, on the outskirts of the town.

Councillor J. P. Bartleman charged "shocking inefficiency" in the lifeguard system at the beach and asked for an investigation to prevent future drownings. He said interviews with the children who were with Norma showed that the lifeguard had refused for some tme to pay attention to their pleas for help. Then she had to change into her bathing suit.

At the time the beach was not officially open and only one lifeguard was on duty. Crown Attorney S. A. Caldbick said this morning that an inquest could be called if an investigation by the coroner warranted it.

Uranium Ore Seekers Follow Old Gold Trail Into B.C. Cariboo

By VAL SEARS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, July 7 — (CP) —A new horde of ore-hungry '49ers is moving along the old gold trail into British Columbia's Cariboo.

These 20th Century prospectors, carrying geiger counters instead of picks and driving cars instead of mules, are seeking not gold but uranium.

Most of them are young, scientifically - trained experts "grubstaked" by the British Columbia Chamber of Mines to discover the precious atom-ore.

Unlike the hundreds of amateur "wildcatters" who moved into the Bridge River uranium project last year, staking out claims haphazardly on useless "moose-pasture," the new miners methodically check every inch of the ground with their clicking counters.

Ernest Johnson, 35-year-old prospector who discovered the Bridge River mines last year, is typical of the new breed.

Dissatisfied with the small quantity of ore at his first mine, Johnson reasoned that somewhere in B. C. there must be other areas where there was uranium — perhaps of a lower grade but in greater quantities. He was right.

Carefully checking exports of abandoned mines where companion metals of uranium were worked, Johnson decided the "Molly" Molybdenite mine 13 miles south of Salmo in the Kootenays looked like a good bet.

He investigated the abandoned shaft last October with a counter. "It kicked so fast I couldn't count the impulses," he said. "I had something all right."

And Johnson isn't alone: Hundreds of young men are prowling around mine shafts and batholith rock structures in B. C. listening for the tell-tale "click - click" of the counter in their earphones.

When it comes, a new boom may be on for B.C.

One Guard Slugged With Iron Pipe, Room is Wrecked

Guards Subdue Inmates With Hoses and Tear Gas

Toronto, July 7 — (CP) — Eighteen long - term prisoners in Toronto's Don jail made an unsuccessful break for freedom today in which one guard was slugged into unconsciousness with an iron pipe and the jail showerroom was wrecked.

Armed guards subdued the prisoners with hoses and tear - gas while more than 100 city police officers were summoned as a precautionary measure to the jail, in the eastern section of the city across the Don River.

The attempt was quickly controlled.

The injured guard was William Wallace, a veteran attendant, who was rushed to hospital with head wounds. The extent of his injuries was not immediately known.

Jail authorities said the intended break was well planned, though another official termed it a "silly" attempt.

It came when the 18 prisoners, attended by Wallace and another guard, were trooping into the showerroom.

Suddenly one of the prisoners swung a piece of iron piping and knocked Wallace to the ground. Prisoners dragged him into a side washroom, from which he later was rescued by other guards.

Guard Rings Alarm

The second guard in the showerroom, meantime, rang an alarm and other jail attendants converged on the room and battled the prisoners with hoses and tear gas.

C. F. Neelands, Deputy Minister of Reform Institutions for Ontario, described the disturbance as "a silly, abortive attempt to escape."

"The prisoners made some noise and milled around but order was quickly restored," he told reporters. "If it was an attempt to escape, it was a foolish one for the guards who were watching them in the showerroom did not have keys which would have let the prisoners out of the jail."

He said his department is making an inquiry.

Guard is Struck

The second guard in the shower-room with Wallace, Fred Lee, said he and Wallace had just reached the ground - floor showers in the southeast block of the jail building when one of the prisoners shouted: "This is it. Now's the time."

Then one of the prisoners pulled the piping from his clothing and struck Wallace.

The two doors leading into the showerroom were locked and bolted by guards out in the corridor. Lee and Wallace were locked in with the prisoners for a time.

Police reported that a woman prisoner, Lillian Samson of Toronto, escaped from Mercer Reformatory across the city in the west-end. She merely walked out the front gate and disappeared.

ANGLO-CANADIAN FOOD CONTRACTS MAY CLOSE IN '50

Ottawa, July 8—(CP)—Trade officials don't think Canada will be affected—not right away, anyway — by the British Government's decision to cut imports from dollar areas.

But the restrictions announced Wednesday in London by Sir Stafford Cripps may mean the Anglo-Canadian food contracts won't be renewed when they expire in 1950.

The contracts are worth $400,000,000 a year for Canadian cheese, wheat, eggs, bacon and salmon. The wheat agreement wouldn't have been renewed anyway—it will be superseded by the new international wheat agreement.

Officials here said, too, they are confident Canada can help Britain overcome the serious dollar shortage that led to the import restrictions but they would not speculate on how Canada might help.

Sir Stafford, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said the sterling area's reserves of gold and dollars are draining quickly and further purchases in dollar areas—except for existing contracts or "urgent national interest"—will be banned.

Pared to Bone

Canada's exports to the United Kingdom have been "pared to the bone," one Canadian trade expert said. The food contracts probably wouldn't be renewed unless the dollar shortage was overcome by 1950.

It was also expected that some essential manufactured goods made in Canada might find it tough sledding in sterling markets following the announcement.

Another expert said the reasons for Britain's dollar troubles were a lag in production and inability to meet competitive prices in dollar countries.

The production problem will be discussed by the Anglo-Canadian continuing committee on trade and economic affairs which will meet in London at the same time as the finance ministers.

It has been suggested that the U.S. may lift tariff barriers against British goods to help U.K. manufacturers meet American price competition, made more difficult by recent drops in American prices. Canada may lift tariffs, but the extent would be governed by the possible effects on Canadian manufacturers.

The last time Canada lifted tariffs on British products was a year ago when duty on British textiles was removed and the U.K. agreed to ship a quota of textiles to Canada. But the quota wasn't met. The goods were sold, instead, in barter areas where prices were higher.

Young Liberals To Hold Picnic At Presqu'ile

Plans for a basket picnic at Presqu'Ile Point, to be held Saturday, July 16, were drawn up at a well-attended meeting of the Young Liberal Association held Wednesday evening in their club rooms at 224 Front Street.

An invitation to attend the picnic was extended to all the Young Liberals in the riding by the President, Bob Temple. A social committee was formed which will make all arrangements about transportation, entertainment and refreshments.

"Canada Comes First" was the theme of a brief address by member-elect Frank Follwell.

"Politics is something to be proud of," the speaker stated, "and the Liberal record is one of achievement."

In urging the members to take an active interest in municipal government, Mr. Follwell said, "participation in municipal government is essential for candidates aspiring to the higher offices of government because it gives them an insight into the problems of their constituency which will enable them to do a better job for the people whom they represent."

Discusses Liberal Policy

In discussing Liberal policy the speaker stated that in his opinion the Liberal government will pass more advanced social legislation during their term of office, including a contributory old age pension scheme without a means test, and a contributory health plan.

"I am happy to see so many young people in this riding taking an interest in their affairs," Mr. Follwell continued, "because it is to the young people that we in the older organization look to maintain the Liberal standards and ideal, when we are no longer active."

In conclusion the speaker promised that he would co-operate with the Young Liberal Association in all their endeavors and would consider any of their requests.

The speaker was introduced to the meeting by the chairman, Bob Temple.

Visiting members of the Deseronto Young Liberal group and the Trenton Association were on hand.

Human Factor in Driving Accounts for 85 Per Cent Of Accidents Speaker Declares

"Eighty-five per cent of all the automobile accidents which will take place in Canada during the coming year will result from the human factor in driving," said Harry Bellamy, provincial chairman of the Kiwanis Safety Campaign in an address to the local Kiwanis Club Tuesday afternoon.

"Ten percent of the accidents will be due to mechanical failures and the other five percent will be brought about by road conditions. All the safety equipment devised, and the finest engineering possible will not prevent the slaughter on our highways if drivers refuse to take care and to use common sense when driving, and to show their fellow drivers the courtesy they expect themselves.

"Unless a miracle happens this year 2,000 men, women and children in Canada will be killed in traffic accidents. This appalling situation is the concern of every citizen. It is just as much their business as it is the business of the police and other officials.

Persistence Required

The speaker continued, "In Toronto last year six Kiwanis clubs sponsored the traffic campaign. They sold 38,000 safety emblems, about 20 percent of the total auto registration in their areas. Chief Chisholm reported at the conclusion of the campaign that the number of fatal accidents in the Toronto area had been reduced by 25 per cent. When the campaign closed the accident rate surged upwards. It is evident then, that persistence is required in promoting safety.

Mayor McCallum of Toronto has provided the campaign committee with a permanent office and a paid secretary and the Ontario Government with the unqualified approval of Premier Frost and Highways Minister Doucett, has subsidized the advertising program to the extent of $25,000."

Mr. Bellamy went on to explain that safety education is the keynote of the current drive. Radio and newspaper advertising will supplement local efforts to make the public safety conscious.

The speaker pointed out that the safety emblems which will be sold by the local club for one dollar, has a beneficial effect on the driver of the car in which it is displayed and on the motorists who observe it. In addition to the emblems, purchasers will receive a Motorists Manual, list of the rules for careful driving, and a letter from Highways Minister Doucett endorsing the campaign.

Continue Thru Summer

The safety campaign will continue throughout the summer months and starting October 1st, other motorists and police officials will begin a check of careful driving. Those observed using the proper hand signals and showing care and courtesy in driving will be reported by conscientious motorists and following their report a letter of commendation from the government will be forwarded to them. The best drivers in the province, on the basis of the reports forwarded on their driving conduct will be eligible for some attractive prizes including new automobiles, refrigerators etc.

The speaker was introduced by Harold Emmerson and was thanked on behalf of the club by Jack Shaw.

Present at the head table were Chief Constable Walter Probert and Inspector W. A. Page of the local division of the Provincial Police, both of whom promised the support of their respective departments during the campaign.

Frank Follwell, member-elect for South Hastings addressed the meeting briefly and purchased the first emblem to open the local drive.

Members of the club gathered around the Follwell car after the meeting to watch Mr. Follwell paste up the first emblem for photographers. He received the moral support of Chief Probert. Inspector Page, Kiwanis President, Norm Edwards, Mr. Bellamy and local campaign chairman. Hugh Neilson.

C.N.R. Employees Enjoy Picnic At Cobourg

Upwards of 750 Canadian National Railways employees and their families and friends enjoyed the annual picnic held in Cobourg on Wednesday afternoon. The picnic was sponsored by the Canadian National Railways Athletic Association and its ladies auxiliary.

The big party travelled by special C.N.R. train, leaving the city at 9 a.m. and arriving home tired but happy at 8.15 in the evening. The party spirits were kept high en route to the picnic grounds and back by the skirling pibrochs of Pipers Jamie Clarke and Vincent Foster.

There were games, contests and sports of all sorts during the afternoon with special attention given to the children. An entire program of races was run off for the kiddies as well as the grownups and three softball games added to the general pleasure. Refreshments were served to the children by members of the Ladies Auxiliary, while supper time saw the entire party "fall to" with typical picnic appetites.

Softball Games Feature

The softball games were featured by an outstanding exhibition between the Trainmen and Firemen. The crewmen battled all even for six innings when the score stood at seven all. Then Lathrop smacked out a hit to give the Trainmen the one-run victory.

In the second game the Motive Power showed plenty of the latter part of their name when they dunked the luckless Yardmen under a 23-3 score.

Two teams of ladies, the "Hasbeens" and the "Never Wases" tangled in the third game which ended in a tie. There were no arguments, no hair-pulling and the railroad gals had the time of their lives. Umpires were R. L. Johnston, Cy Young, G. Clapper and Rube Buskard.

Contributing a lot of fun and merriment to the party, especially for the children were three clowns, Harold Foote, Hugh Thompson and Gerry Grose. The boys had a lot of fun displaying their clownish wares and antics and their performance was hugely enjoyed by all.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 7 (CP)—Prices were irregularly mixed in dull trading here today. A few industrials climbed fractions in the quiet trading while golds continued their downward trend for the third successive session. Base metals turned stronger after a weak opening.

Papers led the slow upturn in industrials as key issues gained fractions. Brown Pfd., added $2 at $73 while utilities, textiles and constructions brightened. Steels weakened slightly and Imperial Oil slipped slightly on realizing sales following a strong gain yesterday.

Sudden activity appeared in Sherritt Gordon in the base metals as the stock jumped up to $1.88, a gain of 13 cents in turnover of some 19,000 shares. A few other base metals also turned firmer and were beginning to advance after the third hour as activity increased.

Junior golds continued under selling pressure, weakening on losses ranging up to five cents. Seniors were mixed.

HOGS

Toronto, July 7 — (CP) — Hog prices at Stratford today were unchanged. Grade A $31.85 from farmers and $32 from truckers.

Poland Joins Plan To Cut Trade With Yugoslavia

Warsaw, July 7—(AP)—Poland has joined the other cominform nations in cutting off trade with Yugoslavia.

An official announcement here said Yugoslav Ambassador Rade Pribecevic had been handed a note announcing Poland's decision. The note charged the Yugoslav's had failed to fulfill deliveries of raw materials promised to Poland.

Marshal Tito was ousted from the cominform last year for deviating from the Marxist-Leninist line as propounded by the Kremlin.

Other cominform countries which have cut off trade with Yugoslavia included Czechosloavkia, Hungary, Romania and Albania. Poland is offsetting the loss in trade with Yugoslavia by signing multilateral pacts with Russia, Finland and Czechoslovakia.

Judge Paroles Parents Orders Complete Probe

New York, July 7—(AP)—Michael and Mary Zaccaro's first child was born five weeks ago with a spinal ailment that left him partially paralyzed. Doctors, they said, gave the boy less than a year to live.

The young husband, 21, and his 19-year-old wife took the baby from the hospital where he was born last Thursday. They were told to go to another hospital with the paralyzed infant.

There, they said, they were refused admittance.

So, they told a court Wednesday, they left the baby the next night on a stairway in Bellevue Hospital. They were afraid the hospital might not take him in otherwise.

Then, Tuesday, they were arrested on abandonment charges.

"If this great city of ours has no facilities to care for such cases as this, then the city itself is guilty," their counsel told Magistrate Philip B. Thurston.

The judge paroled the Zaccaros and ordered a thorough investigation of the case.

Russia Asks Red Cross Ban On A-Bomb

Geneva, July 7 — (Reuters)—Russia today asked the 60-country conference drawing up a new International Red Cross Convention to ban atom bombs and bacteriological and chemical warfare. A draft resolution submitted in committee said:

"It is the duty of the governments of all countries to obtain the immediate conclusion of a convention prohibiting atomic weapons as a means of mass extermination of populations."

The committee did not judge itself competent to deal with such a resolution, and the matter will be referred to a plenary session of the conference.

New York, July 7 — (CP)—With almost everybody thinking of ways to beat the summer heat the sanitation department today was concerned with next winter's snows. The department prepared to begin laying $100,000 worth of steam pipes beneath the sidewalks of Times Square to melt the snow when it falls.

Victoria Trust and Savings Co. Will Open Office in Belleville

The citizens of Belleville and vicinity generally will welcome the news that the Victoria Trust and Savings Company, an old established Trust Company, will soon open an office here. This decision was recently arrived at by the Officials of the Company following a careful survey of the territory and several visits of the officers and directors. It is understood that following suitable alterations by a local architect the company will be located in the Morton Block, opposite the City Hall. It is expected an experienced local man will be appointed manager and the staff will as far as possible be selected locally.

The Victoria Trust and Savings Company is an Ontario Company, incorporated during the reign of Queen Victoria in the year 1895 as a mortgage loan company and was founded by the late R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., who practised law in the Town of Lindsay, Ontario, and who later moved to Toronto to form the old established law firm of McLaughlin, Johnston, Moorhead and Macaulay. The object of the founder was to provide a safe place for the citizens of the district to invest their surplus savings and also to make available funds for the purchase of homes at reasonable rates of interest. While the Company's business now extends over the entire province, the original objects of the founder still govern the policy of the Board of Directors and safety of the depositors' savings is the first consideration of the present directors and officers.

Healthy Growth

The Company's growth cannot be called spectacular but over the years a steady, healthy increase in all departments has taken place. The Company has paid regular dividends to its shareholders ever since its incorporation and many millions of dollars have been paid to depositors in interest. At the end of its first five years of operation, total assets amounted to $284,000, with paid-up capital of $118,000. At the end of fifteen years, assets totalled $627,000.; capital had increased to $302,000. with a reserve of $72,000.

The following ten years show a remarkable growth. Assets increased to $5,200,000. Paid-up capital amounted to $800,000. with reserve fund of $565,000. In 1923 the Company changed from a loan company to a trust company with full powers to conduct all branches of trust company business. Today assets total over $18,000,000 .with paid-up capital and reserve of $1,800,000.

Upon opening in Belleville the Company will have offices in Belleville, Lindsay and Cannington and an Investment Office in Toronto.

Company's History

The following interesting extract is taken from the files of the Lindsay Warder of February 6th, 1946:

"On February 5th last, the Company celebrated its Fiftieth Anniversary and at December 31st, 1945 assets were the highest in the Company's history being $12,336,000 with Estates assets over $2,000,000, paid-up capital $925,000 and general and investment reserves $600,000. From January 1st, 1920 to December 21st, 1945 the Company had paid out in dividends to its shareholders the sum of $1,498,304.05.

"During the last period covered the Company suffered the loss of its President, the late Mr. William Flavelle, who had served the Company as President and Director for a period of over forty-seven years. In 1941, Mr. Flavelle asked to be relieved of the office of President and he was permitted to retire from this office but remained as a Director until his death in 1943. His place on the Board was filled by the appointment of his son, Mr. Stuart Flavelle.

"During this period, the Company also suffered the loss of one of its most popular Directors in the person of the late Walter E. Reesor, the manager of the Lindsay hydro. His place on the Board was filled by the appointment of Mr. W. W. McLaughlin, K. C., also a son of the founder, the late R. J. McLaughlin.

"On the retirement of Mr. Flavelle from the presidency, Mr. T. H. Stinson, K. C. was unanimously chosen to guide the destiny of the Company and chart its future policies. No more able man could have been chosen for the position as Mr. Stinson had served the Company in every capacity for many years and his service to the Town and community is too well known to need repetition here. Mr. Stinson is ably supported by Mr. James B. Begg and Mr. H. J. McLaughlin, K.C., as vice-presidents and the Directors are all well known men of high standing in the community.

Development in Fifty Years

"The present writer does not expect to be here to record the growth and development of the next fifty years of the Company's history but under the guidance of the present Board of Directors and the capable management of the Managing-Director, Mr. C. E. Weeks, together with the younger men of the future who will from time to time be added to the Company, we know that history will again repeat itself, and that nothing can hold back or retard the inevitable growth and prosperity of this fine company, whose benefits are felt and experienced by all the citizens who come within its ever expanding sphere of influence.

"Throughout the years many young men and women have received their training in business life in the Company and their usefulness and influence have been a benefit to the community.

"With the expansion of the business has come also the expansion of its premises until now the Company occupy one of the finest buildings on Kent Street and we understand that in the near future further additions will be made which will increase the space occupied by the Company and give to Lindsay one of the finest office buildings in Eastern Ontario.

"We congratulate the Directors, the Officers and Staff of this institution on the magnificent service which they are rendering to their Shareholders, Depositors and the community at large.

It cannot come within the scope of this article to do justice to the great services which have been rendered to the Company by the many Directors and Officers who at one time and another have been connected with the Company but we feel we must mention the great services which have been rendered by the late R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., William Flavelle and H J. Lytle, and among those living and still giving their services, the Managing-Director, Mr. C. E. Weeks, the Assist. Manager, Mr. Newton Smale, the President, Mr. T. H. Stinson, K.C., Mr. J. B. Begg and Mr. Wesley Walden, who have all served as Directors and Officers of the Company for well over a quarter of a century."

Service of Trust Company

We believe that Belleville needs the services of a modern and efficient trust company located in its midst and we feel sure that The Victoria Trust and Savings Company will receive a generous response from the citizens of Belleville in making use of the benefits and services that this long established Company will bring to Belleville and its surrounding territory.

The present directors and officers of the company are as follows,

President,— Mr. T. H. Stinson, K.C.; 1st Vice President—Mr. H. J. McLaughlin, K.C.; 2nd Vice President—Mr. F. G. Perrin.

Directors—C. E. Weeks, K.C., S. A. Flavelle, W. W. McLaughlin, K.C., Gordon S. Matthews, L. A. Walden.

General Manager—Mr. G. A. Weeks; Assistant General Manager—Mr. G. E. Phelps.

An announcement of the opening of the new office is also contained in this issue.

Canning Pea Crop Less Than Fifty P.C. of Normal

As was indicated earlier in the season because of the lack of adequate rainfall the canning pea crop was something less than 50 per cent of normal in the Hastings and Bay of Quinte area.

According to district farmers the pea crop yields ranged anywhere from a complete failure to one and a half tons per acre. Some farmers this year had their first complete pea crop failure.

Due to continued dry weather pasture lands are fast drying up and the milk flow is falling off earlier than in the normal year. Despite this cheese production has been up in Prince Edward county although butter production is down. American cattle buyers are active in the county.

The hay crop has been light but has been stored in good condition. Farmers are hoping for a heavier than usual second crop of hay. Farmers are receiving from $15 to $25 per ton for baled hay in the field.

Police Blotter

A 40-rod roll of eight-wire farm fence the property of Albert College disappeared from the college property some time Tuesday night, it was reported at the police station yesterday.

Several drunks were apprehended by police over the night, one of them being charged with second offence intoxication. The offender was picked up in the north end of the city and while riding across the Upper Bridge tried to escape from the police cruiser. He was hauled back into the police car and lodged in the police cells.

U.S. and Canadian Speedboat Queens Will Roar In Quest Of Victory at Kiwanis Regetta

Massasaga Bay, noted as being one of the best speedboat courses in this part of Canada, will again be the scene of dashing queens of the water speedway next Wednesday when the Kiwanis stages its first annual regatta.

Drivers from all parts of Canada and the cream of American hydroplane and other speedcraft pilots will be here in an effort to pull down the handsome prizes and to add important points to their totals already accumulated in other regattas.

The regatta, taken over by the Kiwanis Club when the Rotarians relinquished the water event last year, is being held under the sanction of the American Power Boat Association and will rank for excitement, chills, thrills and spills with any of its predecessors.

Preparations for the accommodation of incoming drivers and their boats are rapidly nearing completion. A strong committee of Kiwanians under the chairmanship of Taylor Franklin is in charge of all arrangements and Wednesday should see one of the finest regattas ever held on the Massassaga course.

Drivers from Eastern Canada and many from the United States who are following the Canadian regatta circuit have signified their intention of being here. The Queens of Speedboat racing the, 225 cubic-inch boats which can attain a speed of nearly 80 miles an hour, the dashing 135's and service and speed runabouts from New York to Quebec will vie for honors, prizes and points.

Speedboat enthusiasts should not miss this event as much of the success of future regattas depends on the first Kiwanis water derby. More information will be published later.

WORTH KNOWING HOW TO SWIM

A young man's ability to swim and his readiness to take heroic measures to save if possible a man who had sunk in the Ottawa River earned him a happy memory which he will never forget. The man he rescued was his father. What a sense of satisfaction his father must have felt in knowing that his rescuer was his son and that his son was brave enough to risk his life to save an unfortunate in the water! No reward to a parent could be more fitting than the joy of this knowledge.

Fate does not always come that way. Sometimes it is tragic as so often happens. But in this instance it led to the happiest event that could happen a son—to save his parent.

The elder Wilfrid Fonvieille was a good swimmer but took a cramp while swimming to his yacht. He called for help twice and sank beneath the water.

Young Fonvieille, 25, was playing softball when his wife told him a man was drowning. Though suffering from a heart complaint himself he plunged into the water and when the drowning man rose to the water's surface he saw it was his father. He applied artificial respiration and fifteen minutes later the elder man regained consciousness.

It is well to be able to swim and with that achievement to combine presence of mind and courage to attempt the saving of another.

There are of course many futile attempts made to rescue persons drowning but that in itself is a reason that everyone should learn to swim. Canada is a land of many streams and lakes, in which one can find endless enjoyment and pleasure as well as healthful exercise if he or she will take the trouble to learn to swim and so make it possible to enjoy swimming and bathing and if necessary to attempt the saving of someone in difficulty in the water.

Such an incident as this is enough to inspire young boys to become properly equipped so as to protect themselves and others while bathing.

HUMAN TOLL

Besides the heavy toll which has shocked North America by the aggregate of lives lost on highways, there was the toll of the great loss of life in the waters of this continent. In both United States and Canada the number of persons drowned was very large last weekend. Blame the weather's hot wave if one likes for the abandonment with which so many plunged into the waters or took part in outings on the water, still the fact stares everyone in the face.

The heavy lists of dead and injured on highways of the Continent of North America and in the waters of this part of the world should at least be a warning to those who drive and those who enter the water.

Two bits of advice can be offered, to learn to drive with concentration on the driving and the conditions of traffic and to learn to take care of one's self in or on the water.

UNFAIR TO JULY

July gets a poor shake from the poets and the literary gentry in general. Bartlett's Familiar Quotations mentions it three times, but only one of these references is laudatory. In comparison, April is favorably noted twenty-eight times and May gets thirty-eight pats on the back. This is unfair. What's the matter with July? What's the matter with poets? What's the matter with people?

July is the best month. The all-round best month, in Canada anyway. For one thing, it is a good month for getting no work done. Another advantage is that you don't need clothes or much food, so work is unnecessary. People are away, so you don't have to talk about them or listen to them. There is no question about July's being the best month. Its only rival, August, is apt to have frost towards the end, except in some favored spots in the Dominion. June is out, of course, because of the mosquitoes; but in spite of them Bartlett has fourteen kindly references. Even March is praised more often than July. — The Printed Word.

BALLAD FOR FATHERS

Bread for the table and cake and pie,
Coats of rubber against the rain.
These all fathers are asked to buy
Again and again and yet again.
Fancy dresses and garments
plain
Cowboy suits for the lads to wear;
Table cloths jelly is sure to stain —
That's how the money goes
and where.

These are the days when costs are high.
Every attempt to save seems vain.
Shirts wear out as the days go by.
Soles upon shoes don't long remain.
Pills are needed for ache
and pain.
Fragile are glass and china-
they'll explain
That's how the money goes
and where.

Boys want kites in the spring to fly.
Frocks are needed by Grace and Jane.
Doting fathers must these supply,
And whether the wish be mad or sane,
Only the grouchiest dads
complain.
Though many are happy such needs to share,
Just for the kiss at the door
they gain.
That's how the money goes
and where.

Refrain

Better the smile than the sorry sigh.
Better to grant than the wish deny.
Better at last to have them declare:

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 7th., 1929

Miss Teresa Mullins is home from Chicago to spend her vacation with her father, Mr. C. Mullins.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Houlihan of Lindsay are here to spend a few days with friends.

Mrs. Fred Hudon has returned to her home in Lindsay after visiting her parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott have left for their new home in Orillia, where Mr. Scott will assume his duties as manager of the Dominion Bank, after serving in a like capacity here for several years.

Mrs. S. G. Fisher and young son, of London, Ontario, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Modeland, Charles St.

Ex. Mayor W. H. Panter, Mrs. Panter and daughter, have left on a motor car trip to Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls.

30 YEARS AGO

July 7th., 1919

Judging from the attendance at the Exhibition Park last evening. twilight baseball is popular in Belleville. The game played was between the Ontarios of this city and the Picton team, both of the Bay of Quinte League. The final score was 8 to 0 in favor of Belleville. The following composed the teams: Belleville, —Hagerman, Casey, Whalen, Mills, Ross, McWilliams, Clapper, J. Smith and H. Smith; Picton — R. Frederick, J. Carter, C. Frederick, B. Sayers, C. Croft, A. Britton, H. Campney, H. Monaghan and E. Mulholland.

Mr. David Kerr of Toronto is visiting relatives here.

Mr. Gerald Watts is spending his vacation at Cardinal, N. Y.

Dr. J. J. McDonnell and family of Pueblo, Colorado, are guests at the home of Mr. C. Whalen, Forin Street.

40 YEARS AGO

July 7th., 1909

The ratepayers of Belleville expressed their disapproval of the by-law submitted to them for the purpose of obtaining their consent to the issuing of debentures in the sum of $70,000. for the erection of three new schools and making other improvements in the present school buildings. In every section of the city an adverse vote was recorded. A fair vote was polled, namely 698, out of which only 164 were in favor of the by-law. The vote was 534 against the by-law and 164 in favor of it, making the majority against the by-law 370.

EDITORIAL: The vote cast for and against the $70,000. by-law for school purposes was indicative of the feelings of the taxpayers. They have evidently come to the conclusion that Belleville's taxation is high enough now. Notwithstanding this adverse vote there is not a shadow of a doubt, but that the moderate sum for alterations and repairs to the present buildings would be readily approved.

50 YEARS AGO

July 7th., 1899

Miss Bessie Fleming of Rochester, N. Y., is home on a visit to relatives.

Mr. David W. Cain of Montreal, an old Belleville boy, is spending a few days here with relatives.

Mr. Albert E. Sager, dentist, of Rochester, N. Y., is visiting friends here. Bert is an old Belleville boy and is doing well in the Flower City.

Mrs. P. D. Sprung of New York City, formerly of Belleville, is visiting relatives here.

Miss Florence Curlett has returned to the city after visiting friends in New York City.

THE WORK OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

Mr. Kimball, the Sunday School teacher who led the boy Dwight L. Moody to Christ, said in later years, "I can truly say.... that I have seen few persons whose minds were spiritually darker than when he (Moody) came to my Sabbath School class, or one who seemed more unlikely ever to become a Christian of clear, decided views of gospel truth; still less, to fill any sphere of extended public usefulness."

When, a few months later, Moody sought membership in the Mt. Vernon Congregational Church of Boston, the committee which examined him on his fitness to join church concluded that that he was not sufficiently instructed in religious matters to to enable them to accept him. His case was therefore referred to three membere of the committee who were delegated to instrut him as needed. It was not until a year later that the committee regarded him as having attained sufficient knowledge to justify his acceptance into church membership.

Think of it. Here was a boy who, when he grew into manhood, was to become the foremost religious figure America produced in the 19th century. Yet when he was eighteen he was religiously so illiterate that his application for church membership was deferred a year until he had learned enough to justify his acceptance by church authorities.
had neither the gifts nor the Dwight L. Moody apparently background to fit him for Christian usefulness.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BREAK OF DAY

I love these Sumer mornings—early, as the day breaks. I believe that this love has been so saturated within me that I awake so much earlier at this time of the year no matter when I retire. The first gleam of light and the breaking through of the golden rays of the Sun are an inspiration i. itself. There is, however, that added charm and incentive for heart at the break of day? The bird does. That song is pure joy an act of gratitude for life. How brave these feathered friends of ours are, anyway! They take things as they come. But their morning song is the most glorious, because it is a keynote for a happy day.

There is freshness to the break of day. It is full of promise. Its sheet is clean—no blots upon it. From my cabin, here in the thick ers and sweeping through hemlocks and birch, scattering streams of light, like silken ribbons, in playful mood with their accompanying shadows.

I like that line from the Lord's Prayer—"Give us This day our daily bread." Not tomorrow, not a week from now, but today. The significance to the break of day is its uniqueness and its promise. One day at a time, but the present one the only one of its kind. Why, then, should it not be one to be lived well—and happily?

I have experienced the break of day on the ocean with the Sun creeping across that vastness, and I have been thrilled by it among mountains, and by the seashore. It's the doxology of the day as well. People miss so much who do not experience the first break of day. Many years ago, when upon a trip acrss Canada I awoke early that I might note the glory of that vast territory above the Great Lakes; and I can never forget the noble bearing of a moose standing at the edge of a lake in that uninhabited area.

The birth of a flower, or a baby, is an outstanding event, but so is the birth of a new day —one never to be born in quite

All Signs Point Cold War is Warming in Asia

By JAMES D. WHITE
(Associated Press News Analyist)
(For Dewitt Mackenzie)

Japan's approach to a state of emergency is another sign that the cold war is warming up in Asia.

If there is a pattern to this seemingly shift of pressure eastward from Europe, this is it:

Chinese communist victories last winter seriously upset the balance of the great powers. Not only were the world's most numerous people going under communist control. Russia herself had to pay more attention to East Asia, to try and mould this victory to her own ends.

Things were not going too well in Europe anyway. So Russia agreed to a Big Four Foreign Ministers meeting in Paris to calm Europe down a bit. There has been no such effect in East Asia.

All Eleven

Early in the Paris meeting Soviet delegate Andrei Vishinsky brought up the matter of a peace settlement for Japan. Mindful that China would soon be a communist power, he said the Big Four of the Asiatic war—China, the U.S.S., the U.S.S.R., and Britain—should write it soon. The western powers stuck to their helped beat Japan should help write the peace.

There may have been a similar deadlock at Paris over Korea. Whether Korea came up or not, President Truman proposed a "Little Marshall Plan" to help the American-sponsored southern half of Korea keep its head above water. To make sure this would go through the Southern Koreans decided this was the time to drive the Northern Koreans out of the Ongjin Peninsula. They still are fighting them there, in small war that could get big at any time.

Late in the Paris conference there was an unconfirmed report that Molotov, former Soviet Foreign Minister, had been given the special job of co-ordinating communist movements in Asia.

Reds in Line

In China, the communists promptly approved Vishinsky's idea of an early peace for Japan.

In Japan, the communists suddenly discovered the Japanese prisoners of war Russia has been holding since V-J- Day.

Russia began shipping back in droves these prisoners by now thoroughly indoctrinated as communists.

They have joined the local Reds in fomenting strikes. They have pitched into the demonstrations and riots in defiance of the police.

MacArthur on Spot

All this caught MacArthur in the midst of a delicate campaign to get the Japanese Government to cut down its expenses—something it should have done long ago but has managed to avoid along with a lot of other needed reform.

In the face of increasing pressure to cut costs, the government finally cut them in the way best designed to cause the most trouble. Far from paring down his own wasteful bureaucracy, Premier Yoshida ordered the firing of 90,000 employees of the Government Railway Corporation and here Leftist Unions are strongest.

The resulting labor problem has become so great, and communist influence has been handed so much to work with, that the government now is thinking about declaring a state of emergency.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Somebody ought to have the job at the start of every summer of uttering a few widespread remarks about the canoe. Loveliest of craft, essentially Canadian, it is the death of people every year.

But with very rare exceptions canoe fatalities occur only when the victim of an upset leaves hold of the canoe and tries to swim to shore. Every canoe should have stencilled on its bow deck the simple legend: 'If I upset, hang on to me."

More people who can swim are drowned from canoes than those who can't swim. The strongest and healthiest young person cannot help but suffer a slight shock, even of surprise, when upset in a canoe. That shock is enough to take something out of the victim even though he does not feel it. When he tries to swim to shore, it is too late to discover that some of his energy has been consumed by the shock.

It is no trick to kick or swim a canoe to shore, even if dumped some little distance from land. And no canoe was ever intended to travel far from land. Even the big forty foot bark canoes of the old voyageurs followed close along the shore lines of the Great Lakes and rivers of Canada. When a woodsman sees a canoe bobbing about far from shore, he knows he is looking at a greenhorn. I have known Indians who thought nothing of whooping down a half mile rapids in a canoe who would paddle six miles around the shore of a bay rather than take a short cut of a mile across the width of the bay. They simply knew what they were doing and what they were doing it with.

A canoe should never be farther from land than its paddler, a good swimmer, can kick it if upset. And if somebody claims he can empty a swamped canoe and re-enter it, pass him

HOW ARE YOU BREATHING TODAY

A normal adult breathing quietly and without "watching" or paying any attention to it, takes in and gives out at each breath about one pint of air, called tidal air. By a forcible effort the adult can take in five times as much air at one breath, five pints, more than half a gallon, and the extra half gallon (four pints) of air an adult can breathe is called complemental air. By a forcible effort at the end of a normal expiration or letting the breath out, the adult can still drive out or expell more than 1 1-2 pints of air, called supplemental air. These three amounts together constitute what is known as vital capacity. An individual's vital capacity is measured by the spirometer into which the individual blows after taking the fullest possible breath and then expiring to the utmost.

An individual's vital capacity is greatest when standing, less when sitting least when lying in abed. The difference being from half a pint to a pint of air. The loss of vital capacity when lying down is due to the weight of the abdominal organs (liver, stomach, spleen, pancreas etc.) impending the contraction of the diaphragm (inspiration), and to the fact that in the recumbent position, especially the supine (lying on the back,) the blood tends to accumulate in the splanchnic pool (deep in the abdomen) and in the bases or lower portions of the lungs.

For the same reason, many invalids rest better and breathe more easily when they sit up or at least have shoulders well elevated on pillows or back-rest (and of course knees flexed and resting on a suitable support.

This increased vital capacity in the upright position is one reason why most patients get along better after major abdominal anl pelvic opertions if they are allowed to or require to get out of bed a day or two after the operation and begin moving about the room or corridor or house. Ditto for women after childbirth.

Normal person breathe for 14 to 20 times a minute when at rest and not paying any attention to breathing. The average respiration rate is 18—corresponding with an average pulse rate of 72 per minute. My own pulse rate, whenever I have tried to measure it without paying too much attention, is generally about 64 a minute. Several years ago, when I had six or eight momentary blackouts at intervals of weeks or months, the nature or significance of which we never determined (the various physicians who examined me from time to time). At that time I discovered in one of those idle introspective moments, that my pulse dropped a beat once or twice a minute. Whether that was a recent acquisition or just an old Brady custom, I had no idea. Whether it still happens I don't know and can't bother to find out I don't know whether my ordinary respiration rate has the ordinary 1 to 4 ratio with pulse rate. That's something difficult to observe in oneself. I mention these details because I'm certain they have no particular significance so far as my health or longevity may be concerned, and I hope this will help readers who may worry about the heart "dropping" beats to bear up under the strain. If we could keep tabs on the pulse rate of a thousand persons chosen at random we'd find, I believe, scores and scores of healthy ones dropping beats all over the place.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Early Morning Anoxia

I am 63 and in good general health except for severe headaches early in the morning. Sometimes it lasts only an hour or so, but sometimes until noon. (S. E.)

Answer—Such headache is due to anoxia in many instances that is, for one reason or another your blood gets insufficient oxygen. Mild carbon monoxide "poisoning" may account for it. Shallow breathing may account for it. Try doing the Belly Breathing exercise in bed when ever you awaken with such headaches. Read the chapters on anoxia, carbon monoxide etc. and the instructions for Belly Breathing in booklet "How to Breathe"—for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope. Make sure there is no defective gas burning implement or equipment in your house.

Sleep Ration for Children

I have a problem with my parents. I am 12, my brother 7. My parents say we should both be in bed by 9.00. What do you say, considering all my home work?
(Joan W.)

Answer—It is no problem. You need not less than ten hours of sleep, and your little brother 10 1-2 hours of sleep every night.

Brown Eyes and Blue

Baby aged nine months has blue eyes. Both parents have brown eyes. I say this is possible. My husband insists it is not.
Mrs. F. B.

Answer—You are right.

Two Brothers Are Captured In Thick Bush

Peterborough July 7—(CP)—After combing the thick bush country north of Havelock, a combined force of Provincial and local police captured two Campbellford brothers, Albert Ibey, 24, and Fred, 17, who are being held in connection with break-ins and thefts in Havelock early Wednesday.

Wednesday morning it was discovered that Peter's grocery store had been robbed of $100 worth of meat, butter, canned foods, cigarettes, gum and cash. White's service station in the other end of the village had been entered and tires, tubes cigarettes and a .303 rifle were missing; the lock had been broken off the gas pump at Don Mathison's service station and 17 gallons of gas taken and Don Dafoe's car was stolen from outside his house.

The brothers today face charges in Peterborough of breaking and entering, and were remanded. They are also wanted on charges of theft of a truck at Coboconk, on Monday which police recovered in the bush 28 miles north of Havelock.

Provincial police say Albert Ibey was released only recently from Kingston penitentiary where he served four years for similar offences. The younger brother, Fred Ibey has served time at reformatory.

WEDDINGS

LATHEY—WELLMAN

Christ Church, Belleville, was the scene of a very pretty Summer wedding, on Saturday, June 25, 1949, at 4:00 o'clock, when Hellen Faye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wellman, Belleville, became the bride of Keith Ernest, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Lathey, Saskatoon, Sask.

The double ring ceremony was performed before an altar banked with pink and white peonies and larkspur. The Rev. J. Grant Sparling officiated. The wedding music was rendered by Mr. Dana Cook.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was a charming picture in her white slipper satin gown, with fitted bodice tapering into a bustle effect at the back with a long train. Her veil of embroidered French net was held in place by a sweetheart halo of net ruching and clusters of orange blossoms. She carried a white prayer book trimmed with Sweetheart roses.

Miss Geraldine Murray, Belleville, was bridesmaid, wearing a gown of blue slipper satin, with bustle effect at the back. She carried a nosegay of Sweetheart roses and baby breath and wore a matching headdress.

Mr. Eric Smith, RCAF, Trenton, performed the honor of groomsman.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a dress of powder blue crepe, attractively trimmed with French lace, with white accessories. She wore a corsage of red roses. The groom's mother assisted wearing a dress of tan net with green accessories and wore a corsage of Sweetheart roses.

A toast was proposed to the bride by the groomsman and responded to by the groom.

For a wedding trip to points east, the bride chose a suit of pale yellow gabardine with navy accessories, and a corsage of white carnations. Upon their return they will take up residence in Belleville.

Grooming for Bare Legs

If you intend to go without stockings this summer, be sure your legs look well-groomed. Use a depilatory as often as necessary, carefully following directions

By HELEN FOLLETT

Truly, the beauty road is one that has no turnings. It goes straight ahead, must be travelled daily. A girl must not only powder her nose, curl her hair, lay on the finger nail pigment and pluck her eyebrows, but must put make-up on her legs if she wears anklets instead of stockings.

The girl who goes swimming can apply a water-proof foundation and a water-proof powder, if she so desires. These items are on sale at cosmetic counters. However, they will form a barrier against the rays of the sun and no tanning will go on.

LEG MAKE-UP

For regular wear there is leg make-up that causes the flesh to look as if it were encased in the most fragile, beige-colored chiffon. If you belong to the bare-legged cult, watch out that you apply it evenly. Include the knees. The skin on these human hinges is usually a bit coarse grained. A little attention won't do a bit of harm.

A light growth of fuzzers on the lower limbs worries some girls, but it need not; a depilatory will remove it.

When using any agent for the removal of superfluous hair, make a test. Follow directions precisely and exactly, covering a small area the size of a dime. If there is no irritation, do the full job next day. Some skins may protest against these preparations, but that does not mean that they are harmful. Sensitive flesh may also protest against the purest powders or nail polish, just as the skin may break out when certain foods are eaten.

And don't forget that, if the legs are to be pretty, one should wear properly-fitted shoes, send them to the cobbler the minute the taps are run over.

Stockings With Hole in Toe Latest Fashion Fad From Paris

London, July 7. (CP)—Latest fashion fad from Paris: stockings with a hole in the toe.

You can have stockings with inserted motifs of Chantilly lace or you can have them merely coloored, printed or finely embroidored. printed or finely embroid-

But whatever decorative effects the stockings carry, having a nice big hole in the toe is the thing if you're wearing open-toed shoes.

With delicately strapped, open dance-shoes or sandals you can have a large hole showing just the right amount of big toe with the nail painted to tone or contrast.

Toe holes figure again in the "sloppy" striped beach socks which replace beach shoes or sandals. These are usually combined with a beach suit which looks like a long. "Sloppy Joe" jersey with frilled hem, untidy boater neck and big, wrinkled dolman sleeves.

Stockings carrying the most trimming are for evening year. Some, however, simply match the dress in color or have a seam the same color as the dress. And combining colors of ensemble with those of stockings is one more preoccupation for the fashion-minded. The stockings may match gloves and bag with the stocking trimming repeated on the glove.

A pair of black resille with tiny rhinestones could be worn with a black tulle evening gown with dull gold underslip embroidered with rhinestones.

Others, covered with tiny pieces of jet, are worn with a short black evening dress with long flowing tulle at back.

Navy blue stockings with white spots match a short, full cocktail dress of navy and white polkadot taffeta

Grey stockings with motifs embroidered in light grey and matching purple gloves are the chosen accessories of a light grey tailor-made.

Light blue stockings with a double bracelet in white tulle inserted over the ankle are worn with a striped cocktail dress.

Black stockings, with inserted pink Guipure, are presented with a short evening dress in black and pink Guipure. A white bridal gown is accompanied by stockings in white resille.

By ALICE ALDEN

Lots and lots of white crisp and sparkling is used for resort wear pinwhale pique. Beautifully cut and detailed, it is trimmed with pique flowers that outline pockets of sunburned organdie. Tiny flowers are appliqued in the buttons.

The Bride and Flower Girl

By PRUNELLA WOOD

The bride of warm, sunny days gets a break in the weather which helps her pageant enormously, for short of ermine, no wrap can be as lovely as her bridal gown, and garden flowers are rifer than hothouse choices. This bride is gowned in some three hundred yards of nylon net ruffling (each edged with Val lace), and she can choose a church or garden setting, and grace the scene.

The little girl wears a replica of the frock, with a fuzzy muzzy, rather than a bridal bouquet of lilies and orchids. Enchanting and aloof, as we saw the two paraded in preview together, the dresses become belle-of-the-ball wardrobe fare after the ceremony. (Note the bride's mitts . . . no ring trouble.)

FAST-MOVING BERRIES

Civil Aviation Hungry, Ailing Problem of Nationalization Hopes To Thrive in Coming Era of Jet Flying

By H. L. JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 7—(CP)—British civil aviation, a hungry and ailing problem child of nationalization, hopes to thrive in the coming era of jet flying.

The state-owned airlines learned expensive lessons in the rough and tumble of aviation competition immediately after the war. There was a sorry story of delays and failures in design.

Officials acknowledge many of Britain's post-war "interim" types of commercial aircraft, designed to fill the gap until the advent of jet flying, "did not come up to expectations."

Britain now claims to be ahead in jet development. She is already flying the world's first approved prop-jet airliner, the short-range, 50-passenger Vickers Viscount which may shortly be purchased by British European airways, one of the three state-owned lines.

The immense deficits of Britain's airlines have been the main criticism by opponents on nationalization. Government spokesmen reply, however, that privately - owned lines of other countries have to be heavily subsidized. Flying, they say, won't pay off until further advances are made, until fares come down and more people become air-minded.

Britain's airlines, completely nationalized in 1946 hold a three-way monopoly on civil flying. No other British company is allowed to compete with British Overseas Airway Corporation on Empire or Atlantic routes, with B. E. A., on internal and continental service or with British South American Airways in their sphere.

Tough Business.

But aviation has proved a tough business. Competition was stiff, there were initial organization difficulties and the nationalized lines became over-staffed. One post-war aircraft on which they counted, The Tudor, was a £10,000,000 ($40,000,000) failure eventually withdrawn from passenger-carrying service.

The "fly- British" policy had to be abandoned when B. O. A. C. bought 22 Canadian-built Canadairs. Later American Sky masters were brought and giant stratocruisers ordered from the United States to keep Britain in the competitive race.

Costs have been soaring. In 1946-47, the first year of combined operation the three corporations had a joint deficit of more than £10,000,000. In 1947-48 it was more than £11,000,000. Aviation Minister Lord Packenham has told the state-owned lines their 1949-50 losses must not exceed £5,500,000, though it is doubtful if it can be held to that figure.

But optimists know that despite it all airline mileage has grown steadily, financial interests have been obtained in aviation in other countries and more passenger business has been handled.

Retrenchment Begun

A retrenchment has begun, designed to bring about an operational saving. Biggest move was the recent decision to amalgamate B. S. A. A. into the B. O. A. C. organization as a South American branch.

One of the main aircraft hopes for the future is the De Havilland "Comet," a full-jet, 500-mile-an-hour, high-altitude plane to carry 36 passengers. It will test-fly this year and may be in operation in two years. B. O. A. C. has ordered 14.

Britain also is building the world's largest airliner, The giant, 125-ton Brabazon which has taken five years to design and construct. It will probably test-fly late this year but the first prototype will go to the ministry of supply for experimental purposes. A later, prop-jet model is earmarked for B. O. A. C.'s trans-Atlantic service, carring 100 passengers in luxury at high speed.

WOMEN PAY BIG PRICE FOR POOR "BLOOD MAKE UP"

You women who feel and look "washed out"—limp and droopy—may be paying the price of hemoglobin shortage in the blood.

Nature's regular monthly demands on a woman's system often tend to bring about this shortage of the vital red coloring matter in the red blood cells. Try Dr. Williams Pink Pills.

They help increase hemoglobin where there is a shortage of it due to iron deficiency and help chase away that "leaden" feeling of tiredness so often due to this condition. Start your course of Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. Ask your druggist.

Rev. H. Servage Gives Impressive Dedication Talk

Tweed — The reopening and dedication services of St. John's United Church, Tweed, were attended by large congregations Sunday June 26th., morning and evening. Rev. A. L. Sisco, the pastor, was assisted at the evening service by Rev. Harvey Servage of Kingston.

At the morning service he took his text from "The song of the Lord began with trumpets." "The Bible is the great songbook of the Lord. It is not a written creed, not a book of logic, not a catechism, but rather a book of melody, joy, gladness, sorrow and tears," the pastor said.

"The Church of Christ, too, begins with the trumpet note, century after century increasing by song of the Lord has been lifted up to heaven. It has ascended from the great cathedrals and from the little crossroad churches, from the sick rooms, where the heart is weary; from the battlefronts of warring nations; from the factories and from the prairies."

The morning service was a particularly impressive one and opened with the choir, coming from the rear of the church singing "Ye Gates, Lift Up Your Heads on High." The Junior Choir under the direction of leader S. H. Connor with Fred Porter at the console, sang, "Bless This House." Mrs. C. Sharpe rendered the solo parts of the anthem, "The Lord is My Light," while Glenn Connor's solo, "The Trumpet Note," was greatly enjoyed. In addition, a new drape runner and cross were dedicated at the morning service.

Tribute Paid

Rev. Harry Servage of Kingston, speaking at the evening service, paid tribute to Mr. Sisco's fine work on his various charges in the past. He also paid tribute to the junior and senior choirs and congratulated the pastor and congregation on the fine decorative improvements made to the interior of the edifice. "We do not like to go through the country and see churches in a run-down condition, as it indicates a lack of interest in the church and this should not be," he emphasized. "We are living in a hard world, there is a brutality in the hearts of men today, just as bad as that in ancient and pagan times.

Need we look farther than Germany in modern times where religion was held in disdain prior to the Second World War? Hitler ridiculed those who practised their faith," he deplored.

"Redecorating our churches is fine, but we must go deeper than that, we must have those religious convictions which will stamp out all the evil things of this modern day. The people must get closer to Jesus Christ and we must renew our faith. It takes a great deal more than just redecorating our churches," Mr. Servage declared. "We must have a passion for our gospel that will not hesitate to tell this reconciling thought to the world.

"We must carry our warfare against the evils which surround us, one of the greatest of which is the liquor traffic. I am more afraid of this thing right within our nation, than I am of the dangers of Communism," the visiting pastor said in conclusion.

POINT TRAVERSE

Tenders Called For Dredging Local Harbor

Point Traverse, July 7th—Tenders are being called for the dredging of the Point Traverse harbor. To what extent, of how much material will be removed from the channel and entrance is not ascertained.

Deepening of the channel will facilitate commercial fishing craft and pleasure boats to ply to and from the harbor with greater safety.

The harbor was deepened in 1921, 1934, and 1942. The entrance to the harbor was deepened in the spring of 1948, but since then it has filled in considerably with gravel and silt, and only boats with shallow draught are able to enter the harbor safely.

Holiday guests at Mrs. B. L. Metcalfe's resort over the holiday reported nice catches of bass taken from local waters off here.

Toronto's planning commissioner, Tracy LeMay, was one of the many who got his quota of large bass, before returning to the city. Mr. Wm. McBrien, chairman of the Toronto Transportation Commission, Wm. Croft, vice president, and Charles Ward, secretary-treasurer of the same company, spent the weekend fishing in South Bay waters.

Brush Wolves

Mr. Charles Ward who holidayed here over the weekend, sighted a pair of brush wolves early Saturday morning. The animals passed in front of Mr. Ward's tent, disappearing into a nearby thicket along the waterfront.

Makes and Retracts Statement 2,000 Meat Workers Quit

No Improvement Seen In London Dock Strike

London, July 7 — (CP)—Labor Minister George Isaacs today made — then retracted — an announcement that 2,000 workers at Smithfield Meat Market, London, had quit work after troops started unloading meat from strike-bound ships in London docks.

Some time after making the statement in the House of Commons, Isaacs intervened in the debate to withdraw the announcement, saying he had the information "in good faith and on short order."

"I was unable to check it sufficiently," he said.

Earlier he had said:

"There has been no improvement at the docks this morning . . . certain food supplies now are being unloaded by service personnel, but I regret to say I have just learned that some 2,000 meat porters and drivers have stopped work at Smithfield."

The troops began unloading meat shortly after noon in the government's first move to get cargoes moving again in the London docks—idle since the men struck more than a week ago in support of the Canadian Seamen's Union.

More than 200 men from the Scots and Coldstream Guards took over the winches aboard the Argentina Star. Carcasses were being hustled into refrigerated trucks for transport to market.

Two hundred sailors and 100 Royal Marines were reported en route to the docks.

Work Parties Escorted .. .. ..

Today's work parties, mainly technicians able to work cranes and winches, left the Chelsea Barracks in a motorcycle-escorted convoy.

As the denim-clad troops swung into their work, the National Dock Labor Board also announced further work stoppages. In St. Catherines dock 250 workers quit in protest against military "intervention" and 2,750 men employed in London docks scheduled a meeting for tomorrow to decide their policy.

Ships idle numbered 96, an increase of one over Wednesday, the board announced. Seven were undermanned, against Wednesday's eight.

There was no comment from either the C.S.U., the dockers or port authorities on today's developments.

The strike has centred on the refusal of the stevedores to unload two Canadian vessels. The C.S.U. called a world-wide strike last Spring when Canadian ship owners signed contracts with the Seafarers' International Union.

The London port employers have refused to assign men to other ships until the Canadian ships, the Argomont and Beaverbrae, are unloaded.

Accused Given Month in Jail [illegible]r 'Joyriding'

Pleading guilty to a charge of "joyriding", Lorne Rorabeck, of Sidney township, R.R. 5, Trenton, was sentenced to one month in the common jail when he appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills today in county magistrate's court.

Provincial Police Constable Harry Pratt told the court that Rorabeck had been doing some repair work on the car owned by Charles Carey in return for his board and lodging. He said the accused had taken the car without the owner's consent and while driving it had an accident.

Rorabeck also pleaded guilty to a second charge of driving while his licence was suspended [illegible] was assessed $25 and costs [illegible] month in jail, concurrent [illegible] the first sentence.

There was a fairly lengthy court docket with 31 cases lists, approximately one half that number being settled out of court. These were minor traffic offences, speedings and intoxication.

Ernest M. Lucas, proprietor of at a tourist camp east of the city, was charged with operating a slot machine but failed to put in appearance. A warrant was issued for his arrest.

William Masterson, Hillcrest, was remanded for one week for sentence when he pleaded guilty to the theft of a capon rooster, the property of Ray Doyle, also of Hillcrest.

Police said they found part of the rooster in a pot in the Masterson stove and the feathers were found buried in the back-[illegible]rd.

Three charges of careless driving were enlarged for one week, on of them for personal service.

R.C.A.F. PLANE CRASHES KILLS TWO, SETS HOUSE, GRAIN FIELDS AFIRE

Two men died in the flaming wreckage of a R.C.A.F. Harvard trainer, when it went into a tight spin and crashed three miles from Mountain View airport, near Picton, Ont. Several large ground fires were ignited in area, one house was burned to ground and several others threatened. Here residents of the Picton area are shown fighting the blaze started by the crash. Dead are: F.O. M. L .Cowling and L.A.C. Clifford Thornton, both of Toronto.—Central Press Canadian.

ARTILLERY UNIT FROM THE SOO SHINES AT PICTON

Best Week's Training And Sport Ever Held

Picton, July 7 — (CP) — It's a tough grind, this business of summer training in the Royal Canadian School of Artillery, but the gang from Sault Ste. Marie wouldn't have missed it for the world.

The 50 members of the 49th (Sault Ste. Marie H. A. A. Regt.), will arrive home on the six o'clock ferry Saturday evening after the return hop in two deluxe R. C. A. F. North Stars — a rather tired and sun - burned lot — yet healthy and happy.

They'll be coming home with their finest firing record, the softball championship of the huge camp and the best week's training they have ever undergone.

All the way down, from Lt.-Col. L. H. Derrer, the "boss" to Radar Special Bombardier Ernie Vanderburg, the outfit proved that it can "take it" with a smile. At times the Sault regiment just about set the camp on its collective ear.

Wednesday evening Bombardier Vanderburg pitched the Sault unit's team to its third straight to win the camp softball title, defeating a classy camp staff squad 12-10 in a see-saw dogfight. They had knocked off two other good clubs, the 38th L.A.A. Regiment from Sherbrooke, Que., and the 58th L.A.A. Regiment, from Sudbury. Considering that the heavy anti-aircraft training is considerably more rugged during the day, the Saults showing was all right.

Not satisfied that the victors from the lock city have the best ack-ack unit squad in Ontario, Lt. Col. R. J. Fisher, the camp commandant, threatens to bring his Picton team to the Sault later this summer for a return bout.

BOYCOTT CALLED 'PREMATURE' BY MARITIME GROUPS

Situation in East-Coast U. S. Ports Remains Unsettled

Montreal, July 7. (CP)—The threatened boycott of British ships in east-coast United States ports remained unsettled today following reports that the announcement was "premature" from two major Maritime groups.

Joseph P. Ryan, International president of the International Longshoremen's Union said in New York Wednesday night that he agreed with the statement issued by the Maritimes Trades Council of New York that the boycott statement made here Wednesday by Hal. C. Banks, International representative of the Seafarers' International Union, was "premature". All three Maritime bodies are members of the American Federation of Labor.

Banks, leader in Canada of the Union whose signing with Canadian east-coast shipowners touched off the strike of the rival Canadian Seamen's Union, March 31, announced the boycott after sending a cable to Prime Minister Attlee.

His cable said: "Regret to inform you that all British ships will be boycotted in eastern U.S. ports as of July 7."

Banks told reporters the boycott would start at midnight Wednesday night. He said it would be backed by the M.T.C., embracing east-coast port workers affiliated with the A.F.L.

Following the premature calling of the announcement by the two Maritime bodies, Banks could not be reached for comment.

His announcement said the boycott was a reprisal for the action of British dockers who have refused to handle Canadian ships against which the C.S.U. has struck. The British dockers' action, in sympathy with the alleged Communist-led C.S.U., has spread until more than 90 vessels, most of British registry, are tied up.

Ryan said that when the various unions in the M.T.C. do decide to call such a boycott "we want it to be 100 per cent effective."

NORWAY IMPORTS CLOTH

Oslo—(CP)—Although fabric imports in Norway are still regulated by a priority system, dollars were recently allocated for the purchase of 1,150,000 yards of dungaree. The bulk of this cloth will be made into work clothes.

BRITAIN LIKELY TO GET SYMPATHY, NOT MUCH ELSE

Members of Congress Generally Reacted Coolly to Suggestion

Washington, July 7 — (AP)—Britain seemed likely today to get United States sympathy—and not much else—in her newest financial plight.

Members of Congress generally reacted coolly to the announcement that Britain is down to her last £406,000,000 ($1,624,000,000) in gold and dollars. Their general observation was that the problem is one Britain will have to solve for herself without increased United States financial aid.

State Secretary Dean Acheson said that, like an individual whose income drops, Britain was cutting her purchases. He added this was an unfortunate temporary necessity, however, and not a permanent solution.

Britain will get $920,000,000 in Marshall Plan aid this year. Democrats and Republicans joined in saying that Britain had better not count on additional United States help.

Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, Chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, told a reporter "the British have a planned economy and it just hasn't worked," he said. "They'll have to work out their problem for themselves by changing their system or doing something else. We can't be expected to give them any more help than we already have."

Senator Patrick McCarran (Dem. Nev.), a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said "we have been pouring out our money to them for years and they are in worse condition than they were when the war ended. "I don't think they will get anywhere until they change their Socialist Government."

Paul G. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation Administrator, recently testified Britain was making steady recovery gains, a viewpoint Cripps stressed in reporting that production is at record levels in his country with trade practically in overall balance.

"Either all this talk from Hoffman that E.C.A. is a wonderful success is all wrong, or this is an outright attempt to give Britain additional deficit dollars," he said.

Drove Car With Feet Seated on Lowered Roof of Convertible

Kitchener, July 7. (CP) — A Hamilton man who drove his car through Centerville with his feet while seated on the lowered roof of his convertible paid $25 and costs in Waterloo Townshiu court, Wednesday.

Magistrate A. F. Cook of Stratford, assessed the fine against William Horning, Hamilton, when he appeared on a reckless driving charge.

Evidence was that Horning and two passengers were all seated on the back of the car as it passed through Centerville about 5:15 a.m., June 26.

Favors Maritimes, Newfoundland And B.W.I. Forming One Province

FAVORS etvc o the- oot

Moncton, N.B., July 7 — (CP)—Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland said Wednesday he favored amalgamation of the three Maritime Provinces, Newfoundland and the British West Indies into one big Canadian province.

He said in an interview here that the idea had come to him from the late Harry J. Crowe, Newfoundland timber operator.

Mr. Smallwood, who is visiting Maritime premiers, said his talks with them encompass "much less ambitious things." Among these subjects were fisheries and transportation problems which he described as "very practical matters for collaboration" among governments of the four eastern provinces.

"Marmora Day" Features Games, Music, Acrobatics

Marmora — Marmora Day was observed by the Marmora district Chamber of Commerce with a pretentious program at Marmora's new recreation centre, on Wednesday evening.

The event opened with a Trent Valley League (Juvenile) scheduled game in which Norwood engaged the home team. This also marked the official opening of Marmora's new baseball diamond for which Rev. G. D. Young acted as pitcher, and Manager Irving, of the Norwood team, at bat. P. Gray as catcher with Regan taking third base. In the seven innings which followed, Marmora won by the close margin of 10-9.

Stirling Brass Band in attendance played selections in the Arena and Batawa entertainers were likewise well applauded for a program of spectacular acrobatic feats, and Czech folk dances.

Later a dance was held in the Fair building with music furnished by Alex Cunningham's Orchestra. Swelling the proceeds of the evening were bingo games of various kinds, and refreshment booths.

The event furnished the opportunity for renewal of acquaintances with former residents, who are temporarily sojourning at Crowe Lake; and others, who came from outside points for the occasion.

Hot and Humid Weather For Most Of United States

New York, July 7 — (AP)—It was more hot and humid weather for most of the eastern two-thirds of the United States again today. No widespread relief was in sight from the week-long heat wave.

Showers and cool air brought a measure of relief to some of the hot spots but the weather bureau didn't expect a general break in the steaming heat immediately. Meanwhile, crop losses in the drought - stricken northeastern states mounted daily and no heavy rains were forecast.

Deaths attributed to the hot weather mounted to at least 133.

Cool air fanned out over the dry-stricken areas of New England and New York State Wednesday and rain fell in some parts of the eastern states.

New York City got its heaviest wetting in weeks — a half inch rainfall. That was more than fell in the metropolis during the entire month of June. The mercury was a pleasant 81 Wednesday and dropped to 71 early today. Scattered showers brought relief to other parts of New York State.

New Jersey, where crops have suffered millions of dollars damage from 45 days of drought, also got some rain, but not enough to help the wilting crops.

There were some scattered thundershowers in the Great Lakes region, the Ohio Valley and the Rocky Mountain area. But no rain fell and none was predicted in the drought area of Southern New England.

The rains in the midwest have benefited farm crops, experts said, while the weather bureau in Washington said crops made generally good progress in the last week's hot weather. The above-normal temperatures over the eastern two-thirds of the country, the bureau said, stimulated growth of some crops, notably corn, the country's biggest crop. The maturing of wheat, rye, oats and barley also was hastened.

Manhattan Love Song

By Kathleen Norris

It was Fanny who upon any and all occasions suggested a picnic. A picnic was her natural outlet when life was full and satisfying, and equally her resource when life was dull.

"Get Chris and Mack, Madge," she commanded at these times. "Let's picnic! We've millions of things to talk about!" or, "Nothing's happened for so long we'll have to do something about it. Tell them we're going to have a picnic."

"We used to have one picnic a year when I was a kid," Chris told her once. "I never knew anyone as gaga as you are on the subject of picnics."

"But you like them?" asked Fanny anxiously.

"Oh, sure I like them," Chris conceded, grinning. Fanny looked at him for a few minutes with her head tipped on one side; the half-expectant, half-wistful look her eyes sometimes wore making them very blue. What Chris thought and said was uncomfortably important to her—she couldn't help it. It was spoiling her appetite and her sleep and her senior year at Stanford, but she couldn't help it. All she could do was to keep her chin up and try to conceal it not only from him but from Madge, who might very likely be half in love with Chris, too, and from Mack, who was quite admittedly in love with Fanny.

Fanny had been like a child until just lately, when this new feeling about Christopher Thring had come to bother her.

Mack loved her, and she loved Chris, and Madge--probably loved Chris, too, and Chris--Fanny knew he didn't love her, and she wouldn't let her heart admit that he could care for anyone else. It was all rather mixed.

But they were all going to New York, she reminded herself, and once away from the atmosphere of college Chris might feel older, feel more like settling down. The four. Mack and Madge and Chris and Fanny, would have to rely on each other, then. He would have to see, then, how simply--how truly and deeply Fanny cared for him; and from the moment he knew, of course it would all be wonderful!

Fanny and Madge and Mack and Christopher--these four had somehow drifted together during the years. Despite the differences in their backgrounds and their natures they never could remain long apart. Out of the surging current of the more than three thousand young lives that the college had drawn into one stream, they had found each other; they said that they never would lose each other again.

Or at least Fanny, a spokeswoman in any group, said that, Mack grinned approval, and Madge clung tight to Fanny's so much bigger hand. Madge had majored in Greek and was almost a straight A scholar. Her mother kept a girl's school and Madge would presumably go back there some day to teach Latin and Greek. But meanwhile her mother had promised her a year in New York, not so much to encourage her in her inexplicable passion for the stage generally, and puppet shows in particular, as to disillusion her completely along those lines.

"For four years," explained Madge's mother to her faculty, "the child has been delirious on the subject of puppets. Well! There's neither culture nor future nor even money along that line, as far as I can see. I'm perfectly willing to have her prove it to her own satisfaction. Marjorie's twenty-two, and she isn't the kind to fall quickly in love."

Thus Madge's mother, who flattered herself that she understood girls. But meanwhile Madge had gone to a holiday dance, and the great arms of Mack Wise had encircled her and Madge knew now that however much she used the puppets as a shield, it was really because of Mack that she did anything. And Mack was confidently, definitely, resolutely bound for the biggest city.

Mack's father was a doctor in Salt Lake City. His parents had been quite unable to do anything for him. But an uncle had promised him six hundred a year for his college years, and Mack built this up by playing the piano in a summer-hotel orchestra, and by such clever contributionhs to college theatricals that on several occasions he had been asked to repeat them on the radio, and had actually been paid for doing so.

Mack had everything; had much more than Chris. But Chris, somehow, had something of his own that more than restored the balance. He was rather silent, whereas Mack talked all the time. Still one felt—or at least Fanny felt--the presence of humor in Chris and feeling. But he showed it little. He had finished his law course at twenty-four because of parental backing whatsoever.

To pay his way, he corrected papers, coached twofreshmen in French and phychology, and "hashed" at Roble. Roble was the girls' dormitory; Chris and Fanny had met when she was in her first year and had been living there.

Her own background was quite ordinary, Fanny said. She was from San Diego; her father and mother wer dad, and she had money enough to finish college next month, and to go to New York afterward, and a few hundreds more to get started on.

"Start at what?" she echoed cheerfully today, when Mack asked her. "I don't know exactly. I haven't made up my mind yet. I only know that somehow I have to go to New York, and that the rest with all be plain sailing."

"Darn plain," Cristopher said simply. Fanny only laughed.

"Come, Chris," she said rallyingly, "every one does it. Think of the people who have gone to New York and succeeded!"

"But--but if you don't know what you're going to succeed at, Fanny?" Madge pursued.

"Oh that doesn't make any difference!" Fanny assured her lightly.

Christopher looked up, blinking.

I've got to go New York," he began somberly. "Madge's got her mother to back her. Mack here can come back, if everything goes wrong. But you may find yourself in the deuce of a pickle if you come on there and your money gives out."

"She can go right on living with me!" Madge said quickly. "We're going to live together anyway."

"Well," Chris, who appeared to b in an odious mood, conceded ungraciously, "she could live with you, of course."

To this Chris very properly paid no attention. There was a silence during which Fanny had time to realize how childish the words sounded, dying on the air, and then Mack said:

"I'm the one that has an awful nerve to go to New York in this year of all years."

"It hasn't seemed to occur to the girls, at least, that jobs aren't so easily gotten in New York," Chris added.

"But--but if we're sure of our allowances' we won't have financial worries." Madge put in.

"In New York alone seven million persons are going on living, aren't they Chris no matter what hard times do or don't do?" Fanny asked.

"I suppose so," he said with his slow smile.

"It would be terrible to have all the problems solved, and every one fat and lazy and warm and not worried," Fanny went on encouraged.

"Well, then it's New York for all four of us, is it?" Chris asked musingly, as they started down the hill.

"For me. I feel that there's something for me to do there Fanny answered promptly.

"Oh I've got to have my New York year!" Madge exclaimed.

"I'm going to bust into broadcasting there or die," Mack exclaimed.

"And how soon after commencement? And do we go together?"

"Ah, yes, together!" Madge pleaded.

"Why not?" Fanny asked. "We're moderns. Madge's mother has asked me to stay with them at the school for a few days. and she's going to see us off at Sixteenth Street in Oakland and treat us to a compartment. We may come back hitch-hiking, but we'll start in style. And then we'll have Madge's hundred, and you're going to get ---?"

"Eighteen a week," Chris supplied, winching.

"And I'll have about three hundred to draw on," Fanny said brightly "and Mack--Mack'll get something right away. What ought you get. Mack?"

"I ought to get fifty or sixty a week if I make good at all on the air," Mack stated firmly.

"Oh, well, now, look--that's oceans!" decided Fanny "We can help each other until we all get going."

"I think we're crazy," Chris murmured. But there was no real uneasiness in his tone, and they were all laughing as they reached Fraternity Row and separated. Madge returned home; Chris disappeared into the libary; Mack and Fanny walked on together.

When Fanny returned to the room she shared with Madge she found her lying flat on the bed. resting. She followed her first careless glance with a shrewder one. Madge had been crying. The other girl went over and sat down beside her.

"What about. honey?"

"Fanny, if you were in love with some one, and wanted him most terribly to--to like you, what would you do?" Madge asked.

A pause. Fanny looked down. The name of "Chris" seemed to be shouted in the room.

"Why? Do you think I--I like some one and am trying to get him?"

"I was asking you, Fan. Wow--how can I make a man like me?"

"Go on exactly the way you are, Madge," Fanny said, in an odd tone, after a moment's hesitation. "You have everything a man wants, my dear. You're little and sweet and responsive, and a good listener, and easy on the eyes. I would'nt worry. He'll see it--one of these days when we're all sweltering in the New York heat he'll suddenly awaken to the fact that there are women in the world."

"You know who it is," Madge murmured, suffocated.

"I suppose I do," Fanny said, not looking at the other girl.

"But, Fan, I think he does know there are women in the world.

"Me he likes, you mean?" Fanny asked, clearing her throat.

'You know it!"

"I don't know it. What makes you think that?"

"Every time he looks at you!" Madge said, with a little shrewd shred of despairing laughter. "I know Mack."

"Mack," Fanny presently said slowly, heavily. "I rather thought it was Chris, Madge."

"Chris!" Madge laughed "Fanny do you think I'm a fool about Mack?" she pleaded. "He likes you terribly doesn't he?"

"He likes us both terribly, Madge. "Yes," Fanny added, with an air that indicated to perfection a casual consideration of the question, "there's no doubt he had a crush ----"

"You think he's over it, Fanny? And you don't care one bit?"

THE DIONNE QUINTUPLETS' DOCTORS PRESCRIBED LIBBY'S BABY FOODS

Fifteen years ago, newspapers in every part of the world were carrying front page stories about the Dionne Quintuplets. The whole world was asking, "Will all the babies live?" and was interested in every detail of their infant regime.

That they did all live to become healthy and charming young girls is a tribute to the skill of those who cared for them during their infancy. For this reason, Libby's are especially proud that the Dionne's doctors selected Libby's strained and homogenized Baby Foods for their world-famous charges. Proud, too, that the Dionne Quintuplet have maintained a high level of health ever since they emerged from their critical baby days.

Plane Crashes In Thunderstorm In Northwest

Edmonton, July 7 — (CP) — Three persons were injured, two critically, when their light plane crashed early Wednesday during a violent thunderstorm near Wildwood, 70 miles west of here.

The three were: Pilot T. Aho and passengers Nancy and Ruth Cameron of Anchorage, Alaska.

Most seriously injured were the pilot and an unidentified passenger. They were taken to hospital at Edson, 135 miles west of here.

K. F Saunders, District Inspector of Air Regulations for the Department of Transport, said the plane, a single-engined Stinson, took off from Fort St. John for Edmonton Tuesday night.

The fire chief at Edson reported sighting a plane circling the town about midnight during a violent storm which had blacked out all lights in the area.

About 1 a.m. the telephone operator at Wildwood reported that a plane had crashed in flames near the highway in rugged bush country 1½ miles south of the town.

Fine Recital Given by Pupils Of S. Hawthorne

Madoc — On Wednesday evening the pupils of Mr. Stanley Hawthorne, music supervisor, gave a recital in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc.

It was indeed a pleasure and a privilege to hear these young students demonstrate their musical ability. All the children from Grade One to Grade Nine showed talent and were a credit to their teacher, whose untiring efforts have made music of such importance in this community.

Mr. George West was chairman and thanked the students and audience on behalf of the Kiwanis Club for the part they played in assisting with funds for child welfare work.

The first half of the program was given by the younger pupils, Pauline Quinn, Larry Stickwood, Barbara Bateman, Elizabeth Baker Joy Ann Fox, Thomas and James Blue, Janet Hamilton, Bevis Tufts and Donna Devolin and the latter half was performed by the senior pupils, Joan Burris, Douglas Courneyea, Carol Symons, Susanne Locke, Catharine Hart and Erma Burris.

This part was composed of duets, duo piano duets, by the pupils and Mr. Hawthorne, which were very capably rendered and showed talent and the results of many hours of practice and the ability to perform on concert stage.

Two assisting musicians were Miss Anne Nickle who sang delightfully and David Crawford, whose own interpretation of "Blue Prelude" as a trumpet solo was most effective. The Madoc Boys Octet added variety to the program.

The church was filled to capacity and the applause of the audience showed their appreciation of the entire program.

At the conclusion of the program Mrs. Stickwood very capably thanked Stanley on behalf of the parents and pupils for his interest and inspiration.

Miss Elizabeth Baker and little Miss Hamilton then presented Stanley with gifts.

The entire proceeds go to the work of the Kiwanis Club in Madoc.

Joint Service

On Sunday morning St. Peter's Presbyterian congregation met with Trinity United in the United Church for service and will continue throughout July to worship together. At the service brethren of the district Orange lodges, along with the members of Madoc L.O.L., attended in a body.

The Rev. M. W. Heslip, minister of St. Peter's, had charge of the service and chose his text from the Revelation chapter 3:11. Special music was rendered, the guest soloist being Mrs. Grant of Holloway who sang two beautiful solos, "He Smiled at Me," and "Thank God for His Kindness." She was accompanied by Mrs. Lainson of Holloway. Miss Joan Burris played a piano solo, "Humoresque," during the "offertory." Despite the intense heat of the morning, a splendid congrega-

Change of Scenery Proves A Tonic for Walker Cooper Traded by Giants to Reds

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

All Walker Cooper needed was a change of scenery—or was it a change of managers?

Big Coop, who popped off publicly about his trials with the New York Giants under Leo Durocher, sounded off with his big bat Wednesday for his new boss at Cincinnati.

Six straight base hits, including three three-run homers, added up to a big 10 runs batted in for the ex-Giant who went to Cincy for Catcher Ray Mueller, June 14.

Since Coop left the Giants he has been nothing short of sensational.

All this thumping doesn't make much difference at Cincy where the Reds have dipped into seventh place and are in danger of falling all the way to the basement. In New York, a Cooper hitting at that pace could have made a contender out of the fifth-place Giants.

Cooper, in helping the Reds to a 23-4 landslide win Wednesday over the Chicago Cubs, had a chance to tie Uncle Wilbert Robinson's all-time record of seven consecutive hits when he came up in the eighth inning. He grounded into a force play, breaking the string. The 10 R.B.I.'s were only two short of the record set by Sunny Jim Bottomley of St. Louis Cards in 1924.

The Reds battered Frankie Frisch's staff for 26 hits giving Ken Raffensberger a comfortable ride to his ninth victory.

Still Full Game

The heavy firing in Cincy overshadowed the pennant race which almost —but not quite—resulted in a first place tie. Brooklyn's one-game lead faded when the Dodgers lost to the Boston Braves, 7-5, but the runner-up St. Louis Cards blew a 3-1 lead in the last of the ninth and bowed to Pittsburgh 4-2. As a result the Brooks still lead by a full game.

Tommy Holmes sunk the Dodgers with his third homer in the last three days to give Vern Bickford his 11th win.

Johnny Hopp was the hero of the Pirates ninth-inning rally against the Cards. Hopp's single with the bases loaded scored two runs for Pittsburgh's fifth straight win.

Murry Dickson accounted for his third victory with an eight-inning relief job. Dickson has lost 11.

Rain washed out Philadelphia-New York games in both the National and American.

Both Lose Ground

Both Cleveland and Detroit lost ground in the race by dropping night games but the distanced Boston Red Sox pulled up even with the .500 mark by shutting out Washington, 5-0 in a game called in the sixth due to rain.

Ellis Kinder held Washington to four hits as the Red Sox mauled Joe Haynes and Sid Hudson for eight hits.

Steve Souchock's double with the bases loaded in the eighth gave Chicago White Sox a 9-8 edge over Cleveland, snapping the Indians' five-game win streak. Satchel Paige was tagged with his fifth loss. St. Louis Browns outlasted Detroit Tigers 6-5 in 13 innings, when Gerry Priddy singled home Tom Ferrick with the tie-breaking run. The Tigers moved out front in the 12th but Jack Graham's second homer of the game and 13th of the year knotted the score again.

Managers Follow Fans' Preference Right Down Line

New York, July 7 — (AP)— The Major League All-stars won't settle their annual argument until Tuesday in Brooklyn, but the baseball fans already have won.

The All-star squads follow exactly the dictates of the 4,637,743 fans who balloted for their favorites.

Managers Lou Boudreau of the Americans and Billy Southworth of the Nationals were bound to use only the top choice for each of the eight positions. But they exercised their judgment solely in the pitching department which wasn't included in the popular voting.

Two additions brought on by peculiar circumstances were sure to meet with the fans' approval. Joe DiMaggio, of New York Yankees, who suddenly returned to his brilliant form after missing the first 65 games of the season, was included on the American League squad for the 11th time.

Eddie Waitkus, of Philadelphia Phils, who was leading the National League first base poll when he was shot by a crazed girl admirer, was named an honorary member. He finished second to Johnny Mize of the Giants in the final vote. Gil Hodges of Brooklyn, who finished third, was picked for the active squad.

Dodgers, Cards Dominate

Brooklyn and St. Louis dominate the National League roster announced Wednesday night. They each landed seven players on the 26-man squad. The New York Giants placed fourth, followed by Boston, Cincinnati and Philadelphia with two each and Chicago and Pittsburgh with one each.

Three of the eight National League pitchers are Dodgers — Ralph Branca, Preacher Roe and Don Newcombe. Rounding out the staff are Howie Pollet and George Munger of the Cardinals; Warren Spahn and Vern Bickford of the Braves and the biggest surprise of the squad — Ewell Blackwell of Cincinnati.

In picking Blackwell, who has won one and lost none while recovering from a kidney operation, Southworth left off several hurlers with more impressive records. Ken Heintzelman (10-5) and Robin Roberts (9-6) of the Phillies were bypassed as the Blackwell's Cincinnati teammate, Ken Raffensberger (8-6) who has pitched four shutouts, tops in both leagues this year.

Must Play Three Innings

The starting lineups have to remain intact through the first three innings barring injuries. For the American Leaguers, who have won 11 of the 15 All-star tilts, it will be Eddie Robinson, Washington, first base; Cass Michaels, Chicago, second base; George Kell, Detroit, third base; Eddie Joost, Philadelphia, shortstop; Ted Williams, Boston, left field; Dom DiMaggio, Boston, centrefield; Tommy Henrich, New York, right field, and Birdie Tebbets, Boston, catcher.

For his starting pitcher Boudreau will choose from among Lou Brissie, Philadelphia; Alex Kellner, Philadelphia; Mel Parnell, Boston; Vic Raschi, New York; Allie Reynolds, New York; Virgil Trucks, Detroit and Bob Lemon, Cleveland.

Opening for the National League will be Johnny Mize, New York veteran of eight previous All-star games, at first base; Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn, second base; Eddie Kazak, St. Louis, 3rd base; Pee Wee Reese, Brooklyn, shortstop; Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh, left field; Stan Musial, St. Louis, centrefield; Willard Marshall, New York, rightfield, and Andy Seminick, Philadelphia, catcher.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Ed. Pine stroked the gunnels of his sleek 225 cubic incher "Maple Leaf" and a slow smile crept over his face. "The old girl did herself right proud at Alexandria Bay the other day," he commented.

"She kicked up her heels and heaved spray and spume in the bows of some of the best of 'em and especially in her own class Division II. She behaved beautifully and won at a speed of 59.39 going away and in Division 1, 225's she was just two seconds behind Doc Robinson's new beauty. Right pert little water-sprite, this Maple Leaf."

Ed. won the Gold Trophy at the Alexandria Bay Regatta and took off on Tuesday for Windsor where he will compete in a Lake St. Clair water derby. After all Ed. has held the record of highest point winner in APBA Canadian speedboat circles for the past two years, and he's going to win it for three straight seasons, b'cracky, if wind, weather and the wife permits.

* * *

"Maple Leaf" kicked her wake in the teeth of such classy craft as "Double Trouble," Bob Schute's speedster from Tonawanda, N.Y.; the "Costa Lotta" (get it?) formerly the sleek "Kingcut" of Cornwall now owned and driven by Art. Hatch, Hamilton, and an "orphan" craft which bore no name and no number.

Bob Bogey, flame-scarred American Air Force veteran of Loon Lake, New York, who sprang several surprises during the past two years with his "Blitz II" when he won the Picton Gold Cup Trophy besides several other regatta prizes, is back again with a brand new "Blitz." According to Pine Bogey's new boat is just about the last word in 225 Division 1 and he predicts brilliant things for the new "Blitz."

* * *

But "Blitz" will have plenty of competition, Pine opines. Bob Sawyer, whose "Belligero" was the sensation of the Picton and Belleville regattas, will be back, with a lot of improvement gadgets tucked under her sleek hull. Sawyer, who hails from California, will likely trailer again across continent to garner his share of the golden loot from Eastern Canadian and American regattas.

* * *

All of which reminds us that the Kiwanis Club of this city is taking up the regatta thread where the Rotary Club dropped it, and is venturing into the speedboat realm for the first time in its history. It is sponsoring one of these nautical derbies on the well-known Massassaga course on Wednesday July 13 when it is expected the cream of American and Canadian drivers in 225 cubic inch (two divisions) the saucy 135's and the slower but none the less thrill-making service and racing runabouts, will be here.

Drivers from Picton, Kingston, Belleville, Brockville, Cornwall, Valleyfield, Que., Gananoque as well as named American throttle-kickers are expected to converge on Belleville Wednesday next. Special plans have been made for their reception and accommodation, and Kiwanis are all out to make their maiden voyage in speedboat circles a success. Special committees have been organized and arrangements are nearing completion for a gala day of speedboat sport.

Tomorrow night the Picton team, fresh from recent victories, will be here in an effort to add to their win string at the expense of the Kiwanis Juniors at Exhibition Park. Juniors have been idle for some time and should be in fine fettle for this all important game. Picton has not been sitting around the sidelines and their past two performances mark them as an up-and-coming squad.

* * *

We would not like to have A. R. Bjornebo, of Calgary, Alta., draw a fine bead on our midriff with his trusty twenty-two rifle. Brother, that guy can really snipe. He recently set a new record to capture the Dominion .22 Sporting Rifle Championship (prone shooting) during the national rifle matches. The Calgary Rifle Club marksman fired a perfect score of 600 with 58 of his shots breaking the small dotted x-ring in the centre of the bulls-eye. And if that aint shootin', men, Custer's Last Stand was a circus concession.

* * *

Somebody gummed up the timekeeping works at the Alexandria Bay Regatta the other day. Dr. Walter Robinson of the American riverside town was informed he had driven his 1949 edition of "Mr. Docket" a 225 cubic inch Division 1 hydroplane, to a new world's record of over 81 miles per hour. But the amiable Doc's surge of pride was shortlived. Someone had blundered arithmetically, and a check revealed that the Alexandria Bay speed demon had negotiated the five-mile course at a speed of just better than 71 m.p.h. Bet the last shirt that efficient "Dode" Schelling, wife of the well-known Bob, was not wielding the official pencil when the error was made.

Bobby Locke In Third Place Of British Open

Sandwich, England, July 7 (AP) — Golf can play some funny tricks on the best of players. Otherwise, Americans Johnny Bulla and Frank Stranahan and South African Bobby Locke might be at least tied today with Scotsman Jimmy Adams for the British Open leadership.

The fates decreed differently, so going into today's second round of the 72-hole Medal play tournament at the St. George's layout, Adams held a one stroke lead with a 67.

Ireland's Harry Bradshaw and Roberto De Vicenzoe of Argentina shared second place with 68s, then came tournament favorite Locke — tied with six others at 69. Five players followed in a bunch into 70.

Down in 16th place behind that group came Bulla and Stranahan with 71, tied with five others.

Bulla, Pittsburgh professional, might easily have scored 67 but for a recalcitrant putter which marred an otherwise brilliant first nine. It was responsible for Johnny getting two fives and a six, spoiling his exceptional wood shots. Bulla was British Open runner-up in 1939 and 1946.

Stranahan, the Toledo, Ohio, amateur who tied for second place two years ago, was the victim of one wretched hole. He got into two bunkers on the dogleg, 451-yard fifth, which cost him a fat seven.

Locke also took a seven when, on the 14th hole, he lost the grip of his club and shot out of bounds.

Americans have won the British Open a dozen times, including ten straight between 1924-1933. The last Yank to win it was Sammy Snead in 1946. Walter Hagen gave the United States its first triumph in 1922.

Heavy Showers Stop Play in Golf Tourney

By The Canadian Press

Heay showers Wednesday forced the Ontario Amateur Golf Association to postpone its open championship tournament at Kitchener's Westmount Golf and Country Club for the first time in the 27-year history of the event.

The qualifying round will be played today with the final Sunday instead of Saturday.

Officials of the third annual Canadian Junior Track and Field Championships announced Wednesday that a record entry of 376 contestants has been received for the two-day meet at Toronto, Friday and Saturday.

The entry—largest for any track and field championship held in Canada, Junior or Senior—will bring strong teams from many well-known clubs in the United States and Canada into competition.

Mrs. Phonse Hefferman realized a golfer's ambition at Guelph Wednesday. She registered a hole-in-one on the 110-yard, 11th hole—with a No. 3 iron. Despite suggestions by her husband that she should use a No. 8 or 9 iron, she knocked the ball into a bank in front of the green and it bounced into the cup.

More than 130 women golfers from Canada and the United States are expected to compete in this year's Canadian open amateur championships, to be held at Vancouver Aug. 22-27, tournament officials said today. The field will be led by top-seeded U.S. Star Grace Lenczyk, twice Canadian champion and defending titleholder.

Capt. Harry West, well-known to horsemen in Toronto and Montreal, died Wednesday at Toronto.

For a number of years prior to his retirement about seven years ago, he was a placing judge at Toronto's Woodbine Race track and, before that, he was a trainer.

At Toronto, a touring Swedish soccer team Wednesday night defeated Ontario All-Stars 8-1. Some 5,000 persons at Oakwood stadium saw the dull, slow game, the Swedish team's last exhibition match in North America.

Fred W. Hooper's Ocean Drive charged up from behind in the mud to win the $25,000-added Dick Welles stakes for three-year-olds at Chicago's Arlington Park, Wednesday. Ocean Drive was coupled with his illustrious stablemate, Olympia, in the six-furlong stakes. Ocean Drive, ridden by Chuck Parke, drove up from fourth place to defeat Lextown by a length and a half. Olympia, top-weighted at 128 pounds, finished third, another length behind.

Proximity, Brown mare owned by Gordon and Ralph Vernhurst of Vitor, N.Y., today won the $10,000 titan free-for-all Grand Circuit trot at Historic track in Goshem, N.Y., Drive by C. Hodgins, proximity won two straight heats to defeat Rodney, 1948 horse of the year, which finished second both times. Vita Lee was third, finishing there in both seats.

Mr. Cy Morgan, Philadelphia's Chief Scout in charge of try-out camps will conduct the daily activities and he will be ably assisted by several well-known Philadelphia scouts and executives.

. As amiable as a couple of tail-tied bobcats slung over a barbed-wire fence, Fred Atkins, the "Elbow" from Australia, and sensational Al. Best Horses in Pacing Derby At Westbury Westbury, N.Y., July 7—(AP)—The Roosevelt Raceway Track record will be in jeopardy tonight when 11 of the country's fast harness horses meet in the fourth edition of the $25,000 National Pacing Derby.

Speed and more speed is sprinkled all through the entry list for the one-mile event which is an invitational affair for the clasiest pacers now in training.

The record for pacers twice around Roosevelt's half-mile oval is 2:01 flat, made by Direct Express in 1947. The probably co-favorites tonight—Jimmy Creed and Indian Land — have both clipped 2:01 4/5 in the last three weeks at the Long Island Harness Emporium. Furthermore, the field includes four pacers who joined the exclusive two-minute club last season, Poplar Byrd, Grattan Mcklyo, Hayes Hanover and Jerry the First.

With the exception of Goose Bay, all the free-for-alls in the country which means they are the absolute top horses in their division—are in the line-up. Trainer-driver Ralph Baldwin withdrew Goose Bay late Wednesday after deciding the 1948 Pacing Derby winner wasn't in top form.

Jimmy Creed, owned by Silas C. Thompson of New Ross, Ind., took second in the 1948 and 1946 Pacing Derbies. Last year's second place winner, Dr. Stanton, also will appear tonight. He is owned by W. L. (Lindy) Fraser of Forest, Ont. Dr. Stanton set world records last year for 1¼ and 1½ miles.

Although the crowd is expected to plunge heaviest on Jimmy Creed and Indian Land, a lot of support will go to Grattan Mcklyo. This gelded son of Silent Grattan is in peak form, and with a great burst of speed is capable of upsetting the favorites.

Oshawa Squad Defeats Batawa By 4-3 Count

Oshawa, July 7 (CP)—Oshawa Merchants extended their winning streak that has remained unbroken in C.O.B.L. competition since they had their home opener, when they nosed out Batawa Shoemen 4-3 here Wednesday night in a keen pitcher's battle between Ross Knights and "Mac" Smith.

Superior punch at the plate decided the issue. The homesters were fortunate, however, in scoring the tying run in the 8th when a choice play at the plate was reversed from "out" to "safe" when the catcher dropped the ball after the tag-out. The winning run was scored a moment later while Batawa was pulling off a double play.

"Red" Jubenville with three-for four-paced the Merchants on the attack but Gingerich and McMullen with their two hits apiece figured more prominently in the scoring of Oshawa's runs.

The win keeps Oshawa within reach of the league-leading Peterborough Marines, each club having won all but six possible points since the schedule got under way on May 24.

Frankford Edges Centenary 8-6 To Gain Top-Slot Tie

Frankford.— Frankford Sidney softball team edged Centenary 8-6 in Frankford, Monday night, gaining a split on the season's play Montgomery and Bates shared the pitching task for the winners, with Moran receiving. Edmundson and Marshall were the Centenary battery. All three pitchers showed good form, and loose fielding on the part of both teams accounted for several runs. Jerry Foster, besides playing a sparkling game at short, wielded the big bludgeon for Frankford, with a triple and a home run in three official trips to the plate. This win placed Frankford in a tie for first place, as Batawa, attired in their new black and gold sweaters handed Johnstown a 14-4 setback.

Electrics Take Point Anne 9-7 In Free-hit Game

Northern Electric bats swung in concerted action at Point Anne last night when they pounced on the offerings of Johnny Green for seventeen safeties including a triple and two doubles to hand Point Anne their second consecutive defeat by a 9-7 score.

Big Vern Goyer came into his own with the willow leading the Electrics' hit parade with a triple and three singles for four for five. Fitzpatrick and Mulverhill smashed out a double and two singles each with "Red" Carson maintaining his terrific hitting splurge with three singles for 4. Rutherford got a couple and James and Bunton got singles. Jackie Wardhaugh and Vance were the only members of the team to go hitless.

Johnny Green went the route for the Pointers and although he was touched for plenty of hits struck out eight and walked two. He helped himself to a double in the first innings.

Bob Bunton went the route for the winners giving up ten hits. He clustered three in the first, four in the fourth and three and two in the eighth but held the homesters hitless and runless over the remainder of the game. He struck out nine and issued but one free ticket.

Northern worked themselves into a 6-2 lead at the top of the fourth but the Pointers, smashing out four hits for as many runs tied up the pastime and it was anybody's ball game.

Goyer's triple and hits by Carson and Rutherford gave the planters a one run lead in the next heat and they added two more in the eighth when Goyer and Fitzpatrick connected safely. Bennett's two-baser and Genereaux' single in the eighth paved the way for the last Point Anne run.

Northern kicked the ball around four times during the game while the homesters were credited with but one bobble.

The teams:—

Northern Electric:—Wardhaugh 3b; Goyer cf; Fitzpatrick ss; Carson 1b; Rutherford rf; Mulverhill 2b; Vance lf; James c; Bunton p.

Point Anne — Genereaux cf; M. Green lf; Strachan 2b; Sero ss; J. Green p; P. Green rf; Callaghan c; Maracle 3b; Bennett 1b; Elliott rf.

The score:—

N. Electric	211	201	020—9	17	4
Point Anne	200	400	010—7	10	1

Chicago Fielder Leaves Hospital But Little Shaky

Chicago, July 7 — (AP) — The big, blond guy wasn't mad at all as he walked shakily away from the hospital bed that possibly kept him from being the American League's rookie-of-the-year.

"It was a tough break, that's all," grinned Gus Zernial, the Chicago White Sox outfielder, leaving Mercy Hospital Wednesday after a 38-day stay.

Handsome Gus entered the hospital May 30, two days after a diving try for a fly ball shattered his right collar bone at Cleveland Stadium.

At the time, Zernial was leading the American League in hitting with .355, was tops in two-baggers with 17, and was the biggest gate attraction the Sox have had in years.

"Now, I almost have to learn to walk all over again, much less bat and throw a ball," said Zernial.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

Throughout the swing you must keep your eye on the ball for it is the target at which the club must arrive in the downswing. But keeping your eye on the ball you are far less likely to sway the head either in the vertical or horizontal plane. And it follows, that your shoulder pivot must be in a somewhat vertical plane, too, to make it possible to see the ball over your left shoulder when you are at the top of the swing. And so this rule of keeping your eye on the ball serves purpose of virtually forcing the shoulder pivot to be in what approaches a vertical plane. And that's the plan it must be in for a good, rhythmic, co-ordinated swing. In the backswing, the left shoulder rotates under the chin as the right shoulder rises. The shoulder pivot should be decidedly more vertical than the plane of the hip pivot. Notice how the left heel rises as the left knee moves inward. This rising of the left heel keeps the knees at the same horizontal plane preventing left side sag. And the left toe keeps a firm grip on the ground even though the bulk of the weight shifts to the right leg as the swing approaches the top.

Nerves On Edge; Always Tired, Says This Woman

Stomach Troubles Led to Run-down Condition, Poor Sleep and Dizzy Spells. Tells of Improvement in Her Health Since Taking Syntona.

If you feel tired, worn out and nervous; if bowels are constipated and you suffer from indigestion, gas, headaches and dizzy spells; if you have backache or sore, aching joints and muscles, try a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound and the chances are that you, too, may find this medicine to be just what you need to help you feel like your-

"For two years I suffered from stomach disorders and my entire system became run down. I was troubled with indigestion and dizzy feelings. Gas formed in large quantities after my meals, giving me a full, heavy, bloated feeling which nothing would relieve. I became extremely nervous. Often I couldn't get to sleep for hours after going to bed and during the day I felt so tired and worn out it was a great effort for me to do my housework.

"But after using only a short treatment of Syntona, my food began to digest better. Gas, indigestion and dizziness cleared up and I began to enjoy my meals again. As I continued taking this medicine, my strength returned. Now my nerves are relaxed so I am getting more sound, restful sleep, and I never feel tired as I did before."

Britain's Railways Provide Govt. With Serious Problem In Program of Nationalization

By H. L. JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 7—(CP)—Britain's railways are providing the Labor government with the biggest, most complicated problem in it's program to nationalize the transport of the country.

Progress has been made in the first full year of state-ownership on the over-all objective of integrating the lines, Eliminating over-lapping services and co-ordinating them with road and other forms of transport.

But over the railways hangs the threat of labor trouble that could tie up the country at a critical time. Rolling stock is short and track badly in need of repairs that can't be done immediately because of steel shortages. An operational deficit is expected.

And the government faces the fact that with a general election due next year, the state of the railways is an important political consideration. Bad train service is immediately noticed by the millions who travel.

The state acquired not only the railways but most road transport, inland canals, water ways and docks, some hotels and coastal shipping and London's huge underground and bus system when it took over in 1947. The cost was £1,065,000,000 ($4,860,000,000) and the government paid by issuing non-voting stock.

More than 50,000 miles of railway lines come under the railway executive, one of the administrative bodies set up under the eye of the policy-making transport commision to run the country's transport It faces not only the giant task of working out a new, up-to-date rate structure but worker demands for more administrative authority and increased wages.

There have been some improvements in service, but trains still run late over bad track. But it was like that before the nationalization.

Railway workers are pressing for higher wages and a greater share in administration.

At the same time, because of rising costs and dropping traffic receipts, the railways are expected to show a deficit between £8,000,000 and £20,000,000 in the first full year of nationalization.

The take-over of road transport has been smoother. The road transport executive now operates 12,000 vehicles formerly owned by 270 firms and is co-ordinating them with railway services. Private haulage firms can still operate independently within a 25-mile radius.

STILL PICKETTING

Canadian ships remain crewless in Great Britain while strikers picket along wharves. The Canadian Seamen's Union announced a settlement with management, then, hours later, accused the steamship companies of "treachery" as the crews could be discharged and prosecuted on arrival in Canada. Here the picketters remind London dock workers that the strike is still in effect. British stevedores have refused to load the strike-bound ships.—Central Press Canadian.

Thousands of Persons Enjoying Or Preparing for Summer Camp

(By The Canadian Press)

It's summer camp time and across Canada thousands of persons are enjoying, or preparing for, this annual invasion of lakeland and forest which brings many a city dweller into his only contact with the great outdoors.

Only a few years ago, the mention of a summer camp called up a vision of the mingled pleasures of "tenting out" at the lake and of roughing it on a diet of canned food prepared over an open fire. But that is all changed now and most camps have permanent buildings, a variety of cooking and sports equipment and trained supervisory staffs.

The most numerous of the camps are those operated for children by churches, welfare organizations and religious groups. Children from moderately well-to-do families pay for the outing at varying rates; those who cannot pay go at the expense of the organization sponsoring the camp.

On a different level are the camps operated by Boy Scouts and Girl Guides. The biggest Scout camp this year will be at Connaught Ranges, 14 miles west of Ottawa, where 3,000 Scouts from across Canada are expected to attend the first Canadian Boy Scout jamboree July 10-16.

For youth groups, there are young people's camps, operated chiefly by church organizations. Youth of both sexes, in their late 'teens or early 20s, attend these camps for programs of sports, handicrafts and worship.

In still another class the family camps. Parents can take their children to these camps and turn them over to supervisors for organized recreation while the grownups themselves seek a variety of entertainment.

Some of these camps for adults and children are run on a big scale. Bolton Camp for Mothers and Children, just west of Toronto, expects to play host to 3,850 persons this summer. Last year, food alone cost $25,265, or about $600 a day. The rate for a 12-day holiday last year was $22.65 a person but it is higher this year. Operated by the Neighborhood Workers' Association, the camp is supported mainly by donations from individuals and groups.

Newfoundland has about 1,200 children's camps, mostly within a short distance of St. John's or near such communities as Corner Brook. Ontario counts roughly 500 camps, Manitoba 15, Saskatchewan 180. In British Columbia, churches alone have 11 campsites and 58 camps.

Some newspapers, including the Toronto Daily Star and the Halifax Chronicle-Herald, run annual summer campaigns for funds to send needy children to camp.

Liberal Asks For Recount in Middlesex East

London, Ont., July 7—(CP)—Application for a recount in Middlesex East will be filed today by Fred O. Kime, defeated Liberal candidate in the Dominion elections. In the official count he trailed the winner, Progressive-Conservative Harry O. White by 39 votes.

Mr. Kime said that his decision on a re-check was based not only on the narrow margin in the official return, but also on the fact that there were 232 rejected ballots in the tabulation.

Confusion attended the fight in the urban-rural riding on election night through a mixup in tabulation caused by several Deputy Returning Officers failing to report their figures. With a majority of the polls counted, Mr. Kime was more than 1,200 votes ahead officially, but at the same time each candidate's manager claimed his side was winning.

Cent-a-Gallon Increase in Toronto Area

Toronto, July 7 — (CP)—The half-cent a gallon increase in the wholesale price of gasoline in Ontario and Quebec announced Wednesday by Imperial Oil Ltd., will mean a one-cent-a-gallon increase to motorists in the Toronto area.

D. J. Fletcher, executive secretary of the retail gasoline division of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, said the service station operators have decided to boost their prices.

He said they were doing this because "for many years the operator's percentage has been dropping, while his costs — rent and labor, for example — have been rising."

An Imperial Oil Company spokesman said a recent half-cent increase went into effect in the Maritimes. No increase was foreseen in Western Canada prices.

The official said the boost was considered necessary "to establish a reasonable relationship between the cost of imported crude oil and the return from its sale when made into the various products."

London Letter:

New Office Buildings Begin To Go up Despite Short Supply Of all Kinds of Timber, Steel

BY STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 7 —(CP)— Sidewalk supervisors are getting back on the job in London. Once more they can find construction jobs worth staring at.

Until recently there has been little new construction. Essential repairs were performed, but the building program was aimed almost entirely at providing new housing.

Now, although steel and timber are still in short supply, new offices are beginning to go up on sites that have supported nothing but bomb rubble for the last few years.

It is estimated that building worth £215,000,000 ($860,000,000) will be completed in London this year. It will require an army of 250,000 men.

One of the biggest office building projects is a £2,000,000 structure rising in Whitehall not far from the Houses of Parliament. It will accommodate government employees, whose increased numbers have made the provision of offices a top problem.

Mary are still occupying property requisitioned by the government during the war. By 1951, however, they should be in new buildings, 23 of which already are being erected by Financial Trusts for Tenting to the Ministry of Works.

Most of them will emphasize a new trend in government accommodation. Instead of concentrating offices in the Whitehall area, an effort is being made to decentralize them.

These projects are matched by commercial reconstruction in the financial district, where work worth £3,000,000 has or will soon be started.

Monster housing projects are still in hand in many parts of London, notably an £8.250,000 enterprise in the Chigwell area of northeast London.

The only regretful note heard above the chatter of pneumatic drills in the business district is from the office boys, who see their lunchtime cricket pitches being reclaimed by buildings.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

Negative and positive are words you hear in bridge games. It is easy to understand that negative is no and positive is yes. But where do these apply?

An opener of two in a suit tells partner they should not stop short of game. So, it asks partner for immediate advices about the chances for a slam. He gives a negative or positive response.

If he has help for slam, he gives a positive response. If he does not have slam help, he gives a negative response. Now you know where the words fit into the picture.

Without a sure trick, responder gives a negative response. It is an immediate reply of two no-trump. With a sure trick, responder gives a positive response; anything except two no-trump.

In a junior championship match was this deal:

♥Q 9 6 5 3
♦A 7 2
♣8 7 5

WEST
♠K Q 10 5
♥K 10 4 2
♦J 9 5
♣K 4

EAST
♠A J 9 7
♥8 7
♦10 4 3

SOUTH
♥None
♠A J
♦K Q 8 6
♣A Q J 10 9 6 2

At one table the bidding went like this:

South	North
2 C	2 H
3 C	4 C
4 NT	5 D
6 C	Pass

North made a positive response to the opening two bid. This was his way of admitting that he had a sure trick. With a sure trick in north, it is natural for south to look for slam.

So, he bids four no-trump, the ace and king investigator. Five diamonds in reply thereto admits having one ace. In the Kibitzer convention it also denies having any kings.

West doubled the six club bid and led the spade king. This was enough to tell South how to play the hand. Plant yourself in the south seat and blossom forth with the 12 tricks.

STRANGE FISHING CATCH

Forties, N.S. — (CP) — Dick Keddy didn't find any rainbow trout on a recent fishing trip, but he did get a 20-pound catch — a bear cub. He saw the cub run into a rocky hole and after failing to hook it out with his fishing rod he brought it out with his bare hands. He's keeping the cub at his home.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 7 — (AP) — You've got to dye to be an actress, Shelly Winters advises young blonde hopefuls.

"A blonde who wants to be a serious actress has an up-hill struggle in Hollywood," said the new film find.

Shelly had a series of frothy roles on Broadway until director George Cukor picked her to be slain by Ronald Colman in "A Double Life." Colman got an Oscar for slipping her a Mickey.

The gal has been going great guns at Universal-International. But she claims the average blonde has a rough go.

"Every woman is flattered by male attention and average blonde female actress in Hollywood gets more than an adequate share. But how vain can you be? After a while you want to find someone who takes your ambitions and your ideas about an acting career seriously.

Sexy Look

"The typical male attitude here is 'This is just a cute blonde cookie who knows only about looking sexy.' When you try to convince them that you want more than that out of acting—you get blank stares."

Her solution: Dye your hair and save yourself a pack of trouble.

After seeing Shelley do a sexy song number in a Far-East barroom for "East of Java," I think I'd rather see her in that sort of thing than in Shakespeare. (She studies the bard in Charles Laughton's class.)

But then maybe I'm that typical Hollywood male she talks about.

Other Note

Howard Hughes is reportedly complaining about the expense of the Rossellini-Bergman picture, for which he's footing the bill. What's he concerned for? He's only got the most highly publicized picture of all time.

AT THE McCARTHY — Victor Jory, Jane Wyatt and Richard Dix are currently seen in the Masterpiece release, "The Kansan," an exciting story of the western frontier, closing tonight at Odeon's McCarthy Theatre, along with "Sundown," featuring Gene Tierney.

Dusak Making Good His Bid For Major Berth

By the Associated Press)

Erv Dusak is making good in his bid to get back into the major leagues as a pitcher.

Dusak, who failed to live up to his minor-league reputation as a hitter while playing the outfield and infield with St. Louis from 1946-48, is rapidly picking up the finer points of pitching with the Cardinals' Rochester Farm Club in the International League.

The 28-year-old twirler came up with one of his best performances of the season Wednesday night as he pitched the Red Wings to a 3-2, 13-inning triumph over the league-leading Buffalo Bisons.

Dusak scattered 11 hits, walked seven and fanned 12 in posting his sixth victory against four defeats.

The triumph was his fourth in his last five decisions and his fourth straight complete game.

Russ Derry tripled with two out in the 13th and scored on Steve Bilko's hard single to right field to break up the game.

Rain postponed scheduled games between Montreal and Toronto and Newark and Jersey City. Baltimore Orioles and Syracuse Chiefs were idle.

Peter Lawford is giving UCLA co-eds the heart-throb. He's taking Shakespeare at summer school there . . .

That's Hollywood: Vic Mature's dog, Genius II, has his own dressing room, next to Betty Grable's on the "Wabash Ave" set.

REFOREST WASTELAND

Bonavista, Nfld. — (CP) — Barren land in this area is gradually being reforested. During one week in June 200,000 young trees were planted on lands along the road between Bonavista and Catalina.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, July 7 — (AP)—E. G. Treat isn't old enough to remember when baseball began but he is old enough, he claims, to have played on a team that was organized only three years after Abner Doubleday was supposed to have "invented" the game . . . For that reason, Treat, now a resident of Cleveland, claims that baseball's Hall of Fame should be located in Weedsport, N. Y., instead of Cooperstown . . . It was in 1842 that William Watson, a furniture maker in Weedsport, organized a team that bore his name for many years. The mere fact that Watson gathered, named and supported such a club indicates that baseball must have been played some years earlier... Family tradition, says Treat, has it that his ancestor, Robert Treat, an early governor of Massachusetts learned to play ball from King Phillip, the Indian Chief... Whether or not that tradition is correct, it seems Weedsport and the Watsons gave the Live Oaks of Salem their only defeat on the first transcontinental tour of baseball team; they licked big city teams quite regularly and some 80 major league players of the old days started with the Watsons . . . Maybe there is something in this Weedsport stuff; baseball really grew like a weed.

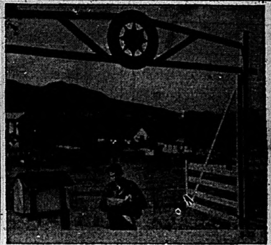
They Had Him in Stitches

Bill Swiacki, former Columbia end, never was bothered much by football injuries but he's finding class A baseball a rougher proposition . . . As catcher for Stamford Pioneers of the Colonial League, Bill had his right arm so badly injured that several stitches were taken . . . A week later Swiacki still was warming the bench when a brawl started between the Stamford and Bridgeport players . . . Bill charged out and took on almost the entire Bridgeport team . . . the net result was a gashed nose, cuts over one eye and under the other eye and more hemstitching on his countenance . . . In football, Swiacki was a star, but in baseball you might say he's just sew sew.

Sportspourri

Australian golfers are high on 20-year-old Peter Thompson, who may be their best prospect since Norman Von Nida. He may come to the United States soon . . . Hilda Chester, who resigned as the voice of the Dodgers when Leo Durocher left, is dispensing hot dogs at the Jamaica racetrack. "I don't play horses," she explains. "I don't want to lose my sense of humor."

AT THE BELLE — Robert Stack is one of the leading players in the Technicolor thrill entertainment "Fighter Squadron" now showing at the Belle Theatre. Also included in the cast are Edmond O'Brien, John Rodney and Henry Hull.



AT THE CAPITOL — Audie Murphy looks for a letter at the Variety Club Boys' Ranch in Allied Artists' "Bad Boy," now at the Capitol Theatre. Lloyd Nolan, Jane Wyatt and Murphy are among the six co-stars. On the same program "Whirlwind Raiders," stars Charles Starrett as the Durango Kid and Smiley Burnette, ace western comedian. Matinee daily at 2.00.

Fish Ladders Increase Run Sockeye Salmon

Vancouver, July 7,—(CP)— A silver harvest of sockeye salmon is again running in the Fraser River's Hell's Gate Canyon fishways.

And the Pacific International Salmon Commission believes it has solved the four-year riddle in the tremendously-increased early salmon run.

The fish are offspring of 27,000 sockeye which ascended the fishways in 1945, the first year the $850,000 fish ladders went into operation. Fish ladders enable salmon to by-pass dams.

A year before the ladders began operation, only 6,300 fish were counted in the spawning grounds.

The long wait to discover effects of the fish ladders was caused by the sockeye habits of returning to sea for four years before returning to the rivers to spawn.

Former Convict Admits Slaying Of Two Friends

Eureka, Calif., July 6 — (AP)— A husky, 34-year-old merchant mariner and former convict surrendered Tuesday night and in a signed statement admitted the bludgeon slayings Monday of two men in a cabin overlooking the idyllic Valley of the Moon.

The man, Henry Brun Guldbrandsen, gave himself up to Ed. Neumeier, a cub reporter, and Elmer Hodgkinson, editor of the Humboldt Times.

In a long, wandering statement, he for the most part corroborated the hysterical tale told by Mrs. Eva Paget, 27-year-old mother of two. Her story of rape and murder set off one of the most intensive manhunts in recent California history.

But Gulbrandsen denied he had raped Mrs. Paget, a Berkeley woman who had been vacationing in Jack London's old territory 200 miles south of here in the Senoma Valley. Gulbrandsen said she had submitted to him to "soothe" him, after he had bludgeoned her.

In the Sonoma hospital where she in a critical condition from the attack and beating, Mrs. Paget reiterated she had been raped. And hospital attaches commented on Gulbrandsen's assertion: "That's ridiculous!"

Signs Statement

Guldbrandsen signed a statement admitting slaying his friend Lt. Peter J. Flint, 31, of the merchant marine, and Flint's longtime friend, Peter J. Jensen, 55, landscape gardener for the Sonoma State Hospital.

The nude bodies of Flint and Jensen were found in beds in separate rooms of Jensen's curio-laden home in the Triniti Mountains, northwest of Sonoma.

Officers went there Tuesday after Mrs. Paget, bleeding, hysterical, and wearing only a T-shirt, stumbled down a canyon road and told a party of picnickers that she had been raped.

Other than being "in a stupor" he gave no motive for the attack on the two men. Nor did he explain why he bludgeoned Mrs. Paget.

Torrential Rain Hits Kitchener

Kitchener, July 6 — (CP) — Torrential rains swept down on this Western Ontario city today, ending a long dry spell and washing out the qualifying round of the Ontario Amateur Golf Championships.

Heavy rains flooded the greens and fairways of the Westmount Golf Club, the championship site, at 10 a.m. and delayed the opening of play for an hour. The matches started but rain began falling again and today's round was called off until Thursday. The finals will be played Saturday.

One hundred of the 160 contestants entered were out on the course when play was called. None finished their rounds.

At one point, meteorologists reported that the rainfall totalled 1.41 inches, more than the total of 1.11 inches recorded for the whole of last month.

Snowballing At 80 Degrees

Halifax, July 6. (CP)— Heat getting you down? Try snowballing for a change.

That is what a group of Halifax workmen did Tuesday, although the thermometer was registering in the 80s.

The men were laying water lines when they discovered a three-foot drift of snow, 30 inches below ground.

The snow had been covered over during the Winter, the earth providing insulation against the Summer heat.

FARMERS SELL HERDS

Hamilton, July 6 — (CP) — Several dairy herds in the Hamilton district have been sold as a result of this summer's drought in Wentworth county, it was announced Tuesday. ALLEGE GANG BEAT 3 MEN IN TORONTO PARK

Will Ask King To Take Hand If Strike Not Ended

Troops Used to Unload Food Supplies From Ships

London, July 8 — (Reuters)—The King will be asked to issue a State of Emergency Proclamation if the London dock strike is not settled by Monday morning, Home Secretary James Chuter Ede announced today.

Earlier the government tripled the number of troops employed on the London docks to unload food ships held up in the strike.

The port must be fully working without discrimination between the ships, Ede said. Dockers have been refusing to work two Canadian ships because of the Canadian Seamen's Union strike.

The position in the docks had not improved today, Ede said.

The result of the ballot taken by the National Amalgamated Stevedores and Dockers Union, to which most of the strikers belong, could not be expected to give any reliable result because it had been largely boycotted by the men, Ede added.

Not Britain's Business

"The interunion dispute in Canada is the business of no one in this country and nothing we can do here can effect a settlement," Ede said.

Canadian ships coming to British ports loaded by Canadian dockers were not "black" and there was no justification on trade union principles for holding otherwise. Both the British Union involved had instructed their members to return to full normal working.

"The only reason why we have to deal with the trouble in this country is that the communists see in it a chance of fomenting unrest, injuring our trade and hampering our recovery and with it the whole process of Marshall aid on which the recovery of Western Europe depends."

"The issue with which we are faced is not one of a legitimate industrial dispute but a challenge to the whole authority of the state and it must be met," Ede told the House of Commons.

WORLD OUTPUT OF WHEAT, RYE IS INCREASING

World's Post-War Shortage of Bread Grains Over Bureau Declares

Ottawa, July 8. (CP)—World production of wheat and rye is increasing. As a result, the world food picture is brighter.

In its monthly review of the world wheat situation, the Bureau of Statistics said Thursday the world's post-war shortage of bread-grains is over.

Most countries are producing as much grain as they were before the war and grain stocks are the biggest in more than a decade.

Because of increased wheat production, a fall in price is expected and the United States may restrict production next year. There already has been a general price decline and prospects for the 1949-50 crop are fairly satisfactory, the Bureau said.

Several important developments have occurred as a result of mounting food supplies, the Bureau said. With the exception of rice, international control of all foodstuffs had ceased.

Bread rationing had almost disappeared. Ration controls on other foodstuffs had been relaxed throughout most of Europe.

The world's bread-grain exportable surplus increased in 1948-49 to 27,000,000 tons, compared with 25,400,000 tons in 1947-48 and 27,800,000 tons in 1929-30.

In the United States, exportable surplus increased to 13,600,000 tons, compared with 13,100,000 tons in 1947-48 and 3,100,000 in 1929-30.

With a near-record production of 1,337,000,000 bushels in the United States and an exportable surplus of 300,000,000 bushels there was evidence that the U.S. may reduce production next year.

The Bureau refrained from estimating Canada's 1949 crop at this early date. More seed had been planted this year than last. but weather conditions had been variable.

Moves to Prevent Threatened Steel Strike

Pittsburgh, July 8 — (AP)—A deeply - concerned government moved today to prevent a threatened steel strike in the United States.

The government's growing anxiety became apparent Thursday night when Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, summoned Philip Murray, president of the United Steel Workers, and John A. Stephens, vice - president of the United States Steel Corporation, to meet in Washington Monday.

Both Murray and Stephens promptly agreed to answer the call.

Murray also repeated his charge that the Steel Corporation was responsible for the impasse in negotiations that for the last two days had made a steel strike a strong possibility July 16.

The United States Steel - U. S. negotiations — in recent years a major factor in the wage agreements reached by other industries — bogged down last Wednesday.

Benjamin F. Fairless, United States Steel president. rejected the steelworkers demands for a fourth round post-war wage boost. Previously he turned down the union's demand for pensions for its 800,000 members.

Attempted Break Likely to Bring Court Charges

Toronto, July 8 — (CP) —At least two men will face charges in connection with the attempted jail break Thursday at Toronto's Don jail, Governor Allan Armstrong announced today.

He said charges would be laid against Elmer Sevenson of Calgary, who is appealing a total sentence of 10 years for narcotics charges, and William McNiven, appealing a two-year sentence for breaking and entering.

Eighteen prisoners were involved in the attempted break from the jail shower room, in which guard William Wallace was slugged over the head and knocked taken from a radiator.

TRADE EXPERTS WILL DISCUSS DOLLAR CRISIS

To Study Causes And Possible Cures

London, July 8—(CP) — Top financial and trade experts of the United States and Canada met the chiefs of Britain's Labor Government today to talk over the United Kingdom's dollar crisis.

John W. Snyder, United States Secretary of the Treasury, arrived after 10 A.M. to see Prime Minister Attlee. Douglas Abbott, Canada's Finance Minister, arrived about the same time.

Also present were the top planners of Britain's economy. They included Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, Harold Wilson, President of the Board of Trade, and Philip Noel-Baker, Secretary for Commonwealth Relations.

United States Lewis W. Douglas also attended.

Snyder was accompanied by William McChesney Martin, Assistant U.S. Treasury Secretary, and W. Averell Harriman, Roving Ambassador for the European Recovery Program.

After a short meeting at the Prime Minister's residence, Snyder, Sir Stafford and Abbott, accompanied by their financial experts, moved to the Treasury Building.

There in a high-cellinged committee room they began a study of the causes and possible cures for the sterling area's dollar shortage.

None of the participants would disclose the specific points they intend to take up.

Sir Stafford presumably will tell his United States counterpart as much as he can about plans for future buying of such American products as cotton, tobacco, gasoline and wheat—main items that Britain imports from the United States.

Announces Standstill

Sir Stafford already has announced a three-months "standstill" of all but urgent new buying from the United States, to offset a dwindling of the sterling area's gold and dollar reserves, despite Marshall Plan aid.

The Chancellor said the buying restrictions were a stop-gap and that new long term policies for Britain and her financial associates would be worked out at talks here starting next week with Commonwealth Finance Ministers.

On arrival here Thursday, Abbott said he looked forward with confidence to the outcome of the London discussions.

As the only dollar country in the Commonwealth, Canada inevitably will play a large part in both the current talk and the commonwealth discussions opening next Wednesday.

From what government officials have been saying on both sides of the Atlantic it seemed likely the present talks might include:

1. How Britain can sell more manufactured goods in the United States.

2 Whether the United States can step up stockpile purchases of sterling area rubber and other strategic materials.

3 How the United States economic situation and United States tariffs bear on the problem.

4 How European nations can move toward freer trade in spite of Britain's need to hang on to her dollars.

Changes in Inspection Service Governing Sale of Liquor Announced

Toronto, July 8 (CP)—The Ontario government today announced changes in its inspection system to enforce regulations governing sale of beer or liquor in beverage rooms and cocktail bars.

The announcement came from Hon. Arthur Welsh, provincial secretary at the close of a cabinet meeting.

Under the new setup, divisional inspectors will be appointed throughout the province to check on operation of licensed premises and also to supervise the work of the regular inspectors in their areas.

They will have authority to order dirty beverage rooms to be cleaned up or to deal on the spot with places frequented by drunks. Mr. Welsh said the method of this enforcement was an administrative matter and he gave no details. However, there was speculation that the inspector would have authority to cut off sale of beer until conditions were remedied.

Under the new plan, inspectors will report to their divisional chiefs and if necessary they take the matter to the chief inspector.

Great Britain to Buy Million Tons Coarse Grains From Russia

London, July 8 — (AP)—Britain has agreed to buy nearly 1,000,000 tons of coarse grains from Russia in the next year, official sources disclosed today.

The informants added that part of a barter deal agreement was initialled in private in Moscow last week — a few days before Britain's economic planners announced a three-month standstill on dollar spending.

Talks for a one - year Anglo-Russian trade pact have been going on for some time. The grain deal would form part of that year - long pact.

Russia and Britain signed a contract in December, 1947, whereby Russia was to deliver 750,000 tons of coarse grains to Britain. That contract called for a barter of British electrical, motor railway and other equipment in exchange for the grains.

Longer Term Agreement

Negotiations for a longer term Anglo-Soviet trade agreement are expected to follow this new agreement. Russia is to supply a big quantity of wheat over and above the coarse grains — oats, barley and corn, the informants said. They declined to say how much.

Britain and Argentina signed a five - year trade agreement in Buenos Aires June 27. The Buenos Aires accord provides that Britain will spend a minimum of £129,000,000 ($516,000,000) annually for Argentine products and Argentina a minimum of £121,535,000 for British products.

The arrangement is of great importance to Britain which buys much of its food from countries like Canada and the United States for dollars. But Britain's dollar resources are running out and she is seeking to build up alternative sources of supply in the non-dollar food producing regions of the world.

Will Not Demand Dollar Payment

Russia and other Eastern European countries do not demand dollar payment. They desperately need machinery and capital equipment — things Britain can not easily sell for dollars.

Ottawa — (CP) — Trade officials said today that the United Kingdom's purchase of 1,000,000 tons of coarse grains from Russia next year will have little effect on Canadian sales to the U. K.

They were commenting on a report from London in which official sources disclosed the signing of a one - year Anglo-Russian barter deal in Moscow. There was no indication what the U. K. will exchange for the coarse grains.

"Mostly because of the dollar shortage, Canada has not been able to sell coarse grains to the U. K. in the present crop year at all," one official said.

In the last crop year, the U.K. took 66,000 bushels of oats from Canada, but no barley.

Austrian and Polish Stowaways Fail in Applications for Asylum

Montreal, July 8 — (CP) — A young Austrian passport clerk and his Polish friend who made bids "for liberty and freedom" in Canada today learned that their applications for political asylum in the Dominion have been turned down and they will be deported.

Robert Radowicz, 22, the Austrian, and Paul Rakasiawicz of Poland, arrived here this week as stowaways aboard the Swiss freighter Anunciada. The two were found hidden in a pile of hay after the freighter sailed from Antwerp.

"I can't go back," Radowicz told a reporter who reached him by telephone at immigration detention quarters. "It means death, maybe. I've burned all my bridges behind me. I just have to get permission to stay here.

"I'll kill myself before they take me back on the ship. Please, do something quickly for me if you can."

Both stowaways, in immigration cells since the freighter docked here Wednesday, said they would appeal. But with the Anunciada sailing tonight it was believed they would be aboard before any further action could be taken.

They said they would appeal the decision of immigration officials who have kept them in cells here since the freighter docked Wednesday. But with the Anunciada sailing tonight it was believed they would be aboard before any further action could be taken.

Immigration regulations provide that stowaways, being deported on the same ship on which they arrived, must be aboard at least an hour before sailing time.

Radowicz claimed that he had aided 1,200 of his countrymen to escape through the Russian zone in Australia. Through his work in the passport department he was able to get political refugees out of the country.

Finally his work caught up with him and he decided to flee.

He got out of Austria dressed as a woman. Joined by Rakasiawicz, he boarded the Anunciada because he heard she was sailing for Canada.

He told reporters earlier in the week that he was "sick and fed up with fear." He said if he had to surrender to anyone he would rather do it in Canada "where I believe liberty and freedom still existed."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, July 8 — (CP) — Synopsis: Pleasant sunny weather prevails over most of Eastern Canada today. This is due to a large high pressure area which stretches from Lake Superior to the Atlantic. The high is well established in its southern portion and so continued sunny weather is forecast for the southern half of Ontario on Saturday.

WORKER CRUSHED BENEATH PILE OF CEMENT, HOT MIX

Lloyd Gerow, Trenton, Dies on Way to Hospital

Lloyd Gerow, 22, of King St., Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gerow, R. R. 3 Brighton, suffered fatal injuries early Thursday afternoon when he was crushed beneath a pile of cement and hot asphalt mix in a collision between two trucks immediately east of Trenton.

Gerow, driving a tractor-trailer loaded with ten tons of bagged cement, was hurled through the windshield of his truck, when it collided with another driven by Ronald Gray, Queen Street, Trenton. He was pinned beneath the box of Gray's truck loaded with hot asphalt mix.

Practically every bag of cement on the tractor-trailer was hurled forward by the force of the impact and the hot mix poured down on the unfortunate truck driver. He died on the way to Belleville hospital.

Gray, driver of the other truck, is in Belleville hospital. He is said to have escaped serious injury.

Police stated the cement truck was westbound while Gray, driving the hot asphalt truck was going in the opposite direction. A car, said to be driven by Gordon A. Campbell of Trenton was preceding Gray and had stopped to make a left hand turn onto the road leading to the No. 6 R. D. repair depot. Gray swung out to pass and collided with the oncoming cement truck.

A crane from the repair depot was rushed to the scene to remove the wreckage which for some time almost completely blocked the highway.

Coroner Dr. R. T. Potter of Belleville stated an inquest would be held.

Invites Robinson To 'Give Lie' To Communists

Washington, July 8 (AP)—The House of Representatives un-American Activities Committee has invited baseball star Jackie Robinson to "give the lie" to Singer Paul Robeson's comments on the loyalty of American Negroes.

Robinson, and other prominent Negroes, have been asked to testify next week, starting on Tuesday.

Chairman John Wood (Dem. Ga.) told reporters:

"I think the principal purpose is to give the lie to the statements of Robeson that American Negroes wouldn't fight in case of a war against Russia."

Negroes themselves, he said, have asked the committee to set up a forum so they could refute Robeson. During a recent European tour, Robeson said he loved the Russians and that American Negroes would refuse to fight a war against Russia.

'Lucky' Luciano Will be Exiled To Tiny Village in Sicily

By George Bria

Rome, July 8. (AP)—Charles (Lucky) Luciano, one-time New York vice king, will be 'exiled' to a village in Sicily "because his presence in Rome is a crime threat," Italian authorities announced today.

The 51-year-old Sicilian was picked up Thursday in his fashionable Rome apartment. He was questioned in connection with an international drive on drug traffic, but "no evidence was found against him," police said.

Nevertheless, they said, he will be sent to the tiny village of Lereara Friddi, near Palermo.

The village was his home once before When Luciano was deported from the United States in 1947 and arrived here, he was restricted to Sicily. Later, however he was permitted to circulate freely.

Luciano was questioned for hours Thursday in a Rome jail about possible links with an international drug ring. The ring was uncovered June 25, with the arrest at Rome airport of a man identified as Charles Vincent Trupia of New York. Police said Trupia was carrying about 20 pounds of cocaine, valued at $500,000.

Police said Luciano will be questioned again today and then shipped to Sicily.

An American police agent, who asked that his name not be used, also said no evidence had been found against Luciano.

The newspaper Il Tempo said Luciano has been living with a "most graceful lady" for more than two years.

The paper said the lady—dressed in negligee—received newsmen at the Luciano apartment Thursday night and told them Lucky "lives a most honest life in Italy".

Arrest, Warrants Follow Probe Of Complaints

Actions of Immigrant Group Are Investigated by Police

Toronto, July 8 — (CP)—One man was arrested and warrants were issued against two others as a result of an investigation into what police termed the "storm troop actions" of a group of immigrants who allegedly attacked three men in midwest Toronto Park Thursday night.

Fred Wanat, 28, who arrived in Canada from Poland several months ago, was charged Thursday night with aggravated assault on Peter Kryshalovich, 55-year-old Ukrainian miner, and was scheduled to appear in court today.

Kryshalovich's son Thomas, 24, charged he was also attacked by a group of men in a park when he objected to the assault on his father.

Police said the "gang" also struck and kicked 18-year-old William Kogut who was playing ball in Alexander park. When a number of other ball players went to help him, police said, a mass fight broke out and police squads were dispatched to the park.

Investigating officers said "the gang of D. P.s who recently arrived from Europe, intend to act like fascist storm troopers and drive old residents of foreign descent from our midwest parks."

"At first we thought it might be a fight between political factions," they said. "But now we are not sure."

Kryshalovich, recovering in hospital from head injuries, told police he was driven from a bench in the park twice within the last few days. Thursday night, his son went to the park to determine the cause of the attack on him and was beaten and kicked by a group of men.

The injured man said he could not understand the reason for the assault and was not interested in politics.

Last Sunday, he claimed, five men "beat up" another man and upset benches in the park.

"I had been pushed about on other occasion," he said, "so I fled."

Police Inspector George Crawford said his investigation had not shown that "acts of terror" occurred in any of the parks but admitted that D.P. groups have been found fighting on the streets.

Youth, Marriage Courtship Get Going Over

Toronto, July 8—(CP)—Youth, marriage and courting got forthright treatment Thursday from Rev. George M. Doherty of Aberdeen, Scotland.

He told a conference of youth workers at the International Christian Endeavor Convention here that: Youth is not the happiest time of life and to say it is a blatant lie.

Courting, he said is "the most miserable experience" and it is only when you marry the lassie that you find any peace of mind.

He told delegates that youth had gone to the dogs—that it was a lost generation.

"The young people in my country used to hike when they went on hikes, now they take taxis to the Youth Hostels," he said.

SMALLER NATIONS MUST HAVE FULL VOICE IN PACT

Pearson Says Atlantic Plan Must be Living Force in World

South Hadley, Mass. July 8—(CP—L. B. Pearson, Canada's external Affairs Minster, said today the smaller nations in the Atlantic pact's machinery begins to func- decisions. "A great deal remains to be done," he said, before the Pact's machinery begins to function.

Pearson predicted the successful conclusion of preparations for that functioning "will make demands on our political vision and understanding."

It will also involve, he said, giving small nations a voice in plans they may be called on to help carry out.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the Mount Holyoke College Institute of the United Nations, he said the alliance must become "a living, constructive social and economic force in international affairs."

"Its machinery must be effective in co-ordinating and strengthening the defence capacity of our association. It must be simple, with those who have the main responsibilities possessing the power.

Collective Action

"At the same time, the smaller members of the group cannot be bound by plans in the making of which they did not participate and which they may not have even known about. A solution may be found in the council, which represents all the members, having the power to lay down general principles of collective action with smaller agencies with delegated powers responsible for transforming those principles into detailed plans."

BELLEVILLE FAIR TO RUN FOUR DAYS

The 1949 edition of the Belleville Fair will be held at Exhibition Grounds starting Monday August 15 through Thursday, August 18th. The fair this year will be of four days duration instead of three as has been the custom for the past few years.

Exhibition directors anticipate a record number of entries for what they believe will be the finest fair in the history of the city.

Potential exhibitors are requested to forward their entries to Secretary Erle Denyes, County Clerk's Office, Church Street, as soon as possible to facilitate heavy administrative work.

CHIMNEY FIRE GIVES BRIGADE RUN

Firemen were called to the corner of Dafoe Street and Great St. James Street this morning to extinguish a chimney fire at a house at the rear of Trudeau's. There was no damage.

Yesterday firemen answered a grass fire on Cannifton Road, here again the blaze being extinguished before damage resulted.

In yesterday's paper reference was made to a false alarm at the Albion Street plant of the Canada Packers. It was stated that plant workers had accidentally set off the alarm but this was an error as it was linemen working on poles outside the plant, who had accidentally turned in the alarm.

NOVEL TENNIS TOURNEY PLANNED

Novices and veterans of the Quinte Tennis Club will pair off this Sunday in a novel tennis tournament confined to club members.

SLUGS FIND WAY INTO PARKING METERS

"For amusement only" is the scripture on one side of the shiny metallic tokens appearing in unfunny numbers in the city's parking meters.

The doughnut - shaped token with the hole in the middle has been causing no hilarity among the mercenary-minded moguls who rule over parking meter revenue.

The other side of the nickel-sized slug bears the legend, "This token has no cash or trade value". "Exactly" respond the collectors.

POLICE COURT

Bigamy Charge Brings Jail Term To Harold Long

Appearing for sentence on a charge of bigamy, Harold Long, member of the Canadian Army, stationed at Kingston, was sentenced to one year in jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city police court today.

The hearing on the bigamy case was ten days ago with the accused being remanded for sentence. At the time of the hearing the both spouses of the accused were in court. Long married a Belleville district girl early in June when he already had a wife and two children in Toronto.

Henry Scruby, Cannifton, was found guilty of dangerous driving and was fined $10 and costs of $16.50. The charge arose out of an accident at the Cannifton Road railway crossing some weeks ago.

Robert Allen, city, was sentenced to one month in jail on a charge of assault on his wife.

A local resident was fined $200 and costs or two months in jail on a second offence charge of consuming, while his licence was under suspension, and on a second offence drunk charge was assessed an additional $50 and costs or one month in jail, consecutive with the first charge.

Three alleged housebreakers who some days ago are said to have broken into the house of Aubrey Coe were further remanded until Tuesday for trial.

Boys Camp at Moira Lake Now In Full Swing

Avoiding the vicious heat of the city prevailing at the commencement of school holidays, nearly 50 campers and their leaders were in the first group which invaded Moira Lake camp now in full swing until mid August. Prior to the opening date an advance party spent several days in preparation of the property for full use by boys whose changing desires had to be met by a variety of activities.

First concern has been for the health and safety of the camper, coupled with program opportunities under skilled leadership, which would challenge any camper, has been the aim of the Y. M. C. A. directorate on whom the responsibility of the Camp operation falls.

Realizing the necessity for plenty of good, wholesome food, tastily prepared, it is natural that the Camp committee spared no effort to secure the best persons available to take care of this phase of camp life. Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Marshall have had eight years experience in Y.M.C.A.'s and Y.M.C.A. camps in Eastern Canada and are fully acquainted with all the demands of healthy appetites. In addition, they are not only performing their duties as cooks but they have become so much a part of the life of the camp that they rate as feature people of good sportsmanship and personality in the camp.

Variable Program

Likewise, Ted Nugent, 4th year medical student from Toronto who officially is the camp medical officer has given so much leadership in life-guard duty and Indian lore as to almost popularize an ache or pain in order to enable a boy to discuss with him some aspect of outdoor life.

Already Paul Sweetman, program director, has won his spurs with the boys who thrill to his dramatic efforts and sketching as well as his music and Indian lore in which they are participating.

Paul, along with the camp director, Frankish Styles have given a lift to the music of the camp which is an inspiration every camper is enjoying.

Before the next group of campers arrive many developments in the camp will have taken place. A work party of Rotarians directed by Ken Griffiths will have erected one of the finest bathing and boating docks to be found anywhere. Through the kindness of another Rotarian a new camp road has been completed.

A fleet of new canoes, three of which were donated by the Y's Men's Club of the Belleville Y.M.C.A. have arrived and the popularity of the water front has been greatly enhanced, with Doug. Eaton, lending every effort to insure interesting and active participation both on and in the water.

Although the opening date for the girls' camp is three weeks away advance registration has been so heavy at the Y. M. C. A. that only a limited number of additional girls can be accepted. The camp is now filled for boys until July 16th and parents wishing to register their boys for the period starting at this date should do so without delay.

SKIS AREN'T NEW

PICTON

FIRE DESTROYS THREE BARNS, SOME LIVESTOCK

Brigades From 3 Centres Kept Fire From Spreading Over Wider Area

Picton— Seven houses and a barn were endangered late yesterday afternoon when a spectacular fire destroyed three barns owned by Hugh McWilliams on John St. in the north end of the town. Lost in the blaze were four calves, two hogs, 30 tons of baled hay, household effects valued at more than a thousand dollars, owned by Mrs. Martha Dunn, and two trucks..

Fire brigades from Picton, Bloomfield and the Royal Canadian School of Artillery (AA) were called upon to keep the fire from spreading over a wider area. The roofs on the homes of E. Markland, George Clapp and Henry Dunlop caught fire but the outbreaks were extinguished by men who sat astride the peaks and poured on pails of water drawn up by ropes. A barn owned by Clapp, just across the road, and filled with hay and machinery was saved by the Picton firemen who poured tons of water on it.

Fanned by a strong wind the flames shot into the air hundreds of feet and licked at nearby fences and smaller building. Sparks were carried several blocks.

Combustion Believed Cause

Spontaneous combustion is believed to have been the cause. 'I was sitting on the verandah of my home when there was a loud explosion and a cloud of dense smoke shot 200 feet into the air,' said Leanand MacDonald who resides close by. "In a second or two the three buildings were raging infernos."

The fire started in a building in which baled hay was being stored. Two of the buildings had been rented to Keith Pearsoll, local cattle buyer, who was in Kingston at the time. He owned the hay as well as the livestock. A bull purchased the day before was led to safety. Twenty minutes after the outbreak, a calf came dashing out of the flames, its coat seared but not seriously injured. One barn had been modernized and converted into a stable, Mr. Pearsoll having rented it at the first of the year.

Furniture in Garage

In a garage, Mr. McWilliams had two trucks and a large quantity of miscellaneous items. These were lost with furniture, dishes, silver and other effects owned by the McWilliams' adopted daughter, Mrs. Martha Dunn.

The fire spread to dry grass around the buildings but the flames were beaten out with green boughs. Dozens of volunteer firefighters carried pails of water from wells, pouring them on a workshop from which the contents were carried. It was saved. The McWilliams home is nearby but the wind was blowing away from it.

Furniture was carried out of the Marshall home, the roof of which caught fire several times.

The outbreak was first seen by Mrs Hugh McWilliams and Mrs. Howard McWilliams. 'We were in a field nearby when we saw smoke in the building with the hay. Before we could get to the house, the building was a mass of flames', they said.

Allowed to Lapse

Mr. McWilliams said he had let insurance on the two trucks lapse as he was not using them at the present time. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Fire seems to dog Mr. Pearsoll. About a year ago, a barn east of Picton, where he stabled cattle was burned along with 12 head of cattle and a large quantity of hay.

The great clouds of smoke attracted a crowd of several thousand spectators from the entire countryside.

For the Bloomfield village fire brigade it has been a busy week. On Sunday they fought the 100-acre grass fire on Chuckery Hill, east of Picton; on Tuesday, they fought the fire which followed the plane crash near Crofton; the fire which broke out in the fields the same day after the home of James Lloyd was destroyed, and then yesterday's fire. The Picton truck does not leave town and Bloomfield answers rural calls. Its 300-gallon water tank is especially effective in certain types of fires.

Toronto Tourist Awakened by Two Brush Wolves

Picton—Add to the excitement of a vacation of a Toronto tourist a pair of brush wolves which came near his tent, which was pitched at Point Traverse,. 20 miles south-east of Picton. Awakening early in the morning, Charles Ward of the Queen City looked out of the tent to see what the weather held in prospect. Instead he was greeted by the sight of two brush wolves close by. As he stirred the animals took fright and disappeared into a thicket.

A pair of such wolves were shot in the same vicinity a few years ago and this spring several were reported in Prince Edward County. How they managed to cross to this island county from the north is a mystery.

To Hold Reunion

Picton—The second annual reunion of the 4th Anti-Aircraft Battery will be held at the Royal Canadian School of Artillery (AA) on Friday, July 15. Many former members of the Battery are expected from various parts of Canada. Bdr. G. R. Dale, RCSA, Picton, is receiving replies to invitations and arranging for the banquet which will be held in the evening.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 8 — (CP) — A strong advance in base materials featured today's trading on the Toronto Stock exchange. Industrials more than held their own. Gold trading was largely confined to a few low-priced issues and western oils saw very little artion.

In the metals smelters advanced more than $2; Noranda turned an early loss into a gain and nickel was also ahead fracitonally. Pend Oreille gained 35 cents and Waite Amulet 25. Most other gains were moderate, but nearly the whole metals list was active and ahead. Sherritt-Gordon was active from the start, near its former close.

The industrial list tended to strengthen and changes were mostly upward. C.P.R. and Bell Telephone were ahead fractions in utilities. Other gainers included aluminum and Massey-Harris. Liquors showed strength.

Trans-television lost 10 cents to sell at 25 cents in opening activity which stopped early.

Active golds included Hosco, Nib ellowknife, Nicholson, O'Leary and Wiltsey for small gains; Eldona and Piccadilly, changed.

Calgary and Edmonton, Okalta and Pacific Pete took small losses, while Royalite was ahead.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S VIEW

General MacArthur who has been carrying on a work for the education of Japanese to ways of the West and the ideals looking towards liberty made a remark the other day respecting Communism. He has seen movements at work, especially Communism whose aim is to upset society. He made it clear that American occupation is a service to the Japanese to put them in the proper attitude towards the rest of the world. He said in a statement to the Japanese that Communism has the object of changing the basic structure of the new Japanese state and to prevent the attainment of the Allied aim.

It is his definite opinion that the Soviet is concerned not with the reconstruction of a peaceful Pacific but with territorial aggrandizement and the spread of the international Communist ideology," says an editorial in the New York Times.

General MacArthur is right in meeting that situation frontally, says the Times, and in declaring that "the entire Communist philosophy is incompatible with our objective." He is right in his attack on Communism on the philosophical rather than the practical plane. The collapse of Japan left a moral vacuum. "An entire world of ideas and aspirations was defeated and disproved, the paper comments and adds that "into that situation there has come the conflict of Communistic and democratic modes of thought and behavior. One or the other will replace the scheme of ideas that has now gone into the discard. In Japan we are trying to win a contest for men's minds to offset the conquests of territory that have already been made by the Soviet Union and its satellites. The Tokio statement is a vigorous move in that campaign."

The American commander was given one of the most important offices after the Second World War and is continuing that struggle to place before the Japanese that brighter way of life which is the democratic course and the way of freedom. His achievement of that ideal will be of the greatest importance to the world and have a marked course on future history.

HOLIDAYS NOW GENERAL CUSTOM

The time of the year has come for which everyone looks. It is the season that brings the tourists to Canada and sends them to the United States. It is the time when this splendid world of North America, so young, takes off time for a brief vacation in the marvellous outdoors of this Continent.

The attention is more and more drawn to the outdoor attractions. Home folk notice that the tourist is seeing a great deal that they have not seen. The tourists and the tourist agencies and the growing sense of mankind to get closer to nature are doing therefore a work of the greatest importance for the health, both physical, mental and moral of the many millions which dwell in North America.

There was a day when not much more than the schoolboy's holidays was looked upon as very important. That was the time when general holidays for adults did not appear so essential. But now most people have come to it, they realize that everyone can profit by the change and relaxation which the holidays can bring.

Wisely the people have been growing more and more interested in the great outdoors. It has taken time to bring all to realize this blessing which the outdoor life brings to everyone who partakes of it. Doctors have been stressing its advantages for the building of the sounder mind and the sounder body on what the life of the great outdoors can do for everyone in relaxation and appeal through the sights and colors and spirit of nature.

THIS WEATHER

In a number of parts of Ontario there has been rainfall which will materially help the crops which were threatened by the prolonged drought of many weeks. But more rain is needed in most areas and this would add greatly to the growth which is yet possible to the crops.

North America has been hard hit by lack of rain and by warm weather but Ontario has been benefiting by the cooler weather for some days. The rainfall has been rare but there is always the hope that there will be a turn in conditions and that nature will try to repay in some way for the lack of moisture which has fallen this year. Harvests can be materially assisted by weather conditions for the weather is the all-in-all need besides the sunlight on which harvests depend to satisfy the needs of mankind in every land in fact.

Let them obey that know not how to rule.—Shakespeare.

"OUR WAY OF LIFE"

"Our way of life!" How simple seems the phrase
So often used by orators today!
Our way of life, against all other ways
Known round the world to be the fairest way!

Freedom, with every joy that it bestows,
The home, the church, the school, for one and all;
The right to flowers and everything that grows.
The glory of the springtime

Our way of life! With parks where children play,
The right to dream; with hope to strive and plan.
For every boy the free and open way.
To choose his task and grow to be a man.

Our way of life. No goal to worth denied!
The best in life from birth to death allowed!
For every man both dignity and pride,
Oh, of our way of life we

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

FACE FACTS SQUARELY

A euphemism is a pretty word with which we attempt to hide an offensive reality. When we lack the nerve to face a fact, we generally try to veil the true significance of the fact with some pleasing expression. To call sin good in the making, or self-expression, temperament, or excusable human weakness, is to indulge without restraint the use of euphemisms.

Ruskin once said, "When you are examining yourself, never call yourself a sinner. That is cheap abuse and utterly useless; call yourself a liar, a coward, a sluggard, a glutton, etc., if indeed you find yourself to be any of them."

Some people never do anything about their weaknesses of character because as a matter of fact they refuse to face them. They give them pretty names and justify themselves in every whim and indulgence. The lying, cowardly, lazy, or intemperate can give you a hundred reasons why none of these things is wrong, and why they are justified in indulging themselves in all of them, in the face of certain circumstances which they pretend to believe make a great difference.

To hide from reality is always a dangerous thing; to hide behind a euphemism is fatal to character.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Love does not always come in pretty packages. In fact, according to a sort of Dr. Gallup among my newspaper colleagues who is always making surveys up side alleys, love does not often come in pretty packages. The greatest love stories among the married those of the homeliest men and the plainest women. The flops muddles and messes amongst the married folk belonged to the best looking men and the prettiest women.

In brief, the quality of the love-life of the people he surveyed was in universe ratio to their good looks.

This is surprising only because of popular fiction. In the fiction magazines, the hero is always big and handsome, the heroine small and beautiful. This may be due to the demands of the art editors of these flashing publications. It would hardly sell a magazine if the art editors had to portray you and me. Imagine a number one feature love story about a girl weighing 167 pounds and a boy five foot five weighing 189 pounds wearing a size 6¾ hat! Yet all over creation this month, at the summer resorts, in canoes and dinghies, under the July moon, afloat on love's fleecy pink clouds. And many of them will share a love story that out-features any magazine story; and what's more, it will last for years and grow better as the years whirl by.

If two attractive looking people fall in love, there is a chance that they have fallen for the package, as the salesmen say, not the contents. When two unattractive, or not particularly attractive, people fall in love, it must necessarily be the contents they are interested in, rather than the package.

And July 8, with the full moon only two days off, is a good time to recollect that, in love, it is the contents that count, not today, but tomorrow.

Czech Education Minister Zdenek Nejedly, has bluntly warned Catholic Church leaders that they will be punished and crushed if they refuse to yield to the restrictive church policy of the Communist-controlled regime. The Communist official accused the bishops of building "illegal machinery for subversive work." Nejedly added that the struggle is "between capitalism and socialism, even though reactionary capitalism is represented by Protestant America."—Central Press Canadian.

Incidents Not Direct Work Of Communist

BY JAMES D. WHITE
A.P. New Analyst
(For Dewitt MacKenzie)

The anti-American incidents reported from Shanghai occur in a communist setting, but are not necessarily the direct work of the Reds.

The police who beat up a young United States Vice-Consul are the same ones who served before Shanghai went Red. They might have done the same sort of thing before, if they had thought they could get away with it. They had no love for Americans, but considerable envy and prejudice.

The former employees of the United States navy who beseiged the United States Consulate-General in Shanghai at the same time, demanding more severance pay, also could have staged the same stunt before the Reds came if they had thought it would do them any good.

Time Opportune

The point is that they now think these things may do them some good. This is because the Reds have been filling the air with anti-American statements for purposes considerably bigger than Shanghai.

Envy and prejudice against the foreigner, always present in China, are coming to the surface just as they did when Chiang Kai-Shek triumphed in 1927 and after VJ-Day. The difference between Chiang needed help from abroad more urgently than the Reds do now and so his Nanking Government could not allow such incidents to continue. The Reds might be able to stop them now, but are not likely to because their need means so urgent.

Meanwhile, such things can be expected to continue. A great many Chinese need little urging to let the foreigner—who has been around more than a century, living far better than most of them could hope to—know that he is tolerated at best and unwelcome at the worst.

The Reds have capitalized upon this because as the Nanking Government grew weaker in the Civil War, it became more dependent upon American aid or the prospect thereof.

The Reds said this showed that Nanking was a "puppet of American imperialism." The weaker Nanking grew the better this argument sounded to a lot of Chinese.

Their resentment of foreigners focused more and more on Americans, with the Reds helping at every turn.

Bids on Canada's First Subway System Named

Toronto, July 8—(CP)—Canada's first subway was a step nearer completion today with the letting of a $10,000,000 contract for its first two sections.

The $50,000,000 rapid transit system, Toronto's remedy for the perennial traffic headache of narrow Yonge Street, the main north-south avenue, is scheduled to be completed in 1953.

Besides a 4½-mile route under Yonge, it will include a cross-town section of some 1½ miles along downtown Queen Street. Toronto Transportation Commission officials say it will be the most up-to-date in the world.

Estimated cost of putting the trams underground on Yonge Street is more than $32,000,000.

The $10,000,000 contract let yesterday to a syndicate headed by the Toronto firm of C. A. Pitts General Contractors Limited, is the final step before start of construction, scheduled in September. The work involves cuts from Front Street, near the city's waterfront, to come 16 blocks northward. These sections of Yonge Street will be closed to traffic when the job is on. Seven tenders involving 13 British, American and Canadian firms were submitted and the Pitts' bid was the lowest.

The syndicate includes three United States firms. The contract is the major one to be let in the construction.

"We will use Canadian materials almost entirely," said William C. McBrien, chairman of the T.T.C.

He said detailed work and designing for the subway has been carried out for the last seven years under the guidance of a Chicago firms specializing in subway design.

Traffic on Yonge Street will be back to normal within 10 months after construction is begun, said Mr. McBrien. From central Davenport Road south, nearly two miles of the system will be underground in the downtown section. North of Davenport Road to the Elginton Avenue terminus in North Toronto, the system will be open out.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON COMPROMISING

All life is a compromise. None of us is right all the time. If we could only manage to give as much as we take, the world would be on a very good running basis. The trouble is that there are always those who want to take all —or nothing. It's been many years since the last war ended, yet there is no signed peace—no compromise whereby the world can get going in a happy running order.

Co-operative compromise could bring about peace in the world, but so long as there are those who keep saying no, no, no, progress is stymied. In a jury trial there must be a unanimous decision to get a verdict one way or another.

Of course it is fine if you can get a whole loaf, but a half loaf is better than nothing at all. Nearly all national and international disputes are settled on a compromise basis, and usually progress is made. There are always two sides to a question, and in nearly every case there is right on both sides, but a happy ending is where the good of all is mostly considered. None of us expects to get everything we hope to get.

We have to compromise right along in our family lives, and in our business occupations. Even in our friendships we have to compromise, so that we remain friends in good standing. If it were otherwise we would court loneliness, and perhaps isolation and defeat, all along the line. It is always best to happily compromise and go forward.

If we could only have sense enough to see the other fellow's viewpoint we would get along so much better. The other fellow may be more right than we, so that if a compromise is entered into, we are ahead anyway, and so is he!

One reason why democracies are so successful is that the majority is accepted as the right decision, and then all enter into the work at hand with generous enthusiasm, and in a spirit of co-operation. Dictator nations don't believe in compromise. They want all of nothing — and that means slavery and stagnation among their own people, and, in addition, losing the good will of other nations.

MYSTERY OF THE GREEN AND THE GRAY

The green sickness, which physicians call chlorosis, is (or was) a type of anemia characterized by a marked relative diminution of the hemoglobin (iron coloring matter in the blood), that is, the feature of the disease is that there is (or was) a striking reduction in the amount of hemoglobin and only moderate reduction in the number of red corpuscles in the blood.

The green sickness was as common in teen age girls in the nineteenth century as the gray sickness is in girls in their forties today.

You will find thegreen sickness defined in Webster, but not the gray sickness, for this term is my own invention and so, I'm afraid no self-respecting doctor will ever adopt it. How many good doctors have adopted the term C-R-I (rhymes with free)? Never mind —I'd rather not think about it.

The name green sickness was given to chlorosis because of the curious yellowgreen tinge of the complexion of girls who had it. Green was the word for it—not the blanched face of hemorrhage, the white face of shock, nor the muddy pallor of severe anemia. It was almost as characteristic as mask face is of Parkinson's disease.

I speak of the green sickness in the past tense because in fact it is nearly if not quite as rare as the passenger pigeon or the gout.

The gray sickness is hypochromic anemia, iron deficiency or nutritional deficiency anemia, in medical parlance. The general impression of the woman with hypochromic anemia is that of grayness. Her complexion is gray, her hair is likely to be prematurely gray, dry, lacks lustre and is hard to keep looking nice. Her nails are likely to be brittle, cracked, perhaps flattened or even spooned (concave instead of convex) ridged or pitted.

Generally there is some loss of weight or flesh, especially loss of subcutaneous panniculus adiposus, layer of fatty tissue under the skin, which normally gives the feminine figure roundness and softners and the complexion the same characteristics. This wasting of the panniculus or fat blanket is accountable for the fact that the skin of the woman with the gray sickness tends to become wrinkled and flabby.

It is still an unsolved mystery why the green sickness (in teen age girls) has virtually passed into history and the gray sickness (in women who should be at their acme in every respect) has become fairly common in the past fifty years. If the gray sickness is, as I believe, nutritional deficiency disease—and it does respond well to treatment with iron and less refined diet—it may be that the green sickness was due to the same cause — but there still remains to be explained the fact that the green sickness occurred typically in young girls where as the gray sickness occurs exclusively in the fourth decade.

A good deal of cogitation about this has brought no light—I'd be grateful for any plausible or scientific suggestion the medical reader may be good enough to offer. I am NOT inviting laymen to tell me what they think about it.

I am glad to tell laymen what I think about it—in the pamphlet Deficiency Anemia—The Gray Sickness.—Ask in writing (not with a clipping) for the pamphlet and inclose a stamped self addressed envelope.

The woman with the gray sickness must understand clearly that she will obtain little or no effect from minerals and vitamins if she takes them for a week or two and then forgets to take them regularly. Like any other manifestation of nutritional deficiency, the gray sickness requires better food, not medicine, and in order to get the full benefit of better food one must take it every day from now on.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Freedom From Worship

By ROY L. SMITH

The American people have heard a good deal in recent years about the "Four Freedoms," and they have been exhorted on all sides to come to the defence of the doctrine of "Freedom of Worship." All this, of course, is to be commended. But the actual effort of millions seems to be to achieve freedom from worship.

There is not, probably, a community in all America whose churches would be sufficient to provide seats for all the people of the neighborhood if they all decided to go to church some Sunday morning. Yet there is not, also probably, any town in the United States or Canada in which all the churches are crowded on any Sunday morning except Easter.

Faith and the Future

There is a principle well authenticated by history which says that no nation has ever been able to survive the loss of its religious faith. The survival of any nation is as much dependent upon its religious convictions as upon its national resources.

Some of the most conservative European economists are now saying that the break-down in central Europe did not begin with the Hitler days, but that it goes back at least fifty years when a mounting tide of irreligion began to sweep over the land.

Empty churches should be as much a matter of concern to the leaders of a nation as worked out coal mines. No people can go forward into the future without a great faith in eternal principles, any more than they can hope to maintain themselves in an industrial and competitive world without the industrial basics, such as iron, oil cotton, coal, rubber, copper, or uranium.

The Sunday School lesson for July 10: "Pilgrim Marching Songs," Psalms 120 . . . 134.

The Hebrews and Their Faith

There were at least a half dozen times in the ancient years when a contemporary historian might have been excused for assuming that the Hebrews were all washed up, and completely off the scene. Their kings were killed or in chains, their armies dispersed, and their capital in the hands of their enemies.

But they survived, and today there are more millions of Jews in the world than there have ever been at any time in the earth's history, while the nations that enslaved them have passed completly out of existence.

The only explanation of the Hebrew survival is the Hebrew religious faith—they have been saved by the thing they have believed. There is something about a profound faith in God that gives a nation stability and vitality, to say nothing of a power to rise again after being crushed to earth.

The Pilgrimage Songs

Central in the Hebrew faith was their program of worship. In their Temple at Jerusalem services are almost continually in progress. Throughout the year there were the great feasts to which the entire nation turned. These were occasions af great joy, of high patriotic fevor, and of deep religious feeling. There was no problem of church attendance among the people.

Enroute to the Temple services the bands of pilgrims were accustomed to sing along the way. A considerable number of "marching songs" were developed, in something of the same fashion that popular songs develop in wartime. No one person could really be called the author, but they represent the combined musical genius of the race. They were truly folk songs.

A Book of Them

In the Book of Psalms in the Old Testament we have a collection of these Pilgrimage Songs, as if they might have been gathered up from many sources and copied on a "song sheet" for use in "community singing." These 15 Psalms (120-134) are only a few of the great number used by the pilgrims as they sang their way along the ancient highways enroute from remote villages to the beautiful Temple in Jerusalem. But they have been saved because of their exalted spiritual quality.

Anyone reading them will be sure to feel that religion and worship was no burden on those ancient Hebrews. Attendance on the Temple services was no 'duty' that had to be performed and gotten out of the way. They did not have to be exhorted to sing, and "put a little pep into it." They sang for the joy that was in their hearts, because they had a sustaining faith that would not surrender.

The bride was gowned in a street-length dress of pink crepe with lace peplum and lace trimmed bodice and wore white accessories. She wore a triple strand of pearls and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Mrs. Robert Cosbey of Bonarlaw, was her cousin's attendant, wearing a dress of printed silk with white accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

MOUNTAIN VIEW W.I.

The monthly meeting was held July 6, at the home of Mrs. Ross Fairman, Huff's Island, the president, Mrs. Eddie Hall, was in charge. Twenty-six members and four younger visitors were present. The meeting opened in the usual manner.

Business was discussed, and bills were voted paid, after which the Misses Betty and Marylin Barber played a duet, "Young Buglers Gallop" by Carl Metz. A discussion followed on ways of raising money for the cemetery fund, as there had been a heavy demand on the cash on hand for charitable donations of various kinds. Since the funds were badly in need of being replenished, suggestions of home-cooking sales, rummage sale and socials, were vetoed owing to the summer season being a busy one and being so hot and dry—each member was asked to give 50 cents extra collection at this meeting, and those that were unprepared this month, to be sure and bring it at the August meeting which is to be held at Miss Lillian Sprague's.

Mrs. Lewis Wallbridge, the delegate, then gave a report on the annual convention at Hillier, which proved extremely entertaining.

Roll call followed next "A cold dish" aid was fairly well responded to. The invitation to Rednersville Institute was accepted for July 28. Mrs. Doucette read a really interesting paper on the "Wasp", leading into papermaking. Miss Sylvia Motley favored with a piano solo, "Sonata" by M. Clementi.

Mrs. D. Conklin gave current events. Collection taken amounted to $13.75. One minute's silence was observed for the late Mrs. W. Black, Huff's Island a recently departed member of the branch. After the close of the meeting a social hour followed during which the hostess and her daughter, Betra, and several young ladies, served tea, sandwiches, stuffed celery, pickles and cake. Before the reading of current events, Mrs. Clifford Barber read an interesting paper on "Newfoundland".

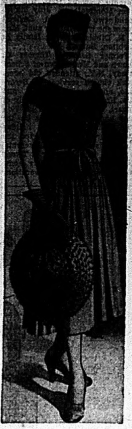
Classic Cottons



By ALICE ALDEN

Classic cottons, handled with softening details, are playing a starring role in this season's fashion parade. Charming for town or country is this gray chambray dress that takes nicely to tiers of graceful shirring on the bodice and sleeves. The wide scoop neckline, the gathered skirt and the little-girl sash are other grace notes.

Post's Grape-Nuts

Manhattan Love Song

By Kathleen Norris

"I think the minutes he strikes New York he'll forget everything he ever knew before. No. I don't care for Mack. that way." Fanny added considering. "I like him quite well enough to marry him, without one particle of thrill. But I'm afraid that along about nine o'clock on the evening of my wedding day I'd begin to think I was a fool. I couldn't go through with it --" Fanny broke off to say, thinking aloud.

"Then when you told me to go right along as I was. you didn't think it was Mack, Fanny?"

Fanny looked up. narrowing her eyes, as one trying to think.

"What did you say, darling?"

"Who do think I was in love with, Fanny?"

"I told you I thought it might be Chris," Fanny answered with some difficulty.

"Chris!" Madge echoed again. She laughed. "Do you know I don't think Chris has much appeal for some girls," she said ingenuously.

"Chris hasn't?"

"Do you think so? I'm horribly sorry about it." Madge said.

"But why---" Fanny asked. "why should you fool horribly sorry that Chris doesn't appeal to women?" she asked, carefully over her shoulder.

"Because it makes you feel so --so cheap, especially when it's an Abraham Lincoln sort of man like Chris," Madge answered.

"You mean when he likes you?" Fanny asked, in a strained voice.

"Well yes. And like him -- tremendously," Madge, noticing nothing, answered innocenitly. I'm crazy about Chris, in a way."

"We all graduate next month," Fanny said, in her heart. "We all go to New York to make our fortunes. And Madge is in love with Mack, and Mack with me, and I with Chris and Chris with Madge. What a world! I wonder if we can ever straighten it out!"

"There's a fire -something--" Fanny said, rousing from a sort of stupor.

She was tired; they were all tired. For almost four days they had been jogging racketing, bumping over the long road; but now they were near the end. The next stop would be New York, and after that things would be more serious. Mack talked less, Chris hardly at all; on Chris's handsome, dark young face a look of concentration that was not quite a frown, not quite anxious, settled itself. Marjorie would not admit that she was uneasy, but during the last day of the trip she had reiterated with increasing definitoness he oft-repeated statement that "any one" could live easily on a hundred dollars a month in New York, or anywhere.

Fanny alone remained serene. as far as actual plans were concerned.

"Our next letters home," she said, will have 'New York' written at the top!"

"Oh, don't Madge said faintly.

"Let's discuss our plan of procedure once again," Fanny had said in a businesslike way, over the supper table. "We all go to Mrs. Smith's--that's a blessing anyway, to know where we're going and what it'll cost us. Ten dollars apiece, for a week; we all have that anyway . Chris reports tomorrow to his law firm----"

"Arnold. Overman, and Carnot,' Chris supplied, as she glanced at him.

"Mack," Fanny persued,"goes to the 'I.B.C.,' the Inter-America Broadcasting Company.

"What do you girls do-" Mack interrupted,

"Oh, that's what scares me!" Madge put in, flutterred.

"Madge has a letter to Tony Sarg, which she'll present," Fanny said.

"Where's Mrs. Smith's boarding house, Fanny?"

"Oh, the East Fifties, or the West, or something. I showed you the dean's letter, Madge. The dean," said Fanny to the men, "did say that we might not like it; it's very simple. But she said it would give us a foothold. Madge and I," Fanny went on, ",mean to find a little tiny apartment, don't we, Madge?"

"If we can, on a hudred a month," Madge began dubiously.

"Oh, but I'll be making scads!'

They were all silent again, looking down from the high railroad trestle at the thickening streets; the great block of apartment houses strewn about on the rough earthy hills north of the city, the gradual closing in of cement and steel and brick and iron. The train thundered on after the stop at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street; they were passing brick and brownstone apartments houses now, in crowded, improvished neighborhoods. Windows in the shabby front rooms were open, showing glimpses of flat iron bedsteads and twisted disordered supper tables; men and women rested elbows on the windows sills and looked out into the clamour and confusion of the streets. Fanny saw a fat, baldheaded man fanning himself with a palm-leaf fan, the first she had ever seen. She saw flat baskets, many of them, on the sills of open windows, and nude babies sprawled in them, held only from the street far below by a maternal hand.

There were five minutes of this, and then the train dived and plunged into the blackness of the underground tunnel and perceptibly began to lessen speed.

"Oh, Fanny," Madge faltered "does it frighten you a little?"

":No. You could live in one of those places we just saw if your husband loved you and your baby was healthy," Fanny said slowly but staunchly. "It might even be interesting to see what was going on."

"Interesting!" Madge echoed, with an elaborate shiver.

"New York; Grand Central Station next stop!" the porter shouted.

"Oh, it does thrill you!" Fanny whispered.

"We have four minutes," Chris said.But sheer excitement forbade their sitting still any longer. Stiff, flushed, feeling stupid and hungry and dirty, they filed out to the long platform and saw the redcaps busy over the line of bags. The air was very heavy and humid three levels, four levels below the hot streets, and smelled of pipes and earth and sweating cement.

"Taxi--huh, ladies?"

"Taxi through New York!" sang Fanny. "Oh, and let's not unpack right away; let's get out and walk everywhere--to Roxy's and the Empire State and the Waldorf-Astoria and the Ghetto. We don't have to do a thing we don't want to, we can stay out as long as we like in New York--New York--New York!"

"We want a taxi," Chris said briefly, after this burst, to the attentive redcap.

"Yasseh, dis way, boss!"

."Boss!" Don't you love the 'boss'" murmured Fanny, her eyes dancing, her head moving about with the quick motion of a bird's head as she followed.

,"Where to, madam?"

"Oh ----?" Madge was fluttered again. "Oh--the dean's letter--it was in my--oh. dear! You have it, haven't you, Fanny?" she ended in sudden relief.

Fanny was wedged into the innermost seat of the car, with one little seat up, and Mack, with his overcoat. camera. small handbag and portable radio packed solidly into the other small seat. Madge was between Chris and Fanny in the back seat; the girls' coats and several pieces of lesser luggage occupied the remaining space.

"Oh, mother-of-pearl!" Fanny could be heard to ejaculate under her breath.

"I gave it back to you," Madge said positively. 'Remember? It was where Miss Randall stayed last year when she came on, "she said to the boys nervously as Fanny searched her handbag under their stern eyes. "She told Mother it was nice and clean and cheap--Fanny, where did you put it?"

"It's in my big bag---" Fanny murmured, not looking at anyone. 'I've got to get out of here the taxi driver said agitatedly. He was but too evidently being urged onward by his superior the starter.

"Start up there, taxi!" this authority now shouted, in an absolute frenzy at the delay.

"Is time so extremely precious?" Fanny challenged him. Unfortunately he did not hear. The taxi moved on its way; they were out in a brightly lighted street. New York at last!' But at the moment they had but a distracted attention to give it.

"Drive--drive to some place where we can park." Chris told the driver, "and we'll open up the big black bag and get the address."

Fanny gave a dramatic shriek. "Oh, look out--look up that way --look down here, Mack! It's Fifth Avenue; it says on that light 'Forty-third and Fifth Avenue'!"

"I thought we was in trouble," contributed the driver, moving off after a distracted moment. He drew up on the wide avenue, almost deserted at half-past nine o'clock, and came to open the door.

"Then that's Fifth Avenue bus, with the people on top!" Fanny exulted. "Oh, look - what fun, on a hot night like this--to ride up and down----"

"Can you park here for minute?" Chris asked.

'Sure park as long as you like." The driver wiped his wet forehead. Chris. Mack. Madge. Fanny all scrambled out and stood in a little knot on the sidewalk.

"I feel terribly sorry about this,' Fanny said in an apologetic undertone to Chris, who seemed a trifle grim.

"This is the deuce of a break!" Mack commented. "Gosh I'm tired and dirty! Fifth Avenue' hey? Well, don't think so much of it. Take the Alameda, for instance, down at San Jose---"

"This is awful!" Fanny said, with a suggestion of hysteria in in her laugh. She was kneeling quite frankly, in the hot, open deserted street. plunging madly through a suitcase that could never have been especially well packed, and that now presented every appearance of a ragbag or rubbish heap.

"Oh, Fanny, do find it!" Madge besought her,

"My dear, it isn't here!" Fanny searched her purse for the tenth time.

"It must be!". Madge fairly wrung her hands.

'Well, let's go to a hotel!" Mack suggested.

"Oh, Mack, we can't; Fanny and I can't. And we have to stay together!" Madge protested.

"I guess we were all crazy to come here," Chris muttered, half to himself.

"We- could look up boarding houses in the telephone book; we know it's Smith's, and East Fifty-something," Madge suggested.

"Or was it West Fifty-something, Madge?"

"Well, would there be so many?"

"Smith's!" Chris commented, on a reluctant laugh. "But this is ridiculous, we can't stay here in the middle of Fifth Avenue," he said.

"Drive us to a drug store, will you?" Mack said authoritatively. "Somewhere where you can stand at the curb for a few minutes."

They stopped at a glittering corner.

"Broadway!" Fanny ejaculated, as they got out. And for a few moments they all forgot fatigue and hunger and strain, to stand enthralled on the shore of the brightest river in all the world--a flashing, glowing, resplendent stream of lights.

In the drug store Chris found the tumbled telephone book chained to a wooden counter in an obscure corner, and they all jumbled about him eagerly.

"There are eighteen columns of Smith's!" he looked up to say briefly.

"But not in the East and West Fifties!" Fanny said helpfully.

"Oh, lord this is no use!" Chris muttered in despair. We'll never find her this way.

"Oh!" Fanny exclaimed suddenly, at this point, in a tone that arrested the attention of the other three. "I know where it is," she murmured, in a stricken tone. "Oh dear! I put it --the letter, I remember now! I was going to give it to Madge, and Madge was asleep so I put it--no, it's not in my purse, Madge; it's in my coat pocket--thought I'd have it handy."

They followed her in silence to the street; Fanny was the next to speak.

"I knows it seems awful," she said, groping in the coat she had pulled out of the taxi. "I see that meter, Chris; I see one dollar and eighty-five. But I guess it was the excitement of really getting here Don't be mad, any of you. Just remember that this time tomorrow---- toworrow, right after breakfast, we can head our letters 'New York'! Its Four-three three West Fifty-fourth, she went on hastily, to the driver, bundling herself into the car with a great air of saving time and trouble. "Four-thirty-three West Fifty-fourth; do you know where that is, Mullins?"

The driver, taken unawares, started, and Madge, with her weary head sunk against Fanny's shoulder laughed sleepily.

"His name is on the license there," explained Fanny, as the car moved with a jerk. "There it is--Frank Mullins. Another New York custom. I thought he might like to know we'd identified him."

"Is this the place?" Frank Mullins asked, as one expecting the unusual.

"Great heavens, no!" Chris exploded. Once again, wearily they all climbed out, and looked at a dark stretch of streets whose northern side side was cut off by a low stout fencing. . The sidewalk was completely torn up and beyond and below the fencing for the entire square of the block lay the tremendous excavation that would some day be the basement floors of a new skyscaper.

"My affectionate compliments to the Dean!" Chris said. And because they were all tired, and because Chris was not very often funny, they laughed as if they never would stop, leaning on the parapet, clinging to each other, helpless with fatigue and hunger and youth and the strangeness of it all.

"Maybe--maybe we'd better try 'Gee, Harry!" Fanny gasped in the first break, and they were all off again.

"Or Joseph--Joseph-- Joseph---" Mack bbegan and was helpess.

"Joseph Fagnant!" Fanny was in a gale, and conscious at the same time of the wild happiness og being steadied by Chris's arm.

"It's about time," Chris said, sobering first of them all, it's about time that I took this idiotic expedition in charge!"

"Maybe--maybe--" faltered Fanny, still tremulous with laughter, "we shouldn't have come at all to New York. Why--why--didn't we think of that?"

"Seriously," Chris said almost sternly to the driver, "do you know of a good hotel here, where my cousins and I could spend the night?"

"No, sir," said the driver simply "I live in Brooklyn. You woudn't want to go that far tonight? My mother has two rooms she might rent you."

Madge, with her back to Mullins and her agonized eyes on Chris. now made a desperate grimace indicating extreme unwillingness to become the paying guests of Mrs. Mullins, but Fanny said lightheartedly, as she wiped her eyes from her last burst of mirth, "Oh, I think that would be fun! How far is Brooklyn?"

"It would take you about forty minutes," said Mullins.

"No," Chris said decidedly, "there are lots of hotels about here; any one will do for tonight, and tomorrow we can see what's best be done."

"The Capathian" Mack added, reading a sign several blocks away, as it punctually flared up and down.

"Take us there!" Chris commanded without more ado, and once again they were all bundled inside the taxi. Suddenly from Fanny's subdued giggle, they were all helpless with laughter again.

Five minutes later Chris paid Mullins two dollars and twenty cents, with an extra thirty cents for tip, and composing itself to sobriety the quartette entered the dark yet ornate foyer of the Carpathian. There was what Fanny afterward giddly described as a "nicoiney, footwear" odor to the hotel, but it was after ten o'clock now, and it seemed to the men no time to be critical. At the somewhat uninviting desk that was flanked with a cigarette stand and a display of sensational covered magazine, they were registered and presently two dubious-looking boys assisted them to the elevator with their bags.

"I wish I had managed to get over to Brooklyn to my dear old friend ma Mullins!" said the irrepressible Fanny, as they followed their guides down a narrow upper hall, and were ushered, on the eleventh floor, into adjoining rooms starkly numbered in smoked copper figures.

"Where's the bath?"

"Down the hall there; it's marked," said one of the boys.

Chris lowered his voice, looked at Madge, who was visibly exhausted.

"Can we stay here?"

"One night we can," Fanny answered in a low tone. "We don't know any other place." She waved. "What do you think?"

"Oh stay here!" Madge begged. "I'm dying. We can find Mrs. Smith or someone else tomorrow. Tonight it'd only be another hotel and we might be just as badly off."

"Yep stay here," added Mark. They turned to the boys, claiming bags, bestowing tips. Then they were alone in two rooms no more imaginative in shape than two match boxes; small rooms, each one provided with two flat beds, two narrow chairs, a washstand with two redstriped towels, a bureau, a little table, nicked and inky.

The door between the two rooms was open; the four could have a last moment of consultation.

"How much are the rooms, Chris?"

"Four--three-fifty singles, but four double."

"Great heavens!" ejaculated F-anny. "Then what do you suppose people pay at the Waldorf?"

"You mean to say that we're paying eight dollars for these horrible rooms for one night?" Madge demanded.

"Well, there are four of us, you know. And this is New York!"

"By handling out to your knees," Fanny stated, coming back from a brief trip to the window, "you can see Broadway. I guess we're too tired to go out tonight? I had a vision of a hot bath with lots of soap. Never mind, we'll do the best we can at these basins, and have baths tomorrow."

"You girls are awfully good sports," Chris said, his kindly glance enclosing them both.

"We're on a fire escape, aren't we? That's all I care about," Madge said. "What is this--the elevenjth floor? Well, we'll get into something nicer tomorrow."

"Gentlemen we bid you goodnight." Fanny said, tearing off her hat with a vigor that made her hair stand straight up in the air. "I am locking this door, but I wish to worn you that at the slightest disturbance in the night Miss Rountee and I will spring in upon you without peur and with out reproche. Oh, Marjorie," she went on, in a whisper, when all doors had been locked, "this is horrid."

"Do you suppose the whole city's like this?"

"It can't be. Joan Bennett and Marlene Dietrich and everyone else simply adore New York, you know."

"But this is what I was thinking. Fan If we have to pay four dollars for this---"

"I know. But this is probably popular with drummers or something. Maybe they're gangsters-"

"Oh, don't!" Madge whispered, closing her eyes, leaning back against the head of the bed.

"You're dead, aren't you?"

"I'm too tired to undress. Oh Fanny, was this a crazy thing for us to do?"

"The beds really seem nice and clean," Fanny observed, turning them down. "You'll only want a sheet over you tonight, won't you? It's suffocating. Was that a crazy thing for us to do? You mean our coming to New York?"

"With the boys. It seemed--when we were down at the desk there, registering, it suddenly seemed cheap! Did the way they looked at you make you feel cheap?"

"I don't like the desk clerk, if that's what you mean. But otherwise--why, here we are only two blocks from Broadway, our first night! And as for our coming on, it was a mere coincidence Fanny said cheerfully, "that two friends of our college days should be coming on, too I'm sure I feel much safer," she ended, in a almost inaudible voice, and with a jerk of her head toward the next room, "I feel much safer with the boys right there, I tell you that frankly! If the Smith place had'nt been torn down, we'd be in a nice white room now, with old maids and bank clerks murmuring all about us---"

"I wish we were!" Madge put in fervently.

"We will be, tomorrow. We'll go to the Travelers' Aid or something."

"Do you suppose," Madge asked, when they were both in bed, "do you suppose those lights out there will shine in all night?"

"I don't know I was thinking of that. It's only ten thirty now," Fanny mumbled, from the luxury of flatness and softness and ease. "These beds aren't so bad. If the lights do shine in, Madge, they're the lights of New York! Broadway --Broadway is fanning us to sleep!"

When their luggage was stacked by the desk that looked dingier and darker than ever in the dull morning gloom of the foyer, they walked forth in search of breakfast the next morning just a Broadway's jewelry-store clocks were agreeing upon the hour of nine. Chris and Mack looked very serious, Madge was white and had been crying, and even Fanny was rather pale.

"We did lock our door," said Fanny, for the twentieth time. "But we couldn't shut our windows on a night like that. Did you---" she turned to Chris '--did you close your windows?"

"No, we didn't. They came up the fire escape I suppose. It's-it's just too bad," Chris said, frowning "It's to bad."

"But we'll get it back? We'll have to," Madge stammered, looking sick.

"He thinks they may. The cop seemed to think they might get them."

Rupertsland Sails With Arctic Cargo For Lonely Posts

Montreal, July 7—(CP)— The new Hudson's Bay Company ship, Rupertsland, will sail today on her first voyage into the arctic to supply the lonely outposts served for so many years by the famed Nascopie.

At the helm of the small but sturdy 600-ton vessel will be Capt. A. G. Lloyd of Barries, Wales, who will also be making his first voyage through the ice-strewn waters where the Nascopie foundered on a rocky reef two years ago after 35 successful annual trips.

Capt. Lloyd has had considerable experience sailing in the Russian Arctic and is looking forward to his 9,000-mile voyage to bring the necessities of life to Eskimos and whites who live on the "rim of the world."

The Rupertsland is scheduled to return to Halifax about Oct. 11, leaving the Northern seas just before the winter freeze-up locks them up till next summer.

Man Carrying $17,180 Around His Neck by Cord

Omaha, July 7—(AP) — Fred Wechler's neighbors could be pardoned for not recognizing him as a man of means.

The 73-year-old Omahan lived in a $10 a month room and by his own account, his cost of living last year was $520.43, and in the first half of this year, only $115.89.

But when Wechler was sent to hospital for heat exhaustion Tuesdy, a nurse discovered his secret. In a small black purse, suspended from his neck by a cord, was $17,180 in bonds and cash.

When she learned of the discovery Wednesday, an elderly woman neighbor said that "you coulda fooled me. All he ever ate was syrup, beans and bread. How would a girl know he is practically a millionaire?"

Wechler said he hadn't deposited his savings because he had "no use for banks."

Poison Caused Student's Death, Says Coroner

Toronto, July 8 — (CP)—Three grains of potassium cyanide, the deadliest of poisons, caused the death of Ralph Whelan, 22-year-old University of Toronto honor student, Chief Coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson announced Thursday following an analysis by Prof. Joslyn Rogers.

He said an inquest will be held to determine where the student obtained the poison and how it was administered.

"Because potassium cyanide acts in a matter of minutes," the chief coroner said, "we believe that Whelan was fatally poisoned shortly after he entered his room."

Police have been unable to establish a motive for the poisoning, he added.

The youth, whose body was found in his room Tuesday night, was employed during the summer at the University of Toronto's chemical laboratories.

Peace Bridge Again Opened After Gas Fire

Buffalo, N. Y., July 8 (AP) — The Peace Bridge to Canada was reopened to traffic early Thursday after a gas fire beneath it was brought under control.

The fire disrupted telephone and gas service to Canada and threatened for a time to weaken the 22-year-old international span.

Buffalo and Fort Erie firemen fought the blaze for about two hours after it was discovered by a party of Buffalonians returning from Canada.

Firemen said flames shooting from an apparently broken gas main charred wires, burned cables and buckled sidewalks on the bridge.

All traffic was stopped during the fire, and for a time there were fears of an explosion.

The cause was not established. Fire Commissioner Joseph S. Masterson estimated damage at between $50,000 and $100,000.

Casey Stengel Being Boomed As Manager-of-the-Year, Yanks Stretch Lead to 5 Games

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

How about Casey Stengel for manager of the year?

While the wise guys wait for Casey's New York Yankees to wilt, they continue to knock off the contenders one by one. Connie Mack's Philadelphia A's were the latest and dropped five full games behind the Yanks by Thursday night's 6-2 setback.

The boys shed a tear for "good old Case" when he stepped into Bucky Harris' job last Winter. The Yanks were aging, coming apart at the seams.

Casey seems to have performed a minor miracle of rebuilding. He juggled youngsters and brittle veterans without ever dropping from first place.

Allie Reynolds' route-going performance against the A's must have been encouraging to Stengel who kept 'Wahoo' in his regular starting turn despite his many knockouts. Reynolds required relief help from Joe Page so often that wags joined their names and called "Reynolds-Page" the Yankees' best pitcher.

Reynolds' 9-1 record is receiving but there was nothing phony about his five-hitter at Shibe Park. A two-run homer at Shibe Bauer broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth to give Allie a working margin over Lou Brissie. It was his first complete game since May 10 and his second of the year.

Indians Creep Up

Cleveland, making another move, crept to within a game and a half of the A's by smothering Chicago 8-2 with a 17-hit attack. Bob Lemon coasted home with his ninth victory.

Boston Red Sox trampled Washington 8-3 and chased Mickey Haefner right off the Senators Ball Club. Owner Clark Griffith, dissatisfied with Haefner's "indifferent" performance, gave the pint-sized Lefty his walking papers after a bad first inning.

Haefner walked five, messed up a grounder and allowed one hit as the Sox rolled up a five-run lead. That was more than enough for young Chuck Abotts in the game that was called at the end of the sixth to permit the Sox to catch a train home.

Detroit teed off on Red Embree for six runs in the first inning to snap its five-game losing streak with a 9-2 romp over St. Louis Browns. Lou Kretlow walked six but he struck out seven to nail down his second win.

Dodgers Increase Lead

Brooklyn boosted its National League lead to two games by trimming the Boston Graves 5-2 in a night game after runner-up St. Louis bowed to Pittsburg 2-0 in the afternoon.

Joe Hatten survived a threatening ninth inning to record his seventh victory on the strength of a three-run Dodger attack on Warren Spahn in the first inning.

Ernie Bonham shut out the Cardinals with six hits for Pittsburgh's sixth straight victory.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Homer "Red" Townsend glanced around his now sparsely-equipped sports store on Campbell Street this morning. There was a hint of sadness in his eyes, and sincerity in his voice when he said, "I'm going to miss this place; the boys who used to come in and shoot the sports breeze, and the fine organizations and people with whom I have done business over a long period of years."

* * *

The well-known sports equipment purveyor and athletic director of Belleville Collegiate Institute is reluctantly retiring from business. Not from ill-health, or insolvency, but from lack of space. It seems a large banking institution owns the property in which "Red" had his shop and sometime ago gave him the well-known notice to vacate because of expansional plans.

* * *

"Red" sought new quarters in town, but apparently they are scarcer than blondes in a colored revue, and he was more or less forced to give up the business which has grown and prospered since he started it some fifteen years ago.

* * *

"That is perhaps the ironical part of the story," commented "Red." "I've been through lean years as well as fat ones. A few years ago the business started to expand on a permanent basis. Last year it reached what I might call an all-time peak with splendid prospects of staying that way. Now when I am beginning to enjoy the fruits of years of business construction, this thing has to happen."

* * *

Through the business which he started in 1934, "Red" has learned a lot more than profit and loss figures. He discovered that nearly all people are honest with those in sport and connected with it ranking high with people whom Diogenes, toting his lantern, sought long ago.

* * *

"In my fifteen years of business with individuals and organizations, I have never had to resort to the written word. And I have had very little trouble. True, I have made the occasional mistake, but I can truthfully say that in my decade and a half of dealing with athletes and athletic organizations I have written off as bad debts less than $100."

* * *

"Red" feels that that fact is something of a record in business circles. If it can be taken as a criterion then the sports world ranks high in honesty and integrity. "I always figured that a fellow was as good as his word, especially in sport, and I have found that I was 99 per cent right," 'Red' said. "To prove that, eight fellows, all athletes before the war, and some of them since it ended, went overseas leaving small amounts on my books. Every one of them came back after the show was over, and every one of them came in and paid their bill."

"Then there are others who ran up bills, couldn't pay all at once but came in faithfully when they have a dollar or two to spare, and reduce the debt in that manner. I have never had to resort to the courts to collect my money. I had too much faith in the good guys who burn up the ice-lanes, dust around the bases, or take part in other phases of sport. And I have never been sorry. They have been a grand bunch of fellows to deal with and I am leaving business with a better knowledge of human nature, and a deeper insight into the makeup of athletes other than physical than I had when I sold my first baseball."

* * *

Many sports organizations, especially those starting off in their first venture, have been aided immeasurably by "Red." They were "grub-staked" so to speak, and when they "struck it rich" (that's merely a quotation, no sports organization ever did that literally) they always repaid the "Shop on Campbell Street." Townsend's good work along these lines, also with individuals, will never be known. Suffice it to say, that they were good investments in human nature and ultimate dividends more than offset any inconveniences.

As a matter of fact, "Red" applied the same code of ethics to his business that has characterized his personal dealings with sport as a whole. He has seldom refused to act in any capacity on any sports organization in the city and when he did it was because of actual necessity, and usually "Red" was always available to help out unofficially. And he has never accepted any remuneration for his services, apart from regular umpire's fees.

* * *

We are not trying to place "Red" Townsend on a Superman pedestal. In his younger days "Red" was a fine athlete in his own right. Impetuous, quick on the verbal trigger when the occasion demanded, he never hesitated to speak his mind, right or wrong. In later years he assumed the role of arbiter, referee, umpire, and general factotum for sports whenever someone was needed to fill a vacancy. And "Red" has never refused a request for his services, unless because of direst circumstances.

* * *

He has been and is one of the figure-heads of sport in this city and there are few who have done as much for young and old in the realm of athletics as has this slim amiable red-head. Some will not agree with that statement, but we'll say fearlessly, that Belleville sportdom can well do with more men of the type of Homer "Red" Townsend.

* * *

Tonight's sport tidbits has the Picton Merchants locking baseball horns with the Kiwanis Juniors. The game will see Allen Kelleher back on the junior lineup. Manager Addison Lloyd stated yesterday afternoon that the Stratford junior management had granted Kelleher's release. The "Spaniards" will likely start their ace righthander Frankie Dyer against the Juniors, while Chuck Burnett will in all probability start Don Semark or Billy Strachan. Both teams are raring to go with Picton smarting under that 7-5 setback handed them on Wednesday night by the league-leading Napanee squad. Game gets under way at 8.30.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By TREVOR ICETON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, July 8 — (CP)—For some time there has been an undercurrent of dissatisfaction among some Canadian football players who feel rankled because United States grid men are brought to the Dominion to play at higher salaries.

The feeling is understandable when you consider that the Canadian boys sometimes see a highly-touted import, playing a no-better game than themselves, carting away a thicker pay envelope.

Trouble at Ottawa

Ivan (Hamilton Spectator) Miller writes that "Tony Golab, who enjoyed one of his best years with the Ottawa Rough Riders last season, is not satisfied with the terms offered him this season, claiming that United States imports are getting much more."

Ivan seems to have expected something like this to happen, for he said, "It appeared only a matter of time until at least one Canadian player would rise up and demand an even break, financially, with the highly - paid Yanks."

So Unbecoming

Tennis players in the upper brackets are developing temperaments that threaten to bring the game to the status of third - rate boxing matches and wisecracking duels. So says George (Belleville Ontario - Intelligencer) Carver.

To back up his statements, Carver tells of a match recently between Gardner Malloy and Earl Cochell in which Cochell upset the exasperated Malloy.

"After missing a forehand on match point, Malloy ran up to the net to extend traditional congratulations to his conqueror—or so it appeared to the gallery," says Carver.

"But Malloy departed from the 'nice - going - old - man' script. Grasping Cochell's hand as though it were a deceased and unrefrigerated fish, Malloy muttered: 'You are the most obnoxious jerk I've ever played.'

"Cochell, smiling for the lens hounds, whispered back: 'Nuts.'"

Midget Matmen

Professional wrestling is for the big boys. The Cardiff Giant Man Mountain Monohan and the Blimp are names significant enough to convey the idea of the general proportions of matdom's famous.

Trust the promoters to think of something different. Britt (North Bay Nugget) Jessup tells of a recent bout promoted in his Northern Ontario town in which the grapple - and - gouge exponents were just little guys. In fact they were midgets. Says Britt:

"These midgets were Tom Thumb, and Pierre Raymond, a monster who towers four feet two inches."

Cooper, Sauer Show How Change Benefits Player

New York, July 8 — (AP) — Does a change of scenery benefit a player?

Well, ask Hank Sauer or Walker Cooper. Better still, take a gander at the achievements of these stalwarts since they changed uniforms three weeks ago, and compare them to their earlier showing.

Their improvement, especially with the stick, has been amazing.

Sauer, since his shift from Cincinnati to Chicago has become a terror at the plate. In 23 games with the Cubs, Hammering Hank has blasted 10 home runs, driven in 24 runs, and built a .395 batting mark.

Compare that with Sauer's work with the Reds. In 42 games with Cincinnati, Sauer hit only four homers, knocked in only 17 runs and hit barely over his weight—a mere .237.

Cooper's work with the Reds has been no less sensational. The big catcher sneaked away from the New York Giants with a lowly .211 figure in 43 games. Coop collected only four homers and batted in 21 runs. Since joining the Reds on June 16, Cooper has walloped seven round trippers off enemy pitchers, and has sent 20 runs across the plate. His Cincinnati average is .347.

Cooper followed his phenomenal six-hit, three-homer and 10-R. B. I. performance Wednesday, with another homer Thursday which proved the margin of Cincinnati's 7-6 victory over the Cubs.

Sauer and Cooper are not the only players who are benefited by a change in scenery.

Among the other gents who are happy over their new surroundings are Hank Edwards and Herman Reich, both with the Cubs. With Cleveland earlier this season, neither could get going, hitting in the low .200s. Playing regularly with the new club, Edwards is banging away at a .335 clip, and Reich is three points over that mark.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

The swing of a good player is firm and crisp without producing muscle tenseness. If your swing is tense all your muscles tend to be rigid and this is at the expense of rhythm. Tenseness produces jerkiness and prevents the sort of coiled - up, spring-like action characteristic of a good swing. Perhaps I can express it by saying you should be gently firm in a golf swing. This is midway between sloppy, loose action and rigidity. Concentrate on what you are doing throughout the golf swing. Never let your mind wander. It is only by concentration that you develop the habit of always making the golf swing correctly. Even the finished player regards concentration as perhaps the most valuable piece of his golfing equipment. When you wish to accomplish something in business, you concentrate — and so it is in golf.

Atkens, Lovelock Fiery Feud Renewed Tonight

"This is the big moment of my wrestling career," declared Al Lovelock, the colorful Canadian wrestling and football star who meets Fred Atkins, the British Empire champion, for the title at the Memorial Arena tonight.

According to Lovelock, he has been pointing for years to the night when he would get a shot at the Empire crown. Knowing that he would have to establish himself as a contender before achieving this ambition, the Windsor athlete went to the U. S. where he built himself into a main bout sensation.

Now he has returned to his native country and is getting the opportunity he has worked towards for such a long time.

Atkins, whose first reaction to the young Canadian star was to snort and call him "that young punk", had to revise his opinion after the knock-'em-down, drag-'em-out draw these two had here last week.

It should be an explosive semi-final, with Sliding Billy Hansen turning on his dazzling attacks in the direction of towering Sky-Hi Lee, the surly hillbilly. Frank Hewitt and Pat Flanagan will start the mat fireworks.

BISLEY VICTOR

Gilmour Boa of Toronto, youngest member of the Canadian team in the annual Commonwealth Rifle Shoot, was the first Canadian to take first prize at Bisley when he won the open division of the Southern Railway event in a shoot-off with four other marksmen who tied him for first place. Lieut. James Boa, father of the young officer cadet, is another member of the team.—(CP Photo.)

Athletes Must Compete in Trials To Make Trip

(By Canadian Press)

Any self-satisfied athlete who feels he can safely pass up the British Empire games trials in Toronto July 15 and 16 is going to miss theboat—the boat to New Zealand.

Tom Lord, chairman of the National Track and Field Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, said Thursday at Montreal the previously announced edict stands: no competition, no selection.

Indications are that the big athletic show in Toronto, combining the trials and the Dominion Track and Field Championships, will surpass in numbers the field of 1[illegible] that completed in the championships and olympic trials at Montreal last year.

At Calgary, Don Pettie, Canadian Olympic Games sprinter from Calgary, said tonight Western Canada athletes appeared to have been "sold out again."

He was commenting on Tom Lord's statement that Canada's team will be restricted to athletes competing at the trials in Toronto.

Pettie, student at Drake University of Des Moines, Ia., and captain of the Drake Track Team, said he was afraid the ruling would prevent "scores of Western athletes" from taking part in the trials.

At New York, a reliable baseball source said Thursday a plan by Toronto Maple Leafs to hold a baseball "clinic" for youngsters in Ontario this summer appears to be a desirable project provided the club does not hold its own tryout camp at about the same time.

Griffith Fires Mickey Haefner

Washington, July 8 — (AP)— Washington Senators, who need pitchers worse than anything, nevertheless fired a regular Thursday night.

Mickey Haefner, a Washington standby for six years, was tossed off the club by owner Clark Griffith because of what Griffith called an "indifferent performance" against Boston Red Sox.

Griffith told reporters Haefner has pitched his last game for Washington and will be sold, traded or released outright.

Haefner has now won five and lost five this year. His best performance was a one-hit, 1-0 stint against Cleveland.

Vic Sandiford, Toronto and Lou Gunn, Toronto.

A noted horseman on Ontario's racing circuit, 39-year-old Harry Lehman died of a heart attack at his home at Toronto Thursday. He was president of the Canadian Automatic Confections Company and a director of the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association. Owner of eight horses, Mr. Lehman made his first King's Plate attempt when he entered Kanloo. The horse ran fourth.

The Comstock Trophy will be the big prize in the Eastern Ontario Rowing Association regatta to be held Saturday on the choppy Ottawa River. Clubs from Lachine Que., Brockville, and Ottawa will make their bid for the coveted trophy, while teams from Toronto Dons and Argos, Hamilton Leander and St. Catharines, Ont will compete on an invitation basis.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Batting, Dave Koslo Giants—hit first two home runs of major league career, driving in five runs, as he pitched New York to 11-2 victory over Philadelphia Phils who never have beaten him in nine games.

Pitching, Ernie Bonham, Pirates —shut out St. Louis Cardinals with six hits, 2-0.

Ryder Cup Star Heading Field In British Open

Sandwich, England, July 8 — (CP) — The man they all have to catch in the British Open is Sam King, 38-year-old Ryder Cup star from Kent county whose second-round 69 gave him a total of 140 going into today's final 36 holes of the 72-hole test.

King was steady Thursday in compiling his impressive 69 — the only one recorded in the wind and rain at the Royal St. George's course.

Johnny Bulla and Frank Stranahan, the only United States survivors, entered the final rounds with identical scores and it appeared each must step up his pace to hold a winning chance.

Bulla, tall Pittsburgh professional, and Stranahan, the muscular amateur from Toledo, Ohio, posted second round 73s to go with their earlier 71s.

Their 144 totals left them four strokes off the pacemaking King.

Tied for second are Britons Bill Shankland and Max Faulkner with 142. Roberto De Vicenzo, long-hitting Argentinian, and Dick Burton of Britain, the 1939 Open titlist, follow at 143. De Vicenzo yesterday added a weak 75 to his opening 68.

Then came Bulla and Stranahan, tied with four others including Scotland's Jimmy Adams, who led the first round scorers with a 67 but soared to a 77 Thursday.

Almost as bad as Adams' crack-up in the second round was that of his pre - tournament favorite, Bobby Locke of South Africa, who took a 76. Added to his initial 69, Bobby was well off the pace with 145 — two under the 147 qualifying limit for today's finals. After yesterday's halfway mark was completed, 31 players remained in the running.

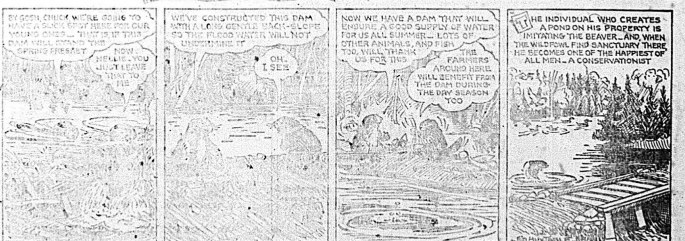
CARLING'S CONSERVATION CORNER



BY GOSH, CHUCK WE'RE GOING TO HAVE A SLICK SPOT HERE FOR OUR YOUNG ONES... THAT IS, IF THIS DAM WILL STAND THE SPRING FRESHET
NOW NELLIE, YOU JUST LEAVE THAT TO ME
WE'VE CONSTRUCTED THIS DAM WITH A LONG GENTLE BACK-SLOPE SO THE FLOOD WATER WILL NOT UNDERMINE IT
OH, I SEE
NOW WE HAVE A DAM THAT WILL ENSURE A GOOD SUPPLY OF WATER FOR US ALL SUMMER... LOTS OF OTHER ANIMALS, AND FISH TOO, WILL THANK US FOR THIS
THE FARMERS AROUND HERE WILL BENEFIT FROM THE DAM DURING THE DRY SEASON TOO
THE INDIVIDUAL WHO CREATES A POND ON HIS PROPERTY IS IMITATING THE BEAVER... AND, WHEN THE WILDFOWL FIND SANCTUARY THERE, HE BECOMES ONE OF THE HAPPIEST OF ALL MEN... A CONSERVATIONIST
ED HUXTABLE

Canada's national animal, the beaver, is one of nature's most energetic conservationists. The dams they build help to hold back the rushing waters in the spring, storing them up for the dry summer months. Beavers and the dams they build should never be molested by unauthorized persons.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

If you want to be technical, say that a finesse is avoided by a strip-and-endplay. Undress the hand you want to throw in. Then give him a trick and make him lead to you.

Most tables reached a contract of six clubs with south as the declarer. Where west doubled the club small slam, it was easy for a good player to plan how the needed 12 tricks can be made.

Opening lead from west was the spade king. Dummy hand goes down and two important facts are quickly noted. A trump trick may be lost to the king. A heart trick may be lost to the king.

If you have any thought of finessing for both of these, forget it. No good player ever takes two finesses with such a hand. At least, not if he has any idea of where the unseen important card may be.

Tipped off by the double, south may assume that west has one of the kings. More than likely it is the trump king. If so, it matters not if he also has the heart king. He can be endplayed.

Trick one came to south when he ruffed the opening spade lead. Ace of trump was laid down without delay. Could be it might drop the lone king. But it did no such thing.

However, now it is known that the club king is the only trump held by opponent. When the time is ripe, a trump lead can throw him in. But he must first be stripped to prepare for the endplay.

Diamond ace is cashed. The remaining dummy spade is ruffed. Two south top diamonds are cashed. A trump lead is won by west and there he is with nothing but spades and hearts.

If he returns a spade, dummy will ruff and south will sluff the heart jack. If west prefers to lead a heart, it makes no difference who has the king. Strip, brother.

Electrics Defeat Trenton 4-0 In Soccer Tilt

Northern Electric moved to within one point of the second-place No. 6 Repair Depot Club by handing Trenton Merchants a 4-0 defeat in a Bay of Quinte district association football game played at Trenton's Bain Memorial Park Wednesday evening.

The Belleville squad took a two-goal lead in the opening half on a penalty kick by Jack Jones and a goal by Cathcart. They added two more in the final half, with C. Murphy and Salter being the marksmen.

R. Murphy, in goal for the winners, was outstanding, robbing the homesters on several occasions. Ernie Taft, Johnny Little and Joe Rushnell were the pick of the losers.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 8 — (AP) — Here's Milton Berle's answer to an attack by Fred Allen:

"Allen still has the first penny ever thrown at him."

"Mr. Television" was ired by the Boston comic's words in Life magazine.

Commenting on Berle's top TV rating Allen added: "You can go so long when you get your laughs by running out in front of an audience wearing a pair of lady's drawers."

"Mr. Allen is a very wealthy and successful comedian," Berle said seriously. "I think he makes himself look bad by knocking another member of the profession. What is he trying to prove"?

Other Attacks

Berle has been attacked by other comedians.

All the attacks stem from jealousy, he declared.

"Anyone who gets on top becomes a target . . you should have heard the things they said about Bob Hope when he first came out here.

"And Joe DiMaggio. He was a bum when he was hurt. Then he comes back and slugs four homers in three games — so he's a hero again. Was he any different before?"

I told the comic about visiting Bob Hope's new office and seeing the vault where the Hope gags are filed. "Let Berle try to get in here," Hope remarked.

Biggest File

"I'll bet I've got a bigger gag file than Hope," Berle remarked. "Back in New York I've 850,000 gags indexed and cross-indexed."

Although he says he should be taking a rest from the 78 - show yearly grind, he is making a movie here.

It's called "Always leave them laughing" and that's what he did. A studio messenger reported with new pages of script and asked, "Are you Milton Berle?"

On the same program, "Bad Boy," featuring Lloyd Nolan, Jane Wyatt, James Gleason and Audie Murphy, most decorated hero in America, in his first starring role. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00 p.m.

AT THE BELLE — Daredevils — trio of ace pilots — played by Walter Reed, Robert Stack and Edmond O'Brien, await takeoff word in Warner Bros. smashing film of the air force, "Fighter Squadron," which ends its engagement at the Belle Theatre tonight.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was in ma's room on my stummick on the floor looking at the Superboy comic book that Puds Simkins traded me for my Atomic Age comic book, and I said, Aw heck, darn the luck, gosh sang the the guy, the big jipp went and tore out some of the pages before he swapped me.

Now Benny, please don't allow yourself to get into the habit of being constantly overcome by angry excitement, ma said. As life goes on you'll learn that things are always bound to happen that you wish hadn't. So you better jimmies, ma, gosh, suppose you traded some lady a swell pie recipee, for a cake recipee, and she delibritly rubbed out one of the most important things before she gave it to you, sutch as the flour? How would you feel? I said.

No matter how I felt, I hope I'd always exercise self control, ma said, and I said, Well then you awt to exercise some when you heer that I just saw one of the darndest biggest spiders I ever saw anywheres, even when I tell you it's rite heer in this room.

Oh my goodness, oh how awful, oh how gassly, ma said. Where is it, tell me at once, tell me immeeditly, she said and I said, It's in my pockit.

What, are you intirely crazy, are you definitly out of your senses,? ma said, and I said, Aw

Benny Potts I want you to get lone, and when I say alone I meen without a single werd of explination or futher discription, ma said.

The result being I didn't tell her I donated the spider to Puds Sim-

Unknown Plays Giant-Killing Role in Tourney

Kitchener, Ont., July 8. (CP)—A comparative unknown, straight-hitting Don Varey, today led a field of 32 golfers over the tricky Par-71 Kitchener Westmount course in the hunt for the Ontario amateur golf title. But several highly-regarded shotsmiths won't be chasing him.

The young Brantford golfer was scheduled to tee off against Geoffrey Fairbrother of Toronto Summit on the first championship flight today. Varey shot a one-over par 72 in the qualifying round Thursday.

Recent winner of the Brant County title, Varey was the best of 155 competitors on the 6,444-yard layout and finished up with a one-stroke lead over Gerry Kesselring of the Host Club. He put a one-under par 34 on the outgoing nine but faltered for 38, two over par coming home.

Kesselring, former Canadian and Ontario Junior champion, carded rounds of 35 and 37 for his 72.

In third place, one stroke behind Kesselring, came Jack Nash of London, Mike Cassidy of Toronto and George Eluck of Windsor.

The biggest upset of the day was the elimination of defending champion, Phil Farley of Toronto, six-times winner of the title. Non-qualifiers also included such favored players as Gil Walker of London Hunt, and Sunny Adams of Toronto. Walker had an 82 and Adams an 80.

Farley apparently was bothered by the brisk wind as he registered his 40 and 39 for a 79. The stocky veteran had hopes of qualifying for the championship round but they disappeared when four other players nudged him out with 73s. The four played a sudden-death hole to decide the last three places.

Phil Golding, the baby-faced Linkster from Toronto Mississauga, turned in the highest score on the extra hole and was eliminated. Qualifying for further play were Bill Artindale of Westmount, Larry Bissel of London Highland and Fairbrother.

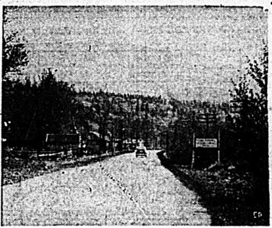
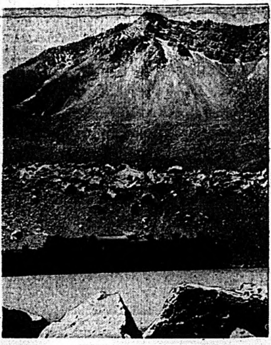
BUIRED TOWN

A heap of rock marks the site of the town of Frank, near the entrance to Crows Nest Pass in southwestern Alberta, which was buried in a slide that took the lives of 66 residents in 1903. A section 1,300 feet high, 4,000 feet wide and 500 feet thick crashed on the town from the slope of Turtle Mountain.—(CP Photo.)



DANGER SPOT

Only a few miles from the rock-strewn grave of its predecessor and namesake, the village of Frank lies at the base of Turtle Mountain in southwestern Alberta, which once sent 70,000,000 tons of rock crashing upon a thriving mining town, buring 66 of its inhabitants. Some district residents fear slides down the fissured slope of the mountain.—(CP Photo.)



HIGHWAY CROSSES RUINS

A broad roadway and a railway line now pass over the rock-strewn ruins of Frank, Alta., buried in a rockslide in 1903. If the Trans-Canada Highway is built through southern Alberta, it will probably cross the spot.—(CP Photo.)

Pitcher Wins 12 of 27 Games Won by Team

(By The Associated Press)

The Baltimore Oriole pitching staff apparently is comprised of three names — Albert Joseph Widmar.

The Orioles, in seventh place in International League standings, have won only 27 games and Widmar has picked up 12 of these, high for the league.

In addition to being the league's top winner, the 24-year-old righthander is No. 1 in strikeouts, 94, and in complete games, 12.

Widmar posted his 12th victory Thursday night, holding Newark Bears to four hits to win 5-3. His mates plucked eleven hits off three Newark hurlers, including home runs by Hank Arft and Glenn McQuillen.

The league - leading Buffalo Bisons and the second - place Montreal Royals divided a doubleheader at Montreal.

Buffalo won a wild opener 12-10, scoring four runs in the seventh inning on George Byam's home run with bases full. Montreal, behind Pot McGlothin's seven-hit pitching, captured the nightcap 7-4.

Jersey City Giants swept a doubleheader from Syracuse Chiefs, 7-3 and 10-7. Roger Bowman hurled five-hit ball to win the opener, while George Bamberger recorded his 10th triumph in the second game, though he needed help in the ninth.

Side - wheeling Nick Strincevich limited Rochester to four singles as Toronto Maple Leafs carved out a 6-1 victory over the Red Wings.

Chet Laabs, playing his first game for the Leafs since his purchase from Buffalo, singled once in five tries. He struck out twice.

Sammy Snead Out in Front In Golf Tourney

Reading, Pa., July 8—(AP)—Sammy Snead, as usual, was out in front today in the $15,000 Reading Open Golf Tournament, but the story of the first round came from his nearest rivals.

Since the beginning of the 1949 tour, Snead has won four tournaments, including the Masters and the P.G.A. Championship and he gave Carry Middlecoff a real run for the United States Open Title. So it was no surprise to find Sammy shooting 30-33-63, seven strokes under par for the 6,001 yard Reading Country Club course, to lead the field.

But it was surprising that Lawson Little, a veteran who hasn't been close to the top recently, finished only one stroke behind.

And even more surprising was thethird place 65 fired by big George Low, Jr., of Clearwater, Fla. Low, son of a famous old professional, said he played three times in oLs Angeles last winter but had not shot another round of golf until Thursday.

Middlecoff, Johnny Palmer and Chick Harbert were among the 67 shooters yesterday; Lloyd Mangrum and Dick Metz had 68 and virtually all the stars were among the 29 who equalled or surpassed par.

Shell, Plumbers Share Spotlight In Softball Tilts

A hard-trying Energetic Club played adequate ball last evening before succumbing to Shell Oil 7-4 in the second game of a scheduled doubleheader at the Alemite Field. In the opener Howe and Hagerman swamped McFarlane's Woodenware 10-3 in a game called in the top of the seventh with two out because of unseemly language on the part of one of the McFarlane players and failure to play ball on the part of the rest of the team.

In the nightcap Energetic played their first errorless ball game of the season as they fell to Shell Oil 7-4. They opened the scoring in the top of the first counting twice on a single and a double. Two walks loaded the bases with two away but Scriven went down pitcher to first to retire the side.

Shell hurried to the attack in their end of the stanza with Jones' homer to left field scoring three runs. Energetic evened the count in the second on a single, a stolen base, a passed ball and an error to the catcher.

Go Two Up

Shell went two up in the bottom of the third on two singles and a double. Two singles and a double for Energetic netted them their final marker in the top of the fifth.

Shell scored single runs in the fifth and sixth to sew up the pastime.

Hopkins went the route on the firing line for Energetic striking out six, walking two, and giving up eight hits for the ball game. Art Empy started for the winners and in four innings walked three, struck out two, and was nicked for five hits and three runs. Jack Reid protected the lead for three frames walking none, striking out three, and giving up three hits for one run.

Line Up—Energetic Club: Orim lf; McMillen cf; McNevin 3b; Hopkins p; Outindeke 1b; White 2b; Stickle ss; Scriven c; Adams rf.

Shell Oil: Miller ss; Simmons 3b; Jones 2b; A. Empy p; replaced by Reid in the 5th; R. Empy c; Smith rf, replaced by Ellis in 6th; Milligan lf, replaced by Burns in 6th; P. Blake 1b; Vickers cf.

Score by innings

Take Advantage of Errors

In a rather shoddy opener Howe and Hagerman took advantage of eleven hits and five errors in six innings to roll to an easy 10-3 win over McFarlanes. They had added three more runs in the top of the seventh with two away when plate umpire Bawden called the whole things off because McFarlanes were not trying. McFarlanes, who were to come to bat in the last of the seventh, protested the decision to no avail. They said that they woud file an official protest with the league convener.

Three doubles in the first got Howe and Hagerman away to a good start with two runs. They added seven more in the third on five hits and wound up with their last official run in the fourth.

McFarlane's pushed over a single run in the bottom of the fourth and added two in the fifth.

Cook went along smoothly for Howe and Hagerman walking one, striking out two, and being nicked for six hits and three runs. Frank Baldwin went well in front of some shabby support striking out nine, walking four, and being hammered for 11 hits and the loss.

Line Up: Howe and Hagerman: Cross 3b; Amo cf; M. Fitzgibbon ss; V. Murray lf; Callaghan 1b; Doyle 2b, replaced by Rogers in 5th; Peever rf, replaced by Donovan in 5th; Grey c; Cook p.

McFarlanes: Marsh c; Scanlon ss; Peters 3b; J. Moore, replaced by D. Moore in 5th, 2b; Young cf; Baldwin p; Holland rf; Skinkle rf; Boyce 1b.

Score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	R	H	E

"SAFE AS A CHURCH"

Stanley Smith, left, and his brother, Colin, say they'll sail their home-made yacht, the Nova Espero, from Halifax to London in about six weeks. Then they plan to sail the 20-foot vessel back to Halifax and go into the boatbuilding business, having proved their ability to build ships that "can take it." Sons of a designer and builder of boats, the boys say the Nova Espero is "safe as a church."—(CP Photo.)

Three Face Murder Charge as Child Drowns in Baptism

Kingsport, Tenn., July 7—(AP)—The drowning of a 14-year-old girl while she was being baptised in the Holston River near there last May 1 has resulted in the arrest of three persons on charges of murder.

Margaret Chapman was drowned shortly after being immersed by her grandfather, Franklin W. Lewis, a holiness preacher.

Arrested and arraigned yesterday besides Lewis were Howard Lee Smith, 38, of Bristol, and Edna Earl King, 34, of Kingsport.

Hungarian Court Hears Appeal

Budapest, July 8 (Reuters)—The National Council of Peoples Courts, the Supreme Judicial body in Hungary, Wednesday began considering an appeal by Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty, Primate of Hungary, imprisoned for life for treason.

The court heard pleas for reduced sentences for the Cardinal and six others sentenced with him.

The prosecutor asked for more severe sentences.

The court adjourned late Wednesday night and the result of the hearing is expected Saturday.

Accidentally Hanged Says Boy Of Teen-Age Gang

Chicago, July 8 — (AP) — A member of the teen-age "Hang noose club" told police Thursday a three-year-old neighbor boy was accidentally hanged in a test of a cellar scaffold for a club initiation.

The oral statement given Detective Chief Timothy O'Connor by Robert Munday, 15, was the second account police obtained about the killing of Thomas (Whitey) Laux.

A few hours earlier, Robert's 13-year-old brother, Charles, gave a statement that he strangled and hanged Tommy and stuffed his body into a sack where it was found this morning.

Both pupils of a school for backward children, Robert and Charles are being held without charge at the Juvenile Detention Home. O'Connor said Charles had been classified as a juvenile delinquent.

The Munday boys were picked up Thursday after the discovery of Tommy's body ended an all-night search of the neighborhood where the Munday and Laux families share a two-flat frame house on Chicago's south side.

Confronted by the two conflicting statements of the killing, O'Connor said:

"I believe Bobby's story because the finding of the rope . . . corroborated it. Charles' story does not stand up."

The boys' parents took tests under a lie detector and O'Connor said they failed to show anything. The chief said the father showed effects of drinking last night and the mother is suffering from asthma.

O'Connor said police will continue to hold the parents without charge.

The Council would probably comprise the foreign ministers of the 12 member countries or their representatives. There also would be a defence committee made up of the defence ministers or their representatives.

The council would be primarily concerned with broad political questions, the defence committee with the relation of military and political considerations.

Little Benny's Note Book

The clock started to go passed the time for me to go to bed, so I started a conversation to change the subject, saying, Hay pop, hay ma, how about if I take a job and go to work this summer, so I'll get used to erning money

That's a thawt, pop said. I started to take the financial burden off my parents before I was a year old, by being sutch a model child that they could go out and leave me without a baby sitter, he said, and I said, I bet I can get a job in the market, because I know the manager. He's a little round short guy with a unlit cigar, I said.

He sounds like a good man to werk for, pop said, and ma said, That's no kind of werk for a child of your age for land sakes. You'd have heavy boxes falling on you from rite and left, she said.

Aw, I'm a good dodger, ma, I said. Anyways, I know of another job. I can go around emptying ladies' vacuum cleeners for them, and I bet they'd be glad to have me do it, I said, and ma said, No doubt they would, but I wouldn't. I can just see you coming home as black as a chimney sweep on the outside and full of invisible germs on the inside. [illegible] it down, she said.

I know the anser, pop said. He can deliver newspapers, he said, and ma said, That's a fine anser, I must say, tramping the hot streets in the hot sun and probably being bitten by dogs in the bargain.

The newspaper I had in mind was our own, pop said. I'll pay him a princely salary if he delivers it to me every day after restoring it to its original creeses so perfectly that even a detective couldn't guess he had ever opened it to the comic pages, he said, and I said, G, pop, how mutch is a princely salary?

We'll discuss that when the results begin to roll in, pop said.

Meening it depends on how good I do it.

Will Not Accept A White Queen, Chiefs Walk Out

Johannesburg, July 8 — (AP) — The Regent of the Bamangwato Tribe in Bechuanaland and 43 chieftains took a walk Thursday rather than accept a white queen.

Regent Tshekedi Khama and the other head men, including 2 in direct succession to the tribal leadership, sent a letter to the British High Commissioner, Evelyn Baring, in Pretoria, saying they are joining a neighboring tribe.

The letter called on the British government to start a judicial inquiry into the position of Seretse Khama, Chieftain - designate and his wife, Ruth Williams, 24, a London typist. The couple were married in London last fall while Seretse was studying law. He recently returned to his homeland and received the support of a majority of the tribe as their leader, despite the thumbs-down attitude of the chiefs led by Tsekedi. Seretse's wife is still in London.

WILL ASK KING

"Troops are being used to safeguard food supplies, but the stoppage has wider effects. In its present economic situation, the country cannot afford delays in the turnround of ships and the holdup of exports.

"The government has accordingly decided that unless the port is fully working without discrimination between ships by Monday morning they will advise His Majesty to issue a proclamation under the Emergency Powers Act 1920 declaring that a state of emergency exists."

Ede said the Act of 1920 enabled regulations to be made to obtain the essentials of life to the must be laid before parliament as soon as possible.

Troops Being Used

More than 1,000 soldiers and sailors, mostly crack troops of the Scots, Irish, Coldstream and Grenadier Guards, entered the "Royal" group of Thames-side docks early today to shift meat and other food supplies.

At the same time thousands of stevedores were voting in secret on whether to end the dispute which arose over their refusal to unload two Canadian ships involved in the Canadian Seamen's Union dispute.

The port employers claiming that this is a breach of contract, have refused to assign labor to other ships until the Canadian ships have been handled.

Meanwhile 1,400 more men joined the stoppage, pushing the number of men idle to more than 10,000. Ships tied up by the strike today totalled 105.

First moves to use troops came Thursday when 300 men started unloading meat.

At an open air meeting today 2,000 dockers voted against taking part in the secret ballot which had been organized by the executive of the Stevedores Union. The union has about 8,000 members.

STILL A ROLLING STONE

Just back from a 400-mile trip on his own from his Vancouver home to Penticton, B.C., Alvarez Haabsburg looks ready to start travelling again anytime. The "wandering boy," who celebrated his 115th birthday July 8, disappeared twice in the last two years before he was picked up on his recent jaunt to Penticton.—(CP Photo.)

Additional Troops Moved into Port To Unload Cargoes

Government May Proclaim State of Emergency Monday

London, July 9. (Reuters) — Additional troops moved into the port of London today to unload food cargoes as groups of idle workers assembled at the dock gates to discuss the government's threat to proclaim a state of emergency unless they return to work, Monday.

More than 1,700 soldiers and sailors were deployed on 14 ships to unload meat, fruit, and dairy produce as against 1,000 at work Friday.

By Friday night, more than 10,200 dockers were involved in the dispute which started over the refusal of some men toe handle two Canadian ships, strikebound for the last two months by the Canadian Seamen's Union dispute. The employers claimed that this was a breach of contract. Union officials have opposed the men's action.

If the men do not resume work Monday "without discrimination" —that is including the unloading of the Canadian ships—the government will use powers to take control of the port, employ troops for unloading of all cargoes and to arrest and prosecute anyone obstructing or interfering with the emergency measures.

Despite the strong action threatened by the government, 400 lightermen, key workers in the port, Friday night decided to stop work tonight in support of the dockers. Two thousand meat truck drivers also decided to refuse cargoes handled by troops.

The dockers agreed today to call a mass meeting of the strikers, Monday morning to decide their future course.

About 1,000 men, members of the Transport and General Workers Union, decided by a majority of seven to one to return to work Monday.

Official figures showed that 10,740 men were out today, an increase of 500 over Friday's total. Altogether 109 ships were idle today, four more than Friday, and seven other ships were undermanned.

London Would Create Extra Water Supply

London, Ont., July 9—(CP)— This city boasts one of the best supplies of spring water in Western Ontario, but the Utilities Board decided yesterday to take advantage of a flood-control program to line up a new source of water as insurance.

The upper Thames Valley authorities will be asked to probe the possibilities of water supply for London in its project of building a dam on the Thames River at Fanshawe, five miles northeast of here. The dam would create a lake 10 miles long and a mile wide.

A waterworks system at Fanshawe might cost an estimated 4,000,000.

ALBERTANS WILL GET ALL THE GAS NEEDED FIRST

No Export of Natural Resources Until All Wants Satisfied

Edmonton, July 9—(CP)—Albertans have known for years that they sat atop a huge underground lake of natural gas and oil—just how big or how valuable they did not know.

But when export of gas became the hottest political issue in the province since Social Credit took root, they wanted to know just where they stood.

It was common knowledge that most of the larger centres of Alberta enjoyed the cheapest fuel on the continent. It cost the householder only about $6 a month to heat his home during a cold winter.

The source of this fuel is great pools of gas at Turner Valley supplying Calgary and Lethbridge and towns between; at Viking-Kinsella supplying Edmonton and Red Deer; and in the Bow Island field supplying Medicine Hat.

There also are large reserves in untouched fields at Jumping Pound near Calgary; Pincher Creek, west of Lethbridge; Hanna about 100 miles southeast of Calgary; and at Lac La Biche about 150 miles northeast of Edmonton.

This huge supply attracted concerns which formed companies to export gas beyond Alberta's boundaries.

Commission Set Up

A fact-finding Royal Commission, set up by the Provincial Government estimated reserves anywhere from 4,260,000,000,000 to 4,858,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

From this vast pool Albertans last year used 37,265,000,000 cubic feet. It was believed there was roughly enough gas to last the province about 90 years.

The commission's figure was for proven reserves. The potential was considered even greater.

After the demand for Alberta gas had built up a clamor and after the Federal Government incorporated six pipe line companies to export the fuel, the Provincial Government called a special session of the legislature.

Two Main Bills

Was there enough gas in the province's vast fields to ensure Albertans of adequate future supplies? Was there enough to warrant export? Would industries still locate in Alberta if her gas was piped to other large Canadian centres? The session pondered these questions.

The Alberta government proposed to empower its petroleum and natural gas conservation board to grant or refuse permits for natural gas export with the cabinet's approval. It brought in two main bills forcing pipe line companies to go through a long procedure before they could get a cubic inch of gas for export.

The government legislation which received the approval of the house also gave the conservation board the power to decide how much gas could be exported, where it was to be tapped and the power to cut off the supply when and if Alberta's share was endangered.

The government maintained that this legislation would ensure Albertans getting all the gas they needed first. Premier Manning promised there would be no increase in the domestic price of gas as a direct result of any export that might take place.

After laying out broad hints that export of Alberta gas was a matter of the future, the government pushed the control bills through the special session and left the conservation board the guardian of provincial oil and gas resources.

CALVES, HOGS, TRUCKS LOST A S HAY SETS THREE-BARN FIRE

Three large barns owned by Hugh McWilliams, Picton, were destroyed Thursday after spontaneous combustion set alight 25 tons of newly-cut hay. Four calves, two hogs, furniture and two trucks were lost. A few minutes after neighbors heard a loud explosion, all three barns were blazing. Firemen prevented the loss of the farm home.

CHIANG TO CONFER WITH PRESIDENT OF PHILLIPINES

Formosa Made into Nationalist Bastion

Manila, July 9 — (AP) — Reliable diplomatic sources said today Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek will arrive here tomorrow to confer with Philippine President Elpidio Quirino.

These sources said the Chinese Nationalist leader was flying to Manila from Formosa and would return to the big island off the southeastern China coast Monday. Chiang has converted Formosa into a last-stand Nationalist bastion against the Chinese Communists.

Subject of the Chiang-Quirino meeting was not disclosed but two general topics are expected to come under consideration:

1. A Pacific alliance which Quirino has proposed as an anti-Communist economic and cultural front of Asian nations to be led by the United States.

2. A possibility of establishment of a home in exile for Chiang.

Chiang has been pressing for more American aid to continue the Chinese Nationalists' civil war against the Communists.

President Syngman Rhee of the Republic of Korea likewise has been calling for more aid to bulwark his infant southern regime against possible aggression by the Communist North Korean regime.

Rhee has come out in support of Quirino's suggestion for a Pacific counterpart of the Atlantic pact to oppose Communist aggression.

The newspaper's account said that a representative of General McArthur's headquarters would attend the meeting along with top Philippine military officials.

10,000 Celebrate Battle of Boyne 259 Years Ago

Guelph, July 9 —(CP)— Western Ontario Orangemen 10,000 strong poured into Guelph today for a mammoth celebration marking the 259th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne. It was the largest Glorious Twelfth observance Guelph has witnessed for 14 years.

More than 200 lodges from 12 counties were represented in the contingents which arrived during the morning by train, bus and motor car and the city was gay with bunting, banners and flags for the occasion.

Host lodge for the celebration was Prince Arthur L.O.L. 1331. Other Guelph Orange organizations assisting were Juvenile Lodge No. 295 and Lavinia and Belvedere women's lodges.

Downtown streets resounded to the music of fife and drum bands as gaily attired groups of Orangemen and sister lodges went through their paces in preparation for a monster parade.

Perhaps the most colorful of the paraders was the band from the Oschwegan Indian Reserve at Brantford, its members dressed in tribal costume.

Other colorful groups included the Garibaldi Italian Orange Lodge of Toronto; the Royal Scarlet Drill Corps, Hamilton, and the ladies Orange drill corps, Hamilton.

The procession which formed up at Royal City Park was one of the largest ever witnessed in Guelph and took more than an hour to pass. The parade was followed by a huge assemblage at Exhibition Park where the delegates were officially welcomed by Mayor Gordon Rife.

Toronto Man Bitten by Dog Near Bus Terminal

Rev. A. J. Wilson, 299 Queen Street, Toronto, does not approve of the popular saying that a dog is entitled to his first bite—he happened to be on the receiving end of the bite.

The incident happened in the vicinity of the Legion bus terminal on Dundas Street, West. Mr. Wilson said he was waiting for a bus when he was bitten on the right leg by a dog which he later learned was owned by a resident on South John Street.

Mr. Wilson had his leg attended to by Dr. Van Blakslee, it being reported the marks of the dog's teeth were plainly evident in the leg. The matter was investigated by city dog catcher Thomas Thorne.

New Way to Make Metal Titanium

Haleys, Ont., July 9 (CP) — Scientists said today they have discovered a way to make the spectacular new metal titanium at less cost than anywhere else.

Titanium, found only in Canada, is a base metal half as heavy as steel but strong as the strongest alloy steel, is stainless, noncorrosive in sea water, resistant to temperature and is beginning to be used in jet engines.

The new process for extracting the metal from the ore was discovered at the Dominion Magnesium Company's plant in Haleys, near Renfrew. It was found by men working under Dr. Lloyd Pidgeon, professor of metallurgy at the University of Toronto and chief metallurgical consultant at the plant.

The world's supply of titanium is located at Allard Lake, Que., 22 miles inland from the St. Lawrence.

ORDER NEW TRIAL FOR ALGER HISS, JURY DISAGREES

Splits Eight to Four In Favor of Conviction

New York, July 9—(AP)—The perjury trial of Alger Hiss ended in a deadlocked jury Friday night, and the government ordered a new trial.

The jury, split eight to four of a conviction, was dismissed after nearly 29 hours of effort to reach an agreement.

Shortly thereafter, Attorney-General Tom Clark announced in Washington:

"The Department of Justice will vigorously prosecute the Hiss case again as quickly as the docket of the court will permit."

At the earliest, that would not be before next autumn.

Failure of the jury to reach a verdict left still in doubt the role—if any—that Hiss had played in an alleged prewar betrayal of the United States.

Jurors said that almost from the outset, they had been deadlocked eight to four for conviction of the brilliant 44-year-old Harvard graduate whom the State Department sent to Dumbarton Oaks, Yalta, and the San Francisco Conference where the United Nations was founded.

No Change In Status

The deadlock left the lanky, handsome Hiss exactly where he was last December when a New York grand pury indicted him on two counts of perjury.

His face haggard, Hiss managed a weak smile as the pury was discharged.

It was a harsh blow for him if he had expected acquittal.

It left him under the cloud that arose last summer when Whittaker Chambers told the House of Representatives Un American Activities Committee that Hiss gave him State Department secrets for a Soviet spy gang.

Hiss, who left the State Department in 1947 for a $20,000-a-year private post, denied giving Chambers secrets and said he had not seen his pudgy accuser since Jan. 1, 1937.

These denials led to the two perjury counts, handed up late last year by the New York jury investigating espionage.

Two British M.P.'s Urge Gold Price Be Raised

London, July 9 — (Reuters)— Two Labor members of parliament today urged that the price of gold be raised in terms of dollars to reduce the gap in the sterling area's balance of payments.

A motion put down in the House of Commons by the two members, Norman Smith and Richard Stokes, said:

"Recognizing that the buyer's market now developing in the world is the deflationary outcome of the anchorage of the dollar to gold . . . the government should approach the international monetary fund with a proposal to raise the price of gold in terms of dollars, thus reducing the gap in the sterling area's balance of payments and removing the principle obstacle to the functioning of sterling as an international currency."

CHURCH MARKS 158th ANNIVERSARY

Niagara-on-the-Lake, July 9—(CSP)—St. Mark's Church here, marks its 158th anniversary today. The church itself was not built until 1810 and was burned down by United States troops in the war of 1812. It was restored between 1814 and 1820 and has been in continuous use ever since.

Acrobat Dies After Heavy Fall

Agawam, Mass., July 9 — (AP) —A man booked under the name of Eddy Polo was killed Friday night in a fall from a tight rope during his act at Riverside Amusement Park.

Operators of the park at first identified him as the former star of the silent movies and carnival stunt man.

But the real Eddy Polo was located at his home in Los Angeles, Calif.

Polo said he never saw the man using his name.

He said he had checked with a threatrical agency, however, and learned the man was an actor "trying to struggle along, so I just let him use my name." Polo didn't know the man's real name.

Edward Carroll, operator of Riverside, said the man was booked under the name of Polo and signed a contract under that name. He described the man as about 60 years old.

Neither police nor the medical examiner had papers which would definitely identify the man.

The man was killed when apparatus on the tight rope wire broke. He plunged 35 feet. He died shortly after he was taken to the hospital.

The wire snapped as the man was sliding by his hair—down a 45-degree angle from a 135-foot tower.

Nearly 2,000,000 Officers, Men Have Not Claimed Medals, Ribbons

By Norman Cribbens
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 9—(CP)— Britain's war office is trying to devise a way of pinning medals on heroes' chests.

In other words, they want to get rid of nearly 4,000,000 medals earned by soldiers who apparently cannot be bothered to claim them.

Many officials say the medals are unclaimed because former soldiers do not want to renew unpleasant memories of the war by applying for them.

The unclaimed medals are the surplus of 9,000,000 campaign stars, war service and defence medals ordered by the British Army in the first exciting days of the peace — at a cost of about £300,000 ($1,200,000).

A campaign star costs the government eightpiece; a medal tenpence. Today they lie in warehouses and underground stores, neatly packed in boxes which once housed 25-pounder shells.

And the war office is holding conference to decide what is to be done about them.

Former Lt.-Col. R. G. Smith, 56, of Welling, Kent, has nearly 1,000,000 of these medals on his hands. That is the price of being controller of the medals department of the Royal Artillery Records office.

"Once we had 55 men working in this department and we were behind with applications," Smith said pointing to rows of ammunition boxes each containing 2,500 medals.

"Now we handle only a trickle of orders and most of the staff have been given other jobs in the depot."

Besides medals, Smith has about 66 miles of ribbon to go with them —and he doesn't know what to do with that either.

Both war office and the Royal Artillery are at a loss to explain why nearly 2,000,000 officers and men have not taken the trouble to collect their medals and ribbons.

46 Ton Tank Damages Bridge Which It is Feared May Fall into River

Meaford, July 9 — (CP) — As a result of damage it suffered when struck by a 46-ton tank on Friday evening the large concrete bridge situated on highway 26 in the heart of Meaford has been closed to all heavy traffic. A police guard with blockade is on duty slowing all traffic as it is feared the huge bridge may topple into the Big Head River 30 feet below.

On weekly manoeuvres the tank suddenly left the highway as it rumbled through town. Under the command of Lt. George Abercrombie and driven by Bombadier Bert Gardiner the tank narrowly averted crushing completely through the cement pillars to the river bed below.

A locked track is blamed for the accident which caused the tank to suddenly crash through the curbing on the left hand side of the bridge and smash off a large pillar. The track appeared to catch and the tank careened wildly to the other side of the road and smashed into the pillars at that side, ripping up another large section of curbing. The pillars held although they are badly cracked.

Town officials immediately got in touch with headquarters at Camp Borden. All heavy traffic will have to detour many miles through the country as the other bridge across the river will not take care of a heavy load.

"It was fortunate that no one was on the bridge or they would have been killed," said Councillor Robert Irving, chairman of the police committee. The only protection between pedestrians and the traffic is a low curbing on each side. No estimate of damage is available.

Appeals Court Confirms Sentence Of Mindszenty

Three of Cardinal's Friends Receive Reduced Terms

Budapest, Hungary, July 9—(AP)—Hungary's appeals court today confirmed the life imprisonment of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty. The court approved 8 to 2 the verdict of the people's court and refused to commute the penalty.

Three of the Cardinal's co-defendants received reduced sentences. The sentences of three others were confirmed.

The Cardinal was convicted Feb. 8 of treason, espionage and black market currency dealings. The five-man People's Court sentenced him to life imprisonment.

Canada, the United States and other countries charged before the United Naitons that human rights were violated. The U.N. General Assembly approved in April an American-backed plan to take up the conduct of the trial under terms of the Hungarian Peace Treaty.

The case will come up again next fall.

During and after the trial it was often stated, but never authentically substantiated, that the Prelate of Hungary had been drugged in order to make him a pawn in the hands of his prosecutors.

Lord Montgomery's Mother Dies Aged 86

Belfast, July 9 (AP) — Mrs. Maude Montgomery, mother of Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, died today after a long illness. She was 86.

She was the daughter of a Dean of Canterbury and the widow of Rt. Rev. Sir Henry Montgomery, Bishop of Tasmania.

Married at 16, she became the mother of nine children.

Several months ago she suffered a stroke and had been bedridden ever since at her home, New Park, in the little market town of Moville in County Donegal.

Mrs. Montgomery often was called "Lady Montgomery" both in print and by her friends. Her late husband's ecclesiastical knighthood, however, did not actually confer this title.

EVANGELISM BY TV

Toronto. July 9 — (CP)—Evangelism by television was suggested Friday by a pastor from Aberdeen, Scotland. Rev. George M. TO CURTAIL PRODUCTION

Toronto, July 9 (CP). — The British American Oil Company plans to curtail operations at its $15,000,000 oil refinery at Clarkson, just west of here.

Harry Reid, National Employment Service branch manager in suburban New Toronto, said Friday night that the firm expects to lay off 270 men next Wednesday for an indefinite period. He said it gave as its reasons the development of surpluses, with production outstripping sales.

U.S. OFFICER SHOOTS, KILLS SOVIET SOLDIER

American Patrol "Fired On" While Checking Markings

Frankfurt, Germany, July 9 (AP)—The United States army today reported that an American officer shot and killed a Russian soldier in a border clash near Cobourg yesterday.

The announcement said an American patrol was "fired on" while checking markings along the American-Soviet zone border.

"The patrol was forced to hit the dirt and then withdrew, returning shortly after with two officers," the report said. "They were fired on again and returned fire. One officer's bullet instantly killed a Russian soldier."

The army declined to identify the officer. It said the Russian was "at least 200 yards inside the American zone" when he was shot.

His body was left where it fell pending official contact with Russian authorities.

The army announcement said the dead man was a private "of approximately 18 or 19 years."

Lt.-Col. E. S. Thomas, commander of the 15th constabulary squadron, and Capt. E. A. Hamilton, chief of the American-Russian section of the constabulary, arrived at the scene shortly after the shooting.

The announcement said the two officers "saw numerous Russian soldiers behind trees and under other cover and decided to let the body remain until some contact was made to them by the Russian command."

The shooting occurred at Rothenbach, north of Cobourg.

Host lodge for the local celebration will be Benjamin Lodge No. 274 which has lined up a varied and interesting program for the day.

Locale for the Belleville celebration will be at the local fair grounds where dinner will be served on the grounds. Sharp at one o'clock the parade of visiting lodges will leave the fair grounds and march along Bridge Street to Front and will circuit the business section of the city before returning to the fair grounds.

During the afternoon program there will be fun and entertainment for everyone with games for the kiddies being scheduled. There will be speakers, a baseball game and bands, while in the evening there will be dancing at the L.O.L. hall with music by the Rhythm Ranch Riders' eight piece orchestra.

There will also be an Orange celebration at Stirling fair grounds where Wellman's will be the host lodge. Here again an interesting afternoon's program has been lined up.

Public is Warned Of Danger Of Grass Fires

With the hot sun rapidly drying up the grass in the city, grass fires are becoming more frequent every day and fire department officials today asked that residents be extremely careful with bonfires. It was pointed out with the grass so dry fire runs very rapidly and may do considerable damage before brought under control. Yesterday firemen were called on two occasions to the rear of the Swift Canadian plant on Station street to extinguish grass fires. The first call was during the afternoon while last evening a second call was received to the same place.

Bawden's Hitting Helps Engineers To Down C.N.R.

A five run outburst in the fifth inning, sparked by pitcher Bawden's three - run homer, gave Provincial Engineering a 7-3 win over C.N.R. Nationals Friday evening to boost the Engineers into the .500 group in the league standings and all but obliterate the C.N.R.'s playoff chances. In the nightcap the pacesetting Northern Electric crew swamped the tail-end Anti-Tank 22-3.

The opener was a very fast 50 minute contest that was dominated by the pitching and hitting of John Bawden. Bawden's slow ball was working to near perfection as he struck out eight over the seven inning course, while walking none. He scattered seven hits over the distance.

Lead-off man Ronsky opened the scoring in the first stanza with a double. He moved to third on Carr's bunt and came home when S. Bellis fouled out to third.

Engineers took a one - run lead in their half of the first on a single, walk and a double. Nationals evened the count in the second on a double by Hurrie and the Engineers' lone error. Ronsky's homer with no one on and two away in the fifth put the trainmen one run up.

Engineers came back for five runs in the bottom of the fifth on a walk to Hanna, a single by Knott, and Bawden's four master to left field. A single, a walk, and a double earned two more tallies for Engineers to wind up the scoring.

Demp Young went all the way in a losing cause for Nationals, walking three, striking out three, and giving up six hits for seven runs and the ball game.

Line-ups:

CNR Nationals: Ronsky 3b; Carr ss; S. Bellis c; A. Bellis lf; Hurrie 1b; Bolster rf; S. Galpin cf; Nichol 2b; Young p. Brisban batted for Young in 7th.

Score In Every Frame

In the nightcap Northern Electric scored in every inning to crush a hapless Anti-Tank squad 22-3.

Anti-Tank scored one run in the first on two singles, Gardiner added a second in the third frame with a solid home run smash to right field while the last run came in the fifth on a single and two doubles. In the fifth with one away, Wright singled and was sent to third on a double by McClusky. Brown clouted a double to score Wright, but McClusky running the bases without the aid of coaches hesitated rounding third and was trapped. Meanwhile Brown came charging into third thinking that McClusky had already scored. In the ensuing pile-up both McClusky and Brown were tagged.

Northern Electric batted around in the first and sixth frames and were never in trouble. The Electric batters fattened their already swollen averages with a 17-hit barrage. Herbie Henn had three doubles and a homer in five trips, and Halsey had two homers, a triple, and a double in four tries.

Harris went four innings for the victory, walking one, striking out eight, and giving up four hits for two runs. Carson breezed the rest of the way walking one, striking out five and being tagged for four hits and a run. Glen Kimmett struggled for five and two thirds innings for Anti-Tank walking nine, whiffing four, and giving up all the hits and runs. Wright retired the last batter in the sixth.

Line-ups:

Anti-Tank—Wright ss, p, McClusky 1b, Brown lf, Gardiner 3b, K. Kimmett rf, Nickle 2b, Flindall cf, c, G. Kimmett p, ss, Grey c, cf.

Literary Awards Are Presented

Halifax, July 9. (CP) — The Governor-General's award for the best literature produced in Canada in 1948 were presented at the annual banquet of the Canadian Authors' Association here, Friday night.

Col. C. P. Stacy of Ottawa, chief army historian, received the academic non-fiction award for "The Canadian Army 1939-1945."

Col. Stacy said he accepted the award as a tribute to the book to which many had contributed and not as an award to himself, he mentioned Capt. Joseph Engler, of Ottawa, as one of the team of historians that helped to produce the book. Capt. Engler was killed in action.

The creative non-fiction award went to Thomas H. Radall of Liverpool, N.S., for his book "Halifax—Warden of the North". Mr. Radall said he accepted the award with "great humility".

Posterity would be the final judge of the merit of his writing.

A. M. Klein of Montreal, won the poetry award with his "The Rocking Chair and other Poems". He was not present to receive the award.

Hugh MacLennan, of Montreal, was awarded the prize for the best fiction: "The Precipice". He said there is an inherent sense of responsibility in Canadian authors which critics throughout the world recognize. Canadian authors had respect for fact when writing fiction.

Roderick Haigh-Brown of Vancouver won the award for the best juvenile book: "Salt Water Summer". He was not present.

All prizes were presented by Premier Macdonald of Nova Scotia.

Engine Trouble Turns Back Stratocruiser

New York, July 8 — (CP)— A second Pan American Airways strato-cruiser developed engine trouble today and turned back to New York 30 minutes after departure.

The giant plane was carrying spare parts for the stratocruiser which caught fire and limped back to Shannon, Ireland, Thursday carrying 53 passengers, including comedian Danny Kaye and tennis stars Louise Brough and Mrs. Margaret Osborne Du Pont.

The airliner which left New York today had 57 passengers aboard.

"One engine acted a little rough," said the pilot, Capt. C. R. Titus. "I decided to turn back as a routine safety measure."

The plane dumped 1,200 gallons of gasoline into the Atlantic before swinging back to the airport, where it landed without incident.

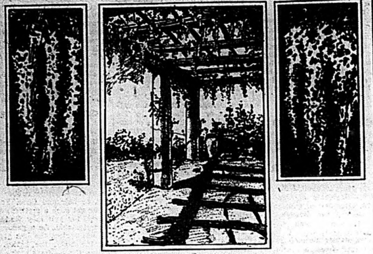
Wisterias

THE QUEEN OF VINES

"I SEE THEM ON MY TRELLISES AND WALLS
AND STRAIGHTWAY DREAM OF DISTANT WATERFALLS;
BUT WHEN TO DISTANT WATERFALLS I ROAM
I DREAM OF MY WISTERIAS AT HOME."
- CHARLES DALMON



A RUSTIC ARBOR USING OLD BARN TIMBERS

NOTES

WISTERIAS ARE ONE OF THE SHOWIEST HARDY FLOWERING VINES. THE BEST KNOWN ARE THE BLUE AND WHITE FORMS OF THE CHINESE WISTERIA WHICH CLIMBS VIGOROUSLY BY MEANS OF TWINING STEMS.

TREE WISTERIAS ARE ALSO A THING OF SHEER BEAUTY. ON THE LAWN THEY DEVELOP INTO BEAUTIFUL SPECIMENS WHICH LAST FOR GENERATIONS INCREASING IN BEAUTY EACH YEAR. WISTERIAS IN ALL THEIR PENDANT FORMS ARE AMONG THE GARDEN'S GLORY. RACEMES OF BLOOM SOMETIMES EXCEED FOUR FEET IN LENGTH.

COLORS ARE: PURPLE, VIOLET, PINK, LAVENDER, BLUE AND WHITE.

CULTURE

CONSULT YOUR NURSERYMAN AS TO BEST AVAILABLE VARIETIES. GRAFTED STOCK GROWN IN A SPECIAL MANNER TO INDUCE EARLY BLOOM SHOULD BE USED. FOR LARGEST FLOWERS FERTILIZE WISTERIAS IN THE FALL AFTER LEAVES HAVE FALLEN NEVER DURING SPRING OR SUMMER AS THIS INDUCES TOO MUCH GROWTH AND NO FLOWERS. IT IS ESSENTIAL THAT THEY BE PLANTED IN FULL SUN. THEY NEED LITTLE CARE EXCEPT PRUNING TO KEEP THEM WITHIN BOUNDS. THE BEST TIME TO PRUNE IS IN MIDSUMMER. ROOT PRUNING WITH A SHARP SPADE IS ADVISED TO INDUCE MORE NUMEROUS FLOWERS.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

The first of our northern birds to take up housekeeping duties each year is the Great Horned Owl, and it begins in actual winter weather, usually in February. Before all the snow has left the fields, often in March, the Horned Lark gets busy, and the Killdeer Plover shortly afterwards. But the majority of birds wait until May or June, when nature is farther advanced. Those which are nesting in July or August of course must have some good reason: this may be the second brood; the site for a foundation is only now available; the desired building material could not be obtained earlier in the season, or the preferred food supply was not ready before.

Our friendly litte House Wren is seldom satisfied with one batch. No sooner are the juveniles able to shift for themselves than he is looking about for another home — and possibly another wife. Sometimes the next brood is begun so late that the little ones are barely prepared to travel when they are obliged to seek a warmer climate because frost has killed off their staple food of flying insects.

It is quite impossible for the White - rumped Sandpiper of our farthest north small lakes to bring up a family until the high water of spring has subsided, leaving a little beach, for the eggs are placed just back of this, on the ground in grass.

The well known Goldfinch is more frequently found sitting on a thistle than anywhere else. No wonder one of its names is Thistlebird. It loves to pluck the down from the ripe head, and if not wanted, let it float away. But this white, fluffy plant down makes grand mattresses for eggs and baby birds; so desirable that the Goldfinch thinks it worth while to wait until this is ready before commencing a home — which means delay in nesting.

The small fresh fruits of its choice lacking in spring and early summer, the sleek Cedar Waxwing is prevented from starting housekeeping at the popular time. On account of a special liking for all types of cherries, in some districts it is commonly spoken of as the Cherry Bird. (But as long as choke cherries and other wild varieties are available, the farmer's precious, cultivated trees are in no danger of molestation.) Building is postponed until the parents consider that this luscious fruit will be ripe just when there are children to be fed. Perhaps it pays to have preferences.

New Attempt May Be Made to Settle Taxation Agreement

Ottawa, July 9. (CP)—Possibility of a new attempt by Ontario and the Federal Government to reach a taxation agreement was raised Friday following the visit by Premier Frost to Prime Minister St. Laurent.

While informed sources said there is no chance of a renewal of the Dominion-Provincial Conference this year, it is known the Cabinet plans to give priority to discussions on general relations with the provinces.

Premier Frost visited the Prime Minister Friday. Mr. St. Laurent left Friday for a three-week holiday in New Brunswick without disclosing what happened at the meeting.

On the Prime Minister's return to the capital the Cabinet is expected to get down to serious business preparatory to a probable fall session of the new parliament.

One matter that will likely be on the agenda is the trans-Canada highway.

On housing, the St. Laurent government has committed itself to active financial co-operation with both the provincial and municipal governments on low-rental housing projects to be worked out by the junior governments with administration and supervision to remain in their hands.

Housing may have been one of the matters discussed by Premier Frost and the Prime Minister.

The question of Canada taking oovr control of her own constitution and the right to change it is one probably due for Cabinet consideration.

Mr. St. Laurent said during his campaign that the government planned eventually to call a conference with the provinces to discuss ways and means of tackling this involved problem.

SUCCESS IN FIGHT AGAINST TB

At the great Commonwealth and Empire Health and Tuberculosis Conference being held in London it was pointed out that Canada has reduced the tuberculosis death rate by 50 per cent from 86.5 deaths a hundred thousand to 43.4 annually in the space of 21 years. Ontario's fight against the dread plague was described by Dr. Cecil Gordon Shaver who pointed out that there had been a growing tendency in the province to extend the use of surgery in treating pulmonary tuberculosis and that this work has been augmented by the use of streptomycin. Dr. George Wherrett said that the lowest death rate in Canada from this disease was in Ontario and in these figures both the white and Indian populations were counted.

What the medical schools and doctors and research have been achieving in the fight on this disease which used to lay low so many more than fall victims to its sweep today, was laid before the great convention.

What conditions were in earlier days older members of society know when the word "consumption" was a word of dread.

No effort spent in cutting down the incidence of illness and death from tuberculosis is wasted and more and more the disease and its control are coming to general knowledge.

POSSIBILITIES AND THEIR LIMITS

Much thought is being given these days to the new conception of the possibilities of the growth of the human race and what may be the results of such development.

Already there have been warnings given that the world is using up its sources of foodstuffs, fuels and minerals at a rate which must give pause for wonder. So rich has been the newer part of the world that the impression was abroad that expansion of the human race could go on indefinitely. This view, however, has met opposition and it has been claimed that at the rate of increase of population and the opening up of new areas for growing of crops for human beings the possibilities are not unlimited.

The upset of Europe and Asia during the Second World War had the effect of showing how sharp a falling-off there was after war began and what steps had to be taken to increase production. Stout measures were provided but since the war conditions and thinking have given voice to the opinion that the world is not capable of unlimited expansion. There are many thousands more people on the earth today than at the time the Hitler war broke out, though that conflict caused the loss of millions of lives. Even before the end of that struggle there were opinions expressed that there was a real limit of what the earth can produce for mankind and the creatures that inhabit the earth.

Figures are now quoted showing that there are many thousand new consumers every day at the breakfast tables of the world. Not long ago a statement was made that there was not sufficient land to feed untold millions of additional inhabitants. It is said that a human being requires the production of two and a half acres of food a person.

These are views supporting those who not so many years ago were talking of the possibilities of additional food supply as being rather sharply limited by the amount of acreage required to feed an individual.

Ottawa Journal refers to the need of enrichment of the soil, which in many areas has been sadly depleted with little or no chemicals or fertilizers used. It is a fact that the elements out of which food is created by nature are being used up and cannot be naturally replaced.

Before man spread across the earth there was a latent richness in the soil which was made possible through countless centuries of the processes of nature at work.

The Journal on the other hand says "As matters stand now, increased production in the great food producing areas of North America would result in a glut of many commodities — too much for the domestic market and available export markets, and we would again see such unhappy sights as piles of raw food being dumped or plowed back into the ground.

The Vikings made history fifteen centuries ago when they staged invasions along the North Sea. Even after so great a lapse of time their spirit remains in the northern peoples who cherish dearly the freedom that they handed on. Of course in the world there are people of Viking descent and they take pride in their Viking ancestry.

MAIDEN AUNT

My mother's sister says that she Stayed single just to care for me,
But mother laughs and says that she's
A lady very hard to please;
That several men whom she could name
When she was younger wooing came,
But all stopped calling by and by
And no one knows the reason why.

"You're very lucky!" says my dad,
"An old maid aunt I never had.
Though married aunts will kindness show,
How children can be spoiled they know,
And they will never think to buy
What parents wisely must deny,
But all boys love an ignorant,
'Devoted, foolish, spinster aunt."

A lovely, gentle, spinster aunt
Buys things your mother won't or can't.
She doesn't know that too much cake
May make a fellow's stomach ache
And that too many costly toys
Should not be given to little boys;
That's why I'm always glad to see
The old maid aunt who's spoiling me.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 9th., 1929.

Strawberries were plentiful on the local market today and sold at 18 cents per box.

Tourists are well pleased with the accommodation provided at the local tourist camp. Last night cars were on the lot from Ohio, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania and each carried its quota of passengers.

Mrs. George Conners, John St., entertained the members of No. 10 group of the Missionary Society of the Tabernacle Church in the church parlors this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Y. Ormond and daughter Maxine of Minneapolis, Minn., are visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. W. H. Patterson, in this city.

Mrs. George H. Thompson of Los Angeles, California, is home on a visit to his mother, Mrs. H. A. Thompson, Everett Street.

30 YEARS AGO

July 9th., 1919

The local G.T.R. baseball team went to Port Hope with the determination to beat Solomon's Peterboro team and they did so, the final score being 6 to 3. It was one of the most sensational and thrilling games witnessed for some time. Both teams fielded exceptionally well; Morden of the local team got one of the finest catches of the day. The same boy also started the doings for Belleville in the fourth inning when he connected with a lovely two-bagger. Then the other boys came across with the necessary taps and netted five runs in the inning. Weir at shortstop played a nice game. Gerow was injured early in the game, but played a steady game throughout. Centre fielder Ross accepted five or six chances without a miss; he also punished the horsehide for a nice two bagger. Goyer and Mills are right there and steady the whole team by their fine work.

Pringle and Whalen did the coaching and handled that end of the game just right. The following composed the G. T. R. team: Ross, c.f.; Weir, s.s.; Gerow, 1st.; Mills, c.; Morden, l.f.; Goyer, p.; Kelleher, r.f.; Meagher, 3rd.; Smith, 2nd.; Pringle, Cook and Whalen, spares. Umpires, Kay of Peterboro at the plate; Rosevear of Port Hope, on bases.

Mr. Jack Middleton will leave tomorrow on a trip to Chicago and other western points.

Miss Agnes Sankey of London, England, is a guest at Sidney Cottage, the home of Lieut. Col. W.N. Ponton, Trent Road.

Capt. John Henderson of Chicago, Ill., at one time propietor of the old Dafoe House, which stood upon the site now occupied by Hotel Quinte, is in the city and is the guest of Mr. J. V. Jenkins. It is twenty one years since Capt. Henderson resided here.

Mr. W.C. Springer has returned home after a business trip to the Pacific coast.

Mr. Joseph N. Doyle has returned to New York City after visiting his parents here.

50 YEARS AGO

The bass are beginning to bite in the bay near Massassaga Park.

Mr. W. P. S. Johnson, eldest son of Mayor J. W. Johnson of this city, has arrived here to spend a vacation of two weeks. The company with which Mr. Johnson has been accountant for the past two years, the Gem Flexible Insole Company, has been absorbed by the great leather trust recently formed in the United States and his services have been retained by the new concern. He has been appointed manager of the branch of which he was formerly the accountant.

Mr. Harry S. Price, an old Belleville boy, now of Boissevain, Manitoba, is home on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Price.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DEALING WITH HARD SITUATIONS

A few weeks ago the papers were full of the accounts of a very wealthy man, manufacturer of cough drops, who had died at quite an advanced age.

He began as a street peddler of homemade candy. His business grew, but one Christmas season the bottom fell out of his market and his candy remained unsold. He faced financial ruin. What would he do? He decided to melt down the candy, add menthol, and repour the candy into cough drops. His fortune was made.

Ponder what happened. When he found he had a failure on his hands, he melted down his failure, added new ingredients, and turned out a new product. What a formula for anyone confronting the reality of failure! Melt it down, add a new ingredient, and get a new product. Melt down sorrow, add faith, and get hope. Do you have disappointment? Make it over into something new by adding the revitalizing ingredient of gallant spirit, and the whole of life will become new in the process.

Don't let failure get you down. When you find that you have it on your hands, don't just do something about it—do something with it. Make it over into something else. Religious faith is the best ingredient for affecting such a transformation, but there are others also—courage, new interests, hard work, a thoughtful regard for the rights of others.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

An aquaintance of mine having located the perfect spot for a summer cabin, and having bought it, ordered two prefabricated cabins to be delivered to the location. And last 24th of May, he and a chosen crew of his healthiest friends went up to erect the tiny habitations. His ire knew no bounds when he arrived and found the material not delivered, but held up some where along the freight route.

His indignant outcries on his return to civilization resulted in fast action. The materials for the two cabins were smartly delivered on May 26.

And there they lay until this week, when my friend's holidays permitted him to return to the task.

For six weeks, the porcupines have had the feast of their lives: lovely planed cedar, delicious birch and other light woods, delicately salted by the touch of human hands, en route. Old porkies fed fat. Young porkies sharpened their teeth on satin smooth fodder the like of which they had never tasted. Joists, beams siding, flooring—everything was sampled.

Out of the ruins, my friend got the makings of only one cabin. And that one scarred in many places.

It is hard to believe the ruin the porcupines can wreak. A wind storm, last fall, blew a dead branch of a tree which smashed a window in a neighbor's cottage. A whole community of porkies moved in for the winter. They chewed kitchen table legs to mere spindles, gnawed axe and other tool handles to shreds, nibbled shelves, gnashed benches and chairs. The place was a shambles when the family arrived last week.

Man is probably the only really efficient enemy of the porky. Give man an economic basis for his enmity, and heaven help the porky.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

GOD'S ALPHABET

Every lover of nature is a candidate for an honorary degree in God's University. And to each one of these God's alphabet has long been known. Every leaf, every flower, every stone, every stream, every cloud and every star has a letter invisibly stamped upon it.

And each one of these letters spells out words that give to the lover of Nature his great and expressive vocabulary. And the better acquainted each lover of Nature becomes with each one of these examples in Nature, the nearer is the mind of that one cemented to that of the great Creator of all.

The precious metals and stones reflect this alphabet, as they show forth beauty and wonder. You may see the perfect star in the sapphire, and in the Australian opal a combinaion of colors that reminds you of the sunrise and the sunset. And all through the Seasons are silent poems perfectly composed.

If we all carried about within our heart a sense of wonder from day to day, we would forget our petty disturbances, and think only upon God's mercy, his great benifits and His everlasing love. We would then teach others the alphabet of God's, so that they, too, might both interpret and live the silent language of Nature.

It has been written of the late Dr. George Washington Carver that he "talked with flowers." He loved them and wore one usually in the buttonhole of his coat. Few ever used God's alphabet so devoutly and so literally. His every thought and prayer was a composition of each letter, into language that remains as a literary heritage.

No one can remain alone and lonely in the great world of Nature who has learned God's alphabet and its composition into words that express one's understanding. John Muir spent months upon month in the wilderness and among the mountains and glaciers and was not lonely, though alone. He conversed with every bird, and with every wonder about him. He read poems that composed before his eyes. God's textbook was ever before him.

Freak Tornado Strikes Village In Nova Scotia

Upper Musquodoboit, N.S., July 8—(CP)—Residents of this village 30 miles east of Halifax today surveyed the damage of a freak tornado which struck Thursday.

The miniature tornado ripped a steel roof from a machinery building and hurled some of the heavy sections 60 feet in the air. Lumber was tossed through the air like matchsticks. A similar twister was reported several days ago at nearby Upper Stewiacke.

CABLE UNDER CHANNEL TO HELP MANITOULIN

Gore Bay, July 8 — (CP) — A submarine cable under the North Channel will bring several thousand more kilowatts of power to consumers on Manitoulin Island, an official of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, told a meeting here Wednesday night. Equipment at Kagawong, Manitoulin now is inadequate and additional power should start to flow from the mainland by the end of September, he said.

POLIO OUTBREAK IN TEXAS SERIOUS

Austin, Tex., July 8 (AP)—The polio epidemic in Texas, already the worst in history is becoming more serious. The state health office announced that 118 new cases for the week ending July 2, the highest number ever recorded for a seven - day period. It boosted the total number of reported cases for the year to 801.

DROUGHT ACROSS THE CONTINENT

Drought which has ruined millions of dollars worth of Canadian crops, has affected areas in the U. S. from New England to the Pacific. Top, the drought-incubated grasshoppers in Nevada sweep over farmlands eating everything. They have ruined 3,000 square miles of crops in Nevada, are sweeping into California. A New Jersey farmer, above, 2,000 miles away, shows how high his onions should be. The soil is parched and sandy with no relief in sight. Prices for vegetables have already risen 15 per cent in eastern states.—Central Press Canadian.

SUNSHINE IS MORE DANGEROUS THAN VITAMIN D

Vitamin D has been called the "sunshine vitamin" because direct sunshine or diffuse daylight (sky shine) activates fat-like material under the skin or fatty material secreted by the sebaceous glands upon the skin (skin oil), converting into vitamin D—provided the skin is sufficiently exposed to sunshine or daylight.

Vitamin D prevents rickets in children or animals.

Unit for unit, vitamin D is vitamin D, whether it is manufactured in or on the skin by the ultraviolet (invisibile) rays of sunlight, by the ultraviolet (invisible) rays of a sunlamp or mercury-vapor lamp; or whether it is ingested in foods that naturally contain vitamin D—whole milk, cream, butter, egg yoke, salmon fresh or canned, sardines, herring; or whether it is taken medicinally as fish liver oil; or whether it is produced synthetically by irradiation of food such as milk with ultraviolet.

Nutrition authorities estimate that every infant requires not less than 400 units of vitamin D daily in one form or another to prevent manifestations of rickets. That is to say, an infant or growing child who does not get at least 400 units of D daily (approximately as much as a teaspoon of cod liver oil contains) is likely to have rickets. In another talk the familiar but often unrecognized manifestations of rickets will be described.

In the past ten years publicity hungry doctors, "research scientists," magazine editors and other obscure or irresponsible persons who automatically become authorities when they make the front page, have been bandying about two stories of warnings" which, in my opinion, are without any foundation. First is the stereotyped notion that "overdose" of vitamin D may cause formation of calcium deposits in the body tissues or organs. Second that too much sunshine may cause skin cancer. I hate to mention these absurb fancies here, lest by some typographical error or other mischance readers draw a wrong inference. But I must mention them in order to brand them as baseless fears.

This idea that exposure to sunshine may cause anything worse than sunburn, sunstroke or heat exhaustion belongs, I should say, in the same category as the preachment of numerous charlatans that food cooked in aluminum vessels is not fit to eat. Most of the food at our house has been cooked in aluminum ware ever since Topsy was a colt, and we have kept tolerably well, save an occasional whack at appendicitis, arsenic poisoning, sacro-iliac sprain or Colles's fracture.

There is no point in denying that an enormous quantity of vitamin D taken in one dose or in a series of doses over a period of days or weeks may cause grave consequences. But I question whether any ill effect whatsoever has been reasonably or credibly ascribed to too much vitamin D, in infant, growing child or adult. The phobia inspired by these half-baker scare stories about too much vitamin D causing calcification of heart, kidneys, etc., is akin to hydrophobia-phobia, as it appears to me. You know, I am so skeptical of the occurance of rabies in man that I'd never take Pasteur treatment myself if I were bitten by an animal presumed to be rabid. This is my opinion merely. If you are bitten I advise you to do as your doctor deems best about it.

The purpose of this talk is to reassure many readers who are now taking vitamin D and calcium or who have taken it with good results that they should keep right on taking it without interruption a year or more, or perhaps with occasional rests of a week or two if the indications permit.

Of the two allegedly "dangerous" factors, probably sunshine is more dangerous than vitamin D in opium ration (three or four times the minimum daily requirement), for even ordinary sunburn is sometimes a dangerous matter.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

What! No Springs?

I have a sacro-iliac strain and am about to buy a new mattress. The old one is a spring variety. I note you recommended a mattress without springs. What kind, please. (Mrs. J. F.)

Answer—Sponge rubber mattress, or hair and fibre. You had better get such a mattress on approval, for you may find it too uncomfortable. As a general rule the less spring, the less give under the body, the better. Even though the mattress seems pretty rigorous the first night or two, to one accustomed to sinking into a soft, hammocky mattress.

Convert

I formerly had no faith in a doctor who publishes his views in the newspapers, but after many years of misery I sent for your pamphlet Blood and Health, and now I am sorry I was so hard to convince, for I am happy with the fine results. (H. P.)

Answer— So am I. For a copy of the booklet Blood and Health send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope. It deals with anemia.

Bladder Trouble in Elderly Men

I owe you my thanks for the practical help I have received from your pamphlet on bladder trouble. May I offer a little critism. Call is operation through the urinary channel—the terms "Transurethral resection" are Greek to the masses who sent for your literature. (P. R.)

Answer— Thank you. On written request, accompanied with stamped self addressed envelope, any reader may have a copy of the pamphlet on Bladder Trouble. It deals with obstruction by enlarged prostate. I have nohing on bladder trouble in women.

Canadians Revelling in Inherent Right to Murder Name of P.M.

(By DOUGLAS HOW)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 9. (CP)—Canadians, Democrats to the core, still are revelling in their inherent right to murder the name of their Prime Minister. And no record Commons majority for his government, no coast-to-coast campaign tour is going to shake them.

For months in all ten provinces, they murdered it on the hustings, Now they're murdering it by mail.

In little places and big places, chairmen of political gatherings introduced him as "Saint Low-Rent" or "San Lahraunt or almost anything but "San Loraw". One man, quietly but bravely desperate, took final refuge in a lightning pronounciation that was safe in that it was utterly unintelligible.

On another tack, one called him "Sir Wilfrid St. Laurent' and still another capping a peroration about his fighting qualities, called him "Joe Louis St. Laurent."

The Prime Minister bore it all with stoic and political calm.

Now the letter-writers are after him.

The kids write him and say "you might or might not remember meeting me when you visited Heifer Gulch and you said you didn't have time to sign all the autographs then but if I wrote you, care of Ottawa, you would send me your autograph, so I'm writing you."

He's had dozens of letters like that, nice, brief. Respectful letters, and he's answered them all.

And the kids' spelling isn't too bad.

The Grownups

But oh those adults, those electors who gave his government that record majority.

The little people have been writing him in the hundreds, sending in their congratulations right along with those from the big people all around the world.

They write him nice, kindly, respectful letters, like the kids. And, Mr. Saint Lorent's staff says, they have 10 or 12 different ways they like to spell his name, all the way from little errors to "Mr. San Lauran".

There ought to be a law.

With a parliamentary majority like he's got, Mr. San Larent ought to make a law about that name of his.

Word of Board Is Law Over Oil, Gas Resources

Edmonton, July 9—(CP)—The word of the Alberta petroleum and natural gas conservation is law today over the multi-million-dollar oil and gas resources of the province.

Far-reaching powers were given the board Thursday as Lieutenant-Governor J. C. Bowen gave royal assent to four bills in proroguing a special session of the legislature. The Lieutenant-Governor also assented to four other bills, two repealing former resources conservation measures.

The conservation board did not come by its new power easily. Opposition and some government members fought it step by step through a four-day session. They claimed it gave too board powers to the board to decide whether Alberta natural gas should be exported.

This power to grant or refuse an export permit is the heart of Bill No. I, called the Gas Resources, Preservation Act, but labelied by members the "Export Bill."

The government argued that on such a technical matter as export of natural gas, the conservation board was the only logical body that should make a decision.

The opposition charged the government with trying to centralize power in its own hands. Members opposed to bill No. 1 demanded that any decision on natural gas export come either from the legislature or from the people through a plebiscite.

The wrangling over the export bill was the bitterest seen in the legislature in many years. It pitted a six-man opposition, supported occasionally by one or two members from the government side of the house against the overwhelming forces of the social credit government's 51 members.

3rd Grade Onions Out for 2 Months

Toronto, July 9 (CP) — From now until Aug. 31 only two grades of onions will be approved for sale in Ontario by inspectors of the Provincial Department of Agriculture Fruit and Vegetable Branch. Third grade onions, permitted under marketing regulations, have been eliminated for the two-month period.

Officials of the branch said today the third grade onions is being eliminated at the request of the Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association. They said the change means a tightening of inspection rules so far as low-grade onions are concerned. Third grade may now, with slight restrictions, be moved up to second.

C.P.A. Opens New Air Service To Australia

Vancouver, July 9 (CP)—Another step in Canada's expanding aviation takes place today when a big, four-engined Canadair Aircraft leaves Vancouver's International Airport on its inaugural flight to Australia.

The shiny new Empress of Vancouver is starting the Canadian Pacific Air Lines' service to the dominion "down under".

Aboard on the inaugural flight will be 30 passengers—half aviation and communications officials and half newspaper men.

The aircraft is scheduled to arrive in Sydney on Thursday (Wednesday Vancouver time) and the plane's passengers will have luncheon with Sydney's Lord Mayor.

On the out trip the travellers are to attend functions in Honolulu and the Fiji Islands.

For Grant McConnachie, C.P.A. president, the service to Australia will culminate a dream created about the time he was a "short pants" flier on the prairies. It was he who started the first air service from Edmonton to Whitehorse and built the first crude airports along that route.

Mr. McConnachie will be aboard the Empress of Vancouver when it leaves Sunday.

Solution to 11 Burglaries in Hands of Police

Montreal, July 9—(CP)—Solution to 11 burglaries involving valuables worth about $150,000 is in the hands of Montreal police following an interview with Gerrard Dennis, Canadian-born gem theif now held by United States police.

police officials who spent two days questioning Dennis in the warden's office at Westchester county jail, New York, said Friday night that, "he had talked freely."

His confession cleared up robberies which have gone unsolved since they were committed in the Montreal area four years ago.

"Dennis confessed to having participated in the thefts and he supplied us with information that will probably lead us to recovery of part of the stolen gooods and a few arrests," police reported.

The dapper, 30-year-old Dennis, who became a legendary figure in Canada and the United States as the "Hooded Bandit," had refused to talk on two previous occasions."

Dennis was said to have admitted his part in seven "jobs" involving about $120,000 in Westmount alone, including an $80,000 robbery from the home of Mrs. Noah Timmins, widow of a mining magnate.

"Dennis appeared in excellent health and his morale was exceptionally good for a man behind the eight-ball," Sgt. Bond said.

WEDDINGS

KENNELLY—WHALEN

A pretty June wedding was solemnized at 10 o'clock on Monday, June 20 at St. Vincent de Paul Church, Deseronto, when Sarah Eileen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Whalen of Deseronto, and James Vincent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Kennelly, of Bath, were united in holy matrimony by Rev. G. T. Martin.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the bride was lovely in a gown of white slipper satin, fashioned with fitted bodice and long sleeves which formed points over the wrists. Tiny buttons trimmed the back of the bodice. The full skirt with lace trimmed peplums, extended into a short circular train. She wore fingertip embroidered veil and carried American Beauty roses.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Rita Whalen, wearing a gown of sky blue embroidered organdy, with sweetheart neckline, fingertip veil, and carried a bouquet of gladioli.

Little Miss Linda Kimmett as flower girl, was dressed in an off-the-shoulder gown of pink taffeta with shoulder length veil caught with a halo of flowers. She carried a nosegay of baby pink roses.

Mr. Joseph Kennelly was his brother's groomsman, and the ushers were, Michael Whalen and Fred Farrell, Harold Whalen, brother of the bride, and Jackie Edwards were acolytes.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the mother of the bride received in black printed silk jersey and wore a corsage of red roses, and the groom's mother in pale blue printed crepe with a corsage of red roses.

The three-tier wedding cake and silver tapers centred the bride's table and pink and white streamers decorated the room.

A toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. G. T. Martin and was responded to by the groom.

Amid showers of confetti and good wishes, the happy couple left for a trip to Watertown, the bride donning a blue gabardine suit with black accessories. Upon their return they will reside at Bath.

Lady-in-Waiting Must Never Go Out Without Money in Pocket

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 9 — (CP)—One of the first rules learned by a new lady-in-waiting at Buckingham Palace is "never go out without money in your pocket."

Why? Because royalty never carries cash. If Princess Elizabeth, her mother or her sister wish to make a purchase they turn to their lady-in-waiting for funds. If they go to a theatre or a movie they walk ahead while the lady-in-waiting buys tickets at the box office.

Handling of money by the Royal Family is simply "not done." Queen Victoria, maker of many rules for British Royalty, was adamant on that point.

The lady-in-waiting is not, however, expected to carry her own money. She draws an allowance from the palace treasury in anticipation of likely expenditures.

Two newcomers to this routine are Lady Alice Egerton and Lady Palmer, 35-year-old war widow, recently appointed ladies - in - waiting to Princess Elizabeth. Both have spent several weeks studying their responsibilities.

Each of Elizabeth's four ladies-in-waiting is required to do a months' duty at a stretch. She must either live in at the palace (the quarters are adequate), or be within phone call day and night, ready to be in attendance within at least an hour.

It's fairly strenuous work for well-to-do young women who are not working for a living, but doing a small-pay job chiefly for the honor of it.

Broadly, she acts as a feminine private secretary, though palace etiquette draws a sharp line between what the lady-in-waiting may do and what must be left to the office secretary.

The toughest part of the job is appearing in public day after day without showing any trace of boredom or fatigue — which would be fatal.

Scout and Guide Activities

All Cubs and their parents are urged to complete the camp registration forms and return immediately so that the final camp arrangements may be completed. It is imperative that these forms be in the hands of the camp leaders as soon as possible.

The Belleville Scout Camp started last Tuesday with about thirty Scouts in camp from the four Troops of Belleville and from Napanee. The boys seem to be having a very good time in camp although the first day was somewhat damp. By the end of the week they should be well along with their tests, pioneering and campcraft. Sunday, July 10th, is visitors day. All parents and friends are cordially invited to attend the special visitors day activities. The camp is located on Jarvis Lake near Madoc. To reach the camp go four miles west on Highway 7 from Madoc then turn north for two miles. Signs have been provided to guide visitors to the camp.

At the 1st Belleville (St. Thomas) Cub meeting Cub Dave Ewald passed his time telling test and Cubs Glen Bennett and Gilbert Mastin passed their ball throwing tests. It was Cub Wayne Muirhead's birthday which was celebrated with a birthday cake.

A Scouter's Notebook

The aim of this section of the weekly Scout column is to present a portion of the philosophy of Scouting and its aspect as conveyed by the leader of the boys.

The Scout Motto—"Be Prepared". It is well to notice that we have in the motto the initials B. P. As all good Scouts know these refer to Lord Baden-Powell our founder, who through long years of work and study gave the world this wonderful game of Scouting. It is up to each one of us to carry out his wishes in every way possible. Perhaps one of the first things to remember is that a good Scout is always prepared to do his share of the work. This means that he is expected, because of his training, to answer a call for assistance without fear or confusion or thought of himself and to face the problem to the best of his ability. As you can readily see a boy who "lies down" on the job and whines "what's the use" is not a GOOD Scout.

The Question Box

Anyone wishing a question concerning Scouting answered kindly send it along with their name and address to R. K. Smith, 31 Hillside St.

Q. What is Group Sponsor?

A. All Scout Groups should have a sponsoring body. This sponsoring body may be a church, service club, school, community or a group of citizens. The sponsoring body appoints annually several people to form the Group Committee. The Group Committee members should be men with a sympathetic attitude toward the Scout system of training, and an understanding of the boys' viewpoint. They meet monthly to assist the Scoutmaster, Cubmaster and the Rover Skipper in every way possible. They generally assume the responsibility of the Troop property and funds as well as prepare and submit reports to the Local Association and the sponsoring institution.

Q. What is a Rover Scout?

A. Rover Scouts are best described in Lord Baden-Powell's own words. "Rover Scouts are a Brotherhood of the Open Air and Service. They are Hikers on the Open Road and Campers of the Woods, able to shift for themselves, but equally able and ready to be of some service to others. They are in fact a senior branch of the Boy Scout Movement—young men of over seventeen and a half years of age.

The four main aims of the Scout training in woodcraft are to develop these points:

Character and intelligence.
Handicraft and skill.
Health and strength.
Service for others and citizenship.

Q. What is the significance of the Wood Badge that some leaders wear?

A. The two wooden beads on the leather thong that some leaders wear are replicas of a necklace that was once owned by an African chief called Dinizulu. To wear this wood badge a leader must successfully complete a three part training course. The first part consists of a correspondence course made up of the study of scouting books and the answering of questions on these books. The second part takes place in a summer camp where the leader becomes an ordinary Cub, Scout or Rover to receive the major portion of his leadership training. The third part is where the leader who has completed Parts 1 and 2 puts the knowledge he has gained into practical use in his own group for a period of six months.

As a climax to their year's activities, Company 7 and Company 2 combined to hold a picnic at Oak Lake on Friday, June 24th. Approximately 50 Guides and Guiders gathered at the Armouries where a bus waited to take them to the lake. On arrival, the first activity was a swim. The girls greatly enjoyed this and it was with reluctance that they came out of the water even though the next item was supper.

After supper the Guides formed a horseshoe for a sing song and then Commissioner Mrs. J. Watson presented the badges and service stars to Company 7. Those earning Service Stars for 75 per cent attendance since September were:

Frances Adams, Gail Adams, Barbara Laughlin, Doreen Breach, Marilyn Elliott, Eleanor Clarke, Barbara McElrath, Sally Ann Young, Mavis Alexander, Elinor Terry. Shirley Stoneburg, Gladys Craig, Shirley Terry, Jackie Day, Edna Orser, Barbara Dix, Helen Weston, Marilyn Gariepy, Shirley Askey, Barbara Bennett. One Guide, Frances Adams had 100 per cent attendance and was awarded a prize. This is a worthy record and we hope that more Guides will achieve it next year. The Cook's, Needlewoman's and Child's Nurse Badges were presented to Eleanor Clarke. Prizes were awarded to the Patrol who had earned the most points for games, inspection etc., during the year. This was the Holly Patrol—Barbara Bennett, P. L., Shirley Terry, Sec., Shirley Askey, Marilyn Gariepy, Doreen Breach, Jean Young, Carolyn Adams. There was also a prize for Barbara Dix, the leader of the Patrol coming second.

Following the presentations, the Guides formed patrols for relay games and soon it was time to load up and start for home.

The Guides of both Companies had a lot of fun and are looking forward to another combined picnic.

Atkins Easily Turns Back Lovelock Threat To Retain British Empire "Rassle" Title

Yeah? the crowd howled; the crowd jowelled, and the faithful got a more or less kick out of what happened in Memorial Arena last night.

British Empire champion Fred Atkins from Australia successfully defended his title against the what he termed the "young squirt" from Canada and points west, east or other places, more or less agile Al Lovelock.

It was a far different brawl of the wrestling ring that characterized last week's feud between these grapplers.

As a matter of fact the "hard-rock" from "down under" has things pretty well his own way despite his willingness to gain applause of the faithful through the medium of unorthodox methods.

Atkins, still wears the now more or less famous armband. He has worn this elbow decoration for the past three or four bouts and; as the box-office gang says, "It's darn near time he took it off."

As a matter of fact, the elbow mask was removed last week by Lovelock who at that time endeared himself to the wrestling public.

Last night Atkins appeared in the ring with the funny-bone appendage. He used it to good advantage despite the repeated warnings of one Referee Ernie Powers of Hamilton, imported for the session.

Fair Display

It was a fair display of the groan and grapple art. But the champion Atkins, after all, appears to be the better wrestler. Gallant Al Lovelock was the underdog in practically all falls but the hectic third.

It was a more or less cheap victory for the champion. Actually, the plucky Al Lovelock had little but pluck and perseverance and it got him practically nothing but the plaudits of the large crowd.

The main bout went to three falls with the villainous Atkins winning the first, acknowledging the second and pinning his foeman in the third.

Popular Pat Flanagan, his own agile self, won the decision over Frank Hewitt while the grim-faced Hi Lee, terror of the Ozarks (he says) got himself disqualified following his rough-and-ready tactics with the slippery Sliding Billy Hansen.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Sunlit Massassaga Bay waters will churn to the foaming wakes of record-breaking 225 cubic inch hydroplanes next Wednesday, bringing to a Belleville public the spine-chilling, breath-taking thrills that are synonymous with top-bracket speed-boat racing.

* * *

Twice around the measured two and one half mile course these sprites of the waterways, daredevil drivers crouched under spray-shrouded wheels, will not only endeavor to capture the valuable prizes offered by the sponsoring Kiwanis Club of Belleville but will "shoot" for world records. A world's record was established on the Massassaga course three years ago and unfortunately the course was not checked for measurement following the race. The next morning officials went to the course to fulfil this duty and to their surprise the marker buoys had been removed, believed at the time by zealous members of the Rotary Club. In any event the record was washed out literally as well as figuratively.

* * *

And speaking of the course, Massassaga's waters provide one of the best race courses in this part of Canada from a spectatorial point of view. Unlike other courses where lookers-on can see the whirling sea-devils crossing the start-finish line and when zooming on the back stretch, the Massassaga waterway is such that boats can be seen from the shoreline at all times. In addition, the proximity of the craft to spectators, only a distance of a few yards, adds to the excitement of the races.

Massassaga's rippling waterway is perhaps one of the best insofar as testing driving ability is concerned. It is shore-ringed for approximately seventy-five per cent with an outlet to the Bay of Quinte permitting outside winds to ruffle the water on the far turns. Ask any speedboat driver if he likes glassy-surfaced water and you might as well ask him if he wants eau-de-cologne in his mint julep. Give these nautical dare-devils an inch or two ripple (on the water, not the julep) and they'll uncork speed that will dazzle you. That is why Massassaga's nautical race-track is considered one of the best by both Canadian and American drivers. The course in the main may be placid with a mirror-like surface. But around the far turns, the aqua (not so pura) is always riffled with a breeze from the "outside" affording drivers the opportunity to make up time lost on the velvety face of the rest of the course, if such conditions exist.

* * *

We remember three years ago when the late "Pops" Cooper, the dean of all speedboat racers, was hurtling through the water at a 74 m.p.h. clip in his "Pops II" 225 hydroplane. "Pops" hit the rough water rounding the buoy on the backstretch, missed the marker and was forced to turn. As he did, a minor squall from the "outside" flung a large wave directly in front of the onrushing hydroplane. "Pops II" struck the wave head-on, hung poised in the air for a moment, then plunged to the bottom exactly thirty feet directly south. Pops was flung clear of his craft and was rescued by other drivers.

A week later, after a lot of work and assistance of salvage tugs from Kingston, the speedboat was raised from its watery resting place in thirty feet of aqua and three feet of mud. The craft was forwarded to "Pops" and like the grand sportsman he was, he sent the Rotary Club a cheque for $50 for its crippled Children's Fund.

* * *

On another occasion Bob Bogey, Loon Lake, N.Y., driving his sensational 225 cubic incher "Blitz II" indulged in the grand sport of buoy-crowding. Well ahead of his field, Bogey, flame-scarred American Air Force veteran, who plummetted from his fighter craft over Italy a human torch, drove his sensational craft at a speed well over 65 miles per hour. As he rounded the end turns he drove straight for the buoy markers missing them by the width of a gnat's whisker. In fact a cigarett paper hung over the side would have meant a crash. But Bogey was only fooling. When "Doc" Robinson, Alexandria Bay, N.Y., shoved the bow of his speeding "Mr. Docket" on "Blitz's" tail, the young airman gave his boat the gun. She leaped clear of the water, swung wide on the turn and straightened away, a red water comet streaking down the southern shore of Massassaga. Like a scarlet meteor, she widened the distance between her whirling prop and the prow of the saucy "Docket."

* * *

It is the thrill, spills and chills like these that make speedboat racing the water Sport of Kings. And there is no reason to doubt that the thrills and chills will be missing next Wednesday afternoon when the Kiwanis Club stages its first Annual Regatta. Tyros at this form of sports promotion, the clubmen have drawn up a program, arranged facilities for boats and drivers, formed strong hard-working committees and in general have completed all arrangements which could not have been done any better by a veteran speedboat organization.

* * *

Entries from crack drivers from the United States and Canada in all classes are coming in to regatta headquarters, and it would not surprise this desk if Kiwanis' first venture into the realm of this form of recreation does not prove to be one of the best, if not the best, offered the public since regattas came into being in this immediate district.

* * *

All Belleville District Baseball League teams swing into action on Monday night with the city attraction being the Kiwanis Juniors and their feudal enemies, Northern Electric. This has all the earmarks of being a grudge battle, according to the grapevine and if such is the case, then some snappy baseball should be handed out to the fans. In any event both teams are in the best of moods and all friendship will cease when the Umps call "Play Ball." The other two games see Picton guests of Point Anne and RCAF Flyers entertained at Gibbardville by the league-leading Napanee squad.

Toronto, July 9— (CP)—Jackie Price is a ball player who makes $20,000 a year standing on his head. And, literally speaking, there's a catch to it.

Price, who can do unbelievable things with a bat, a ball and a glove, restricts his diamond activities to entertaining ball fans before a game starts, or sometimes, between doubleheaders. He isn't on any team line-up now, although he spent a year in the American League with the Cleveland Indians several years ago and his lifetime total of major-league base hits is precisely three singles.

Ralph (Toronto Telegram) Allen, who saw the sparrow-chested little shortstop put on his act in Toronto this week, describes some of his surprising feats.

Upsidedown, Too

"Price can throw three balls, simultaneously, and all with the same hand, over the regulation pitching distance, to three different catchers," says Allen. "Throwing only two, he can make one curve, the other straight. He catches pitched balls and fungo hits — up to 300 feet — behind his back, between his legs, in his pockets, down his pants leg and down the back of his shirt. He hits perfect bunts with the bat held directly between his legs or behind his back. He repeats most of these unlikely operations lying on his back or standing on his head.

"He shags outfield flies and grounders from a jeep going 20 miles an hour. He hangs by his heels from a trapeze and bolts a respectable ball to left centre."

Rich Ferguson Steals Show as 9 Records Broken

Toronto, July 9 — (CP)—Rich Ferguson, a slim, tanned 17-year-old speedster from the North Toronto Track Club, almost stole the show as nine records were broken at the Canadian junior track and field championships at Varsity Stadium here Friday.

Without apparent effort, Ferguson ran the three-mile race in the fastest time ever clocked by a Canadian. A short time previously he set a new mark for the 880-yard juvenile run.

His time for the three - mile event was 14 minutes, 58 seconds — 14 seconds less than the Canadian native senior men's record set by C. Frankton of McGill University in 1937.

Throughout the day, Ferguson's fellow members of the North Toronto Red Devils won consistently to pile up a commanding point lead and mark them favorites to repeat their 1948 triumph in the junior meet. The competition ends today.

Of the nine records written into the official books during the day, seven of them went to the Red Devils.

Most impressive of the out-of-town athletes was Jack Clark of Montreal's Olympic Trumps. In beating the old mark in four of his six tosses, he heaved the 8-pound shot 56 feet, 10¾ inches, more than three feet farther than the old juvenile mark.

Big Mario Pacenti, the only other record breaker not belonging to the North Toronto Club, took the junior shot put championship for the Hamilton Olympic Club with a toss of 49 feet, 1¼ inches. Old mark was 47 feet, 9¼ inches.

Athletes in All Events

With athletes in every event of the three-age brackets, North Toronto Red Devils set mark after mark. In the juveniles, (18 and under), Wally Paszon pole-vaulted 11 feet, 7½ inches and Roger Fowlston set a new mark for the high jump with a leap of five feet, 11 inches.

Junior, (20 and under) Bob Bazos threw the discus 129 feet, three inches while his fellow-club member 19-year-old Kim Kimbark made a new time in the 220-yard low hurdles of the same class.

In the midget, (16 and under), Norm Williams clipped a half-second from the record to win the 120-yard low hurdles in 15.5 seconds.

Officials expressed no astonishment as the former records went into the discard. They said that "pay-off" time has arrived for young Canadian athletes who have shown an unprecedented interest in track and field events since the end of the war.

Woodchuck Shooting

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

It's a funny thing about research. You start out to find something and, as often as not, you wind up with something else. That's true right, straight across the board. Frequently, the by-products, come by accidentally, turn out to be more valuable than the original project.

Several years ago I did a great deal of research into the life, habits, behavior and management of the ruffed grouse. I intended to write a book about this great bird, so I had to find out what other people knew about him.

In the course of my investigations, the woodchuck kept cropping up from time to time. Don't shoot woodchucks, they said. Woodchucks create attractive environment for other game.

In over a half-century of outdoor life, I have seen a great deal of woodchuck shooting. When I was young and didn't know any better, I used to shoot them. Of all the woodchuck shooters that I know, and I know and have known quite a few, only two actually shoot them for table fare.

I talked to a farmer one time who had a fondness for roast woodchuck. Said he'd rather have it than roast chicken. So I asked a woodchuck shooter to bring me a plump young 'chuck next time he shot one.

He brought me one a few days later and we had that plump 'chuck for dinner. He was stuffed with turkey dressing, garnished with roasted apples, and served in style. Even at his tender age, he was strong and incredibly rich. That farmer must have a good digestive apparatus and almost no taste buds. I'll take chicken any day.

The rest of the woodchuck shooters — the ones who don't take home dead 'chucks — simply use them as targets. They carry binoculars and expensive rifles, equipped with 'scope sights. A woodchuck hasn't much chance against modern equipment. It is about as one-sided a sport—if it can be labeled thus — as we have in the outdoors today.

Added to that, a woodchuck is a pretty tough citizen and he can carry a lot of lead. A high percentage of them are not killed outright and these manage to crawl into their burrows before they can be dispatched. What happens after that is best left to the imagination.

The fact that woodchuck shooting is a cruel, one-sided form of outdoor endeavor seems to make no difference to its followers. They claim that they are doing the farmers a favor by killing off these "pests." Farm horses break their legs in woodchuck holes.

I live in a farming community and I know a little of farming methods. The men who operate big farms plow and cultivate and reap with tractors. Only the small farmer — the very small farmer — uses horses, and he knows every 'chuck on his property by his first name.

In further refutation of this leg - breaking nonsense, consider this quotation from a press release that has been sent me by one of the national magazines. These are the instructions of an authority on the sport of woodchuck shooting—

"In many localities woodchucks are not found in every field, though it may appear to be good ground-hog country. The animals are, in a sense, lazy and they live near where they eat. A good well-drained hillside with a few projecting boulders is usually an ideal locality . . ."

In all fairness, how many horses' legs are going to be broken on a "well-drained hillside with a few projecting boulders"?

One excuse, I suppose, is as good as another.

All right, let's overlook the question of sportsmanship and consider the economic aspects of woodchuck shooting.

As you know, ruffed grouse require dusting areas. Excavated earth from a woodchuck burrow makes an excellent dusting ground. This is particularly true in wooded areas where bare ground is hard to find. Every such dusting area helps to keep grouse away from roadways and the threat of passing cars. This olone justifies the existence of the woodchuck.

Another thing — woodchucks and rabbit shooting are as inseparable as ham and eggs. Where there are plenty of woodchucks, there also you will find plenty of rabbits.

I have first-hand information of a man in New Hampshire who had good rabbit shooting on his farm. But he wasn't satisfied. He wanted better rabbit shooting. Reasoning that woodchucks, of which his farm had an ample supply, consumed rabbit food, he shot off the woodchucks.

It wasn't long before his rabbit supply dwindled almost to nothing. Curious to know why, he consulted a biologist who specializes in game management. Then he put away his rifle and the woodchucks now have free run of his place.

In these news stories, I'm supposed to tell you about the Solunar Tables and their uses. All right — during Solunar Periods woodchucks will be out of their burrows and foraging for food. But that doesn't mean that you have to use them for target practice.

The woodchuck serves his purpose and helps in his way to give you better hunting for legitimate game. Stop persecuting him and let him do his job in peace. He does comparatively little damage and a lot of good from a conservation standpoint.

Then,too, we haven't enough wildlife to g arundetaini shrdlu wildlife to go around as things stand now. Why deplete our supply needlessly?

Anne Sharpe Wins Kingston Whig Standard Trophy

(By The Canadian Press)

Anne Sharpe, from Lookout Point Golf Club at Fonthill, Ont., Friday won the International Women's Golf tournament at Kingston Cataraqui Golf and Country Club. Her gross score of 82, four over par for the course, was matched by her playing partner, Mrs. J. B. Seawright of Scarboro, but Miss Sharpe won top prize on the basis of her one-point edge in the last nine holes. Her handicap was four. She actually spiked down her claim on the difficult 444-yard 13th hole, when two good wood shots brought her close to the green. She chipped a shot to within a foot of the pin and then holed the putt for a birdie four. Mrs. Seawright had a par 5.

A motion to dismiss the anti-trust suit brought against organizel baseball by Fred Martin and Max Lanier, St. Louis Cardinal pitchers, was denied Friday at New York by Federal Judge Simon H. Rifkind. The judge directed Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler and other defendants, including presidents Ford Frick of the National League and Will Harridge of the American League, to file a reply to the suit within 10 days.

England with a score of 1,613 had little difficilty today in winning the Elcho challenge shield at the 80th annual Commonwealth Rifle Shoot at Bisley, England.

Jockey Johnny Longden returned to Los Angeles from a fishing jaunt to Ensenada, Mex., Friday in time to deny in court he had any part in an alleged race-fixing deal Feb. 15, 1947. Longden was called as a prosecution witness against LloydArthur Hargis. Mrs. Mary Lewis, 72, claims Hargis induced her to give him $2,500 so he could "fix" a race at Santa Anita.

The Kamreterna Soccer Club of Gotesberg, Sweden, and the New England All-Stars played to a 1-1 tie Friday night before 3,000 fans at Ludlow, Mass.

Bangaway, co-favorite for the Hambletonian trotting classic next month, verified his high esteem Friday by racing to victory in the $10,000 Historic Dickerson Cup in two straight heats at Goshen ,N.Y. The three-year-old flyer from the stable of Saunders Mills, Toledo, Ohio, won the first heat of the Grand Circuit event without difficulty, but was forced to step off a snappy 2:05 1-5 mile to defeat by Ambassador in the clincher.

Charlie (Chuck) Boswell, former Alabama Football Star who lost his eyesight in the battle of the bulge, fired a 52-56-108 over a tough Plymouth Country Club course at Norristown, Pa., Friday to take the lead in the 36-hole United States Blind Golf Championship. Boswell held an eight-stroke lead over a field of 18 contestants at the Halfway mark.

Big Vic Ghezzi, of Deal, N.J., shooting for a place in the Ryder Cup team as well as for top money in the $15,000 Reading, Pa., open tournament, exploded a five-under-par 65 Friday to tie Sammy Snead, for the lead.

George Eluck of Windsor, and Ron Varey of Brantford are tied with 531 points each in their battle for a place on the Ontario Willingdon Cup team. The announcement was made by Harold Banks, secretary-manager of the O.G.A. following the close of the second day's play in the Ontario Amateur championship at Kitchener Westmount. Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener and Phil Farley of Toronto, are first and second in points with 512 and 528 respectively. The winner of the Ontario Amateur automatically becomes a member of the team.

Gerard Cote of St. Hyacinthe, Que., who represented Canada at the last Olympic games, is highly-favored to win today's Br tirh Empire games marathon test at Hamilton over a rough, hilly route of 26 miles, 385 yards. Others scheduled to start include: A. Morton, Galt, Ont., and L. Lawrence, Niagara Falls, Ont.

Outcome of English County Cricket matches concluded on Friday night made little difference to the county championship standing. The first four counties, Middlesex, Yorkshire, Worcestershire and Glamorgan remain unchanged but at the bottom Hampshire moved ahead of Leicestershire, now at the bottom of the standing.

Cairine Wilson of Ottawa, fired an opening-round 87 to take a two-stroke lead in the 36-hole New Brunswick Ladies' Golf tournament at St. Andrew's, Friday. Miss Wilson, a Summer resident here, checked in with 44-43.

Jack (Deacon) Allen and Frank Tunney, Toronto Boxing promoters, announced Friday a tournament to find a new Canadian "white hope" for the world's heavyweight boxing championship Maple Leaf Gardens in mid-September. They added that Jack Dempsey, former world heavyweight champion, has agreed to come to Toronto before the tourney to assist competitors and act as an associate promoter for the show.

Softball Slants

By BOYD UPPER

After two one-run escapes the previous week, Houstons "Knotholers" finally went down to defeat Tuesday evening beneath a bruising 15 hit attack that crushed their pitching staff and dumped them from the league lead for the first time in two seasons. Northern Electric's powerful squad administered the coup de grace but it was a monumental struggle while it lasted.

• • •

Houstons had the lead three times during the contest, finally going under in the bottom of the sixth beneath a five - hit splurge that sank reliefer Hunter and the Houston hopes for good. Youthful Bob Green, who drew the starting assignment for the Knotholers was definitely not up to the form which he had shown in his two previous appearances, when he worked twelve innings, giving up five walks, striking out 19, and passing out nine scattered hits for one run. Hunter held the Northern bludgeons in check for two frames but they batted around against him in the sixth for five runs and the loss.

Glen Young, slugging catcher for Northern continued to set a blistering pace in the league batting race by hammering out a triple and two doubles in four official trips. When last heard from the powerful clouter was pounding the ball at a .632 clip.

The second contest on Tuesday's doubleheader, while lacking the pile driving attack of the opener, was featured by close-to-the-vest softball, garnished with sparkling fielding gems that kept the rival hurlers out of trouble. Stewart Warner pulled off double plays in the first and second stanzas while Shell kicked through with a twin killing in the sixth. Some smart fielding kept the score down with six outs being made on attempted steals. Art Empy, Shell hurler had a three hitter going into the overtime eighth frame when Stewart Warner ganged up on him for three more and the ball game. It was a thrill - packed game concluded in one hour and twenty-five minutes, including overtime.

* * *

The steadily improving Energetic Club put up quite a battle Thursday evening before succumbing to a stronger Shell Oil squad. Much of the credit for the improved showing of the club can be attributed to their never-say-die spirit in the face of some calamitous setbacks. The Holloway Street Church crew, who joined the Commercial League for the fun involved have been subsisting on fun alone to date, having failed to gain a single victory in seven league starts. However, each time out they seem to be a bit stronger and Thursday evening they were within one run of the fifth place oilers in the fifth frame. They matched the winners blow for blow but left seven runners stranded. One of these nights they might surprise some of the teams and come up with a win.

* * *

The first game rhubarb involving McFarlanes did no one in the league least of all themselves any good. Trailing by ten runs in the seventh frame with only two enemy batters out and a runner aboard they undoubtedly felt discouraged. The fact that several of the opposing team's runs were unearned did nothing to sooth high-strung tempers. But there was no call for the use of foul language and the general lassitude shown by the squad in the field. Perhaps the saddest thing in the whole evening was the rough time accorded pitcher Frank Baldwin who lost a one hit job to Houstons last week. He struck out nine plumber batters and walked but three in six innings but went down to defeat anyway.

* * *

The surprise standing of the Stewart-Warner nine is the talk of the league. One of the reasons for their lofty position beside Houstons in the league ladder is the pitching insurance acquired when Roy McMillan finished high school, and the fine chucking of Harold Dracup. Perhaps his best chore in the loop was his six hit winning effort over Shell Oil in overtime last Tuesday evening.

Customers Turn Out 198,170 Strong for Full Night Slate, Wind up With 16 Frame Game

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Good old night baseball. How the customers love it.

A full - scale program of eight night games Friday brought out a bumper crop of 198,170 paid admissions.

Even at 1 o'clock in the morning, they love it in Philadelphia where some 11,238 watched the Boston Braves wrangle a 16-inning decision from the Phillies, 4-3, in a 4-hour, 16-minute struggle.

It looked as though the Braves and Phils never would finish before the deadline but they finally managed to wind up matters on rookie catcher Del Crandall's fly ball, scoring Marv Rickert from third base. No inning can start after 12:50 a.m., local time.

Boston shortstop Alvin Dark was carried off the field after he was hit on the head by a ball thrown by Gran Hamner in the 13th inning. Doctors said his condition was not serious.

Largest and most enthusiastic night crowd was at Pittsburgh where 36,366 saw Bill Myer's Pirates ring up their seventh straight victory 2-1 over Chicago.

Meyer, manager of the year in 1948, finally has his Pirates moving toward the first division after weeks of groping in seventh and eighth place. With the pitching staff straightened out, they may make the trade. Vic Lombardi, the half - pint southpaw, earned his fourth straight important victory with a six-hitter that defeated Dutch Leonard.

Carry on Battle

While the Pirates continued their delayed climb, Brooklyn and St. Louis carried on their savage battle for the lead. Both contenders won, leaving the Dodgers with a two-game edge.

Brooklyn just escaped with a 4-3 edge over the slugging New York Giants by using three pitchers to whip Clint Hartung for the first time. The Giants' "phenom" never had lost to the Dodgers until he bowed to reliefer Rex Barney before 34,468, largest Ebbets Field night crowd this year. Pee Wee Reese's triple and Duke Snider's long fly broke a 3-3 tie in the sixth inning.

Howie Pollet, enjoying his greatest year since 1946, posted his 11th triumph. He yielded 10 Cincinnati hits but allowed only one run in a 6-1 Cardinal triumph.

Joe Page's 12th inning single backed up a fine job of relief pitching for a 4-3 edge over Washington that boosted the New York Yankees' American League lead to six games. The Yankee Stadium crowd numbered 35,845.

Fireman Joe now has won seven games, all on relief.

BBack in friendly Fenway Park, Vern Stephens banged his 20th homer in the Boston Red Sox' 7-1 romp over the Philadelphia A's.

Cleveland, now only a half game back of the second place A's, staved off two St. Louis Browns rallies to escape with a 6-5 decision. Larry Doby's two-run homer in the first inning off Cliff Fannin supplied the victory margin.

Young Walt Pierce of Chicago turned in a five - hit game against his old Detroit mates for a 3-1 win.

Electrics, Picton Win District Baseball Games

Northern Electric nudged their way into their fourth straight win last night edging Trenton Flyers 11-10 in a wide-open free-hitting game. In the other game played in the Belleville District Baseball League Picton defeated Kiwanis JJuniors 7-3 in a game played at the Exhibition Grounds under the lights.

Frankie Dyer, Picton ace right-hander had little trouble stifling the bats of the impatient juniors. The farmer-hurler from Milford way yielded but seven hits over the nine innings route striking out eight, while his mates gave him finfie support in the field and garnered six hits for seven runs off three junior pitchers.

Art Wright, erstwhile Stratford junior started on the mound for the local team but gave way to Billy Strachan in the fourth after being touched for five hits and four runs. He struck out six.

Strachan was nicked for two runs and two hits before Don Semark went in to choke the Picton bats.

Picton pounced on Wright in the fourth to score five runs and added the other two in the fifth. Juniors counted one in the second, two each in the third and fifth and one each in the seventh and eighth. Bush and Bradshaw got two hits each for juniors with Drury getting a pair for the winners.

Free-Hitting Contest

No less than 27 base hits soared into the wild blue yonder in the Flyers-Northern Electric tilt with the planters claiming fifteen solid clouts. "Cuffer" Noakes started on the mound for the Electrics and remained out there until the sixth when Bob Bunton took over the hurling chores.

Martyn started on the mound for Flyers but lasted only one inning when Electrics got to him for a cocktail of three runs. Jim Titus took over and lasted the nine inning route.

Electrics after their first inning three-run lead were held scoreless until the fifth when they shoved over a trio and in the next inning they exploded with three clouts for five runs.

Electrics started off bright and early ramming home three runs in the first heat and adding four in the second. They scored singles in the fifth and seventh and added two in the eighth. Flyers came back with three in the first and went scoreless until the fifth when they shoved over two runs. They exploded in the sixth with a three-hti five-run attack but the rally was not enough to overcome Electrics' lead.

Greenough, Flyer fielder, was the hitting hero of the piece getting five for five including a double. Wardhaugh and Vern Goyer got three each for the winners with Carson, Donoyan and James collecting a pair each.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

When you start a golf swing by the slight pressure of the left foot, the hips begin their almost horizontal pivot and your arms start slowly swinging the clubhead back along the direction line. Then, as the hip pivot and shoulder pivot move into action, you swing your clubhead in, up and around. Once the pressure on the left to signalling the start of the hip pivot begins, the arm and shoulder action flows simultaneously into the swing and you move all together in one co-ordinating action of hip and shoulder pivot. The hip pivot, shoulder pivot and wrist - cocking action all reach their peaks at the instant the hands are head-high and the club-shaft parallel with the ground at the top. The shoulders pivot twice the distance the hips pivot and therefore move at twice the speed since both actions terminate at the same time. Here again you can see the reason for swinging back slowly. It provides time for co-ordinating the shoulder pivot with the hip pivot and the cocking of the wrists with both the other actions.

Chick Connors Leading Hitter Of Int. League

New York, July 9 — (AP) — Chick Connors, the loquacious first baseman of Montreal Royals who also talks effectively with his big bat, took over the batting leadership of the International League today with a mark of .348.

Connors' ascent to the leadership was made possible by, the purchase of Monte Irvin last Tuesday by New York Giants. The former Jersey City Negro star has paced the league all season, finishing with a .385 figure.

Connors, who started the season with Brooklyn, rapped out 71 hits in 204 times at bat through games of Wednesday,—July 6. Among his hits were 14 doubles, two triples and eight homers.

Most of the individual honors, however, went to Sammy Jethroe, a teammate of Connors, the fleet-footed Negro outfielder paced the circuit in hits with 98, runs with 78, triples with 10, stolen bases with 44. He was tied with teammate Bobby Morgan for the doubles leadership with 21.

Ed Sanicki, Toronto flychaser was tops with his 22 home runs, and Steve Bilko, hard-hitting first baseman of Rochester Red Wings, was No. 1 man in runs-batted-in with 66.

Bob Hooper, 26-year-old pitcher drafted from Jacksonville of the Sally League, paced the hurlers with a perfect 8-0 won and lost record. Al Widmar of Baltimore topped the strikeout leaders with 88, and Rochester's Ed Copeland gave up the most walks, 85. George Bamberger of Jersey City and Clem Hausmann of Buffalo hurled the most shutouts, three.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Reading, Pa., July 9 — (AP)—Reading claims to be the best and largest baseball town in America that is not in organized baseball . . . The claim stems from the city's big schoolboy, American Legion and sandlot program and from the good players who have been turned out in this area . . . Its products include Whitey Kurowski, Carl Furillo, Vic Wertz, Randy Gumpert, Dom Dallessandro and perhaps 30 others who still are trying to go places in the minor leagues . . . Reading has been mentioned as a possible site for an International League club in case Newark or Jersey City decides to yield to lack of interest, but local experts say never again . . . For 14 years, from 1919 through 1932, the International League operated here and that was enough to convince them that a city of 100,000 can't compete with places like Baltimore, Montreal and Toronto . . . If a good Class A loop is looking for a member, that might be a different matter, but not Triple A.

A Bird of a Hit

Lew King, the Reading Times writer who used to be a ball player himself, tells one about the time Leo (Muscle) Shoals, the Southern slugger, was playing for manager Ollie Vanek at Johnson City, Tenn., in the Appalachian League . . . Shoals could clout the ball a mile but he had some trouble getting signals . . . Finally Vanek told him: "When you see me turn my head and look the other way as if I was watching two turkeys sitting on the fence, that's the signal to bunt." . . . Came a time when a bunt was in order and Vanek coaching at third stared intently at the left field fence . . . "Muscle" promptly belted a home run right over the spot Ollie was watching . . . As Shoals rounded third, Vanek screamed: "What's the idea? Didn't you see me looking at those two turkeys?" . . . Shoals panted, "Sure, boss, and I knocked the turkey on the left right off there."

George Low, the big guy who surprised everybody by shooting a 65 in the first round of the Reading Open golf tourney, spent most of the second day explaining: "I'm over golfed." It was his first regular tournament in over a year although he did play in a pro-amateur affair at Buffalo a couple of weeks ago . . . Vic Ghezzi, who showed up here after failing to appear at the British Open, explained that he had passed up the trip because he was playing such poor golf when the time came to leave for Britain. "It's a long way to go when you don't expect to do anything," said Vic . . . If he is successful in his lightweight title defence against Enrique Bolanos at Los Angeles July 21, Ike Williams is due for a trip to Argentina for two December fights . . . P. S. on Reading baseball: Fred Merkle, who gained that undeserved "bone head" reputation, once managed the Reading club. It lost 31 games in a row for a record which may still stand.

Sanicki Homers Twice to Give Leafs Victory

(By The Associated Press)

Ed Sanicki appears certain to become the first Toronto player to lead the International League in home runs since Dale Alexander performed the feat for the 1928 Leafs.

Sanicki, who has never hit less than 20 homers a season since he broke into organized ball with Wilmington of the Interstate League in 1946, boomed his 23rd and 24th homers of the season Friday night. He now is five in front of runner - up Russ Derry of Rochester.

The blows featured the Leafs' 8-3 conquest of the Rochester Red Wings and moved them to within a half - game of the third - place Jersey City Giants. The Giants bowed 3-2 to the Syracuse Chiefs.

Sanicki, who celebrated his 25th birthday Thursday, socked his first homer of the game in the fourth inning to tie the score at 2-2. He hit his second during a two-run sixth inning drive that gave the Leafs a 4-3 lead. The Leafs sewed it up with four more runs in the eighth.

Veteran Ed Wright scattered 10 Rochester hits to post his 10th victory. Tom Polosky was tagged with his fifth setback.

Sam Meeks blasted a 360 - foot homer in the ninth inning to break a 2-2 tie and give Syracuse the edge over Jersey City. The blow was Meek's ninth of the season and gave Jim Prendergast his first victory and Andy Tomasic his second loss against eight triumphs.

The league - leading Buffalo Bisons edged the runner-up Montreal Royals 5-4 in 11 inning to increase their lead to five games.

Baltimore Orioles took a doubleheader from the last - place Newark Bears 5-2 and 3-1.

WATERLOO TIGERS ON TOP

(By The Canadian Press)

Two games in the Intercounty Senior Baseball League last night knocked London Majors out of first place and pushed Waterloo Tigers into undisputed possession of top spot in the league.

Stratford Nationals hammered two London pitchers for 13 hits to defeat the Majors 9-6 and this, coupled with Waterloo Tigers' 7-6 victory over Guelph Maple Leafs, re-arranged the teams for the league's top standing.

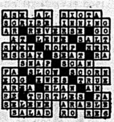
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:



Little Benny's Note Book

I was watching pop smoking to himself in his private chair, and I said, Hay pop, I know a swell puzle to do with 5 match sticks. I've got 5 match sticks rite here. It's called the Endless Puzzle. Do you want to try it, pop? I said.

Oh, it'll probably be child's play for me, pop said. I always thawt I'd of been a grate mathematician if I only knew more about mathematics. Five match sticks, heh?—What am I supposed to do with them? he said.

You're supposed to make a perfect square with only one match stick on each side, and not have any left over, I said, and pop said, It sounds intristing, it sounds werthy of my talents.

And he started to try it on the arm of his chair, the only trubble being he always had one left over every time and I said, Do you want me to tell you the rite anser, pop.

Certainly not, pop said. This is werth werking out even it I think myself into a slite head ake. Even Einstein is said to of had a head ake for twenty minutes after he finished his formula for the relative relationship of time and space, he said.

And he kept on trying and wondering and shaking his head to himself, saying, What did you say this thing is called, the Endless Puzzle?

Yes sir, I thawt that would be a good name for it? I said, and pop said, Do you mean you made it up yourself, for Peet sake?

Sure I did, pop, I said. It only took me a minute to make it up, but nobody can do it even if they try to the end of their life, so that's why I call it the Endless Puzzle. That's the anser I offered to tell you pop, so you mite as well give it up, I said.

Not being quite the end of the subject.

First Canadian Scout Jamboree Will be Held at Connaught

Ottawa, July 9 — (CP)—Thousands of Boy Scouts across Canada today are packing their duffel bags and making sure they can tell a reef knot from a granny knot.

They're the lucky 3,000 who'll be coming to Ottawa next week for the biggest scout camp in Canadian history.

The vanguard moves out to nearby Connaught ranges this weekend, getting ready for the first Canadian Boy Scout Jamboree, to be held there July 16-24.

Scouts from every province in Canada and the United States will be on hand when Viscount Alexander, the Governor - General and Chief Scout for Canada, officially opens the Jamboree on July 18.

The scouts will tour the capital, learn more about scouting and meet boys from all over the country during the week. They'll also eat. Already ordered to feed them are 82,896 ounces of fruit juice, 700 pounds of mixed biscuits, 9,666 pounds of meat, 16,875 quarts of milk, 14,580 pounds of potatoes, 1,215 pounds of bacon and 13,500 eggs.

Special trains bringing the scouts will arrive here next Saturday and buses will take them to the rifle ranges, 1 miles west of here, which will be dotted with more than 500 tents and 50 large marquees.

They'll live in tents in four separate sub-camps, named Goodwill, Loyalty, Friendship and Courage after typical Scout attributes.

Scouts from farthest east and farthest west — Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland, Alberta and British Columbia — will live in "Goodwill." "Courage" will comprise groups from Nova Scotia, Quebec, The U. S., Manitoba and La Federation De Scouts Catholiques of Quebec. In 'Friendship' will be Ontario, New Brunswick and Saskatchewan while "Loyalty" will house the rest of the big Ontario contingent.

Quick Thinking By Mother, Sons Saves Swamp

West Huntingdon — Quick action on the part of some of the ladies in the Fuller district saved the township from what might have been a real forest fire.

On Tuesday afternoon, while Mrs. Wallace McTaggart and sons were returning from picking berries they noticed the grass along the roadside just north of the old Glen cheese factory on fire and at once they summoned help. Prompt action of the ladies and telephone calls brought a large number to the scene and the Spring Creek, which is nearby, saved a large rail fence.

In a few minutes, with the high wind at the time, the cedar swamp adjoining the road would have been involved and then no amount of help could have prevented a very serious forest fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Blackburn, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Blackburn, of Oshawa, were Thursday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Ashley and Mr. and Mrs. George Ashley.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Haggerty and Jack, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thompson and Grant were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Hough of Gananoque.

Mrs. Frank Hammond, Donna and Sharon spent a few days last week with friends in the Madoc district.

Mrs. Geo. Barragar spent a few days recently with Mrs. Tom Elliott.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Rollins and son of Corbyville were Wednesday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cooke.

The Young People of Fuller held a most helpful meeting on Tuesday evening at Mr. H. R. Burke's home.

A large number from here attended the induction service at Moira on Tuesday evening when the Rev. Morley Clarke was inducted in the service of the West Huntingdon - Thomasburgh circuit.

Asks Colonies Suspend Issue Import Licences

London, July 8. (AP)— Britain's world-wide Colonial governments have been asked to suspend temporarily the issuance of licences for imports requiring payments in dollars.

The action, taken by the Colonial office, is in line with the "standstill" of dollar purchases in Britain ordered this week by the chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Stafford Cripps.

A Colonial office statement said the various governments of the Empire were asked to take the action "except in cases where that would have a grave effect."

It was emphasized that the request was of a "temporary nature" to bring the rest of the Empire into line with conditions prevailing in Britain, now hard pressed by a serious shortage of dollar reserves.

Truck Goes Down In Incinerator

Timmins, July 9— It was an expensive way to do it ,but Timmins garbage collection department Friday proved beyond any doubt that the town's disposal incinerator is operating efficiently. While a garbage truck was being unloaded at the disposal plant Fri. morning, the brake slipped and the truck itself rolled into the incinerator with the garbage. The result—no garbage, no truck.

Olsen and Johnson Back in N.Y. With Another Carnival Show

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, July 9. (CP)—Two more Broadway stage shows black out this weekend.

Michael Todd's musical hit, "As The Girls Go", is closing temporarily due to the illness of its exuberent star, Bobby Clark. The 61-year-old comedian has been feeling unwell and is going into hospital for a medical check-up.

Producer Todd says he hopes to reopen the musical within six or eight weeks, depending on how soon Clark is permitted to resume his stage capers.

"Born yesterday,' the Garson Kanin comedy about a wealthy junk dealers and a dumb blonde, closes this Saturday night after a run of 1,442 performances—the eighth longest in Broadway stage history.

New York's relentless heat wave which has affected business in a number of box offices is believe dto have decided Producer Max Gorden to end the run of "Borr Yesterday".

Those zany performers, Ole Olsen and Chic Johnson, are back in New York with another fantastic carnival-like show, "Funzapoppin". The antics, in style reminiscent of the mad merriment of "Hallzapoppin," are at Madison Square Garden.

The customer takes it from the time he gets inside the door. Clowns escort him to his seat in the beam of a spotlight and air-pressure mechanism is used to blow up the skirts of his feminine guest. He is sprinkled with beans and corn during the performance and tickled by feathers from the ceiling. As for the performance itself, Brooks Atkinson of the New York Times summed it up by saying Olsen and Johnson "have stuffed "Funzapoppin' full of noise, insanity, shooting and boisterousness, not forgetting the hearhty hospitality that has made them thousands of loyal friends.'

The props include 53 revolvers, 75 dead ducks, a live goose and a live rat, a live pig, two live rabbits and an airplane that soars over the audience. What more

Danger of Fires In Woods, How To Prevent Them

Toronto, July 9—During the holiday season with so many thousands of people vacationing in the out-of-doors, the danger of forest fires is greater than at other seasons of the year.

A striking poster issued by the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations for use of their member firms contains an illustration showing a man's hand with a burnt match-stick being broken between the thumb and forefinger This serves to show the hazard wherever matches are used.

The advice "Break match in your fingers — dead matches are safe" is practical and is good advice at any time.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking around to the Little grand with Pud Simkins and Glasses Magee and Shorty Judge talking about different things that happened to us different times in dark movies, and I said, One time I tripped over a big fat man's feet lookin for a seat in the dark, so I grabbed a hold of his stummick to keep from falling all over him, and he acted as if it was my falt instead of his own for being so fat he stuck out too far all over, even his feet.

One time I found a empty seet in the dark, only it wasn't quite all a ways empty, because some little bit of a kid was sitting in it, Puds said. The trubble was I didn't find that out till I was sitting on him alreddy and realized where all the yelling was coming from, he said, and Shorty said, The very opposite happened to me.

Do you meen some little kid sat on you? Glasses said, and Shorty said, No, some big lady. My mother took me to see some mushy picture, and I had a fierce time looking at all the mush till I was lucky enough to fall asleep, and I dreemed I was climbing mountians and I got caught at the bottom of a landslide and was berried alive, and I had to scratch and kick my way out in my dreem but it was only partly a dreem, because when I woke up I was scratching and kicking for real, because this big lady was sitting on top of me, but believe me she didn't stay there long, he said.

One of the werst things ever happened to me was when my mother got thirsty and I went to get her a cup of water and spilt most of it on 3 different people trying to find our seets in the dark and I watched the rest of the picture by myself in the ferst empty seet I came to, Glasses said.

Which by that time we were there.

HOOFS WEDGED IN TRACKS

Toronto, July 8 — (CP) — A dapple-grey mare Thursday halted a passenger train for 25 minutes while police, Humane Society officials and railway men released her hoofs from the track ties. The horse was being taken to pasture by a 14-year-old boy when she bolted and ran across a railway trestle, wedging her hoofs so solidly that workmen had to chop her free with an axe. Railway officials stopped the train until the job was finished.

Manhattan Love Song

By Kathleen Norris

"They'll have [illegible]" Madge said [illegible], her cheeks red.

"Here's a restaurant," Fanny suggested. "Coffee- toast, bacon, strawberries!"

"I feel," the other girl said, "I feel as if we oughtn't eat, until we get our money back!"

"Oh, listen," Fanny protested. "I have twelve dollars and ten cents. It was only the three hundred, fifteen lovely twenties, that they got."

"Where were they, Fan?" This was Chris; when he called her "Fan," her heart rose, singing with the singing June morning.

"In a long envelope in the flap of my suit-case, just where he's been trained to look for them."

"The whole thing makes me sick," Mack said darkly. "It makes me sick. Nice saps we've turned out to be! And what a city!

"We ought to have thought that we came in late, and tired, and that anyone seeing us would have seen how green we were," Chris said. "We ought to have thought of the windows and taken every cent we had down to the clerk."

"Another time we'll go to Mullins's mama," Fanny said. "She might have had bread rising in the bathroom and a pet cat kittening in our beds, but she wouldn't have stole our money!"

"You'll wire your mother Madge?"

"I can't, Mack. She'd simply wire, 'Come back instantly.'"

They were seated at the table now, and the heartening odor of good food was about them.

"Sliced peaches, double order twenty cents--that's me," Fanny announced. "Oh, this is fun! Cheer up, Madge, if we're going to make good in New York a few hundred won't matter. And if we're not they wouldn't have saved us. The boys---thank goodness!-- still have their money."

"I have sixteen dollars," Mack announced, after a count.

"I have three dollars and ninety cents," Madge burst out, ready to cry.

"I have twelve dollars and ten cents," Fanny said, adding hers to the little pile on the table.

"I'm a rich man," Chris said. "I've twenty-eight twenty."

"Fifteen dollars and five cents apiece," Fanny announced, after calculation with her new fountain pen-- the Dean's parting gift. "But isn't this fun?" she asked, glowing, as the rich gold of the cut peaches were set before her, and her coffee smoked at her elbow. "Look at that man over there drinking iced coffee at nine o'clock! I never tasted it; I'll bet it's good."

"You'll find out today, Fan," Chris said. "It's going to be broiling hot."

"Fifteen dollars and five cents apiece," Madge murmured, "we can't--we can't beat New York on this!"

"We can live somehow for a week, and I'll have a job then," Mack said.

"And I--when I see Mr. Overman--they promised, and they can't offer me less than twenty-five a week," Chris said, so earnestly, and concernedly, that Fanny's heart gave the little twist that was becoming familiar, as her eyes met his.

"If we can beat New York at all, we can beat it on fifteen dollars and five cents," she announced.

"Less what this breakfast costs," Mack reminded her.

"Less what this breakfast costs," Fanny agreed serenely.

"All I can say is that, as I go to work Monday, you might as well let me treat you to a twenty-five cent show tonight!" Fanny said.

The other three looked at her in stupefaction.

"Fanny you haven't a job?"

"I have a very good job, as it happens. Not," admitted Fanny, "highly lucrative; but I can live on it until better offers. While Chris was seeing Overman---"

"He's in Europe," Chris put in briefly.

"And Mack was seing the I.B.C. people---"

"Who have nothing!" Mack interpolated in his turn, bitterly. "This is a swell town, if you like to eat," he said.

"And while Madge was trying to get in touch with Mr. Sarg," Fanny resumed patiently.

"He's away over the week-end," Madge contributed.

"Well I got a job!" Fanny finished brilliantly.

"What doing?"

"I'm sorter, in the 'Emanuel Salvage Shop,'" Fanny said.

"What on earth is that?"

"Rich people send their expensive clothes, and I hang them on hangers, or air them, or have them cleaned, as the case may be, and then poor people come in buy them. I went in the subway to this place--the salvage shop; it's two tremendous lofts. They call these big empty floors lofts. It was really cool in there. And a nice old Mrs. Brehrmann showed me the ropes.

"But let me tell you how it all happened," she went on, as the others watched her in expectant silence. "I was--sort of in despair this morning; I mean when our money was stolen and all that, and I thought I'd have to borrow from you all----"

"I thought we said it wouldn't be called that," Chris put in mildly.

"Well anyway," Fanny resumed "In the magazine that was in our room at Mrs. Brown's, while we were having our baths, and getting settled and every thing this morning, I read this article about Dr. Kreutzmann having adopted about thousand babies, or found places where they could be adopted---"

"You naturally went to him and suggested that he adopt you, Fanny!" Mack said.

"Just about. After I left Chris I went to his office, and it seemed you have to have an appointment, and she said-she was a darling-by telephone, mostly. So I looked at her desk telephone and asked her if I could use it, and she laughed and said, 'I'd answer it.' And immediately she got up and went into the inside office, and when she came out she said I could go in.

"I told Dr. Kreutzmann I was an orphan, and asked him what he'd do, in my place."

"And what did he say?"

"He asked me if I could live on ten dollars a week, and I said 'yes'."

"But you can't!" Madge exclaimed, in dismay.

"You watch me! And he telephoned," Fanny finished her story "and I went there on a bus and talked to Mrs. Behrmann, and I start to work Monday."

"But, Fanny we're paying eleven dollars a week apiece at Mrs. Brown's!"

"I know we are, and that's why I can't stay there."

"I'm afraid I'm not going to like it," Madge said, looking about at the great mass of the city, bulked against the stars. "It frightens me--it really does."

"You can have it, the whole city, for all me!" Mack said. "Oh sure you can make money here; if you can live a few months without eating! If I get into this I.B.C. racket I'll be making a hundred a week this time next year. This is the place to make money! But what can you buy with it when you've got it?"

"Walk down Fifth Avenue with Madge and me tomorrow morning and you'll see," Fanny suggested "Oh, the windows--and the awnings making everything shady--oh, my city, my city, my city!" She spread out her arms.

"I'm not sure. It seems rather big for my size," Chris said slowly. "I believe that if you stuck to it, and stood for the summer heat and the hard winter, you could lick it, the same as you could any place. But we've come here at a bad time."

"I'll lick it all right!" Mack said as Chris paused. "I'll make my pile, and then I'll get out to some place like San Fransico or Santa Barbara, where people can live--swim, and loaf, and cook and sleep out-of-doors----"

"It scares me," Madge admitted, "I dont like it. I'll never like it it doesn't know you're alive. It--It's too high and too crowded, and isn't like anything else in the world: miles of delicatessen stores and hundreds of movies, and 'To Lease' signs, and empty houses and yet everyone jumbled up without room to breath."

"I love it. I'm where I belong," Fanny murmured. "I'm going to stay!"

Fanny and Chris got a small rail table at the edge of the porch and watched the Sunday crowd thicken and surge in the park. Now and then hot air stirred languidly.

"Iced coffee, and blackberries, and very thin brown toast." Fanny ordered. "Chris, you haven't ordered."

"Oh yes!" he roused himself from abstraction. "No Madge this morning?"

"This is the morning she and Mack were going to Long Beach, to that picnic with his boss."

"Ah, that's right!" Chris said. He smiled brightly at Fanny, and they talked of Friday's news, Saturday's news. Not much news, and no business anywhere. The world was dead.

Fanny talked carefully, with an air of easy indifference. She must be careful not to let him know that it stapped her, over and over, to have him sit there talkin to her and thinking of Madge--

Madge had been beautiful in blue linen this morning; Fanny mustn't say that. The Casino, and the park, and breakfast--these were the things of which she might safely speak.

"I couldn't think this picnic would mean much to her--a lot of people she doesn't know."

"Oh, she knows the Raineys They're lovely--they're just married. They seem awfully fond of Mack, and she's met them several tmes."

"She likes New York better than she did."

"Better, I think. But it still scares Madge."

"He'll never like it."

"Mack? He thought to. I call it outrageous, ingratitude not to! With salary he's getting, and the 'Balsam 'Kiss hour, and everything, And that apartment free--for the sumer, anyway! I don't know what Mack expected."

"Maybe he expected you to be nicer to him Fan," Chris said with one of his rare smiles. Fanny color came up warmly; she managed an uncomfortable laugh.

"I think he's over that."

"You do, really?"

"I think so."

"I thought,' Chris said, not quite as casual as he tried to be, I thought it be you and Mack some day, and that maybe-if ever I get ahead at all--it might be--be us other fellows, too."

Fanny felt her mouth dry; her soul was completely dispirited within her.

"Things don't seem to be working out that way. Chris," she said thickly, not looking at him.

"What did you say?" he bent forward eagerly.

Only--only that---" Her eyes watered; she despised herself. "I couldn't ever--like Mack," she said with difficulty.

"Oh, Fanny, that's silly! Why, there wasn't a girl in Cally that didn't like him."

Fanny managed a patient glance.

"As if that counted!"

"Doesn't it?" Chris asked amusedly, humbly.

"Not a bit!"

"Well, you know about these things," Chris conceded.

He sat on idling with his iced coffee, and Fanny busied herself with her own meal. Intimately as they knew each other, close as the group, she could never feel these weeks had drawn all four of the group, she could never feel sure that these awkward silence might not suddenly develop between them when Mack and Madge were not near by. Perhaps he was not conscious of them, she told herself, but she was; it was maddening not to use its fullest extent every minute that they two could be alone.

"I don't really' know about these things," at all."

"You--what? He had apparently entirely forgot the recent conversation; he looked up vaguely. Fanny wished furiously that she dared attack him, say [illegible]forwardly: "You're crazy about Madge, aren't you?" Somehow it was impossible; her lips would not frame the words; her voice would have failed on them.

"We're not as afraid of it as we were, are we?" she present[illegible] began conversationally. Her n[illegible] indicated the porch of the 'Casino' where they were breakfasting, the strolling idlers in the park, the city all about them.

"New York- No, we've conquered it, in a way. Mack magnificently, of course; he'll make himself one of the valuable men at the I.B.C.; no question of that. And I do the modest extent of eighteen dollars.

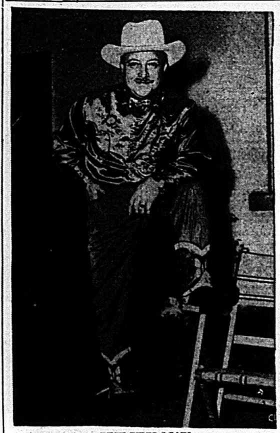
OLD GREY MARE HOLDS UP TRAIN

Humane Society officers, police and kindly volunteers worked half an hour to free this mare from the tracks and ties of a C.N.R. bridge over the Don. A train from Parry Sound stopped, and passengers waited patiently for 25 minutes until the mare was led away (right) by Tom Butler, 14, who had been taking it to a near-by riding academy.—Globe and Mail.



BUCK RIDES AGAIN

Nattily attired in the ten-gallon hat, silk shirt, highly-colored spats and cowboy boots presented by the city of Calgary when its Stampeders won the Dominion football title in Toronto last fall, Mayor Hiram (Buck) McCallum is all set to pay a return visit to the Foothills City for the annual Calgary Stampede. The Toronto mayor can probably be talked into repeating the bronk-riding demonstrations he put on in front of his city for the westerners.—(CP Photo.)

KING DECLARES STATE OF EMERGENCY IN STRIKE

Stop Worrying About Depression Says President

Urges Business Concentrate On Goods at Lower Prices

Washington, July 11 — (AP)—President Truman today advised United States business to stop worrying about a depression and instead concentrate on turning out more goods at lower prices to insure world-wide prosperity.

"The whole world is watching developments in the American economy," he said in his mid-year economic report to Congress.

To back up his words, he presented a 11-point "anti-depression" program designed to check the downward trend in the country's economy by boosting domestic production, foreign imports and investments abroad.

Crisis action isn't needed, Truman said, because the economy still is strong and healthy.

"But there is nothing healthy about more unemployment or less production," Congress was told, "such trends can and must be reversed b ypositive action, private and public . . .".

The President's Council of Economic advisers, in an accompanying report, was somewhat more optimistic in general tone than Truman. It found the business outlook reassuring. But agreed that federal action is called for.

Mr. Truman urged American business men to lower prices where possible, to keep sales and production higher. "But don't cut wages in order to reduce prices," he advised; "that cripples the worker's buying power and everyone gets hurt."

Requests to Congress

These were his requests to Congress—the are of "vital importance," he said:

1. Shun any major tax boost.
2. Lengthen the time limit for repayment of loans made to business by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.
3. Launch a stud of the investment and development needed for an expansion of the economy.
4 Adopt "an improved program" of farm income supports.
5. Raise the minimum wage from 40 cents an hour to at least 75.
6. Bring more industries under unemplomment compensation. Increase the benefits.
7. Extend for one year—to July 25, 1950—the Veterans' Readjustment Allowances.
8. Raise social security benefits.
9. Let federal agencies speed the advance planning of federal works and acquire sites. Help states and localities to do the same".

Provide Technical Aid

10. Provide technical aid to develop the world's backward areas and encourage foreign investment.
a 11. Restore the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, to bolster world commerce.

In one keynote passage the President declared:

"The life and spirit of the American economy is progress and expansion.

HEAVY RAINFALL MAY HAVE COME LITTLE TOO LATE

Toronto, July 11—(CP)—Weekend rain has given crops in many sections of Southern Ontario a new lease on life.

It came just in time to ensure a good corn crop, it gave pastures a second chance and it revived tobacco, tomatoes and many other crops which had been wilting from hot, dry weather. But it came too late to help winter wheat and hayfields in drought-parched areas.

The 1.66 inches of rain which fell in Toronto area was 27 times as much as that recorded in the district for the whole month of June. Rainfall measurel 1.65 inches at Rockcliffe, near Ottawa, and 1.4 inches at St. Thomas.

But no more rain is expected in the immediate future. For most of Ontario, clear and warm weather is forecast for today, with temperatures ranging from the mid-70s to the low 80s.

In many rural areas, congregations in churches joined Sunday in a prayer of thanksgiving for the rain that had saved at least part of their crop.

Can't Put Value

Said Agriculture Minister Kennedy, who has a farm at Dixie, just west of Toronto:

"You just can't put a value on that rain. It was wonderful. It would, of course, have been more wonderful if it had come hree weeks ago, but it was wonderful just the same."

Benefits the farmers received from the downpour extended beyond the fields and pasturelands. Water supplies improved in sections where wells were running low, cisterns were almost empty and streams had dwindled to a trickle.

Raspberry growers said they were thankful for the rain. The dry spell had set back the crop and growers had begun to fear that raspberries, like this year's strawberries, would yield one of the lightest harvest in recent years.

The rainstorm washed out a water main at Petrolia and lightning killed Robert Lattimore, seven, of Komoka, Ont., on a Lake Huron beach at Ipperwash, where he was on holiday.

French Government Invites Canadian Violinist to Paris

Ottawa, July 9. (CP)—Eugene Kash of Toronto, prominent Canadian violinist, has been invited to give two concerts in Paris next September, the French Embassy announced today.

Jean Basdevant, charge d'affaires, said the invitation of the French government recognizes Mr. Kash as one of Canada's foremost artists.

At present Mr. Kash is music director of the National Film Board and concert master of the Ottawa Philharmonic orchestra. In Paris he will appear with the National orchestra of the Radio Diffusion Francaise.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, July 11 (CP)—Synopsis: Sunny skies with seasonably warm temperatures prevail over most of Ontario today and will continue on Tuesday. Scattered showers in northern sections of the province will spread southward into central regions tonight, but will retreat again to northern sections on Tuesday.

Attempting to pry victims of car-truck collision near Schomberg Saturday afternoon from the wreckage in downpour of rain are members of the St. John Amublance Service, together with Provincial Police officers. Three persons were instantly killed; two died in hospital soon after.—Foote.

8 Men Marooned on Scow Rescued After Tug Founders

Point Traverse (Special) — Buffeted by wind-driven Lake Ontario seas, seven men of a tugboat crew and their captain were taken off a shoal-grounded scow three miles off this southern Prince Edward County point Sunday afternoon after being marooned six hours.

The crew consisted of 71-year-old Captain John Gillen, Oakville, Ont., and seven men who manned the diesel-driven tug "J. A. Cornett" which foundered stern first without warning shortly after nine o'clock Sunday morning.

Six-Hour Exposure

Some of them bare-footed, others with scanty clothing, the crewmen and their skipper were little the worse for their six-hour exposure to wind, wave and sun when taken off the scow by commercial fishermen Cecil and Earl Lobb of this point.

The rescued men, besides the captain, were chief engineer Blundell, second engineer, Vallencourt; cook, Grenon and crewmen, N. Coll, J. McLean, J. Cawswell and R. Ramsden. Home addresses of the men were not immediately available.

The "Cornett" was en route from Port Weller, Ont., to Kingston with a large scow in tow. Gale-like winds tore at the sturdy craft and when roughly three miles off Point Traverse a huge wave broke over the stern of the tug. Bulkheads were smashed and in very little time the "Cornett" went under stern first. She lodged on a shoal and a small part of her stack and a rail were visible above water.

As the "Cornett" went down she twisted and rolled against the scow shearing off the tug's masts. Crewmen clambered aboard the scow and let out 600 feet of line attached to a spiledriver which served as an anchor.

Menace to Navigation

The sunken tug is directly in the path of navigation and until removed will prove a menace to lake shipping, veteran mariners said here today.

The crew stayed aboard the scow until 3.30 p.m. when their plight was noticed by the Lobb brothers. The fishermen immediately took the men off and removed them to their home where they were fed, and later taken to Picton.

Word was sent to Kingston and late Sunday evening a salvage tug out of Kingston arrived and took the scow in tow.

The "Cornett" powered with a 350 h.p. Diesel engine is owned by the Canada Dredge Company.

SURVEY PARTY OF SIX LOST FOR FOUR DAYS FOUND

RCAF Plane Attracted To Scene by Signals

Ottawa, July 11 (CP). — The RCAF today reported that a geological survey party of six men, lost for four days in the Northwest Territories vast Yellowknife Park area, has been found by an Air Force photo survey plane.

This was the first information that the geological survey party had been reported missing. Names of the men rescued were not immediately known. They were located apparently in good health on a hilltop, living on a diet of fish and squirrels.

A signal received from No. 10 RCAF Photo Survey Detachment, now doing field work in the Yellowknife area, said regular food supplies were being flown to the party by aircraft.

The men, working in the Lockhart Lake district, said 300 miles north of the N.W.T.-Saskatchewan border, became lost last Tuesday. Air Force headquarters said

Tito Says Yugoslavia Plans to Seal Border Against Greek Civil War

By ALEX SINGLETON

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 11.—(AP) — Premier-Marshal Tito Sunday night said Yugoslavia plans to seal its border with Greece.

He said the object would be to protect Yugoslavs from the Greek Civil War.

Tito spoke before an estimated 40,000 persons in the Adriatic Port City of Pola, taken over from Italy at the end of the war. The text of his address was made public here this morning.

Tito said 'it has come to this. That we must gradually close this frontier and safeguard the lives of our workingmen in this part of our country."

(Western diplomats had speculated recently that Tito might cut off aid to the Greek guerrillas as retaliation for the economic war being waged against him by the Communist countries of Eastern Europe.)

In the face of the economic blockade laid down by the Cominform (Communist International Information Bureau). Tito admitted frankly he was seeking a loan from the west.

"It is true," he said, "that we are asking for and we shall take a loan if a loan is given to us because we need a loan, while also the giving of the loan would be useful to those who give it to us."

He emphasized such a loan must be given without political concessions. He said the world knows Yugoslavia sells copper "and that we do not sell our conscience and our souls but copper alone."

He gibed at leaders of Communist parties in Eastern Europe who, he said, were "alarmed and flabbergasted' because Yugoslavia's living standard was rising instead of falling.

Tito made it clear, however, that Yugoslovia was not turning to the west politically.

"Our people are conscious they are not going toward capitalism nor to the west but that they are building socialism and a better and happier future."

Headache Isn't Disease of Itself But Sign of Disease or Trouble

New York, July 11—(AP)—Swearing off coffee gives some people a headache.

One man, drinking six cups a day, gave it up because of a church precept. He began having throbbing headaches that lasted for six hours each time.

His doctor traced the trouble to giving up caffeine. Caffeine pills helped the man. Drinking four bottles of a cola drink each day brought him complete relief. Gradually he cut down on the cola until he no longer missed having caffeine daily.

The story is told by Dr. Noah D. Fabricant in a new book, "Headache". What causes them How to get relief."

Headaches isn't a disease of itself, but a sign of disease or emotional trouble, he explains.

As for the main causes of headaches,

Many are associated with eyestrain. Neuralgias, or pain along the cranial nerves, can cause severe and sharp headaches. The common cold often brings headaches along with other discomforts. Sinus disease is not as common a cause of headache as many people believe, he adds. Migraine ranks high among headaches that cause the most misery.

'Headaches of emotional origin is probably more common than most of us realize," he continues. "The emotional, restless, fidgety individual besieged by worry, anxieties, overwork and too little sleep is an obvious cause-and-effect victim in many circumstances, the emotional difficulty is unknown.

The doctor must try to help the person find the reason for his emotional stress.

Dock Strikers Defy Back to Work Call By Government

Council Can Work With Free Hand in Handling Cargoes

London, July 11 (CP)—The King today proclaimed a state of emergency to deal with a crippling strike on the London docks.

The King acted on the recommendation of the cabinet after wildcat dock strikers defied a back to work call by the government.

A mass meeting of 5,000 dockers had voted earlier to continue their stoppage. More than 10,000 dockers are on strike.

The cabinet decision set the stage for what is potentially the most serious industrial dispute since Britain's great general strike in 1926.

From midnight the Privy Council, with the advice of the cabinet, will be able to act with free hand to make emergency regulations to speed the handling of cargoes held up in the port of London by the dispute, to draft in more troops, and to arrest without warrant or to prosecute any who are considered to be acting against the national interest.

Home Secretary James Chuter Ede already was engaged on the preparation of these regulations this afternoon. Their object will be to safeguard food, water, transport and other essential services.

It was considered probable that reinforcements would be drafted to the port immediately to join the 1,700 troops already at work. Some 112 ships today were idle along the Thames.

Among them were the 9,034-ton Beaverbrae and the 7,163-ton Argomont, the two Canadian ships which are the cause of the dispute.

Fail to Show up

The National Dock Labor Board retorted 10,278 dockers of a labor force of 25,000 failed to show up for work today.

A mass meeting of 5,000 waterfront workers in Victoria Park led directly to the cabinet decision.

Despite appeals by cabinet ministers and labor and trade union leaders for a return to work, the meeting resolved almost unanimously to maintain the stand taken by the dockers since they stopped work about two weeks ago.

Attorney-General Sir Hartley Shawcross called the walkout "a Communist attack on our democracy."

Albert Timothy, a member of the unofficial committee running the strike, scoffed at that in a speech to the Victoria Park meeting.

"Whatever power they bring into force, we will never go and scab on another man," he said.

Leslie Solley, left-winger member of parliament, recently expelled from the Labor Party, sent the meeting a message pledging his opposition to use of emergency powers against the strike.

FIVE MEMBERS OF FAMILY KILLED NEAR SCHOMBERG

New Car and Truck Collide Head-on

Schomberg, Ont., July 11 — —(CP)—Five members of one Hamilton family were killed and three other persons suffered injuries in a head-on collision between an automobile and a truck late Saturday on Cemetery Hill.

Dead are: Robert Hamilton, 49; his wife, Barbara, 45; their daughter, Margaret, 12; Mr. Hamilton's mother, Mrs. Margaret Hibbard, 72; and Mrs. Hamilton's father, Patrick Tuohy, 75.

Injured are Adam Blandy, 37, of Holland Marsh, Ont., described by police as the driver of the three-ton truck with which the Hamilton car collided; Blandy's seven-year-old daughter, Marlene; and Oswald Legault, 45, of Peretanguishene.

SHIP SEARCH FAILS

Norfolk, Va., July 11—(AP)—A 36-hour search for an unidentified ship reported afire and abandoned 360 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras ended Sunday night. The coast guard withdrew two planes and two cutters at nightfall after an intensive second-day sweep failed to disclose a trace of the missing vessel or her crew.

MISHAPS CLAIM FIFTEEN LIVES IN PROVINCE

(By The Canadian Press)

Five Ontario residents were killed on Cemetery Hill when their automobile, in which they were returning from a Muskoka district cottage, crashed head-on into a truck, 20 miles northwest of Toronto.

The collision late Saturday near Schomberg, which brought death to five members of a Hamilton family, was gravest of the mishaps which claimed 15 lives in Ontario during the weekend.

Victims of the Schomberg crash were Robert Hamilton, his wife and 12-year-old daughter, Margaret, his mother, Mrs. James Hibbert and Mrs. Hamilton's father, Patrick Tuohy. All the victims were from Hamilton.

Scott Tomenson, 18, was killed near Roche's Point when his automobile rolled over into a ditch. A companion, Harry Keenan, 16, was taken to hospital. At London. Dan McDaniels, 19, of London, was killed when his taxi was struck by a passenger train at a level crossing. A passenger, Matthew Monteith, About 25, of London was taken to hospital in serious condition.

In Ontario's second truck-automobile collision, 61-year-old Ira Jackson of Kitchener was killed when his car was sideswiped by a heavy dump truck. The two vehicles, locked together by the impact, skidded 40 feet before crashing into a ditch.

Struck by Truck

Donaly McLeod, 21, of Bayfield, driver of the truck, and his two passengers were uninjured.

Struck by a truck while riding a bicycle near his Clear Creek home, Bruce E. Loucks, 13, died while being rushed to a doctor. Driver of the truck, Earl Ball, also of Clear Creek, escaped injury although his truck crashed into the ditch and snapped off a telephone pole.

In the first six months of this year, 325 persons have been reported killed in traffic accidents in Ontario. This is 79 more than during the corresponding period of 1948. There were 44 traffic deaths in May of this year and 65 deaths were reported for June.

Drowning Reported

Two drownings were reported during the cool Ontario weekend. Allan Wood, 10, was drowned in Lake Erie, near Chatham, while chasing a beach ball in the water. At Leamington, Clarence Popkey, 12, was drowned while swimming in Lake Erie at Point Pele National Park.

Operator of Power Shovel Expected To Recover After Grim Experience

Frankford — Frankford Mer-Taylor, 53, is expected to recover from a harrowing experience at McKerrow Saturday afternoon. when he was almost buried alive under tons of sand and gravel.

Dozens of men, trucks, a power shovel and a bulldozer worked desperately for more than an hour before extricating Taylor from his power shovel.

Taylor, an employee of the Standard Paving Company, was engulfed in the slide at the McKerrow pit at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon and was finally rescued an hour later, badly battered but conscious.

Only the fact that he was inside the huge power shovel he was operating at the time is believed to have saved him from being crushed and suffocated by the sand and gravel which poured down from a 70-foot face in the pit.

Rescue crews worked feverishly and managed to keep his head clear during the rescue operation.

Taylor was operating his shovel at the bottom of the 70-foot bank when the slide occurred. It is estimated that more than 1,000 cubic yards of sand and gravel cascaded down on the shovel.

A doctor and additional trucks were rushed to the scene from here. As soon as Taylor was freed from the engulfing sand and gravel he was removed to Espanola Red Cross Hospital where he was given treatment for shock.

His legs were badly crushed and X-rays are being taken to determine if he suffered internal injuries. The attending physician said today he expected Taylor would recover.

KEY TO A CABINET

Of the several keys your pharmacist carries with him at all times, there is one in particular that he guards more carefully than any other. It's the key to a cabinet in his prescription department : : : a cabinet that holds his stock of narcotic drugs : : : opium, morphine, codeine, and others.

These drugs are among the most important in pharmacy, for they are the ones your physician prescribes to provide relief from the torments of insufferable pain. Their quieting, comforting, pain-relieving action is truly a blessing to mankind.

But, unfortunately, these drugs are also a scourge to society when wrongly used. If they fell into the hands of unprincipled "dope peddlers" they would become part of an illegitimate traffic which wrecks the lives of countless addicts each year.

The pharmacist's key is society's key to narcotic control. It opens the door to the pain-relieving benefits of these drugs but locks the door to their abuse.

Great is the pharmacist's responsibility in safeguarding society through the careful control of narcotic drugs . . . and enviable is his high record of performance in living up to his responsibility.—Reprinted from a copyrighted advertisement published by Parke, Davis & Company.

Corn, Tomatoes, Pastures Benefit By Heavy Rain

Sun parched corn fields and pastures in the Bay of Quinte district received a new lease on life Saturday night and early Sunday morning when one-and-one-tenth inches of much-needed rain fell over the Belleville area.

Pump house officials at the Trent Road filtration plant recorded the rainfall at 1.09 inches.

While the rain did not come soon enough to benefit the early hay crop nor the berry crop, corn and tomatoes in the district will be greatly benefited as will the pastures which were rapidly drying up to the extent that the milk flow was falling considerably.

The root crop, including potatoes, will also benefit from the more than one inch of rainfall, while farmers hold hopes of a better second hay crop than was once anticipated.

The rain Saturday night and Sunday morning which was spread over a period of several hours was soaked up by the dry earth and did not run off as would a heavy downpour.

$6,000 Fire Loss When Barn Burns At Shannonville

Fire, believed to have been caused by a transient seeking shelter for the night from a rainstorm, Saturday night completely destroyed the large frame barn owned by Stewart Dies, Shannonville.

No livestock or machinery was lost in the fire but a large quantity of hay and a number of pine timbers were burned. Loss is estimated at more than $6,000. The main barn was 32 x 60 with an addition 24 feet square. The building was about half covered by insurance.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Dies and neighbors shortly after midnight Saturday but was already well beyond control. Fortunately the wind was blowing away from the house and firemen from Belleville and volunteers had no difficulty in saving other farm buildings. A transient, either from the railway or highway is believed responsible.

Gales Buffet Three American Yachts At Pt. Traverse

Point Traverse (Special)—Three American pleasure yachts anchored here over the weekend braved buffeting seas in an effort to effect a departure on Sunday morning, but two were forced to turn back by the gales while the third decided to buck the heavy seas.

The "Harogen" out of Rochester was badly pounded by wind and water, and lost a dinghy, filled with supplies which she was towing.

Shortly after the dinghy was swept away, a huge wave broke over the deck of the yacht smashing a lashed canoe and washing it overboard. At this point the "Harogen" decided to come about and seek the safety of the harbor.

Shortly afterwards the second yacht limped into port, but the third failed to appear. The United States Coastguard was notified.

Under the command of the regimental commanding officer, Lieut. Col. Reg. Abrahams, Kingston, 102 all ranks of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment left on Saturday for Petawawa Military Camp where they will undergo a week of summer training.

Regimental companies from Belleville, Picton, Trenton, Frankford, and Madoc, augmented by a newly-formed company from Bancroft under Major Cliff Broad joined forces at Bancroft Saturday night where the regiment bivouacked until early Sunday morning.

The unit was transported in its own military vehicles augmented by a "civilian" bus. Seventeen officers are included in the party.

The "Hasty Pees" will undergo training in various courses including junior leadership, small, arms, mechanical transport, and other phases of infantry work.

With the regiment went the mascot "Petawawa Much", well-known wooden Indian and the bullet-scarred battle flag carried by the unit while in action during the Second World War.

The summer training marks the first time the regiment has moved as a unit since reserve army organization.

Toronto Man Drowns in Bird's Creek

Bancroft, (Special) — Thought possibly to have suffered a heart attack as he was fishing, E. J. Cook, 46, of 49 Pine Crescent, Toronto, was drowned in Bird's Creek late Sunday evening.

Mr. Cook, a camper at Baptiste Lake for many years, had been fishing in Bird's Creek accompanied by his wife and two children. He had worked upstream away from his family when one of the children noticed the father's hat floating downstream. The mother went upstream and found her husband lying in the water apparently having drowned.

Coroner Dr. O. W. Anderson and O. P. P. Douglas Ketcheson, went to the scnee. On instructions from Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan there will be no inquest.

Mr. Cook is survived by his wife, the former Alice Amey and two children, aged seven and 12 years.

The body was taken by F. W. Sandercock, Bancroft undertaker to Cannington for burial.

Cherry Valley Man Dies Of Injuries

Picton, July 11, (Special.)—Edward Everall, 25, of Cherry Valley, died in Prince Edward County Hospital, this morning, succumbing to injuries, when the truck on which he was riding, went out of control and crashed into a tree late Sunday evening.

Mr. Everall was working for Gordon Bell of Cherry Valley, and with his wife driving the truck and his two children as passengers, he was delivering milk to the residents of the village. At the time of the accident he was riding on the running board so that it would be easy for him to move from house to house. Without warning the steering wheel failed and the heavy truck headed for the ditch. The cab missed a large tree in the path of the truck but the protruding side of the body wedged the man between the truck and the tree crushing him badly. He was rushed to the hospital suffering from internal injuries.

Traffic Officer Harry Caldwell of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated. It is undecided as to whether an inquest will be held.

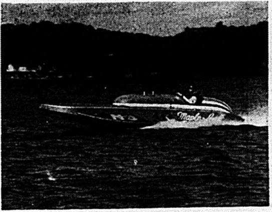
Ed Pine's 'Maple Leaf' Wins Gold Cup at Windsor Regatta



Ed. Pine's gallant "Maple Leaf" crack Class II 225 cubic inch hydroplane showed her heels to crack American drivers at the Windsor Yacht Club Regatta on Saturday. Ed. won the Gold Cup, emblematic of the championship of his class, on rough water. The trophy is the second regatta main prize Pine has won during the past ten days. "Maple Leaf" will be seen in action at Massassaga on Wednesday when Pine will drive her in the Kiwanis Club Regatta, which promises to be the best event of its kind seen here in years.

It was the "Maple Leaf" in more ways than one at the regatta of the Windsor Yacht Club held at Riverside, Ont., on Saturday.

Ed. Pine, of this city, driving his crack Division 11 225 cubic inch hydroplane "Maple Leaf", kicked spray in the faces of five American drivers, won the Gold Trophy, emblematic of his class championship when he finished first in two heats.

The Gold Trophy is the second of its kind to be won by Pine within a week, he having annexed the Alexandria Bay regatta Class II Trophy last Sunday.

To make the victory all the more "Canadian" the Maple Leaf was the only Canadian entry in Pine's class. Opposing him were such crack hydroplanes as "Miss Detroit II" of Detroit; "Double Trouble" out of Tonawanda, New York; "Such Crust" out of Detroit, and two other entries.

"The water was rough and right up Maple Leaf's alley" smiled Ed. as he proudly displayed his American trophies today. He was honored by being allotted the United States racing number "U.S. 1".

Ed. scratched his head. "It's a funny thing," he grinned, "but everytime I race in my home waters, the darned surface is smoother than a pane of glass. I hope I'm blessed with a bit of roughness here and that is where Maple Leaf shines. To give you an idea how the water kicked up on Saturday, my best time was 46.5 miles per hour, quite slow for a Division 11 225 hydroplane."

"I'm hoping that old Massassaga will kick up a bit of a shine at the Kiwanis Club regatta on Wednesday so I can really show the hometown folks what Maple Leaf can do when she is in her element."

Water Rough

"Miss Detroit II" crack Detroit entry won the Class 1 225 cubic inch class in good time on the rough water," said Ed. "Opposing her were the two Blitzes, one of them brand new, driven by Bob and Bill Bogey of Loon Lake, N.Y. Both these boats will be here on Wednesday to race in the Kiwanis Regatta. Two boats owned by Danny Foster called the "Dy-Byes" also entered as did three others."

"Blue Devil" a Michigan craft won the 135 cubic inch class against a field of nine entries.

"Twenty-eight boats all told were entered in the regatta," Pine said. He added it was one of the best meets experienced thus far and he added considerably to his point average. Pine won the highest-point title of North America for the past two years and he is making a strong bid to make it three in a row.

He has a house full of trophies already and he quips that if Maple Leaf continues her winning ways, he will have to build an addition to the garage in which to house gold trophies, silver trays and the many of every types of prizes he is accumulating.

Today and tomorrow he will be readying "Maple Leaf" for the stern test on the Massassaga course, when he will again battle in the nautical derby against crack American and Canadian drivers.

All Ed. is hoping for is a bit of rough water, and he says, "Maple Leaf will do the rest,"

Two Outboard Motors Stolen

Outboard motors were in demand over the weekend by members of the light fingered gentry who were responsible for the disappearance of two such motors from different parts of the city.

Another resident in the west end of the city said a 2.5 horsepower motor of the same make had been taken from his premises.

Severe Quake Lasts 3 Hours

Ottawa, July 11. (CP)—One of the "biggest earthquakes in six months" was recorded early Sunday morning on the seismograph at the Dominion observatory.

It lasted three hours and an official made a guess that it was "somewhere in the Aleutians". He said it had a greater magnitude than the earthquake in Seattle in April. He likened it to a quake last December which occurred along the coast of Mexico, and said it was "one of the biggest we have had in the last six months."

Dr. G. S. Beals of the Observatory said earlier that from the strength of the disturbance recorded at the Observatory on earthquake of that intensity could have done a lot of damage in a populated area.

Hastings Edges Frankford in Softball Game

Frankford.—Frankford Merchants' Softball Club dropped a close one to Hastings in Stirling, Tuesday night. Beith and Boyle pitched a fine game, with Murphy receiving, and the team fielded well. However, the hitting just wasn't, and this has been the big obstacle so far this year. If the Frankford boys can find their batting eyes, the Merchants can still be a strong contender.

Frankford took over undisputed first place in the Sidney Softball League, as they took a 6-4 decision from Johnstown on the latter's home diamond. The ironical part of the game was that on top of knocking Johnstown out of first place in the standing, it was the first game Frankford had won in Johnstown in three years. Johnstown has yet to win one in Frankford.

The game was fast and hard played all the way, with Doug Montgomery turning in his finest pitching performance of the year, and getting a well-deserved win. Bill Zufelt played a great game at second, taking in two line drives that were hard hit, and converting them into twin killings.

For Johnstown, Vandervoort played a game all by himself in centre field. He was air-tight on fly balls, two of his catches coming under the category of sensational.

The Frankford Bantam Softball League got under way Tuesday night as the Flash Boys handed the Argos a 26-12 trimming. Baker pitched for the winners, with Tomecek receiving. O'Brien and Bennett pitched for the Argos, with Reynolds and Bennett working behind the plate.

Woman Defies Hold-up Man

Fort Erie, July 11 (CP) — Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, wife of the proprietor of a grocery store here, calmly looked a threatening gunman in the eye Saturday and refused to turn over the $200 contents of the till.

"This is it," said the man pointing a gun at her. "Give me your money."

"No," said Mrs. Johnston. Before an argument could take place a customer entered. The gunman fled.

'Buck' McCallum And Cow Herders Land at Calgary

Calgary, July 11.— (CP) — Eagered-eyed Torontonians—250 of them—piled off their "Goodwill Special" train today ready for two days of fun at Calgary's wild and woolly stampede.

The group, headed by Mayor H. E. (Buck) McCallum of Toronto, grabbed a large share of limelight from cowboys and Indians thronging city streets in readiness to take part later today in the opening of the week-long colorful western show. Mayor McCallum is scheduled to open it.

The eastern "tenderfeet" were goggle-eyed as they caught what was for many of them their first glimpse of cowboys and of Indians in full war-paint and feathered headdress.

The big stampede week was scheduled to get under way later this morning with a mammoth parade through flag-bedecked downtown streets. Hundreds of men, women and children were lining the parade route several hours before it was scheduled to start. An estimated 50,000 persons may watch the parade.

The big Ontario contingent had a place of honor already assigned to them in the parade.

Calgary was a real cowtown today and mighty proud of it.

High-booted cowboys clumped about the street in 10-gallon Stetsons and gaudy cowboys shirts or weaved nonchalantly through heavy traffic on their high-stepping range ponies. They had no parking or feed problems for their mounts. Along both sides of the main business street, Eighth Avenue, wooden feed troughs, filled with sweet-smelling hay, were at their disposal.

Russians Choke Off Cargoes For West Berlin

Berlin, July 11 — (AP)— The Russians have choked off truck cargoes for West Berlin to four an hour — 96 a day — on the Helmstedt Autobahn. All other highways to the city have been completely closed.

A report to the United States military government that all trucks must be completely unloaded for inspection indicated that this figure might be further reduced. An average of 300 trucks a day had been travelling the Helmstedt road lately.

A British military government source said the western powers would take "vigorous action" in the new blockade situation.

Some checkpoints in the British and American zones reported that the Russians were expanding their blockade to include trucks carrying exports from Berlin, as well as inbound trucks.

Some Allied officials indicated they believed the stoppage was a Russian move to force the allies to meet Soviet trade terms in forthcoming east-west negotiations.

Bear Cub Escapes After Capture By Police Chief

Timmins, July 11 (CP)—To his many other duties Timmins Chief of Police Albert Lepic has added another one—that of bear catcher. He assumed these duties last Thursday.

The chief and his wife and another couple were driving towards McArthur Lake, planning to spend a few days in the bush, when they came upon a mother bear and two tiny cubs standing in the centre of the road. The mother bear and one of the cubs took to the side of the road, and disappeared into the bush.

The other cub climbed up into a small tree. Being a good woodsman, the chief had his trusty axe along. So he cut down the tree and after a slight struggle captured the cub. He put the little animal in a bag in the back of the car and on arriving at his camp site built a cage for it.

The holiday over bear and cage were brought back to Timmins and the cub was placed in the dog pound.

The little fellow isn't still there, however, it squeezed through a hole in the fence over the weekend and made a get-away.

Trinidad Suspends Imports From Canada

Port of Spain, Trinidad, July 11—(CP)—Trinidad, Canada's biggest customer in the British West Indies, Saturday suspended all imports from dollar areas. Thus, the flow of exports notably grain and manufactured goods—from the Dominion to Trinidad ceases immediately. The island's purchases in Canada last year totalled $30,000,000.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa:

Deportation Case Will be Reopened by Govt. Before Long

(By The Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, July 11 (CP)—Although quiet fell upon it during the election campaign, the celebrated deportation case of French Count Jacques Duge De Bernonville will be reopened by the government "before very long," officials report in Ottawa.

Some months have passed since the alleged wartime collaborator with the Germans was freed by a Montreal court in a successful application for a writ of habeas corpus. Government officials said that the decision was based on a technicality and that deportation proceedings would be sounded anew.

The first step would be appointment of an immigration board to review the case and decide whether De Bernonville and his family should be allowed to remain in Canada. The court ruled that the previous board, which ordered deportation, was too small.

The new board has not been appointed but, an official said, it will be "before very long." If it also orders deportation, De Bernonville will again have recourse to habeas corpus proceedings.

Undersentence of death in France, he is believed to be still in Montreal.

He launched a spectacular series of charges and counter charges that reverberated in parliament when he went to immigration officials months ago and said he had entered Canada under an assumed name.

Industry

Canada is analyzing the war-making potential of her industry and comparing it with what she did between 1939 and 1945.

The findings of experts named by the Industrial Preparedness Association will be turned over to the Joint United States-Canada Industrial Mobilization Planning Committee. That is the group which will lay plans for industrial integration of the two economies in the event of war.

J. G. Notman, President of the Preparedness Association, says the industrial analysis will be based on the assumption that financial independence must be provided for in the event of an emergency.

There are a number of munitions it would be impracticable to manufacture here if there were only a Canadian outlet and therefore. He says, it is necessary to establish a plan whereby Canadian surpluses can be swapped with friendly countries.

Franz Johnston, Canadian Artist, Dies in Toronto

Toronto, July 11—(CP)—Franz Johnston, 61, a Canadian artist whose paintings of Arctic scenes and Eskimos won him international renown, died Saturday night in a Toronto hospital he entered two weeks ago for a rest.

The short, bearded painter, who held that Canada offers Canadian artists their greatest opportunity for expression, journeyed to the Arctic to find subjects. With his brush he caught the weird flicker of the Northen lights, the lonely grandeur of Arctic rivers and strange lighting effects on ice and sky.

Northern lights, one of his most striking Arctic canvases, was a feature of an exhibition of a Canadian painting in Wembley, England. Reproductions of the work hang in many homes in Canada.

Other famous paintings which followed a five-month trip to the Arctic and sub-Arctic in 1940 include Snowblind, Beyond the Law and Agittuark, the latter showing an old Eskimo woman abandoned by her tribe.

Born in Toronto, he studied in New York and Philadelphia. Shortly before the outbreak of the First World War, he returned to Canada and became a member of the group of seven, who used a vivid and original style of painting to impress upon Canadians the beauties of their country. He was a close friend of the late Tom Thomson and accompanied Thomson on a painting trip into Northern Ontario.

WATERLOO TIGERS ON TOP

(By The Canadian Press)

Two games in the Intercounty Senior Baseball League last night knocked London Majors out of first place and pushed Waterloo Tigers into undisputed possession of top spot in the league.

Stratford Nationals hammered two London pitchers for 13 hits to defeat the Majors 9-6 and this, coupled with Waterloo Tigers' 7-6 victory over Guelph Maple Leafs, re-arranged the teams for the league's top standing.

Country-Wide Steel Strike May Come Saturday

Washington, July 11. (AP) — The steel labor crisis swept into Washington today in its rush toward a possible country-wide strike next Saturday.

Seeking to avert a vast steel shutdown, Cyrus S. Ching, Canadian-born director of the United States Mediation and Conciliation Service, prepared to hash over the dispute with both sides this afternoon.

He invited to the conference Philip Murray, president of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.), and officials of several large companies including the pace-setting United States Steel Corporation.

Before the negotiations between the Union and U.S. Steel fell apart last week in Pittsburgh, the Union argued that the company could raise wages as much as 20 cents an hour and still reduce prices and make a substantial profit.

The company said higher wages would mean higher prices, and it refused any wage increase at all. Disputes over pensions and insurance benefits were deadlocked too.

The Union has never formally demanded a specific wage figure. But Arthur Goldberg, the Union's general counsel, said in an interview that a 20-cent figure was used in the negotiations by way of illustration. U.S. Steel says the average basic hourly wage now is $1.69.

Tuesday Murray goes back to Pittsburgh to preside over the Steel-workers' Policy Committee as it considers ordering a July 16 strike.

Such a strike would immediately involve about 500,000 workers convered by contracts whose "no strike" clauses expire July 16. It might eventually involve about 750,000 workers in basic steel mills and steel fabricating firms.

Lightning Bolt Kills Boy as He Runs on Beach

Ipperwash, Ont., July 11 (CP)—Struck by lightning while running along the beach of this Lake Huron resort during a thunderstorm, seven-year-old Robert Lattimore was killed late Saturday.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lattimore of Komoka, who witnessed the bolt that killed him. They were some 150 feet away. The flash blinded them momentarily and because the heavy rain reduced visibility, they did not know their son had been hit.

The blinding light also prevented three other persons from being actual witnesses. They were Roy B. McKay, and his wife Margaret, who were numbed when the same bolt that struck the boy seemed to splatter against their cottage, and Dr. Harold A. Mercer, of Alpena, Mich., Mr. McKay's stepson.

Mr. McKay said he was struck on the left shoulder and arm, and that the numbness still bothered him 24 hours later. He was sitting on the verandah on his cottage. Mrs. McKay was standing in the front doorway of the cottage.

"I felt as though I had been hit on the top of the head," she said. The shock set her shoulders and arms tingling.

Dr. Mercer was sitting on the other side of the verandah opposite Mr. McKay and was not affected. Dr. Mercer was the first to reach the body but found him dead.

MISHAPS CLAIM

Four deaths due to miscellaneous causes were reported in Ontario. At St. Thomas, John Blakely, 52, died from injuries suffered when the team of horses, pulling a mower he was driving, bolted, throwing him into the arm of the mower blades and draging him halfway across a field. In a freak accident at Ipperwash, Robert Lattimore, seven, was killed when a bolt of lightning struck him while he was running along the beach at the Lake Huron resort. Douglas Fairbairn, 25, Ottawa hydro worker was electrocuted while trimming a tree. At Toronto, William Cronin, 69, died from injuries suffered when he fell from a ladder while painting his home.

FIRST SEEN IN 106 YEARS

New Haven, Conn., July 11 — (AP) — A noted Yale scientist and explorer Sunday disclosed he has brought to the United States one of the least - known species of birds in the world — the spiny babbler. S. Dillon Ripley said the specimen, now being studied at Yale, is the first to be discovered in 106 years — and the first ever seen alive by a scientist. Riply came across the bird on his recent expedition to Nepal. It is about the size of a mocking bird.

Stately Elm Trees At St. Thomas Prey of Disease

St Thomas, July 11—(CP)—St. Thomas' stately elm trees are believed to have fallen prey to the deadly Dutch elm disease and the insidious little dark beetle which carries it.

Dutch elm disease, so called because it originated in Holland, is said to have been responsible for the destruction of uncounted elms in continental Europe and Great Britain. Since its introduction to the eastern United States in the late 1930's it has been blamed for destroying 25 per cent of the elm trees in the New England states.

The destructive little beetle, which carries the disease, was believed imported into the U.S. by wooden elm packing cases.

Dutch elm disease was noticed in Canada some six years ago, and scientists suspected it crept in via Montreal docks and wooden imports. It has ravaged parts of Quebec and Ontario, although it has been isolated to some extent.

Among the trees believed infested in St. Thomas are the fine old specimens around the YWCA building off Mary and Curtis Streets. Thousands of small yellow caterpillars from a quarter to one-half inch in length have attacked those trees and other elms in the city. The attacking caterpillars have been observed in small piles and clusters on the ground beneath the trees.

Specimens of the caterpillars and attacked leaves have been sent to Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, where H. W. Goble, professor of Entomology, has suggested it might be an infestation of Dutch elm disease beetle. He was not certain of his identification and specimens have been forwarded to the Division of Entomology, Dominion Department of Agriculture, for examination.

SURVEY PARTY

Dr. A. H. Lang of Ottawa, senior Resources Department representative in the Yellowknife area, immediately appealed to the detachment to help find the party.

Missed Rendezvous.

Air Force planes missed a rendezvous with other civilian aircraft pressed into the search. A subsequent search by the civilian aircraft indicated no trace of the party.

However, a photo survey Norseman aircraft piloted by FO. S. A. Marshall of Peterborough and Ottawa was dispatched into the area last Saturday. In the plane with FO. Marshall was Leading Aircraftsman J. S. McEgan, also of Ottawa.

Their attention was attached to the hilltop by means of a heliograph signal, a sun-reflector signalling device. The Norseman landed and except for depleted food supplies, found the men in good shape.

A civil aircraft later was dispatched from the Yellowknife area with regular food supplies for the six men.

FIVE MEMBERS

Three of the victims were killed outright when the smash locked the vehicles together and crushed the 1949-model Hamilton car like an accordion. Crowbars were used to pry the bodies from the wreckage. Hamilton and his daughter died soon afterwards in hospital at Newmarket.

Came Over Hill

The Hamilton car had just travelled over the crest of the hill a half-mile east of this community, 28 miles northwest of Toronto, when it swung over toward the centre of the road and smashed into a truck. The truck driver said he applied his brakes but the truck skidded on rain-slicked pavement. Police said a dip on the roadway might have caused the car to veer toward the centre line.

Hamilton and his relatives were driving home from a cottage at Orr Lake in the Muskoka district. Blandy had gone to Guelph to take his daughter home after a week's holiday there.

Hamilton's son, Robert, 22, and an elder daughter, Elizabeth, 15, reached Newmarket late Saturday night. The youth said his father had planned to leave the cottage Sunday night. He added "I can't understand why he changed his mind, especially when the weather was so bad."

PRODUCTION MOUNTING

Four years have passed since the war period and the picture of events abroad has been bewildering at times. But the fact is that the world production of foods is mounting. There is an immense difference between the conditions at the war's end and those of the present day.

At the weekend the Bureau of Statistics, Ottawa, issued a statement that the world post-war bread-grains shortage is over and that wheat and rye production is on the increase while the grain stocks in the world are the largest in more than ten years.

Nations which passed through the afflictions of war and the disruption of agriculture, which brought rationing of most commodities in time, are now getting on their feet again and helping to feed themselves.

Such has been the easing of the strain under which millions of people lived through the six-year struggle.

Bread-rationing has almost disappeared

P. D. ROSS

One of the best known figures in the Canadian newspaper world has passed away at the age of 91 years, P. D. Ross, a veteran of the craft who had in his long association with newspaper publication rendered a service which has been of importance in the development of the newspapers of Canada. For a period of over sixty years he had been associated with newspaper work and helped to build it to the place of prominence it occupies in the life of the Dominion.

He was the dean of newspapermen in length of service as president of The Ottawa Journal which he had bought a few months after it had started in 1886. It was only last March that he disposed of The Journal to a group of newspaper associates and stayed as president until the end of his life.

Mr. Ross had vision and foresaw the opportunity for such a news collecting agency as The Canadian Press of which he was a promoter and one of the founders. He had served as a president of The Canadian Daily Newspapers Association.

The name of P. D. Ross always stood high in the newspaper world. His life was of sterling character, and was associated with efforts in the public interest. His interests were wide and of meaning to the entire Dominion, for he was qualified to serve the best causes.

One who had lived so long and actively will be missed from Canadian life in which he had become practically a legend, so long had been his activities associated with everything for the bettermen of Canadian life.

He was blessed with long years and his life he spent richly in the public and common cause.

IMMIGRATION

A report recently published in England of the findings of a royal commission on population brings out the interesting news that Canada, South Africa, New Zealand and Australia would require altogether 226,000 immigrants a year in order to increase their total populations two per cent annually and that of this number Britain could be expected to furnish not more than 65,000 of this yearly total. Canada will require 110,000 immigrants yearly to bring the two per cent and in 35 years would double her population.

The commission believes that not more than ten per cent could be expected to emigrate from Britain.

One paragraph of the report says that the emigration might be encouraged by special inducements but the final factor would be whether the country to which emigrants were going had higher standards of living to offer than Britain. It goes on to say, "In this event, the ideal arrangement would be for Britain to work out at the same time an immigration policy which would ensure that the needs of the rest of the Commonwealth for manpower were met as far as possible from people of British stock and that Great Britain with its much larger population would take on as much as possible of the problem of assimilating people of other than British stock."

Freedom of religion is a basic element of democracy, but there is no democracy in Communism. Communism would reduce us all to a dismal conformity of pattern and design. The true Communist worships Stalin as the All-Highest and would cut down ruthlessly any tendency to exalt the individual or to admit his rights.—Ottawa Journal.

JUST FOLKS

TOUGH GUY

He was something of a cynic or a realistic guy.
"It's been twenty years," he boasted, "since I've had a teary eye."
Said he chose the girl he married for her skill at making pie.

"All sentiment is stupid. None can alter what's to be.
The heart's a silly organ; it's the mind that governs
me.
I will never lose my senses."
many times he said to me.

Well, the girl this cynic married for the pie that pleased him so
Said: "I think the baby's coming. It is time for us to go."
And the tough guy got excited and his fears began to show.

There were beads of perspiration on that realistic brow.
He drove his car much faster than the driving laws allow,
And he told the sweet piemaker: "May the Lord be with us now."

He asked countless foolish questions, as all fathers have before:
Bit his finger-nails and fretted
as he paced the corridor;
When they brought his baby to him he fell flat upon the floor.

SMOOTH SAILING

Many fortunate people will spend their vacations on the ocean this year, enjoying a few days or weeks aboard an ocean liner. The summer is the most pleasant time for a voyage The sea is smoother then, and weather is good for sun-bathing, deck tennis, or just watching the fascinating variations of the ocean and sky. Winter, with rain, winds, and storms is much less pleasant.

Nevertheless, no one ever saw an ocean liner built to sail in the summer only. Ship-builders know that while their ships are busiest in good weather, they must also sail through storms. And so an ocean liner is always prepared for the worst, even on the calmest days with water-tight doors, lifejackets, lifeboats, and rockets.

One reason so many people go to pieces is that they expect life to be summer all the time. So intent are they on smooth sailing that they have no reserve strength for rough weather. Even people who anticipate rough weather often do so bitterly, mistakenly wishing never to endure hardships.

But consider a ship's officers and crew. Among the most trusted—the captain, the mates, the chief engineer—you will find no summer sailors. All smooth sailing, on the Atlantic or on the ocean of life, does not make strong sailors Storms strengthen those who are ready for them.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE SMALL TOWN

I shall never cease to be grateful over the fact that I was both born, and lived the early part of my life, in a small town. You knew almost everybody, from the town marshal, the druggist and the harness maker, to the High School Principal, and the town's clergymen.

There was a friendliness that spread all over town. There was community interest. Co-operation and a democracy of spirit were always alive. People travelled and came back with ideas that were distributed. Sunday was a day of worship and the many churches were filled with people eager to gain spiritual sustenance.

The small town, with its weekly newspaper, is the backbone of every country, and a goodly portion of a country's great men and women were reared in the small town. Most came from humble origin. And I have never met a man or woman who didn't take pride in the fact.

People take time to think in the small town. They keep informed, and from many a one have come our most outstanding Presidents, and legislators, as well as those who have contributed to the life of the nation and to the world.

Our great educational institutions are filled with students who have come from the small town—and if you have listened to the broadcasters of baseball games, you have learned that a majority of our great ball players came from the small towns! In traveling across the country, in a car, you will pass through many a small town and you will learn from each. They are a happy, useful lot of people who live in them.

We, who have been born and lived in these small towns, carry many happy memories with us all through life, and these memories grow richer with the years. The church, the school, and the library are outstanding institutions in the small town. They are its intellectual and spiritual guardians. No one who has ever lived in a small town can forget its endless benefits.

Chiang Remains Titular Head Chinese Govt.

By JAMES D. WHITE
(Associated Press News Analyst)
(For Dewitt Mackenzie)

For the first time since 1943, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek has left Chinese soil.

This time the stated purpose is to talk over the Communist question in Asia with President Elpidio Quirino of the Phillipines. An official source said Chiang and Quirino talked about forming a non-military Pacific front against Communism.

While no longer the acting titular head of the Chinese Government, Chiang remains for many reasons the No. 1 non-communist leader in his country.

Still Boss Man

He is still the acknowledged head of the Kuomintang, the Government party. This position entails the following:

The Government—still the legally recognized government of China— is answerable to him through the party. So is the army. So are the navy and air force.

One thing he and Quirino talked about is the idea of a Pacific Pact against Communism—to be underwritten by the United States.

Second Atlantic Pact

This idea has been in the heads of non-communist Asiatic leaders ever since tthe Atlantic Pact was announced. Quirino himself has discussed it, but he appears to have had in mind a kind of economic union. Chiang, whose armies have lost most of their equipment to the Reds, would probably like to see a military defence arrangement which would give him more arms

In any case the United States has been cool to the idea from the beginning. Even Prime Minister Nehru of India pointed out that Asia is too confused politically to make such a pact work now.

Nehru asked specifically who, for instance, would sign such a Pact for a place like French Indo-China?—the French, or the Indo-Chinese Nationalists who have been i nrebellion against French rule nearly four years?

Under such circumstances, the prospects for a Pacific Pact don t look too bright at this moment.

$150,000 Plan For People's War On Teen Gangs

Toronto, July 9. (CP)—Toronto's leading juvenile delinquency experts today proposed a $150.000 plan for a people's "war" on teen-age hooliganism to be submitted to city council this Fall.

Officials said the plan will depend on public enlightenment for acceptance. They added that the proposals will not "wet-nurse" greater Toronto's 2.500 members of 20 gangs. Instead they said the plan recommends specialized treatment to remove the cause and glamor of gangs.

HUNT PEEPING TOM

Detroit, July 11 — (AP)—Eleven heavily - armed men Sunday night patrolled Midway Avenue in suburban Southfield township. Every night for the last two weeks the neighborhood army has been hunting a peeping Tom. The men, all veterans, are armed with shotguns, rifles, pistols and blackjacks. The men have orders from their wives to stay on the job until they find the peeping Tom.

Miners Jailed And Union Fined In Australia

Sydney, Australia, July 11 (CP)—Two leaders of the Australian Miners Federation today were sentenced to one-year terms in prison for contempt of court and their union fined £2,000 ($6,100) as the country-wide coal strike began its third week with prospects of a settlement dim.

The officials, Idris Williams, President of the Miners Federation, and G. W. S. Grant, Federation Secretary, were held in contempt by an arbitration court on charges of stemming from the refusal of the Federation and its leaders to pay to the court sums of money withdrawn from banks, allegedly to prolong the coal strike.

The government had passed an emergency law soon after the coal strike started, making it illegal to withdraw union funds from banks for the purpose of aiding striking workers.

The latest government crackdown on the mine union came only 24 hours after miners, meeting in the New South Wales coal-fields, voted almost unanimously to continue the walkout. The miners passed resolutions demanding the release of other union officials arrested last week.

Want Better Wages, Hours

The miners went on strike for better wages and hours. They asked a 35-shilling ($4.85) weekly wage increase an da 35-hour work week instead of 40.

The effects of the crippling strike were felt today in Victoria State where 12,000 workers were made idle by a one-day government ban on the use of electric power for industry and amusements.

In a move to bring relief to Sydney, the state capital, the Federal and New South Wales governments planned to order the New South Wales railways to bring into the city 20,000 tons of coal now lying idle in trucks at coal-fields.

Meanwhile, the Canadian ship Haligonian Duke, with 6,700 tons of coal, remained in Melbourne harbor where it has been for four months—its full cargo aboard because Melbourne dockers refuse to unload her.

Sunday night Percy Bengough, secretary of the Canadian Trades and Labor Council, said the boycott of the vessel is "phony" inspired by Communist-led Australian Seamen's Union.

HEADACHE

Constipation is rarely a cause of headache, he adds.

Headaches due to brain tumors or abscesses are relatively rare but "no chronic headache should be dismissed without investigating the possibility of brain tumor."

Dr. Fabricant warns against prolonged use of headache powders or pills, without medical advice.

'A number of headache nostrums are habit forming," he says, "and their use in quantities exceeding the recommended dose has contributed greatly to mental and physical disorders in an increasing number of (persons).

"The person who claims that he cannot begin a day's work without taking a headache powder or pill or gas of fizzing water is on the road to becoming a drug addict. Indeed, drug habituation can become as firmly established in some persons as the liquor habit is in others. Many headache nostrums are dangerous precisely because they may lead to drug addiction."

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

One time I had the misfortune to hit a boy on a bicycle with my car. The boy was uninjured. It cost only $2 to repair the bicycle. But driving the youngster home to the suburban market garden district in which he lived, I made the acquaintance of a remarkable Polish family of market gardeners.

The father believed that the secret of successful farming is joyous work. And he certainly seemed to have the secret. He made money. And he saved it. His dream was to use the money to educate the boy I had knocked down so that he could be a big man, a doctor, a lawyer maybe.

But the boy declined. He persuaded his father to use the money to buy him the adjoining land and give it to him for a market garden. They both made money.

When the lad was twenty, the father came up with the ardent notion that the boy should go to the agricultural college.

"What for?" the young fellow demanded, at the family conference at which I was privileged to be present. "All I'd learn there would be a few detours around the true secret of successful farming.

"And what is that?" demanded the old Pole, indignantly.

'Joyous work," smiled the boy.

The old man gave in, with a proud blush.

"Maybe I should live long enough," he sighed, "to see a grandson with some brains . . ."

In three years, father and son made enough to be able to buy a very large market garden in a choice location. With the proceeds of the sale of their old plots, they erected modern buildings of the latest approved specifications of the agricultural colleges, as well as purchasing new trucks, machinery . . .

I attended the house-warming.

Over the gate, the name of the property is worked in wrought iron:

"Joyous Work".

NEURASTHENIA AND NUTRITION

Neurasthenia is after all a ten dollar word for "weak nerves." "nervous prostration," "nervous exhaustion" and the like. The notion that neurasthenia, nervous weakness, or whatever you please to call it, is a recognizable entity or disease or ailment is based wholly upon subjective symptoms, that is, the feelings or sensations or fancies or apprehensions or fears or phobias of the individual. There is no sign, symptom or test whereby a physician may determine whether an individual has "nervous exhaustion," weak" nerves," "neurasthenia." This being so, it is obvious what a vast field of exploitation there is available to (a) stinkers who use their "weak nerves to take unfair advantage of relatives, friends and the world at large; (b) smooth charlatans who conceal their ignorance of what ails the patient by mumbling something about "nerves all shot," nervous wreck," "nervous breakdown" or working on his nerves," (c) manufacturers and purveyors of bromides, barbiturates,, acetanilide, aspirin and other drugs which purport to soothe, calm or otherwise quiet the "nerves."

Let no real invalid or semi-invalid waste words complaining about my lack of sympathy or understanding. I have no sympathy for that dodge, because only the malingerer pretends to be wounded by the truth.

Since I wrote the preceding paragraph I have taken 2½ hours off—a long, long luncheon hour such as big business executives require to ease the tremendous strain on their alleged "nerves." I spent half an hour getting to and from the green and two hours playing the game—bowls (and don't show your ignorance by thinkin I mean ten-pins.) If there is no bowling green in your community where you can see the game you will find a good description of it in Vol. 3 of the Britannica under the heading of Bowls.

On returning from my game, which I lost to a novice who had the traditional luck, it was not at all difficult to decide whether to recite here the symtoms which are common manisfestations of preclinical pellagra but are generally ascribed to "nervous exhaustion," "weak nerves and the like-up north and among well to do folk as well as down south among the poor.

It is against my hygienic principles to offer symtoms for readers to try on.

Before we go any farther perhaps I should explain that "preclinical" means the early stage of the illness before the individual takes to his bed or becomes ill enough to consult a physician.

There is no clean dividing line between fairly good health and pellagra. In any case there is long preclinical period of ill health with insidiously advancing symptoms which seem trivial enough at first. As a rule these symptoms are ascribed to overwork, fatigue, worry, indigestion, poor assimilation, autointoxication or some other fanciful cause.

Loss of weight, strength and appitite, insomnia, vertigo (dizziness) headache, "dyspepsia," sore tongue and mouth, irritability, loss of memory, depression, inability to concentrate, mental confusion. These are common complaints of persons in the preclinical stage of pellagra, especially dizziness on rising, pains in the limbs and vague abdominal pains with alternating diarhhea and constipation.

Here it is worth repeating that Dr. McLester observes in his medical textbook Nutrition and Di[illegible] that some patients in Birmingham hospital with pellagra had been admited to the hospital in previous years with the diagnosis of "neurosthenia."

It was discovered in 1937 that nicotinic acid (now called niacin), one of the B complex vitamins, cured black tongue in dogs. Black tongue in dogs resembles human pellagra. So niacin was used in the treatment of pellagra, with excellent results. But niacin alone was not a complete cure. Liver and a diet rich in the entire vitamin B complex were found to be more effective.

These foods are the best sources of niacin, thiamine (B1), riboflavin and the other B complex vitamins: Liver. red meat, milk, fresh vegetables, wheat or entire wheat flour (not white flour), oatmeal, greens.

TONY PASTOR

AND HIS ORCHESTRA

TONY PASTOR

"Style," says Tony Pastor, "is the basis of musical success. The bands that gain a definite mark of recognition are in the best position to attain lasting popularity." The famous bandleader who will appear in person with his orchestra at the Belleville Arena this Tuesday Night, is a firm believer in some sort of signature through music.

Tony himself makes a good example of what he is trying to prove. His own vocal ability and the manner in which he renders a song are known to just about every man, woman and teen ager in the country. His voice is unusual, to say the least, and Pastor is careful to select the songs he sings. They must be suited for his style. Through the years careful selection and increased activity have proven invaluable in his rise to fame. Today a new Tony Pastor vocal is assured of a large record sale, songs that achieve a TP plug are Hit Parade best bets.
